The studies are impressive:

- Dermatologists at the University of Wisconsin found Resveratrol protects your skin from UV damage. Another study shows topical Resveratrol improves skin tone, reduces the appearance of wrinkles and more.

- Resveratrol is a powerful antioxidant found in the skin of red grapes and is clinically proven to have positive anti-aging benefits. Years of research has shown Resveratrol to be one of the most potent anti-aging substances that have been discovered. This miraculous ingredient has been shown to provide the human body with numerous health benefits that can slow or even reverse the effects of aging in the human body.

- Resveratrol is the only polyphenol scientifically proven to activate the longevity gene called SIRT1, which enhances cellular productivity and decreases cellular autophagy. Resveratrol is also a powerful antioxidant which protects our cells and DNA from free radical damage. Some scientists even believe that aging itself is caused by free radicals slowly damaging the body beyond repair. These scientists believe that by using antioxidants to slow or even stop free radical damage, humans could potentially achieve longevity.
