Voice Cultivation is an important component to become a musician. It is part of Vocal Study that deals with the techniques of right voice production and proper representation of the voice while singing.

In the classical music system there are many exercises to develop the skill of singing. However, it is important for the singers to understand the scientific aspects related to voice cultivation, technically developed exercises, methods to practice to help analyze one's own voice and manipulate the vocal apparatus for the perfect voice modulation.

In this 2 hour workshop Pt. Sanjoy Banerjee will teach various exercises as well as scientific theories behind this specific techniques improving students' performing skill and voice flexibility.
