

Parent-Teacher's Association Hold Interesting Meeting

Musical Playlet, Prizes Awarded and An Address By Superintendent of Schools, M. L. Lowery, Form An Enjoyable Evening

An excellent musical playlet by the pupils of the Cleveland school, the adoption by unanimous vote of a resolution protesting against the passage of Senate Bill No. 9, and an address by County Superintendent of Schools M. L. Lowery were features of the meeting of the Carteret Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday night.

The Senate bill opposed by the association is now pending at Trenton. If passed and made into a law it would take from the parents the right to elect the members of the school board and would oust the present board. The association opposes it on that ground.

The resolution follows:
Resolution adopted February 1, 1927, by the Parent-Teacher Association of Carteret, New Jersey, opposing the passage of a law more particularly designated as Senate Bill No. 9 as follows: "An Act To Establish a Thorough and Efficient System of Free Public Schools, to Provide for the Maintenance, Support and Management Thereof, Approved October 19, 1903."

Whereas, there is now pending before the Legislative Bodies of New Jersey, a certain Bill designated as Senate Bill No. 9, whereby in every Borough School District which has or shall hereafter have according to any State or United State census a population of 10,000 and over, the mayor shall appoint five persons to be members of the Board of such District; and

Whereas, the Parent Teachers Association of Carteret, is an organization whose sole and only object is to be of assistance to the Board of Education, the teachers and the pupils, and to ascertain what is most beneficial for the betterment of school activities; and

WHEREAS, Senate Bill No. 9, if adopted, would take away from the people the right to select men by a popular vote and would greatly reduce the responsibility which the members would owe to the general public at large in the fulfillment of duties as Commissioners; and

WHEREAS, the said Law if enacted, would take away the rights of parents of children attending public school to choose the kind of School Commissioner that would insure proper co-operation between the parents, the Board of Education and the school children; and

Whereas, the Parent Teachers Association as well as all citizens of this Borough have always had a keen interest in schools and school elections and have never by petition or otherwise sought to abandon their right to elect members of the Board of Education or transfer the existing management of the schools into the hands of men who have been elected to fill other positions in the Borough of Carteret, nor have they by petition or otherwise sought to adopt Article 6 of the School Laws contrary to the existing Article under which the School Board operates; Now Therefore strongly opposed to the passage of Senate Bill No. 9 as hereinbefore set forth and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Senator Larson, Assemblyman Hansen, Assemblyman Applegate, Assemblyman Morrison, acquainting them with the action of the Carteret Parent Teachers Association.

The title of the musical playlet was "My Geography Dream." In the cast were about thirty pupils. Groups of two or three represented different nations. In all twelve nations were represented. Each national group wore the native costume of the nation represented and sang songs and gave dances of that particular nation.

The members of the cast had been thoroughly coached and the teachers of the Cleveland school together with the principal, Miss Richards, deserve unstinted credit for the success of the play. The small actors were repeatedly encored. The playlet was repeated Wednesday for the other children of the public schools.

In the cast were:
The cast of "My Geography Dream" is as follows:

The association celebrated three anniversaries: Washington's birthday and the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Parent-Teacher movement. There was a large birthday cake bearing thirty candles which were lighted with a formality of expressing wishes for the continued success of the Parent-Teacher idea.

Child Welfare Day also was observed and $25.10 were collected in a silver offering for the child welfare fund. The local association has always led the state in donations to the fund and, it is believed, the collection this year will also be the biggest in the state.

The attendance was very large, the auditorium of the Columbus school being filled. In his address County Superintendent Lowery commented on the large attendance, saying that it was the largest he had ever seen at a P. T. A. meeting. Mr. Lowery gave interesting comparisons of the schools of today and those of a few years ago. He told of the things that are being done by the

Frank W. Davis Died On Tuesday

Frank W. Davis, aged sixty-seven, of 47 Lafayette street, died on Tuesday following an illness of several years that confined him to his home continually.

Mr. Davis was one of the Borough's first citizens, being a department superintendent of the Williams and Clark plant of the American Agricultural Chemical Company.

He was a member of the Foresters, Red Men and the Carteret Exempt Firemen's Association. Many floral tributes were sent to the home. Surviving beside the widow, are one son Frank and two daughters, Mrs. John Kelly and Mrs. Alfred J. Bonner.

Interment was made this morning in St. James Cemetery, Woodbridge.

Trial Wednesday For Prohibition Violators

The cases of the thirteen saloonkeepers, who were raided by local police authorities on November 20, will come up for trial on Wednesday, February 9, on charges of violating the prohibition enforcement law, according to the court calendar for the week beginning February 7.

The following is a list of the offenders that will go on trial Wednesday: Stanley Wisinski, Thomas Shapiro, Ambrose Mudrak, Joseph Levy, Phillip Gurria, Joseph Kleban, Anton Brechka, Stanley Yarcinski, Thomas Cheret, Michael Dolezar, Charles Mittleman, Joseph Ochat, Joseph Kolojowski.

Many other local cases will be tried during the week.

Firemen's Quick Work Saves Gerke Home

The fire department had a call on Monday morning to the home of Herman Gerke at the upper section of Washington and Roosevelt avenues. A defect in the flue from the furnace pipe to the chimney was the cause. Several beams caught fire and caused smoke to fill the cellar giving it an appearance of real danger. The firemen laid a line of chemical hose to the cellar, quickly extinguishing the fire with practically no loss.

Miss Gerke going to the cellar, discovering the smoke and sending in the alarm probably saved the situation, for the fire would have spread into the walls of the building very quickly. This would have resulted in a severe loss and a hard fight for the Fire Department.

Tour of Firehouses Made by Local Men

Fire Chief John Wilhelm, Councilman Walter Vonah and Harry Rapp and Max Schwartz made an automobile tour last Sunday to many of the fire departments in this section to inspect fire houses and apparatus.

They were much impressed by the fully equipped departments of all places visited. Their visit will most likely benefit the local fire department, they having learned a great deal by their trip.

West Kebar Breaks Loose From Moorings

The Steamship West Kebar docked for the past week at the L. T. Williams plant, broke away from her moorings last night during the high wind and was blown out to mid-stream of the sound. The watch on duty at the time hurriedly ordered the anchor dropped. The momentum of the ship driven before the wind, dragged the anchor for about a hundred yards before it took hold.

A gang of men from the Todd Shipyards of New York, who were making repairs on the ship, were compelled to remain on board all night, as the ship did not get back to her berth until this morning.

The West Kebar is out of Africa with a cargo of mahogany logs.

Miss Eva Halpert Entertains at Bridge

Miss Eva Halpert of 58 Roosevelt avenue entertained at bridge a large group of friends on Saturday afternoon last. All guests enjoyed a delightful afternoon. Miss Halpert, a local school teacher received from her school faculty a very handsome wedding gift.

Wohlgenuth, L. Dubow, R. L. Brown, Ruth P. Brown, M. Brown, G. Casey, E. Fezza, S. Uiman, B. Garber, J. Steinberg of Cal., B. Garber of Newark. Also, Mrs. L. Cohen, Mrs. H. Cowen of Jersey City, S. Klein of Brooklyn and B. Zier of New York.

Delightful Party for Miss Ruth Dinsmore

An enjoyable party in honor of Miss Ruth Dinsmore was tendered her by friends at the home of Miss Kathryn Conran on High street. The home was beautifully decorated. Music, dancing and singing were enjoyed and a fine luncheon was served.

The guests were: The Misses Isabella and Mary Colquhoun, Agnes Clifford, Mildred Woodhull, Elsie and Evelyn Springer, Agnes Gundersen, Ruth Dinsmore, Kathryn, Margaret, Phoebe and Audrey Conran, Walter Colquhoun, Jack Dowling, John Conran, Mr. and Mrs. Conran, Lillian Richards, Blanche Hale, Jane Kingsberry, Mrs. J. Richards, John Donnelly, Russell Clausen and Lendell Pomeroy.

Craftsman's Club Card Party Next Wednesday

$420,000 INCREASE IN RATABLES THIS YEAR

According to a statement issued by Tax Assessor William D. Casey an increase of $420,000 in assessed valuation has been added to the total taxable valuation of the Borough for the coming year. This increase is remarkable in view of the loss of the valuation of the Williams & Clark Plant of The A. A. C. Co., who have suspended operations here.

