Quail Forever in Missouri adds Warrensburg chapter Blackwater Bobwhites Quail Forever becomes state's latest installment

WARRENSBURG, Mo. – July 29, 2020 – Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever in Missouri shows no signs of slowing down with the recent establishment of its newest chapter in Johnson county. The Blackwater Bobwhites Chapter of Quail Forever signed its charter July 23 to become the organization's most recent addition in Missouri.

The chapter's mission is to create an environment with quality wildlife habitat and to slow the decrease in hunters by involving youth at every opportunity.

"Everyone's always complaining about there not being any quail," newly elected President Calen Moody said of why he wanted to start a chapter. "I got tired of complaining and wanted to take action."

The Blackwater Bobwhites Chapter of Quail Forever

Trevor Day, Regional Representative for northern Missouri and eastern Kansas, received an email from Calen expressing tremendous interest in starting a chapter. The newest chapter was formed just 17 days later.

"This chapter knew what it wanted and was ready to hit the ground running, which allowed this process to move extremely quick," said Day. "When you have people with the interest and willingness to make it work, you want to capitalize on that. We're coming into hunting and banquet season soon, so starting now gives them enough time to have a great fall."

The chapter's first meeting is slated for Thursday, Aug. 6 at 7 p.m. at the Masonic Lodge in Warrensburg. For information on how to join or get involved, please contact Outreach Coordinator Tacia Willaims at (417) 229-4778 or taciawill@live.com.
