

JOSHIAH

www.joshiah.com

Caveat: This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Although it has been checked for obvious errors, it has not been finally edited. Editorial comments are in parentheses; probable wording is in square brackets.

April 4, 2004

Q and A

Joshiah: Well now. Once again, allow us to express our gratitude for your inviting us back into your vibrational level and offering us this opportunity to participate in your reality.

Now. We would remind you, once again, that the entities that are with us on this afternoon remain, and should you choose to become involved in that silent communication that the opportunity for you to do so still exists. You have but to express the intent. And once again, as you close your eyes you would find it quite easy to shift into that meditative state as a result of the energy that you have created within this sacred space. For indeed, all that you experience within this vibrational level is your creation, including that energy that you experience, including the feelings that you participate in within your group, within your facilitation of this energy creation process.

Now. We have continuously come back to that simple statement, the simple truths, if you wish, that you create your reality, that you are a Piece of God, and that you cannot fail. Understanding that holding within your consciousness and holding within your subconsciousness those belief systems is the key to understanding the creation process that you experience in your conscious state. Similar to the example that we gave to the analogy of the mathematical formulas that are based upon the primary digits, so it is that your entire reality creation process is based upon an understanding of those belief systems that this is your reality, that you create it all, that you are a Piece of God, that you cannot fail.

To get a grasp of the understanding of those three simple belief systems is, once again, the key, the key to understanding that it is your creation, that this is your vibrational level, that you choose to be here, and that you create the illusion that you experience in your conscious state. And yet that seems to be such a difficult concept to grasp in your conscious state.

We have continuously suggested that as you understand that it is a situation that you are involved in that you cannot fail to come to the understanding of who and what you truly are, you are absolutely guaranteed to come to return to that state of your consciousness, that you should be able to file that away; to understand that the conscious state that you are experiencing, and the physical body that you are experiencing, is but an illusion. It is a state of consciousness that you choose to participate in. And when you choose to alter that consciousness you enter into different areas of your subconsciousness, into what we refer to as the dream states and the in between incarnational state, simply various levels of your consciousness that ironically you exist in simultaneously. You simply choose, you choose to concentrate upon this particular incarnational period with this particular portion of your so-called ego so that you can experience it as a seemingly, seemingly existence that is first of all unique, secondly that is separate from all of the other incarnational periods that you are experiencing, and thirdly, that you are not in control of. Because it makes it seem more real.

You can dwell, if you wish, upon all of the complicated experiences that you are involved in in all of these day-to-day activities and you can attempt to logically give some type of description as to how it occurs. That is your choice, absolutely. But if you get a grasp of the understanding that it is an illusion, that it is your creation, and that you are the God that you search for, then it becomes much easier to get a grasp of the understanding of the building blocks that you use, of the primary digits that you use to create this reality, to create this illusion that you experience in your conscious state.

You as individuals and as a human consciousness are the God that creates this reality. It is not something that is separate from you, it is not something you have to search for. It is something that you choose to limit your understanding of in your conscious state. You choose. You have made that choice. You have made that choice to participate in this vibrational level. You choose to believe that you are not in control. It is your choice. You choose to believe that while you are in your conscious state that this is the most important aspect of your entire existence. And in a sense, for that particular part of your ego, absolutely it is. That does not, for an instant, suggest that it is not an illusion. It does not, for an instant, suggest that it is not your creation. It does not, for an instant, suggest that you are not absolutely in control. And once again, that is the irony. The irony of it is that you are in control. You cannot escape. You create your reality. You are that Piece of God that you search for, that spark of consciousness, the Piece of the One, whatever terminology you wish to use to describe it.

And once again, the difficulty with attempting to use a vocabulary to give an explanation is that the vocabulary has its limitations for it implies that there is something that there is not. It implies, for example, that you are a Piece of the One; seemingly, then, there must be this one and you are but a small piece, and it is not that way at all. It is also suggested you are indeed this Piece of God that you search for, when you are that God. That is the difficulty of attempting to give an explanation through the use of a vocabulary.