This property was assessed in the neighborhood of $210,000 and through good management of the Assessor's office the total loss will not be felt till three years have elapsed, a settlement has been made with the officials of the A. A. C. Co., whereby $70,000 will be dropped from total taxable valuation each year.

Building activities in the past year in the Borough as shown in the annual report of Building Inspector John H. Nevill were close to the three-quarter million mark. This added valuation will more than likely balance the increase in the Budget and not effect an increase in the taxes.

CANDIDATES CHOSEN FOR SCHOOL BOARD

W. V. Coughlin Outlines Splendid Work Accomplished by School Board

SCHOOL BILL CRITICISED

The Ladies' Democratic Organization meeting held Wednesday night at Firehouse No. 1, was one of the best attended since its inception. One of the important parts of the meeting was the endorsing of Candidates for school commissioners for next Tuesday's election. The following candidates were endorsed: William V. Coughlin, who is out for re-election, Charles A. Conrad and John Csele.

Senate Bill No. 9 received severe criticism because it was aimed especially at the Borough of Carteret, taking from the people the right to select school boards by election. William V. Coughlin rehearsed the progress made in the school system in the borough, speaking on finances and other detail work of the schools. Others followed in urging the members to get out on Tuesday and elect the three candidates selected.

Mrs. J. W. Adams, leader of the women democrats here also urged full support of the three men.

After the meeting the usual social and lunch period followed.

Senator Larson's Bill Passes On Third Reading

Practically Certain To Pass Through House of Representatives—Expect Governor Moore To Veto It As Was Done Last Year

The School Bill introduced in the State Senate by Senator Morgan F. Larson of Middlesex County, and known as Bill No. 9, passed on its third reading by a vote of 11 to 1 Tuesday morning after drawing the vote of only five senators the night before in a test reading. The text of the bill is to give the Mayor of any Borough in the state with a population of over ten thousand the right to appoint a school board of five members, one to serve five years, one four, one three, one two and one for one year.

At the Monday night session considerable objection was offered by Senator Simpson of Hudson County and Senator Mackay of Bergen County, but the influence brought about over-night by Senator Larson put the bill through on its third reading on the following morning.

The bill goes to the House of Representatives for consideration and comes up next week. Its passage in the House is not doubtful as a Senate bill rarely meets with any opposition after it is passed by the Senate. The Governor will more than likely veto the bill as he did last year, but according to Mr. Larson he is confident that he can get the Bill through over the Governor's veto which requires a three-quarter majority vote.

Republicans of the borough are confident that the passage of this bill is the only means of bringing about a harmonious co-ordination between the School board and the municipal officials when their majority are of two opposing factions. In their objection to the present School board, they bring comparative figures to bear. The school budget in 1919 was $60,374 and in 1926 $272,221, an increase of 353% as against the local budget for the Borough Administration in 1919 of $120,248 and in 1926 $189,248, an increase of only 13%. In 1927 the budget as planned by the present Board of Education will be about $326,000. There are only five schools in Carteret and in the Township of Woodbridge with fourteen schools the budget for this year is only $390,000 which amount includes the sum of $18,000 for purchase of lands. The budget of Perth Amboy is only $500,00 with a population five times as great as Carteret. From these figures it would seem that the present Board of Education is anxious to spend as much money as possible in order to increase the tax rate.

In 1922 the Nathan Hale and the Cleveland Schools were built at a cost of $278,000. The estimated cost was $257,000. This left a deficit of $21,000 which was carried on the books of the Borough until 1925.

The public at no time was aware of this deficit. The cost of these schools averaged $18,000 per room. The High School was built last year when the price of material and labor was higher than they were in 1922 and yet that building was constructed at an average cost per room of $10,000. In 1922 the Board consisted of members of the same political faith and in 1925 when the High School was built Mr. Bishop and Mr. Bradford were on the Board to see that the cost of construction was kept down as low as possible. An inspector was maintained and paid for on the High School for a period of six weeks after its completion.

A matter which shows the close disregard of the majority of the present board in the handling of money is the playground. Last year the sum of $10,000 was appropriated for the purpose of filling in and grading the property. In addition to this appropriation a large amount of money was paid to Mr. Demarest for fill which was delivered by him to the playground. This year the Board is again asking for the sum of $10,000 to complete this work. It does not require very much knowledge to know that this was useless and an exorbitant expenditure of money.

Another item in the appropriation for this year which bears criticism is the item of $18,000 for seven janitors in five schools at an average cost of over $2,500 per janitor.

Lions Club Have New Place of Meeting

The Lions Club at their weekly Luncheon and meeting held Tuesday made some very important changes in their routine according to a statement made by the Club's president Mr. Thomas G. Kenyon.

The meetings hereafter will be held in the banquet room of The Pershing Restaurant on the corner of Pershing avenue and Randolph street, where more spacious quarters will be had. Also the hour of the meetings will be changed from 1 to 2 o'clock each Tuesday to 12.30 to 1.30 every Tuesday.

This move was prompted by the inconvenience of small quarters and should more than a dozen members attend the meetings in the former location another room would have to be provided and consequently the members would be divided. In the new quarters there is ample room for the whole local organization to assemble in the one room.

Joseph Sexton and Thomas Kinnelly were Newark visitors on Wednesday.

GIANT LOGGER LURES LOVERS BY "WANT ADS"

Federal Agents Arrest "Annie Shusterich," Who Answered "Wife Seekers"

Portland, Ore.—Men in San Francisco, Lincoln, Neb., and Chicago are waiting for little Annie Shusterich to bring them back their $30 each, while federal officers declare they have "Annie" in jail here in the person of a giant Russian logger, Leo J. Gechus.

Gechus was arrested in an Oregon coast logging camp by a deputy United States marshal on a charge of answering "wife wanted" advertisements in matrimonial papers and extracting money out of prospective benefactors for the stated purpose of paying railway fare. Each time "Annie" received her $30 she penned a receipting answer, telling the duped male that "she" was a crook and advising him not to wait for his wife.

With the answer to the advertisement a photograph of a very snappy-looking, bobbed-haired smiling girl was sent as an advance sample of what the husband would get in return for the $30 railway fare.

One letter attributed to the logger was scrawled as follows:

"You want age twenty-two, but my age is twenty-one. Cream-white complexion, dark-brown hair, blue eyes, weight 120 pounds; small in shoulders, broad in hips and not skinny no place. Five feet 4 inches. I do not paint my face and do not go crazy over dances. I remain with love and kisses.

"MISS ANNIE SHUSTERICH.
"P. S. I will not correspond just for pass time with no one or wait ten years for photo. I want to get married."

It was explained in one letter that Annie was a German-American girl living in Portland. She worked in a 10-cent store and was a good cook and housekeeper. She asked one victim to "Call me your baby love."

"They Have 'Annie' in Jail."

Gechus is a blond giant, about forty-five years old, weighing about 200 pounds and looking as strong as he is large.

Mailed "Receipt."

When the cash was received this letter was mailed:

"Dear Sir: We inform you that we are a crook. All we wanted to get was the money and we got $30 out of you. Thank you for the money, but we are honest enough to let you know not to wait for me, as I will never come. I got the money out of not only you and I am going away because I might get in a trouble as few men are looking for me in Portland and other place. If I don't move I may do time behind iron bars. I stalled you off for a week, as I wanted to get some money from two more apes. Your sweetheart."

Gechus pleaded not guilty. According to federal officers he has served 13 months in McNeil Island for counterfeiting and 13 months in Walla Walla (Wash.) penitentiary for burglary.

Deer Swim to Safety as Dogs Fight on Shore

White Plains, N. Y.—Automobilists passing Croton lake, in the northern part of Westchester county, recently witnessed an unusual race between two deer which had been chased through the Croton hills to the lake by five dogs.

The deer fled down a steep bank and, jumping into the lake, headed for the opposite shore. The dogs got into a fight among themselves and by the time they jumped into the lake to continue the chase the deer had disappeared in the deep underbrush.

