

A moment in time

Rarely, but just occasionally Life gifts us beautiful moments where no words are spoken
Yet we sense the strongest bond with another and feel more joy than a thousand words could convey

Driving my car, negotiating a busy road A mother duck and six fluffy ducklings step off the pavement in front of me I screech to a halt, as does the car on the opposite side, travelling towards me

We both wait and watch patiently We unite through our glass barriers and laugh with delight as the family safely reach their destination

No words are spoken, Yet that brief moment of connection and joy will remain with me always.

Cherish such moments
For they are the stiches of life's rich tapestry
