Q and A

Joshiah: ... our gratitude for your inviting us back into your vibrational level and offering us this opportunity to interact and to share with each of you, once again

Now. We would remind you that the entities that are with us on this afternoon remain within this sacred space that you have created and if you wish to have that silent communication, that telepathic exchange or interaction with those individuals, with those other entities, that choice is yours and you have but to express the intent and, once again, you will find that as a result of the energy that you have created within this sacred space that it will be quite easy for you to shift your consciousness and to enter into an altered state of consciousness that will assist you in that interaction, in that telepathic exchange of information. And as always, the choice is yours. Absolutely.

Now. You create your reality, absolutely, down to the last minute detail. You, as individuals and as a group consciousness, are responsible for the creation that you experience in your conscious state. Many times it is difficult to accept that responsibility. When individuals are involved in what seems like a less than desirable interaction it is much easier to blame someone else, be that someone else another individual involved in your creation process or it is even much more comfortable to blame some individual that exists outside of your vibrational level that you can't see. However, accepting the responsibility for the creation of your reality is the first step in achieving true power in this creation process. True power comes to those who accept responsibility absolutely.

Individuals who are involved in circumstances that may seem like less than desirable circumstances, have a tendency to blame one another for their involvement. "How on Earth would someone choose to be involved or to participate in that type of creation?" Well, once again, from your conscious state it seems like this reality is real, when it is an illusion. And from your subconscious state you create whatever it is that you desire. You create a reality that substantiates, that validates your belief system. And so if you believe it, you will create it. Your beliefs will be reflected in your attitudes and that will indeed have an impact upon your thoughts and your feelings and influence your choices and the decisions that you make, and that will be reflected in your reality creation process. And it will influence your desires and you will expect to have certain experiences and you can imagine what those are like. And you will, through that imagination and through that desire and through that expectation, create the reality absolutely. And you shall experience what it is that you believe.

Now. Again, that becomes a difficult concept for two individuals or for two groups of individuals involved in what seem like less than desirable experiences. Understand, however, that less than desirable is only in your conscious state. In your subconscious state there is no judgment, there is no right or wrong. You simply create whatever it is that you desire to reflect your belief systems. There is no right or wrong in your subconsciousness. You will create whatever it is that you desire. Absolutely.

And so, two individuals or two groups of individuals, it doesn't matter how you use the analogy, are involved in a situation where they find it to be less than desirable and they blame each other. It seems rather ironic that an individual can believe that another individual can have an impact upon their reality and another individual can decide which way their reality is going to go, which path they are going to be thrust upon, but they deny and refuse to accept the responsibility that it is their choice that put them in that situation, that it is their belief that another can have an influence upon their reality that allows that other individual to indeed have an influence upon their reality. And that their subconsciousness sees absolutely nothing wrong with that.

You see, you create the reality for the purposes of experiencing the feelings that are associated with that creation. That is why you exist in this vibrational level. That is why you create in the first place. So the more intense the situation, the more intense the feelings, and the more successful you are at this creation process. That is why you are here. That is why you choose to be involved in this vibrational level. However, should you choose and should you believe that you create your reality then you have the opportunity to make it go in a direction that you might find more desirable. And then again, you may not. You see, there is always that bit of irony, if you wish, that is involved in this creation process.

An individual desires something and in order to validate it, in order to create that desire and to use the imagination and the expectation, they must first of all believe. And normally when you form a belief and you wish to have something within your vibrational level, it usually comes at the sacrifice of another belief. And an individual many times looks back upon your so-called past and has this longing, this desire for what seemed to be familiar, the familiar and the comfortable feelings that came with the old belief systems. It is so much easier to blame someone else, for example, than it is to accept the responsibility yourself.