The dogs tried to pick up the trail but failed.

Beef From Sacred Oxen

The greatest drawback to raising beef cattle in the South is the Texas fever tick, says Capper's Weekly. Some one discovered the ticks do not bother the sacred ox or zebu of India. A shipment of these cattle was imported into the Florida Everglades and the first carload of the meat has just been shipped to Louisville, Ky.

The animals averaged 1,100 pounds and sold for nine cents on the hoof. The meat is richer and better flavored than ordinary beef and is being served

DEVICES ON COINS HELD THEM SACRED

Greeks Used Religion to Deter Counterfeiting.

On one of the earlier coins of Greece there was stamped a tortoise. That was because a tortoise was a revered object. It was sacrilege to abuse or desecrate it any way. The state authorities, in putting a tortoise on money, had a good and sufficient guard against counterfeiting, for the religious instincts of the people deterred them from attempting any such crime, says Parren Zerbe in "The Story of Money," issued by the Chase National bank.

The Greeks, because of their religious beliefs and practices, considered it sacrilege to put a human head upon coins, and so their early coins had the heads of gods of mythology. The death of Alexander the Great and his deification placed him among the gods. His portrait was admissible on coins. This was the first coin to bear a ruler's portrait. From his time on for many years the head of Alexander appeared on various Greek coins. It became the custom, following Alexander, to have the rulers of the ancient world deified during their lifetime.

Naturally enough, with the fall of Greece and Rome there was a decline in medallic art, and the coins of Europe for centuries were extreme crude in comparison with the artistic excellence of those of earlier times. We have to go during the "Dark Ages" to Parthia, Persia and Byzantium for specimens of medallic art. It is only as we come out of the Middle Ages and enter the Renaissance that our metal coins in Europe indicate an attempt to revive art. The age of Elizabeth in England was an important one in the development of coins.

Queen Elizabeth has been referred to as the "mother of modern coinage." In her goes the credit for the common introduction of the use of the mill and screw in coining money. Earlier coins struck out without a collar assumed irregular shapes, and they would not stack properly. Elizabeth, adopting the idea from France, had coins struck within a collar and made them circular in shape, putting marks on the edge, so they would be uniform or identical in appearance. This device is now used in most modern states. Following Elizabeth we find that the practice spread to other countries, and there was a revival of competition in making artistic coins. In Italy today coins copy the quadrang of the Greek coins of 2,300 years ago. Our own dime is considered one of the most artistic coins of the present day.

YOUNG OLD MEN IN SEATS OF MIGHTY

Leaders Persist in Refusal to "Rust Out."

Does constant physical or mental activity, or both, increase longevity? Supposing Elbert H. Gary had quit the game at sixty; or suppose Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes had retired 20 years ago; or that our own Dr. Harvey Wiley had decided at threescore and ten to let the laboring oar slip from his grasp—would any of these great Americans, distinguished in entirely different fields of professional and business life, find themselves, respectively at eighty, eighty-two and eighty-five, as mentally alert and physically active as they appear to be?

We hear a lot nowadays about this being "an age of young men," that "youth must be served," but is it not rather the age of old men remaining young? This observation is inspired by the recent eightieth birthday anniversary of Judge Gary, who celebrated it by putting in a strenuous day at the offices of the United States Steel corporation, quitting at five o'clock, unwearied by the excitement, still the man of "cheerful yesterdays and confident tomorrows," entering another decade wholly capable, in the opinion of his associates, of continuing as the directing force of the great business enterprise which he has created.

It is better to wear out than to rust out. There comes to every one a time when the physique breaks under the strain of the years and the mental forces are less active and responsive. But this stage is reached, it seems, much later in life than formerly. And this cannot be because men put in less hours a day or work fewer years. It may be that constant application of the mental and physical powers has solved the riddle of longevity.

Of course, when one considers the dimensions of life, length alone is not important. It is recorded that the days of Methuselah were nine hundred and sixty and nine years; "and he died." No accomplishment is set down; we are told only that he lived and "died." No man can hope to find a place in the annals of his time who merely lives and dies. The indications seem to be that one way for man to lengthen his days and preserve and perpetuate his energies is by keeping everlastingly on the job.—Washington Post.

Historic Occasion

The first successful flight in which an airplane carried a man was made December 17, 1903, by Wilbur Wright of Dayton, Ohio. The flight was made at Kittyhawk, N. C., near the sea, where he and his brother, Orville, had been experimenting.

First on Glorious Roll

Stephen is considered the first Christian martyr. The account of his martyrdom is in Acts 7. His execution does not seem to have had the sanction of the Roman authorities, and therefore was illegal.

The wit of conversation consists more in finding it in others, than in showing a great deal yourself; he who goes from your conversation pleased with himself and his own wit, is perfectly well pleased with you.—La Bruyere.

TEXAS FLAPPER
HOLDS UP BANK
SINGLE HANDED

Honor Student at State University, Called "Miss Modesty," Plans Robbery

Austin, Texas.—Rebecca Bradley, twenty-two years of age, brown-eyed, bobbed-hair brunette of 110 pounds, is accused of robbing the Farmers' National bank of Buda, 16 miles from here.

Miss Bradley is a college graduate, an honor student, candidate for a master's degree, and a model daughter. She served a term as a stenographer in the office of the attorney general of Texas. In her high school days at Fort Worth she was known as "Miss Modesty."

She is modest in dress and behavior and shuns the pleasures attributed to the flapper, but she refers to the two men who let her shove them into the bank vault with a pistol as "those saps."

Planned "Adventure" Carefully. She planned her "great adventure" carefully, seeking to prove a woman could be a better holdup than a man.

She faces trial on a capital offense, but her sureties on bail are Mayor P. W. McFadden of Austin and Dr. Charles Ramsdell, professor of history in the University of Texas.

Miss Bradley's first effort in her exploit was to direct suspicion elsewhere. She had her own small automobile, and early one morning, she drove to Round Rock, 20 miles north of Austin. There, peace officials say, she sought to establish an alibi by "registering" herself on the inhabitants.

Then she apparently drove swiftly back through Austin and to Buda, 16 miles south. She had been there several days before, posing as an Austin newspaper writer. On this pretext she gained admittance to the cage, saying she wanted to use a typewriter.

She waited until all customers left, then yanked out a pistol and forced F. A. Jamison, cashier, and Raymond Howe, bookkeeper, into the vault. She expressed the hope they would not suffer for air.

Scoping up all the money in sight, she re-entered her automobile, drove back to Austin and left her car at a washing station. But the bankers had escaped from the vault in time to take the license number.

Mails Loot to Herself. After disposing of the auto, the girl went to the Austin post office and sent a registered package addressed to herself. This package was intercepted before it could be delivered to her and was found to contain an automatic pistol and $910.

The girl was arrested in Austin, taken to Buda, identified by the bankers and returned to jail here. For a year, her escapade has revealed, she has been the bride of Otis Rogers, a young attorney of Austin. Rogers, who married Rebecca secretly, while both were in college, will defend his wife in court.

Kills Farmer and Wife and Kidnaps Daughter

New Bloomfield, Pa.—A demented farm hand beat to death his employer and wife when they refused his demands for money, and then kidnapped their daughter.

The victims were George D. Shull, sixty years old, a former prothonotary of Perry county, and his wife, Ella. Their alleged assailant, Paul Sheaffer, seized Mrs. Elster Kell, who had been visiting her parents, dragged her into Shull's automobile and started away with her.

Something went wrong with the car. When the man got out to repair the trouble Mrs. Kell drove away and collapsed some time later, after colliding with a heavy truck.

"Gets Her Men"

Fort Myers, Fla.—Prisoners in the county jail will be careful hereafter. Mrs. W. B. Maynard, wife and chief deputy of the sheriff, like the royal northwest police, gets her man—or men. Three prisoners locked her in a cell and escaped. With a male deputy she chased them into the swamps of the Everglades and captured them. An 18-mile boat trip and then an auto ride and they were behind the bars again.

