Rover's Reminders

Class is in Session! I don't see most of you in regular Tuesday night training sessions – but please don't forget about me 😊 if you are sending photos via text for Facebook- chances are – it should go to paw prints too! We are going to try to do better to avoid making you send to two places in the future! Woohoo! In the short term we still ask if you could send to RandPark.DTC.Board@gmail.com to ensure your post gets added to Paw Prints as well! Hope your tails are wagging! -Lori

Members Mark

We need your assistance and participation. Currently asking all members to visit this web address and complete the survey. Uploading an attached photo of you and your pet is optional but strongly encouraged. Each issue we will select a member at random to be in the spotlight. This is a great way for us to meet our members far and wide – those we see every week – and those we wouldn't recognize on the street. We hope you will participate in this activity and help us make our mark!

Paisley's PUPdate

After a summer of simply not being myself and realizing – I hate construction, birds, people talking, smoke alarms, and noise in general... hmmm an old curmudgeon may I becometh? SURE HAVE! For those that don't know me personally – I am a dog with a big attitude at home and severe skittishness outside of it. I timidly take treats from strangers and put my best foot forward to try to be brave but never any pets! Don't touch me! I won't bite – but I sure hate it!

There is something special though about me being so set in my ways that I have come to enjoy. Boundaries for one. A simple recognition that I have learned most of my "tricks" already in life and I like places where I feel safe. I don't need to do be "extra" to impress anyone these days. I know how to get mom out of bed for breakfast time and enjoy a scratch or two behind the ears – but I can walk away and she knows I have had enough. It's my routine, it's what I have come to know and love.

There is that phrase – "you can't teach an old dog..." Yet, I keep learning! I.e. I begrudgingly now sit nice for Banjo to "Pet Paisley" which mom enjoys way too much. So, the proof is there - none of us are too old to learn or try new things – to step out of our comfort zones. Whether we want to is something entirely different.

I learned over summer that I got stuck in a routine. I was too settled in my routine to care to try to find the old version of me again – the adventurer, beach babe and scenting scout. I just couldn't get myself to try – couldn't try to go outside, couldn't try to ignore the scary noises of the echoing world, to go for a walk, and certainly wouldn't come out from the closet for a treat when people were too loud or during a storm.

And then, suddenly, after Labor Day when the cars had cleared, the riff raff of summer weekenders and renters had disappeared, and it was quiet. Still. Peaceful. WONDERFUL! ...so I tried, and then, I smiled.

I finally stepped outside. I stepped one foot in front of the other and sooner than I realized I had gone a full mile and a half, landed at the beach and enjoyed every second of it (Mom had to literally carry me off with me kicking and screaming in the process).

And then only a week later - that familiar scent of fall, crisp morning air and the feel of the dewy forest preserve ground at my paw. I learned a thing called balance – a care for my old routine and recognition for trying to find me again inside.

And then last week - that familiar sound "FIND IT!" and now I am back to the happiest place on earth.

There I was – me again just with new experiences and new coping mechanisms. I can't say I won't revert to an agoraphobic life of utter fear again but I give myself credit – I tried!

So as the leaves fall, the world changes and trees feel so empty around us – I reflect on this experience of the past months of summer – I remember that spring will come again and what is old will become new again – I only needed the courage to change my routine – to try...

After all, I am allowed to still be an old grump! Don't dare pick me up! and certainly no strangers will ever pet me! But, when times are rough, when times are changing, I need to remember that I once tried... and liked it! I changed my routine and I remembered how to spark joy in my spirit again!

If you find yourself like me ever, I hope you too have the courage to try and find the joy that follows your nose!

Canine Corner

Holistic Hounds

Even a small amount of processed sugar and Halloween candy can be dangerous to your dog. Turkey bones pose similar threats as do other sweet & savory flavors of Thanksgiving. This fall, take caution with what smells good to the dog's nose around the house. Over 10 grams of sweets is considered to be toxic! Thanks to Jean Eremo for contributing a list of toxic foods – some of which are more frequently found in our homes this time of year: Onions, Nutmeg, Milk & Dairy Products, Yeast Dough, Sugar Free Gum and Candy, Grapes & Raisins, Pits/Seeds of: Apple, Apricot, Cherry and Plum, & Chocolate (to name a few). Contact your local veterinarian if you suspect a four legged furry friend couldn't keep their "paws" off of the Halloween candy...

Being thankful for our pets is not always something we think about. This holiday season, take a moment to pause to enjoy the company of your pet (or past pets). What are/were you thankful for most? As you think about your pet, give them a special pet, and then a treat! They will understand your gratitude.

Finding “Dog”-ma

“Have Nose – Will Travel!”

Let’s FALL in love with volunteering for the club!

