Pheasants Forever & Quail Forever and partners hire Farm Bill Wildlife Biologist to help north-central Missouri landowners

Trevor Dubinski will serve Randolph, Macon, and Chariton counties

MOBERLY, Mo. – September 12, 2023 – Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever in Missouri is excited to share that Trevor Dubinski was hired for the Moberly, Mo., Farm Bill Wildlife Biologist I position. He started his new position on September 11.

The Farm Bill Wildlife Biologists on the Missouri team are partnership positions supported by the Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Missouri Dept. of Conservation, and the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation. Dubinski will work with private landowners in Randolph, Macon, and Chariton counties helping them with wildlife and habitat management planning and securing funds to help implement those plans.

“Trevor joins the team bringing with him exceptional communication skills as well as a vast practical background,” said Missouri State Coordinator Andrew White. “His passion for our natural resources and experience will serve him well in this role in working with private landowners and his local communities.”

Dubinski is a Missouri native who grew up doing anything and everything outdoors, leading him to graduate from Southeast Missouri State University earning a bachelor’s degree in biology with an emphasis on Wildlife Conservation. Working in the conservation field throughout college, he is excited to apply his knowledge and join the Pheasants Forever team. While not working to better conservation, he likes to bird watch, hunt, fly fish, and go to concerts.