Smoky American Cities

According to H. C. Murphy, Louisville air filter manufacturer, Pittsburgh is no longer the smokiest city in the United States. A device for measuring the number of dust particles per cubic foot of air showed in tests in 33 cities, according to Murphy, that St. Louis and Cincinnati both surpass Pittsburgh in the impurity of their atmosphere. Detroit ranks fourth, the device showed, with Chicago, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Louisville, Buffalo, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Toledo, Columbus and Philadelphia following in order. New York ranks fifteenth in Murphy's table, with Kansas City, Atlanta, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Washington, Denver, San Francisco and Boston below it.

Veteran War Horse

"Tommy Huston," a horse no less than thirty-four years of age, which took part in the South African war, a quarter of a century ago, is still alive at Johannesburg. Any horse that attains the age of twenty is thought to have lived a long and arduous life. To live beyond the age of thirty is something quite exceptional for a horse, and a horse that has lived thirty-seven years was being discussed in England as having broken a record. But it is doubtful whether this horse had passed through half such strenuous days as those through which "Tommy Huston" passed.

Have to Wait for Crop

Though lychee nuts are selling in Australia for more than 60 cents a pound, few Australians are planning on converting their farms into groves of lychee nuts. M. A. Pott of Bowen, Queensland, reputed to be the largest lychee nut owner in the antipodes, has no trouble in disposing of his crop to Chinese at 62 cents a pound. The great handicap in connection with the lychee-nut industry is that the trees bear their first crop when they are twenty-five years old.

Cleansing Mercury

The bureau of standards says that a simple way to remove dirt from mercury is to shake the mercury vigorously with some cane sugar, after which the metal is filtered off through a pinhole in the bottom of a paper cone. The whole operation may be repeated if necessary. Instead of filtering through a pinhole, the mercury may be squeezed through several thicknesses of cloth.

Raisins in Palestine

The agricultural colonization department of the Palestine Zionist executive announces that it has been carrying out experiments in connection with the production of muscatel raisins in Palestine.

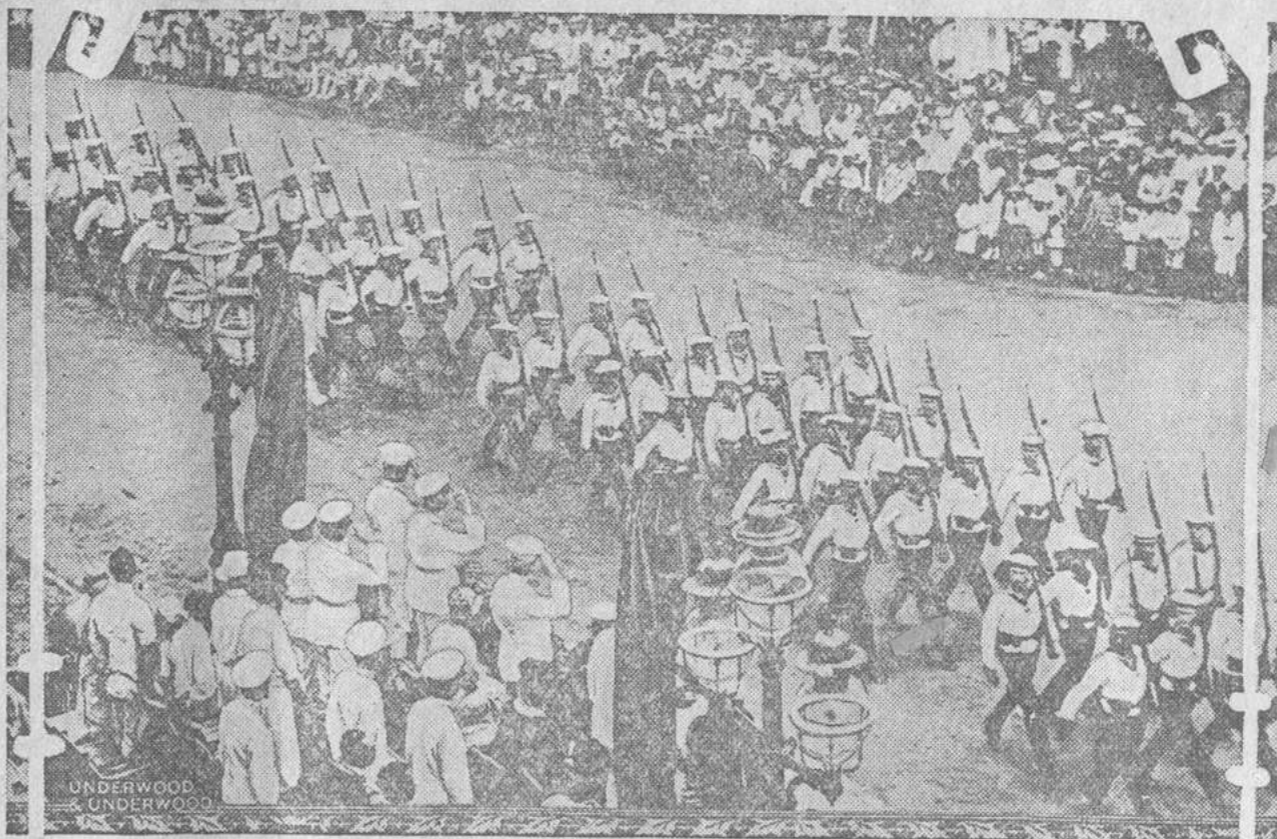

These experiments have been so successful—leading stores having declared the quality of these raisins to be equal to the California variety—that considerable areas are being planted with table grapes in order to produce a large yield for conversion into raisins next year, says the New Palestine. Orders for 400,000 vines have been received by the agricultural colonization department of the Zionist executive and additional orders have been placed with private individuals, states the report. At a competitive price these raisins realize a net profit of P. T. 2 per kilo.

Cultivation in Alaska

Alaska is anything but a desert. The government forest reservations alone embrace $20,580,000 acres—an area as great as that of the state of South Carolina. Most of this area is covered with dense virgin stands of spruce and hemlock.

There are 80,000 acres in Alaska in farms, and it is estimated that in the territory tributary to the government railroad there are 1,296,000 acres adaptable for farming. There are 65,000,000 acres of land suitable for grazing cattle, sheep or reindeer. That is a pasture more than twice the size of Ohio. In 1893 the reindeer herds, mostly owned by Eskimos, numbered 300,000 head.

China

In the year 1840 the Chinese government, desiring to curb the opium evil making terrible inroads on the population of China, took steps to prevent the smuggling of the drug into the Celestial Kingdom. That did not please British merchants who were finding this smuggling business highly profitable and Great Britain defeated China. As a result of this war they took over Hong-Kong as well as forced the Chinese government to open Canton, Foochow, Amoy and Shanghai to the trade of the world. In each of these "treaty ports" colonies of foreigners collected subject not to Chinese law but to the law of their own lands, having their own local governments. They have been joined by France, Japan, the United States and others, most of whom maintain troops as policemen for the so-called "concessions." Uncle Sam has had nearly a regiment of regular army men in China.

About the same time, Germany used the excuse of the murder of two missionaries to seize Kiao-Chow, France took one of the southern ports and Great Britain, fearful of its commercial interests, took hold of Wei-hai-Wai for a period as long as the hold of Russia on Port Arthur.

Later on China joined the allies in the World War in the belief that they would be granted the right of self-determination. But in 1917, even the United States so far forgot these principles and its earlier ones as to agree to a dominating position of Japan in China and at the peace conference we agreed to the turning over of the Shantung peninsula to Japan.

When the nations met at Washington at our summons, action was taken to free China of the burden of western and Japanese exploitation. Japan promised to get out of Shantung and China was promised many things that have not been delivered after four years of haggling.

In the meantime the western powers, including the United States, have maintained gunboats in Chinese waters and one of the powers, Great Britain has not hesitated to make use of them. But the time has come when China must be allowed freedom from her restrictions. The spirit of nationalism, as Senator Borah pointed out in his brilliant speech on the Chinese question the other day, is surging in the hearts of the 400,000,000 people of the land, and this spirit will not down—and why should it be downed?

There are only two ways of dealing with the Chinese problem, at the present time and the United States like other nations must decide on one or the other; either the institution of a policy of force or of a policy of reason.

