

'Til Death Us Do Part

"To love and to cherish from this point on"
I meant it then, so what went wrong?
It breaks my heart to say goodbye
I never meant to be that guy

Who'd change his life, give up his home
Will I regret it once I've gone?
I'll miss the girls, they've been my life
But I'm so lonely with my wife

It's strange that I feel so alone
One of a pair, sharing a home
Long work days drift to empty nights
When you finally get home and say "Goodnight"

"The spare room's better" you often state
"Your snoring's keeping me awake"
A simple chat would have kept me happy
Just needed a change from bottles and nappies

I'd keep the house clean, cook your meals
Sort the kids out, that's the deal
Yet what has there been here for me?
Just keeping house and making tea

I don't want to dish the dirt
But that time I phoned you up at work
They said you'd been off sick that day
Where had you been? You wouldn't say

That was the day the trust started dying
I wanted us fixed but was sick of trying
Who were you with when you weren't with me?
Why was I trapped when I could be free?

When we made our vows, I meant them for life
But life is too lonely with an unfaithful wife
So now is the time that I say my farewells
I really don't hate you and do wish you well

But life is for living and I want to live
I'll find myself work; I have plenty to give
I'll pick up my hobbies and go out with friends
And who knows where these changes will end

I feel very sad, and I hope you will too but I am convinced it's the best thing to do
So, farewell my dear, don't break your heart
But never again say "til death us do part"
