

CON-SERV MFG The Filtration Spectrum

The below Filtration Spectrum defines the type process for separation as compared to the Common Materials found in feed water sources.

An Application Engineer reviews the water analysis as compared to desired output water quality and develops a process flow diagram to include the equipment necessary to meet the project needs. There is a variety of equipment on the market today, that use different technologies to achieve the desired results.