At the present moment indications point to a policy of force on the part of Great Britain—a policy that will undoubtedly result in the wholesale slaughter of millions of patriotic Chinese, and may result in an uprising of the yellow races that will wipe out all vestige of Christian civilization and exploitation.

Candlemas Day February 2, is generally known as "Groundhog Day." On this date according to legend the groundhog breaks out of his winter burrow. If he does not see his shadow he stays out and an early Spring is assured. If he does see his shadow he again RETIRES for six weeks.

Coal and Wages

During the last session of Congress the President insisted on being granted power to prevent coal strikes. An act known as the Parker bill granting this power was side-tracked at the last session and has again been rejected. With the expiration of the Jacksonville agreement another bituminous coal strike seems inevitable. Because of this fact manufacturers and industry are stocking up with fuel and the demand is so great that almost every mine in the country is being worked to capacity.

Mine owners are opposed to giving the President power to stop a strike because it may mean the taking over of the mines by the government during an emergency. The coal miners favor the law because it would assure them a fair chance to agree to terms without being starved into it. Just why coal mine owners dislike to pay their men good living wages is an economic mystery not satisfactorily explained. So far the only reason advanced is that the public will be compelled to pay 25 or 30 cents more per ton, but the evidence is that the "dear public" is not considered when it comes to marketing the surplus production at low wages and a strike is on. The principal question involved, however, is a stable supply—at any price. After another tie-up or two it may be that the people will wake up to the thought that coal is a public utility and the state may operate the mines.

A Wonderful Invention

Dr. Palmer H. Craig, head of the Department of Physics at Mercer University, Macon, Ga., has patented an invention that promises to ultimately do away with vacuum tubes and batteries in a radio receiver.

The device is extremely simple. It consists of plates of bismuth surrounded by a coil of insulated wire. When a current of electricity passes through the wire, a field of magnetic force is created, which acts on the bismuth and causes it to become sensitive as either a detector or amplifier of radio waves. To protect the bismuth from atmospheric corrosion, it is protected by a coating of sulphur.

The apparatus requires no electricity current outside of that in the radio waves for its operation and is so compact that it may be held in the palm of the hand. He has had many offers for his patent which is now being tested by Westinghouse engineers.

George Young, the 17-year-old Toronto boy who won the marathon swim across the San Pedro Channel, is evidently one of those boys who believes "nothing is impossible to a strong heart." His hardest test, however, is yet to come.

The hat-pin industry seems to have gone out of business without a protest of its usefulness as a national defense against a wicked world.

It's now possible to "say it with flowers" across the ocean. The White House has received roses an hour after they were sent from London. That's service.

OPINION

Growth Needs Money. Building Increases. Better Reading. Carteret Park. Boxing Not Alone.

MAYOR Mulvihill tried hard to have the budget of 1927 cut down, but running expenses of the borough did not permit success. He indicates, however, that the budget next year will be easier to reduce. The mayor is working in the right direction.

Perhaps he will not find it so very easy to clip expenditures. Carteret is bigger than it was five years ago and it costs more to keep machinery moving.

The national government spends millions of dollars more today than it did before the War. It costs money to grow.

BUILDING in Carteret last year amounted to $699,465—an increase over 1925. People are moving into their OWN houses more every day. They are getting sick of paying rent. Own your own home and be happy.

Buildings, other than dwellings, were erected. This shows that business has increased. Construction is a sure sign of business.

CIRCULATION of books at the Free Public Library last year was 25 per cent larger than in 1925. This, no doubt, means that people here are reading more books. And there is a probability that they are reading BETTER BOOKS.

To help subscribers, the library will equip reading rooms on the second floor of the building. Quiet will be more easily obtained as a consequence. Books will not have to be taken out as often either.

By increasing the budget appropriation by $500 this year, the Borough Council manifests its interest in the growth of the library. The Council also allowed the library to keep $252.52 which were collected in fines.

Perhaps you, too, can help the library by merely subscribing to it and using some of the books which are available almost at any time.

DANIEL Cook, who died January 9, would have been buried without being seen by relatives if the radio had not found them. Undertaker Lyman had WOR at Newark radio for Cook's kin who could not be located otherwise. This was the second time that Mr. Lyman had used the ether for such a purpose.

THE Borough needs a residential section badly. Pure reason shows that it would be an inducement for people to live here.

Carteret Park, a new restricted residential development, promises to serve the purpose. The East Highway tract will be improved within the next year, and should you be planning to build, it would not be a bad idea to look into the opportunity.

Within ten years the section should be well built up. Open spaces that are prevalent now ought to be well covered with beautiful dwellings.

Last week a Perth Amboy realty concern, seeing possibilities of rapid growth in East Highway, offered to purchase 300 lots in Carteret Park. Note that it will be a restricted section.

COMPLAINTS that sidewalks in certain parts of the borough have not been laid according to specifications have been made to the Borough Council. If after an investigation is made, the sidewalks are found to be laid in violation of specifications, the Council should act in such manner that a similar incident will not happen again. If specifications are violated once, they will be treated in the same manner a second time.

IS IT proper that the boxing game should be antagonized as it is? Reformers are now demanding action in regards to the death of a young pugilist last week. The yea-men to lose sight of the fact that a player in any physical game is liable to fatal injury. Football is not less dangerous than boxing; still there is no apparent reform movement being carried on against its roughness. And there have been numerous young men killed in pursuit of the pigskin. Boxing is not alone.

Parent Birds Kept Busy

Animals and birds work hard only when they have young to feed. The industry of a pair of blue tits with eight or ten youngsters in the nest is almost frantic. The old birds are at work 17 hours out of the 24 and each makes 15 or 20 journeys an hour in search of food for the nestlings.

Japanese Wrestling

The art of wrestling has been brought to the attention of the Japanese where the well-known Jiu-Jitsu system of the Jiu-Jitsu is the Chinese system of wrestling.

Noted English Actor To Appear In New York

MEMORIES of Sir Henry Irving still linger in the minds of playgoers of more than a decade ago. With a desire to further extend the "Hands Across the Sea" spirit in art and culture, The Messrs. Shubert have induced the great English romantic actor, Matheson Lang to appear here with his notable company from the New Theatre, London, in that highly impressive spectacular drama, "The Wandering Jew."

NEWARK THEATRES

Miner's Empire Presents "Kongo"

The product of collaboration in playwriting between Chester De Vonde and Kilbourn Gordon will be revealed in "Kongo" next week, commencing Sunday matinee, February 6, at Miner's Empire theatre. So successful has been the experiment of alternating with Columbia Burlesque a few dramatic and musical offerings of the best class; so well have the public responded to the innovation on the Columbia Circuit, that what was presumed to be only a temporary idea has become a permanent policy on the Columbia "Wheel."

Americana, at Shubert Theatre

Back of Richard Herndon's production of J. P. McEvoy's "Americana," which comes to the Shubert Theatre, February 7, is an interesting set of circumstances. When Mr. Herndon learned last May that McEvoy had refused several other producers the privilege of producing his "Americana" because he did not consider the several theatres proposed by them for the production quite the setting for an intimate revue of which his satirical sketches would form the nucleus, Glenn Hunter announced his intention to go to Europe for a vacation. This latter fact released Mr. Herndon's charming little Belmont Theatre in 48th Street, N. Y., and sent this producer scurrying after Mr. McEvoy to announce this timely happening. McEvoy exclaimed with delight because there is no playhouse in New York at once so intimate and so saturated with artistic charm as the Belmont. At once the author and producer got together, and planned the immediate production of the Revue which is called "Americana" and which has been doing capacity business in that theatre since last July.

Matheson Lang portrays Matathias in each phase, under varying guises, but always as the man without a friend, against whom all men have set their hands. In each phase Mr. Lang appears in a different portrait, but he must preserve throughout the spirit of the original. The test this imposes is as severe as any actor could well desire. That he emerges from it triumphantly, the united testimony of the British press conclusively proves.

The Board of Engineers of the Borough Fire Department met Tuesday evening and organized for the ensuing year. John Olbrecht, Fire Chief, acted as chairman and Joseph Dawling as secretary. Other members present were: Otto Elk, William Walsh, Frank Wilhelm and William Colgan.