October marked the RPDTC Fall VST. A TON of work goes into hosting a tracking test – and it is getting harder to find volunteers.

Tracking can seem intimidating to those with no information or background in the sport – like most dog sports! Additionally, most people will say they don’t want to wake up that early! (As a fellow beauty rest advocate, I can understand...)

So, one might understand how difficult it is to find tracklayers and volunteers for a trial when students who are able to lay tracks are often attempting to enter the trial and are no longer eligible to lay track for that trial - while others balk at a 7am start time - Quite a dilemma!

But imagine your last trial or the last award or title you and your dog celebrated in any event. Now, imagine showing up the day of the event and there not being enough volunteers to run it smoothly. Imagine if that event was cancelled due to a lack of volunteer availability! To help advocate for volunteers and ease some of the fears of the unknown we are prepping a few tutorial videos on what to expect at various trials and test as a volunteer which will be posted to youTube! We scoured youTube and much to our surprise there is limited insights for volunteers! We feel that this will help encourage members and guests of the club to volunteer outside of their comfort zone

! If you are willing to help with this process please email us.

Consider the dreams you are helping your fellow Rand Park members to fulfill. How much stress you ease from our hosts who carefully orchestrate each event with the comfort knowing they have fulfilled the needed volunteers (and then some!?!). Your effort and volunteerism for the club is very much appreciated! I hope you take a moment to consider other events in your future...

Obedience Treats

- Winter Obedience registration will be coming soon! (See Appendices C, D, and E)
- Class sizes are decided based on current enrollment and instructor availability. Registration is on a first-come basis. There are no special holds for membership at this time.

However, those currently enrolled and training in the fall session are assumed to continue into the next session and influence class size (approximately max of 10 dogs depending on size) and instructor need and proposed schedules. Many classes are full this fall training session – thus – we anticipate that many classes in the winter session will continue to be full! We do our best to meet the needs of everyone who wishes to train given limitations on volunteers/time/space that we also have to consider. Members who are not currently training will precede any new non-member not currently training in new enrollments as long as registration and payment is received, and space is available. If you plan to train your dog in the next session – please plan to register around week 5 of the current session to allow our DOT time to plan ahead and attempt to meet member needs as often as we can try to. Thank you in advance!

WAGS & BRAGS

No updates were officially reported to Paw Prints in the past two months...

We know that members have done great things over summer – and we want to hear from YOU! We support you as a member of the club and want to allow all members to wag our tails in celebration with you for your accomplishments!

Not all of our members are on Facebook. Paw Prints ensure all members stay informed.

However, we were able to pull some paw-sitive news from Facebook for this issue – just this one time!

Please note: the paw prints editor is NO LONGER active on any social media – including Facebook – and Paw Prints and Facebook are managed by different volunteers. Please don't assume that your brags get sent to paw prints when posted on Facebook. It is each members responsibility to send in their brags to: randpark.dtc.board@gmail.com to ensure your brag and photo are also included in paw prints.

Smart phone users – did you know you can add the above email address to your text message? Instead of sending a text to two phone numbers you can include 1 phone number (i.e. sending to Kathy for Facebook) and an email (i.e. the email above to send to Paw Prints) in 1 single message with two different recipients. When you do so – we will receive your text via email for paw prints – its pretty cool! This will make it a bit more convenient to send in your wags and brags to both places at one time!

Strut For Strays 2022:

On Sept 10th – We had a great time! Thank you to volunteers Lois Breslow, Gloria and Bill Urquhart, and Jill Spooner for coming out to help for this event.

It was a smaller event at Evanston Subaru to benefit CARE shelter in Skokie, but it was a fabulous opportunity for us to get our name out at a new event. 200 RP brochures were handed out to the 2 mile walk participants in the goodie bags.

We were able to hand out almost 100 dog treat baggies with RP business cards in them, and a couple of the other vendors asked me for piles of RP cards to set out at their facilities because they felt their clients would be interested in an option for group training classes for dogs.

We are also in pictures and mentioned on Evanston Subaru and CARE websites, and in a small blurb on channel 5 news who covered the event!

Thanks again for another summer ice cream social & tailgate party! What fun was had!

Tails on the Trails 2022:

On Sept 11th – This event was almost a wash out! Thank you to volunteers Jackie Montero & her husband and Vickie Henderson for coming out to help with this event at Morton Arboretum.

The rain was so bad that most vendors did not show up and there were not as many folks at the event, but we still handed out almost 100 dog treat baggies with RP business cards in them!

The best thing about this event was that we are invited back free of charge to their May 2023 Tails on the Trails event because of the rain! We shall return!

A quick thanks to all of our outstanding instructors for all that they do – for showing up – for driving in – for taking your time with each student and making an impact. MUCH APPRECIATED!