You see, when you can blame someone else then you can look at your reality and suggest to yourself that you are not at all responsible, that it is just a haphazard type of existence, that someone else has that responsibility, that someone else will control your reality. And you can create that if that is what you desire. And for many, that is a very comfortable situation to be involved in. It is easier to sit back in a "poor me" syndrome and suggest that someone else is having an influence in creating your reality and it is such a terrible time but you really don't have control yourself. That seems to be much easier. Ironically, it takes absolutely no more effort to create from the belief system that you are not in control than it does to create from the belief system that you are in control. The creation process is exactly the same, takes exactly the same amount of energy, requires the same type of creation process. It just seems easier in your conscious state. There is no difference. Absolutely not. And that is the irony.

You can have whatever it is that you desire. Not only can you have whatever it is you desire, but you do have whatever it is you desire based upon the belief systems, based upon the choices that you make, based upon indeed your thoughts and your feelings. And through the combination of all ingredients you create your reality. And you can create it through purposeful conscious acceptance of the responsibility for the creation process or you can create it through default. It makes absolutely no difference. You will create it anyway. And you will expel the same amount of energy to create it anyway. It makes no difference.

When you desire to create from default and to not accept the responsibility, there are those entities existing in your vibrational level that will assist you in validating that belief system, who will assist you in validating that you are not responsible, who would take that role of being responsible seemingly for the creation of your reality. You can have that in your conscious state if that is what you desire. It makes absolutely no difference to your subconsciousness, it will create whatever it is that you desire.

Individuals involved in a less than desirable relationship, whether it is one who is a victim and one who is domineering, are involved in that relationship through choice. Absolutely. And they validate their individual belief systems and they create those intense situations that result in the intense feelings that they desire to experience, and they blame each other. It is rather ironic that when you see two individuals involved in that type of a situation and that type of creation process that each would blame the other. The one that seems to be the aggressor blames the one that they are regressing, absolutely. And vice versa. And yet they each hold similar belief systems that they are not in control. They hold similar belief systems that they are not worthy of creating their reality and they blame each other. And it is rather ironic that the one that seems to be the abused, the one that seems to be the victim, is the one who, ironically, is in control.

You see, when an individual no longer believes that they are a victim then they begin to believe that they deserve to be worthy. When they begin to love themselves and that love is reflected through their consciousness then they choose to stop the victim process. When they make that choice, the victimizing ends. The abusive situation ends and they are the ones in control. That seems rather ironic because in your conscious state it always seems to be the other way around. It is like the aggressor is the one that is in control. It is like the aggressor or the abusive one is the one that is in control of the situation. That is only the way it appears in your conscious state. In your subconsciousness, in the creation process that you are involved in in your dream state, when you set in place the agreements and the contracts that are reflected in your day-to-day activities, it is the victim that is in control. It is the victim that sets the guidelines. And it is the victim who has the most power in ending the situation. For you see, if a victim no longer chooses to be a victim then the aggressor must find a new victim if they wish to perpetuate and to be involved in that type of interaction with another individual. If the aggressor stops being aggressive then the victim feels lost, then the victim feels like they are missing out on something. And if there isn't that feeling of self-love, of self-worth in the victim then the victim will remain a victim. Absolutely.

And so it is the victim that is in control, not the aggressor. The abused, not the abusing. And many will be challenged by that thought, absolutely. And we understand that. But if you can grasp that concept, if you can grasp the understanding that you create your reality based upon your belief systems and if you are a victim it is because you choose to be a victim and individuals involved in those situations are there because of a choice, because of a belief system, because it is what they desire. It is what they imagine and what they expect. And in order for them to end that situation they must alter their beliefs. They must begin to believe that they have self-worth. They must indeed have different desires, imaginations and expectations. And if they can accept the responsibility for the reality that they are experiencing then they can change that reality and they can create whatever it is that they desire.

