PROGRAM OUTCOMES

Graduates of our programs are expected to achieve five core student learning outomes. Graduates of our program will be able to demonstrate:

1. Theoretical Knowledge

2. Applied Ministerial Practice

3. Critical Analysis of the Bible

4. Information and Writing Literacy

5. Communication Effectiveness

1. Theoretical Knowledge

Graduates from our program will be able to demonstrate competency in foundational theological concepts. They will be able to identify and articulate the core theological views of the Christian church and the Full-Gospel heritage.

2. Applied Ministerial Practice

Graduates from our program will be able to demonstrate a wide range of knowledge and experiences related to applied ministerial practice, including skills such as preaching, teaching, administration, counseling, leadership, and supervised practicums. Graduates will have an appreciation for diverse cultural contexts and acquire knowledge of effective ministry within Christian settings.

3. Critical Analysis of the Bible

Graduates from our program will be able to assess and evaluate biblical passages; assess and evaluate the historical and literary composition of the text. They will also be able to discuss, communicate, and present interpretations of the biblical text.

4. Information and Writing Literacy

Graduates from our program will be able to show information and writing literacy skills, effective research writing, creation of theories, and the ability to effectively articulate their reasoning in written format.

5. Communication Effectiveness

Graduates from our program will be able to bring together awareness and knowledge of various Biblical concepts, theological perspectives, and ministerial principles through an effective verbal communication approach. Appropriate communication will include but is not limited to, course presentations, paper presentations, teaching, video development, preaching, and success through the communication components of the student's general portfolio.