You create your reality. You are no more and no less than any other spark of consciousness that exists throughout all of creation. You are indeed the one that creates all that you can perceive and experience. Bottom line. Now, you can deny that if you wish, and it doesn't really matter. You can deny it, and if you deny it and if you believe that you don't create it then you simply [create] circumstances to support that belief that you don't create it. You see, that portion of your subconsciousness that creates this reality doesn't care what it is that you create. There is no judgment. There is not a right or a wrong. It is not, "Oh well, I have to believe that I create it. That is the only right way." Absolutely not.

You can believe whatever it is that you wish to believe, and you will create the realities that support that belief system. Absolutely. You will make the formula as complicated as you wish. You can make it so that it seems absolutely impossible to get an understanding. And yet, similar to the mathematical formulas that can be broken down to the primary digits, so it is that your reality can be broken down to the basic understanding that you create it all, you create it through your belief systems, you can only create from a position of love, you are the God that you search for, and you absolutely cannot fail.

When you so-called enter into other areas of consciousness that is exactly what you are doing. When you believe that someone dies, for example, that they leave this incarnational period, they have simply altered their state of consciousness. Time is an illusion. You exist in the now.

That physical body that you exist in existed before you came here. It existed before this incarnational period, absolutely. It is simply a makeup of various atoms that existed within this vibrational level that you create from your altered state of consciousness. It is not something new. It is a creation based upon your belief system that bring together existing parts of this illusion so that you can have a physical body. But that physical body is made up of the very elements that the rest of this entire vibrational illusion is made up of. And so it exists before and it exists after. And ironically, it exists because you believe it exists in all areas of your consciousness, including that in between state of consciousness where you continue to perpetuate this vibrational level.

To believe that only those individuals existing within this incarnational period are responsible for it is to then suggest that other individuals both in your past and in your future cannot have an influence upon this vibrational level. Those other individuals that are in your past and in your future are other aspects of your multidimensional personality and therefore not only influence this particular incarnational period but conversely are influenced by this incarnational period. And therefore, those other incarnational periods sustain this particular incarnational period and what comes before and after it. And you do so from your states of subconsciousness, be that in your so-called dream state or your altered state of consciousness that we refer to as the between incarnational state.

You absolutely cannot fail. You do not die. You alter your states of consciousness. The physical being that you exist in in this particular incarnational period and in all the other incarnational periods is made up of elements of this illusion. You absolutely are guaranteed you cannot fail. You create it all and you are the God that you search for. You can make it as complicated as you wish, but you cannot escape that basic building blocks of belief systems. It is really that simple. And we really continue to come back to that message which we have told you from the very first time that we began to interact with you because it is so important. Because it is indeed the key to the understanding of being able to consciously create your reality, to understanding that it is an illusion, to understanding that you absolutely cannot fail.

Now. If you have any questions for us this afternoon we would be willing to attempt to answer them for you.

Questioner: I wanted to know about Edgar Cayce, [who] claimed to have been a pre-Egyptian or an ancient Egyptian who the Greeks would have called Hermes Trimajestus and that he and his girlfriend were responsible for building a time capsule or a museum beneath the Sphinx in Egypt. And others have talked about it being a very fantastic thing. And Lobsang Rampa talked about there being four of those in the world—one in Tibet, the one in Egypt, and in a couple of other places. Can you tell me what is in them?

Joshiah: (Chuckles) You exist in an illusion. Now. If there are individuals who believe that such a capsule exists then you can create it. And if there are individuals who believe that there are certain elements that would be contained within that capsule then you can create it.

Once again, there is this concept that there is time and space. There is this concept that what has happened in the past is set in stone and what is in the future can be altered because that hasn't occurred yet. We would suggest to you that it is as easy to alter the past as it is the future, that it is an absolute illusion. Not only this day that you exist in at this instant, but all of your so-called linear time frames are an illusion. And so, to give you a description of something that exists that can be changed in an instant is like trying to predict the future. It is as difficult to predict the past and to predict what individuals will discover from the past as it is to predict the future.

