Municipal Health Officer

Municipal Health Officers have a significant role in ensuring effective local and regional public health systems and are responsible for three critical functions.

1. Enforcing applicable New Hampshire laws and administrative rules (i.e. regulations), as well as local ordinances and regulations enacted by communities

2. Serving as liaisons between state officials, local elected officials, and residents for local public health issues

3. Leading and actively participating in efforts to develop regional public health capacities.