Resourceful Woman

A western woman, touring Europe, writes home to tell how handy a scarf she was carrying came into use at Rome, says Capper's Weekly. She was dressed with sleeves to the elbow the day she was to visit the Vatican. When she reached the outer door a guard pointed to a sign which said that women who were "indecently dressed" were barred from entering. An interpreter informed her that she must have her arms covered. Whereupon she unwrapped the scarf from her neck, draped it over her shoulders and wound it around her arms. She was admitted. Her companion had to go to the nearest store and rent a black blouse, which she wore over her sport suit.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE MINSTREL SHOW

THAT the once popular minstrel show was an institution of American conception is to be assumed, for the negro as a character is, of course, the product of America. But that the impersonations which sung and laughed their way to popularity all over the world were the outgrowth of a man's sentimental fancy, years before the Civil war, is not generally known, nor the peculiar circumstances of its beginning.

For years Ned Christy, later world famous as the originator of the minstrel entertainment, nursed a heart-felt desire to portray to the North the life of the southern darkies. In the spring of 1842 at a hotel in Buffalo, he suddenly proposed to the proprietor of the establishment that he give some darky impersonations for the entertainment of the other guests. He had come unprepared, but with the assistance of the proprietor's son and another young man, some burnt cork and a banjo, violin, tambourine and bones, he gave his darky show. It met with so much favor at the hotel that he repeated the performance once or twice every day for several months.

WAYS WITH BACON

THE fat from the breakfast bacon should be carefully saved. It may be used to fry potatoes, as shortening for biscuits, and as fat to bind soups, provided the family likes the flavor. It may be used in spice cake for shortening, saving butter.

Spanish Rice

Brown four slices of thinly cut bacon and remove them when well browned and crisp. To the fat in the pan add one-half a green pepper finely shredded, a tablespoonful of chopped onion and fry until the onion is a light brown. Add one cupful of boiled rice and one cupful of stewed tomato. Season with salt and pepper and add a little sugar. Cook about fifteen minutes or until thick and the liquid is absorbed, then add a tablespoonful of butter, place the bacon on top and serve from a chafing dish.

Bacon Salad Dressing

Cut four or five thin slices of bacon into squares and fry until crisp. Mix one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard and one teaspoonful of sugar with one egg slightly beaten, add one-third of a cupful of vinegar (diluted if too strong) and pour into the pan containing the bacon. Stir and cook until the egg thickens to the degree of cream. Serve over lettuce salad.

Scallop of Bacon and Cheese

Sprinkle the bottom of a baking dish with a thin layer of bread crumbs, put in a layer of thinly sliced bacon, cover with a layer of grated or thinly sliced cheese, add another layer of crumbs, bacon and cheese, then cover with a thick layer of buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Bacon fat poured over lettuce, sprinkled with seasoning, add a little vinegar after the fat has been poured out, and when hot, add to the lettuce. With minced onion or green peppers this makes a most tasty salad.

Lake That Burns

Natives of Costa Rica burn a certain lake each year. The lake is thickly grown over with tall grass, the tips dry under the sun and the natives set fire to the mass.

Of Biblical Origin

The phrase "the breaking of the alabaster box" originated in the story of Mary Magdalene, who, tradition says, broke such a box to anoint the feet of Christ.

Bones of Cortez to Remain in Mexico

It is fitting that the bones of Cortez, the Great Spanish conquistador, are to remain in Mexico, where they were buried, says the Boston Globe. So at least Prince Antonio Pigatelli, direct descendant of the conqueror of Mexico, has decided, turning down the request from the Spanish government that Cortez' bones be transported to the town of Medina, Cortez' birthplace, in Spain, where it was proposed to rear a monument over them.

The interest which ensuing generations take in the remains of those who became mighty by deeds of war or by creative achievement is one of the odd human puzzles of history. Homer, according to the legend, was ignored while alive, but seven cities claimed him dead; and if the legend has been somewhat shattered by the conclusions of the scholars that no such person as Homer ever lived, and that the Homeric poems are the work of many hands and several centuries of emendation and alteration, the point yet persists.

Shakespeare protected his bones from transportation by causing a poetic curse to be set up over his Stratford grave, threatening despoilers. Americans brought back Paul Jones' exhumed relics from France with no little satisfaction, a few years since. What would the pharaohs say could they but know that their tombs had been broken open and their burial seals pried off, and their mummies sent on long journeys to alien museums?

Christopher Columbus had a singularly migratory history after his death. His bones were moved three times in Spain; then they were taken to Santo Domingo and reburied; then to Havana, where they found rest under a cathedral. But even this grave was not apparently the last. For or more the relics were dug up and taken to Seville, to be there given another sixth burial. At Havana, however, they tell a tale to the effect that a mistake was made, and that Christopher's bones repose today under the local cathedral, while Seville honors some unknown.

Boats Outstrip Wind

The Rudder says that a sailing boat cannot sail faster than the wind which is blowing directly from astern. In fact, the speed of the boat will be less than that of the wind. When the boat is sailing across the direction of the moving air the conditions are changed and it is quite possible for a light racing boat to sail much faster than the wind which is blowing at right angles, or approximately so, to her course. The relative speed of wind and boat depends upon the design and handling of the craft, but theoretically a racing yacht sailing with the wind blowing just a little ahead of a point directly abeam can sail at a speed of several times the velocity of the wind. In actual practice boats sometimes sail under such conditions about 50 per cent faster than the breeze. Iceboats have been known to sail twice as fast as the wind.

Tower a Lightning Rod

Two men watching the Woolworth tower the other day in New York saw it struck by lightning, though the inmates were not aware of the fact. "This observation," says a letter to the Herald-Tribune, "is a confirmation of my theory that the Woolworth tower, covered by a copper roof which is connected with the ground by the tower's steel structure, insures immunity against lightning." In short, the tower is a big lightning rod.

HELD IN REVERENCE AS SACRED SHRINE

Tradition Makes Glastonbury, England, Holy.

Glastonbury is surely, if tradition speaks truly, the spot most deserving of reverence in all England, writes a special correspondent of the London Daily Times. Here, as nowhere else in Britain, Christianity has been continuously preached for nearly 1,900 years. Here Joseph of Arimathea was buried, having first, it is said, buried with his own hand in the neighboring Chalice hill the cup of the Last Supper itself. Here St. Patrick was born and here he died. Here King Arthur came to heal him of his grievous wound, but likewise died, and here was the burial place of many of the old kings. And the spot in Glastonbury which most appeals to the imagination is not the ruins of the abbey, with all their beauty and hints of former grandeur, nor is it the Tor, crowned with the ancient church and serving as a landmark for miles around, but it is a gray slab like a paving stone, cracked across, set in the grass (you may have to drive a cow away before you can see it) of Wear-all-Hill.

It is a pleasant green ridge, broken only near the summit by one little wood of oak and larch and Scots pine and you climb it by an easy footpath. To this hill it was said that Joseph of Arimathea with his eleven companions came, having sailed in over what is now the low moor and heathland of the Brue valley from Bridgewater bay. When, weary all, they had made two-thirds of the ascent, the saint, as taken that their pilgrimage was over, thrust his staff into the ground, where it took root and became the famous Glastonbury thorn.

There are many descendants of the thorn, from seeds or cuttings, in Glastonbury gardens, and they still blossom, as did the parent tree, at Christmas—boras ipsa qua Christus natus fuerat. The best known of these descendants today stands just inside the entrance to the abbey ruins, itself an old tree now and decrepit, having to be propped up, and as the thin foliage and scanty crop of this year's haws upon it show, nearly past bearing flowers or fruit. With a leaf closely resembling that of the common English hawthorn and a flower like the white many of our hedge rows, the tree has fewer thorns and a slightly different habit of growth in its interlacing branches to show that it comes of exotic stock.

It is the site of the original tree that is marked by that cracked paving stone amid the grass. It is roughly inscribed with characters suggestive of the scratchings with which a tourist writes his or her name upon a rock, with the legend: "I A." (presumably Joseph of Arimathea) "Ann. D. XXXI." The date would seem to be too early, by something less than forty years, but so much does it resemble some holiday-maker's scribbling hundreds of visitors must gaze uncomprehendingly at the inscription and wonder who and what kind of a woman "Ann. D." may have been.