Does it never seem rather ironic that an individual who is [one of] their so-called scientific community can walk over a particular area of your Earth system for many, many years and discover absolutely nothing. And then one day, lo and behold, there, sitting before them, and they wonder how they ever missed it in all this time, are these wondrous treasures to be discovered. And so, they would suggest to you, well, they just didn't see it, it had to be there all the time, they just didn't see it. It becomes very difficult to get a grasp in the conscious state, where you believe that the past is set in stone and it cannot be altered, that indeed that individual who can alter their belief systems can physically alter your past. Your so-called Christ consciousness understood that capacity, absolutely, and did so to demonstrate that it was possible. And many individuals missed the message and dwelt mainly on the messenger.

Does there exist [beneath] the Sphinx the type of particular compound that you are describing or questioning? If individuals existing within your incarnational period believe, then you can create it, absolutely. It is an illusion. You can have whatever it is you desire. For us to suggest to you that such a particular compound exists could indeed influence the choices and the belief systems of various individuals, and then through the influence of that belief system absolutely create it and suddenly we look like we could predict your future because we know all of this information, which ironically, as we have suggested many times before, is simply a reflection of information which you contain within yourself.

Does such a particular compound exist? Well, what would you believe and what would other individuals existing within this incarnational period believe? Because it is an illusion and if you wish to create it you can have it. If you wish to believe it is not there, you can have that too.

It also seems rather ironic that there are individuals who were involved in particular activities or aspects of creation process and would come away and present to you different interpretations of a particular event or of a particular creation that they were experiencing, and each individual can have a different perspective and a different memory and a different explanation and each of them believe absolutely that that is what they perceived. And ironically, each of them would be absolutely correct. For you perceive what it is that you create based upon your belief systems and what it is that you desire. And two individuals can be involved in the same particular activity and come away with entirely different perspectives and different feelings associated with that activity, and both of them have created according to their belief systems.

And so, to suggest that tomorrow someone would find something beneath the Sphinx could be as accurate as to suggest that tomorrow it does not exist. You create your reality. You create it constantly. You do and can influence your past as readily as your future. Individuals who make predictions make a prediction based upon a collective belief system that they get an intuitive suggestion from that is in place, if you wish, at that instant and they are perceiving at that particular instant. And again, to use the term instant is to infer that there is this linear time frame, which simply does not exist. But nonetheless, these individuals perceive these belief systems at that instant and so at that instant it exists. It can even be proven at that instant. But it can be changed, absolutely, if the individuals alter their belief systems and suddenly that which was real at one point is no longer real. And conversely, that which was not real becomes real. It is an illusion.

Does the particular chamber that individuals desire to experience exist at the time that your so-called Edgar Cayce was giving his particular interpretation? It existed, absolutely, based upon the belief system that he was experiencing and indeed interpreting. Does it exist at this particular so-called instant in your time frame? That depends upon what individuals believe. You can change it, absolutely. Once again, it is an illusion. It is not real. It only exists if individuals believe it exists.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I would just like to ask if the entities that come through (the channel) feel that they are illusions?

Joshiah: Again, it becomes very difficult to give an explanation based upon the limitations of a vocabulary. For you see, we suggest that what you experience within your conscious state is an illusion. But that spark of consciousness that you are is absolutely real. And in fact, as you go into your altered states of consciousness and into your dream states and in your between incarnation states you become more and more aware of what you truly are and of what is truly real.

Now. There are many individuals in your conscious state, your so-called scientists, who would suggest to you that when you are in your dream state that that is an illusionary state, that that is not real. And yet we would suggest that it is exactly the opposite, that when you are in your conscious state, that is the illusionary state and when you are in your dream state it is more real—still within your vibrational level, absolutely, and still with the limitations that you choose to put on with regards to an electromagnetic type of energy that we have referred to as the veil that limits your understanding of what you truly are.

And as you step beyond that dream state into your so-called in between incarnational states you, once again, become much more aware of who and what you truly are and the situation seems to be even more real. And as you step beyond that into a vibrational level similar to the one that we exist in then you understand that you are real, absolutely. And you understand absolutely how you create your reality and you understand absolutely your connection with all of the other so-called sparks of consciousness that exist throughout all of creation.

Are we real? Absolutely. Are you real? Absolutely. Is this existence that you are experiencing, is this conscious state that you are experiencing real? No, it is an illusion. That spark of consciousness that you are is absolutely real. The states of your subconscious are absolutely real. It is this area, this is the illusion, this conscious state; this conscious state that you have chosen to participate in to create for the purposes of experiencing the feelings that are associated with it. It is an illusion.

