U.S. Center for Refugees and Immigrants (USCRI), Erie PA (2)

Goal: It is well-documented that refugees and immigrants are critical to the economic strength of Erie: reversing the city's population decline, expanding home ownership, and driving growth in the workforce of northwestern Pennsylvania. This demographic makes up the only sector of the population in this region that is growing. However, during the critical period immediately after arrival, factors such as quality of housing or employment can impact whether refugees choose to stay in Erie, how long it will take them to become financially self-sufficient, and how well children will do in school, which can have life-long and even generational implications. The VISTA position at USCRI will continue to re-shape community outreach for volunteer recruitment and management with a primary focus on preparation of affordable housing for refugee resettlement in a rapidly transitioning landscape, both in terms of national refugee policy housing quality/availability in the Erie region.