Chinese Women Bob Hair

Not only has bobbed hair become popular in China but many girls are Eton cropped, Miss Qui Sing Wong, a young Chinese woman who is studying hair dressing in London told radio listeners in England. Miss Wong said that when she returns to China she is to open a beauty culture and hair-dressing establishment at which most of her customers will be members of the British colony and Chinese girls under twenty, for women over twenty at present are too much attached to the gold and jeweled pins with which they arrange their hair ever to have it cut. She also is taking back a permanent hair-waving machine to displace the old-fashioned pins and curl papers.

Too Much

Maurice came home unusually late for dinner. He sat down, but did not begin to eat. This was unusual. "Maurice, where have you been?" asked his mother.

"Down at the drug store and when Bill told me it was 1:30, you ought to see me drink my soda."

"Soda? Where did you get the money?"

"From the West boy. We had a soda, a bottle of pop and some candy."

"Why, how much money did he have?"

"He did have 50 cents, but now he's got a lot of pinks."

Wheel Aids Diver

Amusement and instruction are afforded in an eight-foot wooden water wheel for the swimming bench to aid the diver. The person sits or lies prone on top of the wheel, which is 18 inches wide, and, as it turns, slips into the water, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A ratchet underneath prevents the wheel from going backward. A ladder and a platform are included in the apparatus which occupies not more than 120 square feet of ground. It is so constructed that fingers and toes cannot get caught.

Floating "Drummer"

A floating French department store which will visit the coasts of North and South America carrying the latest models and novelties will sail in November. The ship expects to be gone two years and will make calls of several days in most of the important ports of Canada and the United States for the purpose of getting wholesale orders for French goods. A first-class restaurant under direction of expert chefs will be on the boat.

Things They See

Hinsdale, Mass.—Fellows who first thought their hunter friends were hars now know that they were merely mistaken. There came tales of a black deer running loose. It has been identified as a goat that escaped from a farm.

THE SKY CREATURES

IT HAD been rather a cheerless day. The sun had not come out, though at times it had seemed as though surely in but another moment it would come out.

And it had not really rained though at times there was a drop or so of rain which made people carry their umbrellas and wear their rubbers. Suddenly the sky creatures thought they would give the city people a party.

"Let's give some of those people who live in all those many, many apartment houses some lovely sky creatures," said the King of the Clouds to Mr. Sun, and Mr. Sun thought the idea was an excellent one.

"Of course," the King of the Clouds said, "all of the people will not be able to see us. They may not have windows which will look out just the way to get all the effect as I notice that Mother Rainbow over there has been shaking out her best frock. But many of them will see us. Oh, yes, we must all go."

"It will be splendid," said Mr. Sun, "and I think it was a nice suggestion of yours, King of the Clouds."

"I often feel sorry for people who only look out upon gray houses and the backs of houses and they get so used to looking at houses they really don't look up at the sky half enough."

"Oh, but we'll make them look up today," said the King of the Clouds. And all of a sudden the earth people were surprised by the beginning of the treat given to them by the Sky People.

It began to pour with such a gay flourish and dash. It was not like a steady downpour at all. It was a great and tremendous shower. A wonderful, exciting shower.

One lady telephoned to another in the city.

"It's the most terrific shower I've seen in many a day," she said.

And the lady at the other end of the telephone said, "It isn't raining up here at all."

But no sooner had she said that than she added, "Oh, yes, it's just beginning now! Oh, it's a terrific downpour, too! Dear me, I shall have to ring off. I must see that my windows are down."

For the King of the Clouds had suggested to his children that they run races from the lower end of the city right up to the very furthest end, which was exactly what they had been doing.

Then as the children had raced right up town along came Mr. Sun and he and the King of Clouds laughed and chatted and even sang songs.

Then came Mother Rainbow and the Rainbow Brothers and all the Rainbow children dressed in their best. Mother Rainbow had them all grouped together according to their costumes just as she always does. The ones with costumes which were partly of one color and partly of another were the ones who were grouped between two distinct colors.

Oh, how lovely they all looked! And some went down very close to the earth and some were high up in the sky. The city people stood at their windows and called to each other.

"Oh, a beautiful rainbow," they said.

"See! It is a double rainbow," said another.

"And doesn't the sun look pretty through the rain?" said another.

"How beautiful it all is," said yet another.

And the Sun and the King of the Clouds and the Army of Raindrops and Mother Rainbow and all of the Rainbow children smiled their gayest and best and most wonderful smiles and the city people smiled, too, scarcely realizing that they were smiling.

"Call for the Cloud Fairies," said Mr. Sun to the King of the Clouds, and then they came. Oh, they were so lovely! They wore golden and silver costumes and cuffs and hats and though from the earth they couldn't be seen very distinctly, their lovely bright fluffiness could be seen.

The Mother Rainbow grew dimmer for she was taking the children back home with her as they had a marching lesson to take before bedtime. They had to learn to be so quick about marching to the right position when they were to appear before the earth people. But it had been a beautiful treat. And the city people rejoiced in the glory they had seen.

Dolls and Dynamite From Sawdust

Sawdust and common mill waste, transformed into "wood flour," is now being used to manufacture a hundred useful articles ranging from dolls to dynamite. In this photograph Harry H. Steidle of the national committee on wood utilization, Department of Commerce, who is kept busy finding new uses for "wood flour," is shown with a doll, some dynamite and some beautiful inlaid linoleum, all made from what might have been lost to the world as sawdust.

The Impudence

J. B. Ayres, one of the unfortunates dropped from the tumultuous party attending the Queen of Rumania, said in Chicago on his way back east:

"It isn't in the highest circles that you'll meet with the greatest politeness. A lady in New York was arranging to be presented to Queen Maria, and she introduced herself to a member of the royal party. The man said:

"Where are you from?" "From Altoona," said the lady.

"The man gave a loud, rude laugh. "Altoona? Oh, dear!" he laughed. "Can't you go back and come from somewhere else?"

Small Railroad Station

Blackwell Mill, Derbyshire, claims to be the smallest station in England. It is on the L. M. S. railway, three miles from Buxton, has one platform twelve feet long, and not even a board bearing the name of the station. It has one train a week, no tickets are issued, and no fares are charged.

The station serves eight cottages, occupied by railway servants and their families, and every Friday morning an early train stops to take the women folk of this tiny hamlet to Buxton with their market baskets, and about noon they return with their week's supplies. Some of them have lived there all their lives.

Public Service Issues Statement On Merger

Stockholders of Public Service Electric and Gas Company in special meeting yesterday unanimously approved an amendment to the company's charter increasing its authorized capital stock by $30,000,000. The action was taken as part of the plan for the merging of underlying companies now held under lease, the stocks of which may be exchanged for either the Electric and Gas Company's 6% preferred, common stock of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey or cash.

Under the amended charter no change was made in the number of authorized shares of the common stock or the 7% or 6 1/2% preferred stock issues of the Electric and Gas Company but the number of 6% preferred shares was raised from 700,000 to 1,000,000, all to be as of the 1925 issue. It is the latter class of preferred stock that is being offered for shares of underlying companies to be merged.

In connection with the progress of the merger there was presented at the meeting a statement dictated by President McCarter before he left on a Southern trip Saturday in which he said:

"The plan to merge the gas and electric companies now controlled under lease by Public Service Electric and Gas Company has met very favorable response from holders of the underlying securities and stocks of all the companies are being turned in to the depositories, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., Drexel and Company and their agent, Fidelity Union Trust Company in substantial amounts daily, fully up to the company's expectation.

"Inasmuch as the plan is designed to do away with the unwieldy leasehold structures, it has met with very general commendation from the public authorities.

"The plan has received the approval of the Public Utility commission of the state and it is believed that its attractive features will appeal to all of the security holders affected.

"The company desires to state definitely that no modification of the plan is contemplated or will be made as it considers the basis of the various options is fair and reasonable in all respects."