What is real are the feelings. What you retain within your subconsciousness, within that spark of consciousness that you are, what you take away from this vibrational level is the understanding of the range of feelings and emotions that you experience. And in order to intensify, in order to have a very intense range of feelings and emotions, you believe consciously that this is real and you choose to separate by erecting, once again, an electromagnetic type of energy. And we use that term because, once again, it is the closest we can come within your understanding, within this limited use of a vocabulary, of the type of energy that you truly are and that you put in place to limit the understanding of what you truly are.

And you truly are real and we are real. It is your illusory reality that you exist in in your conscious state that is not real. The emotions that you experience are real. The feelings that you experience are real. They are indeed the triggers to your memories and they are indeed what you will retain when you leave this vibrational level.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I would like to ask if love is all there is?

Joshiah: Love is a terminology that, once again, has limitations within your vocabulary of the understanding of what love is. You can only create from a position of love. To suggest that love is all that there is is to suggest indeed that you do not have the capacity to choose to be involved in different types of creations. When you enter into this vibrational level, you choose as you enter into your conscious state to limit that understanding of who and what you truly are and to limit your understanding of what love is.

Now. Each of you have experienced emotions and you would say, "Well, that is love. That has to be love." And many times it is not love at all. There are individuals that are involved in relationships that are not based on love, that are based upon contracts that they have put in place in order to create situations where they can experience various feelings and they use love as the terminology to give an explanation to the experience that they are involved in. And that is not truly love at all.

You can only create from a position of love but love is not really all that there is. There are many ranges of emotions beyond love but it is only from that position that you can create. If you wish to experience the other ranges, that is your choice. They exist. But love is not all there is. To suggest that there is only one thing and that's it, is a limitation. And there are no limitations to who and what you truly are. The only limitations to who and what you truly are is your imagination. It is endless, limitless. Time and space are illusions.

The belief that love is the only emotion that truly exists is not true. You can only create from a position of love. You can only create from a position of love; you fulfill that spark of consciousness that you truly are. And you do create within this vibrational level in a similar manner that all other sparks of consciousness create in all of the other vibrational levels throughout all of creation, from that position of love. That position of love is absolutely unconditional. That position of love is a state of being and a state of doing. And ironically, in our vibrational level we participate in interactions with the multidimensional personalities that we are and with other sparks of consciousness that form this entire creation process, we interact on levels of love, of expressing of emotions and understanding in order to facilitate the feelings of joy and of security that are associated with love.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I have a question from a reader. They ask, "I am wondering about animals and their vibrational consciousness. I feel that they are not illusion but another form of consciousness and am wondering what Joshiah has to say about this?"

Joshiah: We would suggest that every aspect of your vibrational level, including your physical being, is an illusion. And that would extend as well to the physical existence of your animals that exist upon your Earth system.

It is rather ironic, once again, that as we come back to the basic building blocks of your entire universe, as your scientists would agree that you could break it down into the existence of atoms. And so, it is rather ironic that as you begin to explore your so-called space that exists in your universe and you begin to explore the other planets and the other star systems that exist within your universe, that you begin to discover that they too are made up of similar elements that make up your Earth system. They are not discovering new atoms. They are not discovering metals. They are not discovering new gasses. They are discovering different concentrations of various elements, but nothing new. That is because you create this entire reality based upon your belief systems and it is consistent throughout your entire universe. You don't change it because you end up in a different area of your universe and so you think, "Well okay, we are going to absolutely change this from that particular method of construction that we used for the Earth system." You build it, once again, upon that primary building blocks. And your animals are absolutely no exception.

