Sihanoukville Set To Become Cambodia's Top Casino Hub

Chinese gaming operators are rapidly transforming Cambodia's Southern coastal city of Sihanoukville into the country's leading casino hotspot.
Cambodia had issued more than 110 casino licenses by the middle of this year, and Sihanoukville's casino market is starting to rival that of Poipet and Bavet, which cater to customers who stream across the border from Thailand and Vietnam, respectively.

Cambodia's casino industry is the land of opportunity

Cambodia's casino industry, once nothing more than a footnote in the global casino space, has grown significantly in the past year. There has been an increase of 53% in the number of licenses issued, leading to the country being viewed as the "New Land of Opportunity" by Casino Review Magazine (CR).

The majority of the growth has been seen around Sihanoukville, which has attracted a large number of Chinese investors due to its popularity as a vacation destination and its appeal as a place to live. Its success is also being driven by the fact that Cambodia created the Sihanoukville Special Economic Zone (SSEZ), which gives Chinese manufacturers economic incentives to operate there. Klebanow adds, "Sihanoukville is undergoing unprecedented growth.

Chinese nationals control three-quarters of Sihanoukville casinos

Chinese nationals control over 90% of businesses in Cambodia's Sihanoukville region, including over three-quarters of its casino operations.
Cambodia's government revealed last month that 91 of the 163 casino licenses it has issued to date were for operations in Preah Sihanouk province. Many of these licenses were focused on online gambling operations, which traditionally target customers in mainland China.
The massive rise in the number of new casino licenses issued – including 13 in just the first four months of 2019 – has raised government revenue but has also increased tensions between local residents and the hordes of Chinese nationals flooding into Sihanoukville.
