ABOUT THE PRE-DOCTORAL PROGRAMME

The Pre-Doctoral programme is intended for UK, EU and International students aiming to undertake MPhil and/or doctoral studies, whether PhD or DBA, in the UK. Being accepted for doctoral research by Universities throughout the world is increasingly competitive. It is therefore vital that you have a clearly defined and well-researched proposal at the very outset of your engagement with an intended University. This workshop has been carefully structured to help you do just that.

It is also advisable that you can demonstrate to your intended University a robust academic background if they are to admit you to doctoral studies. This will usually mean that you have attained, in the UK context, an upper second honours classification (or its international equivalent) in your first degree or that you have demonstrated a similar level of achievement in a postgraduate qualification in your chosen subject.

The workshop seeks to strengthen the academic English and doctoral study skills which are required from the very outset as you prepare your research proposal. Being able to appreciate the role of theory in research and conduct a useful literature review in your chosen field. Delegates will also have the opportunity to brainstorm possible research methods, both qualitative and quantitative.