Now. Are they are a consciousness that exists within that particular species or that individual of that particular species? We have suggested to you before that this is an entire illusion and it is your creation and that the animals that exist within your illusion are no different than any of the other life-forms that exist within your illusion. It seems sometimes rather ironic from our particular perspective that an animal that can be involved with a so-called human being in your conscious state can be given attributes of having a consciousness and yet there are other life forms—the single-cell life-forms, the plant forms that exist within your oceans, for example, that seemingly do not have any type of a nervous system, that seemingly do not have any of the attributes that you would give to the so-called more advanced or evolutionized animals. And yet, that amoeba, that single-celled element contains within it exactly the same energy that it takes to make the individual that you would refer to as a more advanced life form. That same spark of consciousness exists not only within every particular living element of your entire universe, it also exists within each and every atom of your entire universe, whether it is so-called living or not living. That animal is a creation of the individuals involved within this creation process in this vibrational level. That particular element is an illusion. The individuals responsible for that creation exist within each and every atom of the entire creation.

When you existed, once again, within your so-called Lemurian period you understood that you had the capacity to project your consciousness into each and every atom, into each and every living cell, if you wish, and into each and every inert cell if you wished to experienced that. You simply now, in this particular conscious state, limit your understanding of that process. You still do it, you just don't grasp it. You just don't understand it. You don't believe it. And yet you create it all and it is an illusion. That animal is as much an illusion as the rocks, as the air that you breathe. It is an illusion that is a creation of the individuals that have the capacity to create, of those sparks of consciousness that exist in each and every atom of your entire universe.

You see, that is where the difficulty comes in trying to give an explanation with the limitation of a vocabulary.

You believe as individuals that you only exist within this physical being. And we have said many times that you exist throughout the entire universe. And if you exist throughout the entire universe then your consciousness must also be in each and every atom throughout the entire universe, and it is. And so does it exist within the animals? Absolutely. Does that mean that the animals have a consciousness that is separate from the individuals that created them? Not necessarily. Does it mean that you as an individual have within you that capacity to experience your consciousness within that animal? Absolutely, as you do have as well that capacity to experience an existence within the rock if you desire. That choice is yours.

And so, it becomes a paradox and it becomes a difficult question to answer in that the animal is an illusion and as an illusion it only exists as a result of your desires, of your imaginations, and of your belief systems. Does it have a consciousness? It has the consciousness of each and every individual involved in this creation process. You cannot be separate from any other individual. You are all a Piece of the One, if you wish, you are all connected. And therefore you cannot be separate. And so to believe that that animal is somehow separate and has an entity that can be separate from any other creation in this illusion is just not so. And yet it is indeed a creation that has within it the same spark of consciousness that exists within every other creation within your entire universe. But to ask that question, "Would it be a separate entity?" is to also ask the question, "Is the rock a separate entity? Does the rock have a consciousness?" Absolutely, and yet it is indeed your creation. It is an illusion. It is indeed, as are you, a Piece of the One.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: This past week, for three nights in a row I had what I call "surface dreams" where it just didn't feel like I was sleeping. I was having fairly intense dreams except there wasn't really a dream, it was the same thing going over and over again which was two thin layers of something. They were thin, clear layers and they were melding together and that seemed to be the theme of those three nights. Or that is what I remembered bringing back for those three nights. I don't recall any other dreaming going on, just that over and over and over again this melding of these two layers or levels. And I wondered if you could comment on that?

Joshiah: (Chuckles) Well now. We are not going to give you the preliminary because you have heard it so many times.

(Group laughter.)

Once again, when you are in the dream state what you retain as memory is many times very distorted. And many times the dreams that you retain are not the dreams that you are involved in in that so-called state of consciousness that is the deep dream state where you are creating, putting in place the contracts and the agreements for the creation of your day-to-day activities in order to experience the feelings that are associated with that particular reality.

What you remember primarily when you are coming out of your so-called dream state are the dreams that are much closer to your consciousness and many times, for many individuals, can be quite accurate in predicting what is occurring within your conscious state, which is a reflection of what you have, once again, put in place in your very deep dream state. And when you experience in your conscious state that melding of particular elements it is like you are beginning to, once again, as we have suggested so many times, complete this transference into the new age and into the new energy, to get an understanding.

We would also suggest that as you begin to get that understanding, while it becomes difficult for you to perceive it consciously it does not become so difficult for you to understand it consciously and to own it. To explain it is one thing; to own it is another. To believe it absolutely is one thing; to attempt to give a reason for that belief is another. And we would suggest that as the melding is occurring you are indeed beginning to understand without having the need to give an explanation for that understanding.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: Joshiah, we don't consciously know everybody on our level. Do you? Like when you see somebody, I don't know if you see somebody, but I will say when you see somebody on your vibrational level do you know them? Do you consciously know everybody?

