

JOSHIAH

www.joshiah.com

Caveat: This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Although it has been checked for obvious errors, it has not been finally edited. Editorial comments are in parentheses; probable wording is in square brackets.

May 7, 2006

Joshiah: Well, now. Well, it is indeed a pleasure to be invited back into your vibrational level and we would like to express our greetings to each of you and as well to express our gratitude for your once again allowing us this opportunity to interact and to share with each of you.

Now. Before we begin, once again, we would suggest that there exists for each of you the opportunity to be involved in what we refer to as that silent communication. The opportunity for you to have a telepathic interaction with other entities that would be with us on this afternoon. Indeed, the opportunity for you to interact with that portion that you refer to as your higher self, if that's what you desire.

You will find, once again, as a result of the energy that you have created that it would be very easy for you to alter your consciousness and to enter into that meditative state, you have but to express the intent, close your eyes, and you will have that opportunity to have that silent communication that's a telepathic interaction, if you wish, with other entities and, as always, the choice is yours, absolutely.

Now. This reality that you exist in is, once again, an illusionary reality, and again that's not to suggest that it doesn't have a significance or that it's not important, absolutely not, but rather to suggest that it's an illusionary reality and as a result of being an illusionary reality it's within your capacity to alter. And yet, there are certain specific beliefs that you hold that make this illusionary reality seem very real while you are in your so-called awake and conscious state.

You, once again, as entities entering into this vibrational level chose to participate in what we refer to as the human consciousness belief systems, the belief systems that many of your scientist would refer to as laws of physics. Two of the most difficult belief systems for you to alter in your so-called conscious awake state are a belief in time and space. The belief that indeed there is a so-called past, [and a] present, and a future and that there is this distance that exists between two particular points, that there is a concept that it takes time for you to travel from one particular point to another, to validate both the belief of time and the belief in space.

Two belief systems that each entity existing within this vibrational level agreed to participate in, agreed to hold as absolutes, if you wish, agreed that it would be very difficult to alter in your awake and consciousness state. Absolutely, and yet they are illusions. Absolutely. Illusions that only exist in your awake and consciousness state. In your altered states of consciousness, in your meditative states or in your dream states or in your between incarnational states, absolutely, you get glimpses of the understanding of what it is to exist in the now without those limitations of time and space, but in your awake conscious state it's much more difficult for you to hold that concept as a reality and yet it is nonetheless an illusion.

You see, the concept of time becomes very difficult to give an explanation for. You believe in the present, and that there's a past and that there's a future, and yet you can't possibly exist in any. The present does not really sustain itself. By the time you consider the concept of being in the present, that present has already become the past and you're existing in your future. And yet you can't exist in the future because it doesn't really exist. That's one particular aspect of your so-called time frame that you believe that you have some type of control over. You can make decisions as to what it is that you will perform as tasks or what types of realities you will experience in your so-called future, and you can plan towards it and indeed you do. And indeed that planning and that facilitation of those plans that bring them into existence validate the belief in time. That it does actually have some potential in your capacity to create your reality. Absolutely.

And so you make the choices based upon a future. And yet, ironically, the future does not exist. It's an illusion, as is your past an illusion. As is all of time an illusion. And yet you, once again, hold that concept that you have the capacity to alter your future. And you do. Ironically, you do. But what's even more ironic is that you also have the capacity to alter your past. Not only have that capacity, but do it on a regular basis in your altered states of consciousness. You just don't believe or understand or have the capacity to hold that concept, in your so-called awake and conscious state. And yet in altered states of consciousness you do it on a continual basis, and you come back into your awake and consciousness state, you believe that that was just an illusion. You believe that that was your imagination. And it's really not that way at all, it's actually the exact opposite. And once again, that becomes a very difficult concept for you to grasp. But time is an illusion. Absolutely. You exist in the now.

And once again, even to refer to the now is to give you some type of an explanation that's based upon that rather rigid belief in time, for the now is that portion between your past and your future. It's this instant, if you wish, and it's not really that way at all either. It all occurs simultaneously, if you wish. All of these so-called incarnational periods that you experience are occurring simultaneously.

You have the capacity to interact and to alter and to have an effect on all of those incarnational periods. Not only do you have the capacity to do, but you do have (inaudible) ... have some type of influence upon all of the incarnational periods that you exist in simultaneously.

Again, a very difficult concept for you to grasp in your so-called awake state, because in your awake state, you have agreed to put in place that electromagnetic type of energy that limits your understanding of who and what you truly are. And you've also agreed to participate in and to validate that belief system in time. And so you have a difficult undertaking if you attempt to step out of that belief and that concept of time. It's very difficult.

