

Randolph Oilers named to EFL All Star Team

November 10, 1996

Paul Harber, Globe Staff

Best wishes to Kingston native Tony Sirrico. He is retiring after 12 years as the public relations director and statistician for the Eastern Football League. Sirrico has spent his entire life involved in sports, and it is doubtful the EFL will ever find anyone as devoted and enthusiastic about his job as Sirrico was. . . .

Several players from the region have been named to the EFL's 1996 All-Star team. Linebacker Chris Guiliani of the Middleborough-based Mitchell Club Cobras has been selected as the defensive MVP of the year. Randolph Oilers defensive end Al Casey was selected defensive rookie of the year. Also on the all-star squad were running back Jay McGee, offensive tackle Jerome Penn, offensive guard Jim Charis, defensive end Larry Tagger, defensive back Ron Jones and special teams player Anthony Comer, all Randolph Oilers. Selected from the Cobras were tight end Rick Shea, center Mark Hawkins, offensive tackle Gary Perry, defensive tackle Andy Cushman, defensive back Anthony Andrade and linebacker Tom Royal. . .