Joshiah: You, as we have suggested many times, in this particular vibrational level that you are experiencing, have at some level within your subconsciousness had interactions with every individual that you meet. That you would meet a complete stranger is not going to occur within your conscious state in this vibrational level.

Now. You have—and we use this as an analogy simply—you have within your capacity in your conscious state the ability to perceive the thoughts of each and every individual that you come in contact with. Absolutely. You, as individuals, limit that understanding, once again, by choice. However, you do have that capacity. You have that capacity to be intuitively connected to each and every individual that you experience in your conscious state. And we would suggest that you grasp that understanding of that statement, absolutely.

Now. The fact that you have that capacity does not mean that you exercise it. In our state we have the capacity to similarly be involved in the knowledge, if you wish, the understanding of every so-called spark of consciousness that exists throughout all of creation. But we have absolutely no desire to have that type of involvement and therefore we, as do you, limit that interaction. And when we interact with an individual we do not use the same type of reference for recognition of an individual but rather it is as transference and an understanding of various feelings, of various emotions, of a thought process. And it is indeed an understanding that we are equal Pieces of the One, that we are connected, and therefore we are not strangers. We simply choose to not be involved with each on a continual basis. And in order to facilitate that we enter into what we have used as that term of a vibrational level.

Once again, to use our old analogy, it is like there are multitudes of airwaves and as you tune in your radio you only choose one particular airwave and you listen to that one particular broadcast on that airwave. While all of the others are going on simultaneously, you simply choose not to be involved in them. Similarly, it is that way in our vibrational level and you as an individual and the other individuals in your vibrational level have made a choice to be involved, if you wish, in this vibrational level while eliminating all the rest. It is not that you can't have them. Like tuning in the radio, you can have them all if you wish. You just have this desire at this time to be involved in this experience. And we use that time frame loosely because time is an illusion absolutely and you exist in the now.

We similarly are involved in and, if you wish, only tapped into the one wave system while all the others exist around us. We are aware of them. If we wish to involve ourselves in them we can, absolutely. We just choose at this particular point of our so called creation evolution—and we use that term rather loosely—to be involved in this vibrational level that we exist at, similar to your involvement within your vibrational level. We do have that capacity, once again, to understand each and every individual that we meet is a Piece of that One that we are, that we are connected, that we are never strangers. We just limit our interaction with them similarly to the limitation that you put on with your interaction in your conscious state with the other individuals that you are involved in.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: A friend wanted to know that if in other vibrational levels other than the human life system if there are such things as romantic relationships.

Joshiah: (Chuckles) In your vibrational level in your conscious state you believe that there is indeed this separation of individuals. It is, once again, a choice that you make to believe in the conscious state. Many individuals, if you were to see your entire perspective and range of incarnation periods, would be shocked many times to understand that in one particular incarnational period you are involved in a relationship in which you are one gender and in the other incarnational period you are the opposite gender. Not only that, many individuals would be truly shocked to discover that in some of their incarnational periods they are indeed homosexual and they are existing and experiencing interactions with other individuals who are choosing that homosexual experience. And yet in other incarnational periods it can be exactly the opposite in which they are opposite genders that are interacting with each other.

So, to experience love as believed in your conscious state, many individuals have this concept that there are these so-called twin souls or whatever type of terminology that you wish to use—soul mates is a very familiar term. They are simply individuals who have chosen to experience various incarnational periods together. And as we have suggested so many times before, you return many times again and again with various individuals not simply because you believe that you are connected to that individual through some type of love, but rather it is a familiarity. It is a comfortable situation. You feel comfortable experiencing incarnational periods with that particular entity.

Similarly, in our particular vibrational level we choose those vibrational levels and feel comfortable interacting with those particular entities. We understand, however, that the genders that you experience in your conscious state are simply aspects of your multidimensional personality that you choose to experience in a particular incarnational period. In your total encompassing entity that you are you have within you all of the so-called elements of the various genders. And love is not experienced in the same way as what you experience in your conscious state for another individual. The closest that you can come to an understanding is to have the true experience of self-love. That is feeling and understanding of simply how limitless you truly are and loving yourself because of that. And from that understanding of self-love you can get a glimpse of the unconditional love that we feel for all of the entities that exist throughout all of the vibrational levels.