In order to validate time you, once again, make choices and decisions based upon concepts that you wish to experience in your future. And you believe that through the passage of time you can facilitate, and bring into existence many of the choices that you've made. There are a multitude of methods and techniques that you employ in order to validate that passage of time in your ability to create whatever type of future it is that you desire to create. The irony of it is that it really doesn't matter what the belief is that you hold it will facilitate that alteration or that creation of your future. It's whether or not you believe that it's within your capacity to alter that future that's really important. For once again, the belief is far more important than the method or the technique. Absolutely. The method or the technique really does not matter at all. What matters is that you believe that the method or the technique will work. That's what's important.

The method or the technique it doesn't matter whether you're one of those individuals who likes to meditate and thinks through meditation you can effect changes in your reality or whether you don't believe at all in meditation, but believe through some type of a suggestion process to your consciousness that you can alter your reality. It really doesn't matter. If you wish to believe in astrology and that through manipulation of the particular universe you can create your reality you can do that as well. It really doesn't matter. What matters is that you believe. It's the belief that facilitates the creation of your reality.

And you believe that time must pass. And it's a belief. It's really that simple. It's a belief and it's a belief that's a human consciousness belief that you chose to participate in when you entered into this vibrational level. That you agreed to participate in. To make it very, very difficult for you to step outside of that belief system.

And so time, and the passage of time, that you experience in your awake conscious state, validates the reality. Makes it seem real. Validates the experiences, it gives you that opportunity to participate in a so-called future creation because you've agreed at some level of your consciousness to participate in this vibrational level. You've agreed to participate in the sustaining of that electromagnetic type of energy. And you've agreed that while you're in your awake conscious state that time will be real. That time will indeed have an effect upon your reality and upon the experiences and upon your capacity to create reality and to create experiences. Absolutely.

And so time is [a] very difficult belief system for you to step outside of because it's a human consciousness belief system and one of the, for lack of a better explanation, very difficult human consciousness belief systems for you to manipulate or to alter. And so you believe in time. You believe in time, absolutely.

And then you have space. Time and space go hand in hand, very difficult to alter one without altering the other, and one validates the other. Absolutely. You believe that it takes time for you to travel from one particular point in your universe to another. It validates the space, that there's a distance. That it's indeed a very large universe that you exist in. The irony of it is that, once again, it's an illusion. Not to suggest that it doesn't have significance. We're not suggesting that at all. It's very significant and it's very important, but it's still an illusion.

And in that illusion and your belief in space, you believe that it takes time to go from one particular area of this illusion to another. Validates that it's real. Makes it beyond your control. And once again, the irony of it is that you as an individual and as a human consciousness exist within each and every atom of your entire universe. It's an illusion. Space doesn't really exist. In your altered states of consciousness you get glimpses of the capacity that you have to shift your awareness of your consciousness from one particular area of your illusory reality to another area of your illusory reality and you do so, for lack of a better term, instantaneously. It's not that you do so instantaneously, it's that you're already there. That you exist throughout this entire illusory reality, throughout your entire universe.

And yet to hold that concept, in your so-called awake conscious state and to experience it in your awake conscious state would violate that human consciousness belief system in space. Would, indeed, destroy the illusionary effect that you wish. And it wouldn't be as real. And if it's not real then you wouldn't have the capacity to experience the range of emotions and feelings that you can when you believe that it's beyond your control. That you believe that there exists this concept of space. When you believe that it takes time for you to travel, and that it takes time for you to accomplish certain events. That it takes time for you, indeed, to experience the concept of space.

Almost every concept that you believe that regards time also experiences and validates your belief in space. And conversely almost every experience that you have involving space also involves the passage of time, regardless of whether it's a very small space, or a very large space. It doesn't really matter. The larger the space, the greater the time of passage for they go hand in hand. And conversely the smaller space the less time passes in order for you to manipulate that particular space. But one validates the other. Absolutely.

And once again, you have difficulty understanding in your awake state that you exist throughout each and every atom of your entire universe. For it's an illusionary reality that you agree to participate in the creation of. Absolutely. No one puts you here. No one said that there had to be time and space. No one said that it had to be this way. Other than the entities who chose to be involved in your so-called vibrational level and in your creation process. Other than the entities that agreed to enter into your vibrational level. Agreed to participate in this creation process. Agreed to validate the illusionary reality and make it appear that it's beyond your capacity to change. Make it appear that you're not in control.

The entities in your vibrational level, each and every one, agreed to participate in the so-called human consciousness belief systems, in time and space, and many of the other so-called laws of physics that you apply to your reality. And agreed to put in place that electromagnetic type of energy that limits the understanding of who and what you truly are. That limits, indeed, your capacity to, in your awake consciousness state, break through this illusion of time and space.

And so, it becomes a very difficult concept for you to grasp in your awake state that you exist throughout the entire universe. That you exist throughout the entire illusion and that time is, as well, an illusion. Difficult concepts for you to grasp, but nonetheless real, if you wish. From the position that you create this reality, that you agreed to participate. No one put you here. No one said that you had to be involved in this reality creation process. You agreed.

