Minister Phyllis Arrington-McGee

MINISTER PHYLLIS MCGEE was born the 16th sibling of 18 children to the parents of Albert and Isabella Arrington in Nash County, North Carolina.

Minister McGee embraced and accepted the effectual call into ministry in July, 2006 and preached her initial sermon on April 15, 2007. She was licensed immediately thereafter.

For the past 10 years, Minister McGee has served in various capacities in ministry as Preacher of God's Word, Administrative Liaison of Associate Ministerial Teams, Leader of an Apartment Community Residential Weekly Bible Study, Sunday School Teacher, former Teacher of Weekly New Disciples' Classes and evangelism including the Soul Patrol Outreach and Jail/Prison Ministries. As evidenced by her involvement, she has a passion for preaching and teaching the church as well as leading the un-churched into God's Plan of Salvation.

For the past few years, she has served as an Associate Minister at the Union Baptist Church under the auspice of Senior Pastor, Reverend Kenneth Ray Hammond in Durham, North Carolina where she is a preacher, teacher, and leader. Prior to joining Union Baptist Church, she hails as a former member of the Greater Joy Missionary Baptist Church for nineteen years where Bishop James E. Daniel was Senior Pastor.

Minister McGee received her formal education from North Carolina Central University and Durham Technical Community College, Durham, NC. She is currently enrolled in the Apex School of Theology, Durham, NC, (anticipated graduation date – May, 2017). She currently serves as Program Chair and Historian of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance of Durham and Vicinity (IMA) and is employed full time.

Minister McGee is a preacher, teacher, mother, daughter, sister and student. But her testimony remains that ... before all things, she is a lover of God and his Word.