As we have said so many times, we offer to you our unconditional support and our unconditional love. That is because we exist in a vibrational level where all individuals understand who and what they truly are and offer to each other their unconditional love, their unending support.

So, do we experience love for other individuals? Absolutely. It is unconditional and it is for each and every entity that exists throughout all of the vibrational levels. It is not limited to the love that you experience many times within your conscious state where you believe that you can only love various individuals but there are those others that are not quite up to your standards and so you don't quite love them. And there is nothing wrong with that. It is what you do in order to facilitate and to validate this reality so that it can seem real, so that you can experience the emotions other than love so that they can be real.

So, do we experience love? Absolutely. It is an absolute unconditional love that we experience as well for ourselves as for each and every other individual that exists in all of the vibrational levels, including this vibrational level that you exist in.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I have a quick question. My understanding is we are connected to everyone here and we have had numerous lifetimes with everyone here, so my question is have we or I had lifetimes with pluralized Joshiah, or Joshiahs—I don't know why you pluralize yourself—but have we had lifetimes with you on some level of vibration or some planet where we were interacting differently than we are interacting now?

Joshiah: Yes. (Pause) A simple answer.
(Group laughter.)

We have suggested in other past interactions with the individuals that we have at some level interacted with each and every other individual that we interact with in your particular vibrational level at this time.

Now. We have never existed in your vibrational level and so that only leads you to deduct that those interactions have come at other vibrational levels. They have also, however, also come in your so-called altered states of consciousness where you have chosen for that interaction. Where you have chosen. Where you have allowed. For you see, we cannot interfere in your vibrational level. All we can offer to you is our unconditional love and our unending support. But we cannot interfere. We cannot create. But at some level within your consciousness we absolutely can and do interact with individuals in your so-called vibrational level. It is at your very deepest level of consciousness. It is at a level that our friend Elias reaches when he so willingly allows himself to step out of the way so that we can facilitate our interaction through use of his physical being, through the use of his illusion.

And so, yes, we have interacted with each individual in other aspects, if you wish, of your existence. It becomes a difficult concept for you to grasp because it exists in the now. This is an illusion and the now encompasses all. It becomes difficult to explain because you believe that there is a past and a present and a future, and in a sense there is a past and a present and a future but it all exists in the now. It all interacts with each other, including the other vibrational levels that you exist at when we interact with each of you.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: Well, kind of, but I sort of wanted to know if we kind of interacted with you like we are interacting now. Like on a level where we are, not like in a level where we are in a spirit or an energy or a mind, but on a level where you are actually in human form or in some form and we are in some form and we are like person to person or thing to thing or ...

(Group laughter.)

Questioner: You know what I mean? Like you are some thing and you are not just like a group name that I could relate to? (Laughs)

Joshiah: We suggest to you as “we” simply because we understand that we are a multidimensional personality.

Questioner: So then, am I a “we” too?

Joshiah: Yes, you are a “we.” Each individual, each entity is a “we.” You are connected. You are a multidimensional personality. We understand that concept and so we say “we” because we address all of that particular aspects of our personality.

Many times when we interact, you, as individuals in your conscious state, quite correctly perceive that it is a different aspect of our personality that interacts. And sometimes we can be quite scientific and that aspect of our personality can give you all kinds of descriptions on that scientific element because that is what you desire to hear. But when you desire to hear more of the philosophical then we can have a different element of our so-called personality that interacts. But it is the same multidimensional personality.

We are one, as you are one with all of your so-called incarnational periods and all of the aspects of the multidimensional personality that you are that exists throughout all of creation. We are one with ourselves and indeed with each of you, as you are one with yourselves and indeed with each of us and each other.

We have never experienced an existence similar to the one that you experience in this vibrational level. As we have suggested many times, this vibrational level is unique. Nowhere throughout all of creation is there a duplication of this vibrational level where entities create a reality where they seemingly assume physical attributes and then step inside that physical attributes and limit the understanding of who and what they truly are. We have never experienced that particular type of activity and we have absolutely no desire to do so.