There is not one individual, not one entity existing within your vibrational level that has access to certain rules or access to certain methods or access to certain techniques for creating their reality that is not available to any and every other individual or entity existing within your vibrational level. Absolutely none. Be they seemingly the most successful—in whatever terms you wish to label as successful—or the most victimized—in whatever terms you use to explain victim—of individuals existing in your entire vibrational level, they use exactly the same methods to create their reality. There is not one technique, not one method that is not available to each and every entity existing in your vibrational level to create the reality that you desire. You have but to believe. You have but to understand that you create from a position of love and that the reality that you experience is a reflection of your beliefs. When you grasp that understanding, when you begin to love yourself absolutely and unconditionally, then the creations that are available to you are only limited by your imagination. And it is absolutely the same for everyone.

Now. If you have any questions for us this afternoon we would be willing to attempt to answer them for you.

Questioner: We are having very unusual weather and I was wondering if that reflects a change in our beliefs or something different about our beliefs?

Joshiah: Once again, you believe in a linear time frame and we would go back in your linear time frame and to give you a suggestion that you believe within your subconsciousness and within various levels of your human consciousness that this Earth that you exist upon has shifted upon its axis within your last century, and that that shift of its axis would have an impact upon the various weather systems that you experience throughout your planet.

Now. You also at the time of that shift believed that it would take time for that shift to have its effect upon the alteration of your climatic experiences and that that occurrence would come gradually over the next century.

Now. We are talking the next century with the understanding that you believe that the shift occurred in approximately what you would call your 1930's. So now you are approaching the end of that century and the major shifts in your climatic situation is beginning to be experienced. And you shall, should you continue, once again, upon that belief system, have major alterations of your climates throughout the planet. And this particular area that you exist in [Saskatchewan, Canada] shall become a much milder climate than what you have been experiencing and what you have been familiar with throughout many of your last centuries.

And this change that you speak of shall continue and various areas that were once very temperate zones shall become much more harsh in their climates. Not necessarily colder, but much more harsh in terms of the weather that they experience, while this particular area shall become, once again, from your perspective in terms of comfort, a much more desirable climate to exist in.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I have noticed in quite a few channels of other channels there is a lot of reference to another physical Earth being formed, or a reference to us in some part of our future time assisting others in a physical dimension as we are being assisted by non-physical entities right now. And I think this has been information that has been channeled over quite a number of years but I have also come across it quite a bit recently and I am just curious about it. I really don't know what they are referring to but I wonder if you could comment on that.

Joshiah: This entire vibrational level is an illusion and you can create whatever it is that you desire. There are, based upon your current belief systems, various other life-forms, if you wish, existing throughout what you term as your universe. That exists now. It is your creation. Absolutely.

When we suggest it is your creation we refer to the individuals and the entities that exist within your vibrational level. It is your creation. Individuals existing within this particular consciousness in this particular incarnational period believe that the only form that it is possible for them to assume is what you refer to as the human form. And so that is what you experience. That is what you create. That is what you can have. But in other—and we refer now, once again, and fall into your belief in a linear time frame—but in other eras in your so called past you indeed existed in different forms and believed that you had the capacity to do so and did so quite readily. You exist in this particular form because that is what you choose, not because it is that which you must do. It is a choice. It is a belief system. You can be whatever it is that you desire. There are absolutely no limitations other than your imagination.

You as individuals, whether you can believe in the concept or not, exist in each and every atom of your entire universe. You don't exist just within the physical capacity that you believe. Your consciousness is so much more. You exist throughout the entire universe and the entire universe exists within absolutely no space at all. For space is an illusion, just like time. And so you can believe, if you wish, that there are other Earths being formed. That is an illusion. You can have whatever it is that you desire.

Many individuals who are involved in the so-called channeling process have a tendency to put absolutes, that, "This is what is happening and this is what is happening and this is where you will go and this is where you will go.” And we perpetually hesitate to give you any type of so-called predictions because you can change it. You can and do change your past, present and future quite readily. And when a prediction is made it is based upon the present belief systems that you hold within this instant based upon your belief in a linear time frame. It is all an illusion. You can change it if you wish and therefore that prediction may or may not come into being depending upon the human consciousness belief system and the individuals who are involved in the creation of that particular reality.

