Alex Currie is a singer, songwriter and visual artist whose music moves between indie rock, lo-fi folk and fragile experimental territory, pairing plainspoken writing with distorted guitars, field recordings and uneasy, atmospheric textures.

After years away from music, Currie returned to songwriting in his forties, drawn back by questions of home, memory, distance and the places we carry with us.

Earlier releases River John (EP) and Greetings From... (LP) explored those ideas through intimate recordings and sounds gathered between Nova Scotia and Ontario.

His self-titled LP, alexjcurrie, released October 15, 2026, was produced with James Bunton at slowlgo sound. The record pushes his songwriting into something louder, stranger and more immediate. Quiet confession gives way to blown-out guitars, crooked melodies, found sounds and sudden moments of beauty.

Performing live as alexjcurrie & The Opportunity, Currie is joined by Luca Morellato (bass), John Kennelly (guitar) and Graham Cavalier (drums). Together, they bring the album's intimate, experimental recordings into a louder, full-band setting.

The album also exists as a complete audiovisual work, with a video accompanying every song. Its release was celebrated at Prince Edward County's Mustang Drive-In with a full-album screening on the giant screen, followed by a live performance from the beds of pickup trucks before a packed audience.

"Written and recorded in Prince Edward County with local friends and collaborators, the album justifies urban exodus — you don't need municipal electricity to make music this good, both well-healed in scope and deeply rooted in the experience of place. Sounding something like Phil Elverum backed by the Elephant 6 Collective scoring a visionary musical set in rural Ontario, these songs flow effortlessly between stark heartbreak and baroque psychedelia—this is the sound of the Picton Pop Explosion!" — Brandon Hocura (Séance Centre)