Questioner: Can I interject then? So then, all the levels of this vibration, like when we pass over we get into another level and we are still in a sense in physical form—of what I have read. And then there is another level and another and another somewhere on this side of the veil. So, when we step out of that physical part of it and there is other things to experience on other levels or planets or vibrations, is that when we had contact, experience, lifetimes, whatever, with you then?

Joshiah: Yes. And no. We do not experience lifetimes. We do not experience incarnational periods. We understand that we exist in the now. And you are fairly accurate in your description that when you are in this particular vibrational level when you so-call pass over, when you alter your state of consciousness to that level that you would be in what we refer to as the between incarnation state, you still exist within the limitations of the veil. Your belief systems still have an impact upon the reality that you experience. Absolutely.

If you believe that you are going to suffer some type of damnation when you leave this particular incarnational period, if you truly believe that, you will create the reality to support the belief. However, from that level of your consciousness it is difficult to perpetuate the illusion. It becomes difficult to believe that it is real and so it fades and alters rather quickly, if you wish, and you then have that capacity to begin to get an understanding that, “Ah yes, I do create this based upon my belief and if I change my belief I can alter that creation. Well, maybe I want to go back into this vibrational level and back into another incarnational period and I want to take with me some different beliefs so that I can have another experience. For you see, I understand at this level that I create it so maybe I want to create something entirely different.” And so you may choose to reincarnate, if you wish. Or from that level you may decide, “Well, I think I have had enough of this creation. There is not a whole lot that I haven’t experienced.”

And in fact, we have suggested that as a human consciousness you were about to terminate this vibrational level because you felt there wasn’t a whole lot more for you to experience. And so you will make that choice to leave, to leave, to remove the remaining veil or electromagnetic type of energy that limits the understanding of who and what you truly are. And then you choose to enter into a vibrational level where you can create whatever it is that you desire and you create from a position of love and, you can have the understanding of who and what you truly are, and you can—as our friend (name) would be so quite joyfully ready to—receive that ability to instantly transport between vibrational levels into any area of creation that you instantly desire to be in. And at that level, if you wish, we will interact. Or we may not. The choice is yours.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: Today I am very teary. And it is not teary like sad, it is just very emotional. Is that Joshiah’s energy? Or what is that?

Joshiah: Our energy is very limited to the impact that we can have upon individuals. We can interact, absolutely, and we can assist in terms of offering a type of love that is absolutely unconditional. And you have that capacity to have that experience, if you so choose. However, the emotions that you feel consciously many times are reflections of your own interactions within your so-called subconsciousness, the understanding [and] glimpses into who and what you truly are.

As you alter your consciousness, as you frequently do when we interact, it is your choice and it is your creation and it is your energy that you are experiencing. We simply are there if you desire. We are but a spark that exists off to the side, if you wish, that you can interact with. But do not give credit to us when it is credit that should be given to yourself for the understanding of the capacity that you have within you; for the understanding of how limitless you truly are; for the understanding that as you continue this alteration of your consciousness in this transference into the new age and into the new energy that you will have that opportunity to experience consciously those emotional feelings of joy, of the sense of feeling loved by your so-called higher self absolutely and unconditionally so that you can bring it into your consciousness and love who you are absolutely and unconditionally.

Many times when we are interacting with our friend Elias and you would, if you notice, see tears on his cheeks it is because he has that interaction, because that is his choice. It is not something that we necessarily do, it is something which he chooses to do. We are simply there to facilitate in whichever way we can. But our interference is very, very limited by your erection, once again, of that veil.

Does that answer your question?

(End of questions and we thank Joshiah and the others.)

Once again, we would like to thank each of you. It has, as always, been a very enjoyable experience. And we would remind you, once again, that we are not separated by time or space, that they are illusions, that we are separated by, rather, a vibrational level. And should you choose to interact with us you have but to express the intent and we would be willing to interact, to offer to you, once again, our unconditional love and our unending support. So, until the next time that you offer us this opportunity we bid you farewell, with love and with peace. ✨