A. CONTESTANTS' POSITIONS

1. Standing – such a position when a contestant touches the mat with the feet only (is standing on their feet/foot).
2. Ground – such a position when a contestant touches the mat with any part of the body except their feet.
  - a) on one's back – a position in which an athlete touches the mat with both shoulder blades (or rapidly rolls over their back without stopping);
    - roll-over – an athlete's fall, with a consistent and continuous touch of the mat with parts of the body as a result of the opponent's rotational action without fixing (without visual pause) in one of the "ground" positions: on one's side, on the stomach or chest, on the buttocks or a shoulder;
  - b) 'bridge' position where their backs are up against the mat and they are only touching it with their feet and head;
  - c) on one's side – a position in which the athlete touches the mat with the side of the body (or with the shoulder pressed against the body), where one's back at the shoulder level make an angle up to 90 degrees in relation to the mat;
  - d) 'half bridge' position when athletes are with their backs to the mat and touch it with their heads and one foot (or their shoulders and sole(s));
  - e) on the chest and stomach – a position where athletes touch the mat with their chest or stomach and their backs at the shoulder level form an obtuse angle in relation to the mat;

* criteria for an athlete's readiness to carry on fighting following a knockdown:

- confident stance (an athlete rises to a standing position, demonstrating readiness to continue their fight);
- muscle tone (an athlete maintains a fighting stance by muscle tension, resisting the efforts of a referee to break it);
- pupil reaction;
- absence of obvious injuries.

B. THROWS

1. A throw is regarded as a technical action by an athlete that results in the opponent losing balance, falling on the mat and touching it with any part of the body except the feet, i.e. in one of the ground positions.
2. For a failed throw performed by an attacker with a subsequent fall, during which they themselves fall on the buttocks, chest, stomach, lower back, side or back, points to their opponents are not scored, if they don't counterattack.
3. Counter-throw is an active counteraction of the defender when the defender takes the initiative, stopping the opponent's attack and/or altering the direction of the attacker's fall.
4. If a defender during their counter-attack fails to change the nature and direction of the attacker's fall and falls themselves in the direction of their throw, then the attacker's throw is considered to be completed.
5. Only throws made by an athlete from the standing position prior to the throw (before the opponent starts to fall) shall be evaluated, the defender should also be in the standing position.
6. A throw shall be regarded as having been made without falling if the attacker remains in the standing position during the throw (from the start to the end of the throw).
7. A throw shall be regarded as having been made with a fall if the attacker moves to a ground position during the throw or is resting on a lying opponent in order to maintain balance (with their hand or foot).
8. An evaluation of the technical actions by an athlete in the standing position who fully lifts an opponent in the ground position from the mat and rotates the opponent in a longitudinal, transverse or sagittal axes (or combined rotation) shall be evaluated in a similar manner to the technical actions made from a standing position.

9. Any roll-overs in a ground position shall not be evaluated.

2. Squeezing an opponent's torso with crossed legs or straightening the crossed legs on the opponent's torso can be applied as a painful impact.
3. The start of the painful hold shall be regarded as the moment in the bout when the attacker seizes one of the opponent's limbs in order to inflict pain on the latter.
4. One (1) minute shall be allocated for a painful hold.

D. CHOKEHOLDS

1. Chokeholds are technical actions in which an impact on the opponent's neck occurs that prevents normal breathing and leads to a temporary decrease in the physical condition of an athlete.
2. A chokehold is considered to start at the moment of a bout when an attacker fixes a chokehold.
3. One (1) minute shall be allocated for a chokehold.
4. Chokeholds are permitted in either position (ground or standing).

  - b) any exclamation from the contestant taken under the chokehold shall be considered to be a 'give up' signal (except for the case stipulated in art. 7 clause 2 e).
13. An interruption of the bout requested by the defender taken under the chokehold shall be considered to be a 'give up' signal unless it is caused by any violation of the Rules by the attacker.
14. An athlete who has lost consciousness during a chokehold is withdrawn from the competition, while their opponent is awarded an ahead-of-time win.

E. HOLD-DOWNS

1. A hold-down is a technique by which an athlete forces an opponent to lie with the back to the mat for a specified period of time, and presses himself/herself from above by his/her own torso to the opponent's torso (or to the opponent's arms, held close to the body).
  - a) a torso means the anatomically central part of the body that does not include head, neck and limbs.
2. A hold-down countdown shall start from the moment the attacker presses his/her torso to the opponent's torso (or presses the opponent's arms against the torso) and holds him/her in a position on his/her shoulder blades (both shoulder blades should touch the surface of the mat directly, or through the arms (arm) or legs (leg) of the attacker).
