Bio:

Frank got the music bug from his father, who had an extensive vinyl collection — from big-bands of the 40's, Country Western, Pop, Jazz, to his favorite guitar player, Chet Atkins. There wasn't a weekend that went by without Frank waking up to the sound of music reverberating throughout the house. The images that these songs portrayed painted little stories in his mind as he listened to each song.

Using that experience as inspiration, he aims to tell a story through his music. Always entertaining with a story or two about the music that goes hand in hand when Frank performs.

With all of those different styles of music that he heard growing up, it allowed Frank to respect and admire all genres, which comes through in his music.
