

Rebekah Shoaf

Author | Educational Consultant | Social Entrepreneur

I help teachers and leaders experiencing burnout reconnect to their passion and purpose for becoming educators in the first place so they can thrive both personally and professionally.

As a former theater kid with a Harvard degree (and a pink Vespa!), I blend creative “What if?” dreaming with real-world expertise to help educators make big-sky possibilities a practical reality for themselves, their students, and their schools.

Over my 20-year career in education as a NYC public school teacher, a coach and consultant leading hundreds of educators to transform their approach to teaching and learning, and the founder of an independent children’s bookstore, I have supported other educators navigating burnout and even struggled with it myself.

PUBLISHED BY:

JOSSEY-BASS™
A Wiley Brand

PAST & UPCOMING SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS:

CollegeBoard

eskolta
We help schools learn.

SIGNATURE TOPICS:

Burned Out and Thinking of Leaving Teaching? Ask Yourself This Question First

How a Former Teacher Plays Hooky Once a Week—and Why You Should Too

People Power: The 3 Types of Colleagues Every Educator Needs to Succeed

Homework, High School, and Hormones: How an Educator Handled Infertility and Healed Herself

AVAILABLE FOR:

Podcast Interviews

Speaking Engagements

Workshops and Facilitation

Professional Development

Coaching and Consulting

Conference Panels

Guest Posts and Articles

TOTAL REACH

e-newsletter + social media

10K+

✉ rebekah@whatifschools.com

🌐 www.rebekahshoaf.com