And so, when you suggest that there are entities who are believing that there is another so-called world that is being created, that is absolutely possible. But it is not absolutely for certain because if their belief changes, it may not happen. If those individuals believe that there are other entities existing outside of your vibrational level that are assisting you in creating your reality, well then, you can have that as well. And you can experience those individuals around you, absolutely. And there are many entities existing within your vibrational level that are willing to assist you in that belief. But the key words is “to assist you in that belief.” It is still your belief. It is still your creation.

You, as an individual and as a human consciousness, create it all. You, as individuals involved in this vibrational level, have put into place various so-called human consciousness beliefs systems that you have agreed to participate in. You have agreed to participate in. No one forced you. You were not put here because you must learn some lesson or that you must progress or you must become elevated or enlightened or whatever it is you wish to term it. Absolutely not. And there are no individuals, other than that that you desire to create, that are sitting watching over you and assisting you in your creation. Absolutely none, other than that which you believe and that which you create. And there are absolutely no other universes being constructed within your vibrational level unless you as individuals and as a human consciousness desire and believe that that is being accomplished. It is an illusion.

Your entire vibrational level is an illusion. It is an illusion based upon your beliefs, based upon the human consciousness belief system. And if enough individuals within your human consciousness desire to have another Earth created, then they can create that absolutely. It will be as illusionary as this reality that you are experiencing and it will be your creation. Not some other entities' creation. Your creation.

You, each of you, are a spark of consciousness that has the capacity to create. There is no size. There is no greater and no less. You are each a Piece of the One, if you wish, and even that has its limitations inferring that there is a greater One. And there is not a greater One, and yet you are all One as we are all One. A difficult concept to grasp because you believe in a linear time frame and in space. But nonetheless, it is still an illusion. It is an illusion and you can create whatever it is that you desire. And if there are individuals who believe that they have the capacity to create another so-called Earth that is similar to this one, you can do that absolutely. That is not hard at all when you compare it to all of the other creations that you are involved in. You simply have to believe. But you must also understand that if you believe that it is not there and as a human consciousness believe that it is not there, it is just as easy to have it dissipate as it is to create it.

It is very difficult to give a prediction of your future because your future is only based upon your belief in a linear time frame and your present belief systems that you are holding within that linear time frame in your conscious state. And you have the capacity to alter it all. Absolutely.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: Yes, it does. I think where I am running into difficulty with a lot of things now, as I am trying to become consciously aware of things, is that I am not so sure what I have agreed to on an unconscious level or a subconscious level, because I have no problem with people creating another Earth and I know that I believe that could be possible quite easily, but if I don't believe that consciously that I am doing that I am just not sure what I am agreeing to subconsciously. And I suppose the way I would know is if I ended up on that second Earth or doing something with it. But in the meantime, those are the things that I am having, not difficulty with now, but just that I am noticing that I don't have a problem with what anybody wants to create but I am just not sure what exactly I am agreeing to subconsciously. Because I don't think, I have no real sense of purpose or mission and I think that I am just maybe hanging out here, so I don't know what I am agreeing to subconsciously. That is where I am (inaudible).

Joshiah: Once again, time and space are illusions. And that is a difficult concept to grasp in the consciousness state, absolutely. However, in the subconscious state, in the dream state, many individuals get glimpses of that true reality where time and space have absolutely no meaning.

You have existing within, once again, to use your belief in a linear time frame, individuals existing at this particular instant on this very Earth that you exist on who do not believe that it is possible for you to travel through the air. It is beyond their comprehension. They do not believe it. They do not perceive it. And they do not participate in it and they do not understand that that is possible, and in fact, would argue with you that it is not possible, that to do so would indeed violate their belief systems. And yet within your particular society not only is it a belief system that you facilitate and perpetuate, it is one that you accept almost as readily as you accept the belief that you must breathe or consume food in order to survive. It is an absolute. It is a given. You don't even question it.