And yet, in this participation, many individuals would like to maintain their activity in the creation process, would like to remain in this so-called illusionary reality, would like to remain in this incarnation period, and yet step outside of the illusion—simultaneously. Put aside that belief in time and space, make it seem like it's not real. Well, you do that continuously in your altered state of consciousness, but when it's again in your awake state of consciousness you have agreed to not destroy the illusion. You have agreed to participate and to validate the belief in time and space, the human consciousness belief system that's been a consensus of all of the entities that exist within your vibrational level. And yet many would like to step outside of that. They'd like to have, if you wish, the ability to destroy this illusion and yet to remain within it. A very difficult concept, absolutely. Not impossible, but very difficult.

It's like an individual entering into a relationship, and when they enter into that relationship all of the rules are set up. And they agree that, absolutely, they will participate in this relationship and they will sustain all of the rules. They agree that as long as the rules are in place, and everyone else agrees to facilitate, and to participate, and to sustain the rules, that they will as well sustain the rules. And then somewhere along this relationship they begin to wonder, "Well, I wonder what it would be like to operate without the rules. But I don't want to end the relationship. I just want to change the rules."

But all of the other individuals don't want to change the rules. They want to stay operating within the original rules that were set up when the relationship was established. And this one individual says, "No, I don't want to participate with those rules anymore, but I don't want to end the relationship either. I want to continue in the relationship, but I want to change the rules." And the other individuals that are involved in that relationship say, "Well, no, we agreed as a consensus those would be the rules and we'll leave them as they are."

Now. If that individual is successful in convincing enough of the others that it's possible to alter the rules, then the rules can change. Your reality, believe it or not, changes when individuals, within your so-called vibrational level and in your awake consciousness state, believe that it's within their capacity to alter some of the so-called human consciousness belief systems. And you can look at all types of examples of realities that you're experiencing in this incarnational period that would not have been possible in so-called past incarnational periods that occurred as little as two or three hundred years ago, let alone past incarnations that occurred as far back as several thousand years ago, because you believe in the passage of time. And you believe in space.

And you have, once again, as you've reentered into this reincarnational periods, changed the belief systems, altered the reality, altered the illusion. But to do so within a particular incarnational period becomes very difficult because, once again, you've agreed to participate, and to validate those realities by holding in place these so-called human consciousness belief systems.

And now, to once again use our analogy, you wish to sustain the relationship but you want to change some of the rules. A very difficult alteration for you to facilitate and to maintain and to sustain while remaining within the relationship. Very difficult for you to alter this belief in time and space and remain within this incarnational period in your awake consciousness state.

And so, it should come as no surprise that if an individual becomes successful in altering some of those so-called belief systems he's regarded as someone that's not functioning well within your reality. An individual who has so-called mental incapacities can be an individual who at some level in their consciousness does not validate or believe in that so-called belief in time and space or any other particular human consciousness belief systems that you choose to hold and to facilitate in this particular incarnational period.

And so once again, you entered into this incarnational period and you agreed to participate, and then when you get this concept many times that comes in an altered state of consciousness and you bring back into your awake state and your consciousness this glimpse that time is an illusion. This glimpse that space is an illusion, and so you're not satisfied to experience it in your altered state of consciousness, you want to do it consciously and that becomes very difficult. It's, once again, like being involved in the relationship and agreeing to the rules and then deciding part way through the relationship that you're going to change some of the very basic rules. Not some of the ones that really don't matter, but the basic ones. The really, really important ones.

You see, you can change belief systems. Absolutely. You hold belief systems that we refer to as personal belief systems that it's very easy for you to alter. And you're involved in societal belief systems that it's very easy for you to alter as well. But the human consciousness belief systems, now that's a whole different ballgame. When you attempt to alter the laws of physics that the rest of your so-called human consciousness entities have agreed to maintain then it becomes very difficult, when you at one point of your so-called consciousness also agreed. And you put in place, once again, that electromagnetic type of energy that limits the understanding of who and what you are. And as well, limits the effect of others to have an influence upon your reality. And it limits your understanding of this creation process. And it makes it real. It makes it seem that it's beyond your control.

Now. If you're in that relationship and you wish to change some of the basic rules, it becomes very difficult. And it becomes very difficult for you to function within the relationship. And it becomes very difficult for you to achieve some type of harmony, if you wish, within the relationship. And you become disillusioned with the relationship. One that you chose to participate in. Absolutely.

And so it is, in your so-called awake human consciousness state, if you dwell upon altering the so-called laws of physics to the point where it becomes an obsession, then you lose, indeed, the reason why you entered into this vibrational level and into this incarnational period in the first place.