And so it would be that there are individuals who believe that it is possible to be involved in the creation of another so-called Earth system while there are individuals existing within your Earth system who would have absolutely no belief and no desire to be involved in that creation process. You have individuals existing within your conscious state who understand that indeed there is much more to their entire being, their entity, than what it is that they experience in their conscious state; and you have others, who in their conscious state, would suggest that there is absolutely no more than what you can see, and yet the two co-exist. They co-exist because you as individuals chose to enter into this vibrational level and chose to put in place an electromagnetic type of energy that limits your understanding of that creation process while you are in all [sorts] of various levels of consciousness, including that deep dream state. Even in that deep dream state you limit your understanding of who and what you truly are.

So, it should come as no surprise that while in your conscious state you don't understand all of the beliefs that you have agreed to. Because one of the beliefs that you have agreed to is that you won't allow yourself to understand, and that is a very difficult one to get by.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I have a quick question. I am curious to know what kind of entities, in this illusion that we are in, live in the hollow of our Earth?

Joshiah: Well, first you must believe that there is a hollow in your Earth, and then you must believe that there are some entities that exist there, and then you must understand that indeed there may be entities that exist there that are not what we would refer to as entities who are Piece of the One. Those entities that exist there are your creation based upon your belief, based upon your belief that they are there.

Once again, you as an individual exist within each and every atom of your entire universe. That becomes a difficult concept for you to grasp and for other individuals to grasp because it is suggesting that you as an individual exist within the very atoms and cells of Elias (the channel) who is an individual. And you do. You do. You exist within each and every atom of the entire universe. There is no such thing as space, other than what you believe in your conscious state.

You as an individual and as every other individual in your entire vibrational level exist within each and every atom that you believe exists, that you experience in your conscious state, including your entire Earth system, including various entities that you might believe exist within your Earth system. We are not saying they do or do not exist. For you see, you can have whatever it is you desire and you believe, and there is no limitation other than your imagination. Absolutely none.

There are individuals existing within your vibrational level who believe, and as a result of that belief, have the capacity to talk to other entities that they believe are on some other side of a veil, who have seemingly passed over. Those entities are only separated by a difference in a state of consciousness. And can you communicate with them? Only if you believe so. If you believe that they are beyond capacity to communicate, then you cannot.

It does not mean that they do not exist. It does not mean that they are not as valid as every other individual. It does not mean that they don't still facilitate in and participate in the creation of this reality. And those individuals exist as well within each and every atom of your entire universe. A difficult concept to for you to grasp, but nonetheless as accurate a description as we can give within your limited understanding of your creation process and your belief in time and space.

You ask us to validate your beliefs and we simply suggest to you that your creation validates your beliefs. It is beyond our capacity to validate your beliefs. We are simply an entity that exists outside of your vibrational level. We understand the creation process of your vibrational level only because it is similar to the vibrational level that we exist in and the creation process that we use in our vibrational level. We only enter into your vibrational level at your request and at your invitation. We do not have any other knowledge of your creation other than that which you express to us. And we see it all as an illusion. We do not see the time or the space, but rather we understand that it is a figment of your imagination. And so when you ask us, "Is it real?" well, if you believe it is real, absolutely. Who are we to tell you that you can't have this or you can't have that? Absolutely not. You can have whatever it is that you desire based upon your imagination, based upon your desires, based upon your expectations, your belief systems, based upon your choices, based upon your thoughts. Absolutely. You can have it all. It is all an illusion and you can create whatever it is you desire. And we do not have the capacity to influence, nor do we desire to influence that creation.

Does that answer your question?

(End of questions and we thank Joshiah and the others.)

Once again, we would like to express our gratitude to each of you for, as always, it has been a very enjoyable experience. And we would remind you, once again, that we are not separated by time or space. They are your illusions. We are separated, rather, by what we would refer to as a vibrational level and should you choose to interact with us you have but to express the intent and we would welcome that opportunity to interact and to share with each of you, to offer to you our unending support and our unconditional love.

And so, until the next time, we would bid you each farewell, with love and with peace. ❀