You see, we've suggested many, many times that you are the god that you search for. That you create this reality and that you absolutely cannot fail to come to the understanding of who and what you truly are. When you get a grasp of that particular understanding, of those three beliefs, and you own them, then you can get on with the creation process in your so-called awake conscious state. That's why you chose to enter into this vibrational level in the first place. You chose. You see, that's the key. You chose.

Many individuals who would like to alter the so-called human consciousness belief systems seem to believe as well that someone else put them here, that someone else created that reality. "Why can't I step beyond that, if I created it? What's the difficulty? If I created that particular belief system then why can't I change it?" Well, you can. But not in this incarnational period. At least not without great difficulty. Because you agreed. You agreed.

It's like entering into the relationship, putting in place these very firm agreements that will make the relationship valid, and make it a very important and valuable relationship and then altering or attempting to alter some of those basic agreements that you put in place. Without those agreements you wouldn't have entered into the relationship in the first place. It's not that you don't have other agreements and disagreements throughout the relationship, absolutely not. You have all types of little agreements and contracts that you put in place and that you change. Absolutely. But the basics. If you attempt to change the basics then you change the relationship. And it becomes a whole different ballgame.

And so it is, when you enter into this particular incarnational period and you agree to participate in those human consciousness belief systems, to change them makes it a whole different ballgame. And others may not, indeed, be quite as joyful of those changes as what the individual attempting to accomplish those changes are.

And yet, once again, there are all types of other belief systems it's within your capacity to change, similar to being involved in the relationship where you put in place the basic agreements that you sustain throughout the relationship that makes it a very strong relationship. And you have all of the other little nuances that come along in your day-to-day activities, and you agree or disagree and change various aspects of those particular elements of your relationship. But you sustain the basic ones, the important ones, because they're what makes the relationship seem to have a value. They make it real.

And so it is, your human consciousness belief systems have a value. They make it real. They make the illusion real and that's why you entered into this vibrational level, was to experience this real reality in your awake conscious state.

To attempt to alter that is well within your capacity as it is for you to be involved in a relationship and to change the particular beliefs or to change the particular agreements that you put in place at the beginning of the relationship. And so it is you can change the belief systems, absolutely. That's within your capacity to do so, but as you change those belief systems you also as well run the risk of changing entities involved in this perception of what your reality is. You change, indeed, the illusion that you're experiencing.

It's like being involved in the relationship when you change the basic agreements that you put in place when you began the relationship, you stand a very strong possibility that you will end the relationship. When you attempt to change the so-called human consciousness belief systems and to step outside of them there, once again, is the very strong possibility that you will change your concept of this reality. You will not have the same type of success, if you wish, in achieving your reality creation process for you will have stepped outside of the agreement and others may not participate in or agree to facilitate or agree to participate in your type of reality creation.

And so, you can do whatever you desire. We're not suggesting one's right or one's wrong. Absolutely not. Right or wrong is a human consciousness concept. We simply ask you to remember that you chose to enter into this vibrational level. We ask you to remember that you are the creators of this vibrational level. We ask you to remember that you put in place the electromagnetic type of energy. And we ask you to remember as well that you cannot fail to come to that understanding.

Understand as well that it's within your capacity to alter this reality. Absolutely. But when you have in place all of those agreements that you agreed to participate in, many times you can achieve much more so-called success, much more happiness, if you wish, much more peace and contentment if you operate within the limitations that you put in place and simply attempt to achieve an understanding of who and what you truly are in your conscious state.

It's like being involved in a relationship. Once again, you put in place the particular elements of agreements that you would participate in to sustain the relationship. And when you operate within those elements, and within those agreements, the relationship becomes very strong. Can become very enjoyable and very rewarding. And so it is, when you operate within the so-called human consciousness belief systems your experiences can become much more rewarding. You can experience, indeed, that joy and peace that you desire, rather than complicating it by attempting to step outside of that which you agreed to participate in.

And once again, it's not right or wrong. We're not suggesting that you should or shouldn't do anything. You can do whatever it is that you desire. We have absolutely no [desire] to judge anyone or (inaudible) should or should not do anything. That's entirely up to you.

Understand that your belief precedes your reality. Understand that right or wrong is only a human consciousness concept. Understand that if you believe it, you can achieve it. Absolutely. Understand as well that you chose to put in place the human consciousness belief systems. Understand that you chose to be involved in this reality. Understand that it's your choice to be here and understand as well that it will be your choice to leave. It's really that simple. You can make it more difficult if you wish. That's entirely up to you. It's really that simple.

Now. We would break for a moment or two and if you have any questions we would be willing to return and attempt to answer them for you. [And we would remind you] that we are not separated by time and space but rather by a vibrational level and should you chose to interact with us you have but to express the intent and we would welcome that opportunity to interact and to share with each of you. And we would (inaudible) again our unending support and our absolute unconditional love and we would bid each of you farewell, with love and with peace. ❀