Ancient Church Organ

Frederick Miller, an expert on organ history, says that the oldest pipe organ in America is in an Episcopal church at Clyde, N. Y. It was built for Queen Anne of England and presented by her to Trinity church in New York, which eventually passed it along to the congregation in Clyde. It is a genuine antique, with only 110 pipes and no pedals.

Sun's "Looming"

The phenomenon of the sun setting and then coming into view again for a half minute or more is called "looming"—the coming into sight of objects normally below the horizon—and is owing to the downward bending of rays of light from the distant object by a shadow surface layer of cold, hence dense, air.

The Choice

We do not know what way will lead to happiness either for ourselves or for our friends. We cannot see the outcome of any earthly choice, but we know that in the end right always pays better than wrong, and that even here and now good deeds bring more comfort than any evil deeds could bring us.

Frank Davis Submits To Blood Transfusion

In an Effort to Save Life of George Sweda who Needed Blood to Undergo an Operation

An example of fine courage is shown by Frank Davis when he volunteered to give the blood of his body for the chance to save the life of his boy friend George Sweda who is in a critical condition at The Post Graduate Hospital in New York.

Sweda was taken to the hospital several weeks ago due to injuries received in an accident and has been continually becoming weaker. Physicians at the hospital have been postponing an operation that was necessary in the hope that Sweda's condition would improve. Realizing that the operation could not be delayed further a call for volunteers among his friends was made to undergo a blood transfusion.

A number of young men responded and after tests Frank Davis was chosen. After the transfer of blood from Davis' body to Sweda's, Wednesday, the physicians announced that an operation could be performed as Sweda's condition had immediately improved.

His friends are anxiously awaiting the results.

The third and final reading of the budget ordinance took place at the meeting of the Borough Council Monday night in the Council chamber. The ordinance passed on this reading after an item of $1.00 was added to the appropriation for the Fire Department for the purchase of a Siren alarm.

This item on its introduction by Councilman Andres met with considerable objection from the Mayor on the grounds that a siren at the expense was not an absolute necessity at this time. Councilman Brown also voiced the same opinion. Andres pointed out the inadequate alarm now used stating that the fireman on the hill at times could not hear it. He also spoke of the inspection of similar sirens used in various municipalities nearby and of their success. In his argument he had the support of Councilmen Coughlin and D'Zurilla. A negative vote on this was cast by Brown and Ellis.

Following the passage of the Budget Mayor Mulvihill called on H. Braverman, the Borough Auditor, for his comments on the Borough finances. In his opening remarks Mr. Braverman complimented the fine improvement of the collector's office and the working out of the system he had installed there. In going over the Budget figures he stated that every appropriation had been made with economical thought in mind and that the Borough has finally got rid of hanger accounts. Mr. Braverman closed his remarks by pointing out the wonderful help derived by the Tax Sale last year in cleaning up old tax accounts and he recommended another one this year to be held as early as possible along with an assessment sale.

Mr. Elmer E. Brown represented the Wheeler Condenser & Engineering Company in reference to a petition for granting the permission of the Borough to run a trestle to carry conveyors and pipe lines over Roosevelt avenue from one part of their plant to another, this matter on due discussion was voted on and the resolution read.

A petition from property owners on Harris street was read asking for sidewalks and curbs. Mayor Mulvihill said that this matter had been thrashed out several times and that it was no use to go into it again. He added, "I spoke to all the property owners when this matter was brought up before and I found that many of the people on that street did not want sidewalks and curbs and I don't think the Borough should saddle this expense on them as they are poor people and could not afford the expense." Andres spoke of the question of the signers of the petition having the necessary lineal footage required by law. The matter was left to the Street and Road committee to investigate.

Union street petitioners asked to have a part of that street paved. This was also referred to the Street and Road committee.

Mayor Mulvihill commented on the fine work of Patrolmen Otto Elko and McNally in the performance of their duties at the Police desk and with the consent of the council promoted the two officers to the rank of sergeants.

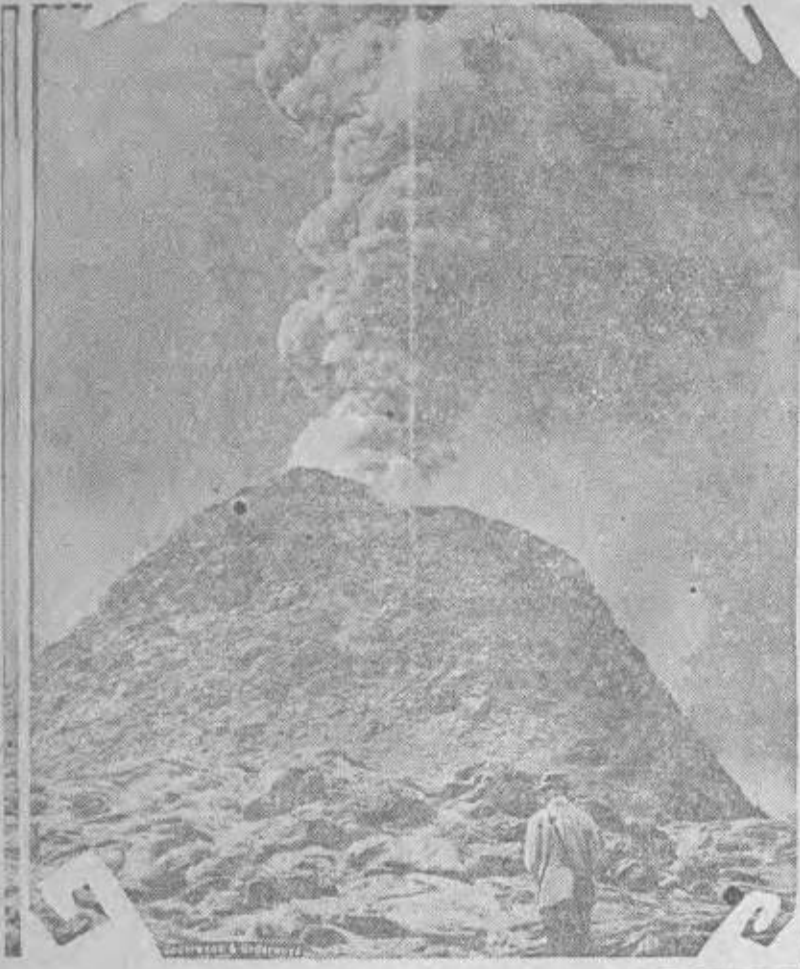

Councilman Andres spoke of the complaint of many of the residents of the borough against the Water Company for the exorbitant bills.

First Spoons Primitive

The origin of the spoon was very likely a shell fitted to a wooden handle. Caddy spoons, which were only used after the custom of tea drinking was well established, were nearly all with shell-shaped bowls, and were very small at first to fit into the small caddy boxes and the small china cups, for tea was scarce and used in small quantities.

TAMED BULL SNAKE THAT BECAME PET

How Kindness Made Wild Creature Harmless.

An old adobe wall inclosed the kitchen garden at the Los Flores ranch-house in southern California. No one remembered when it was built and no one remembered when part of it had fallen into decay. The owner of the ranch decided to rebuild the broken sections and delegated half a dozen of his men to do the work.

While they were removing a pile of crumbling earth, they disturbed a fat young chestnut-brown bull snake about three feet in length. Most of the men wanted to kill the snake, but Jose, a Mexican youth who rode the fine fences daily, prevailed upon them to spare the young snake and his cavern home.

Time passed, the snake was frequently seen around the barn and out-buildings where he hunted rats and mice. Jose called him "Hank" and implored the other men to treat him with respect.

At first Hank was shy. He would hurry out of sight and coil under the nearest cover at the sound of approaching footsteps. By the middle of summer he seemed to understand that he had a perfect right to enjoy all the privileges of other pets. For hours at a time he would bask in the sun on the top step of the south porch at the ranch-house and another favored spot was the one step at the bunk-house where Jose slept.

During the winter he lived more secluded in his adobe cavern, rarely appearing on damp, cloudy days. Then it was that Jose began cultivating a closer acquaintance. With bits of meat and lumps of sugar he would sit near Hank's front door and strum on his ukulele. After a few minutes, the dark head of the snake would appear, his little beady eyes taking on a soft expression and his mouth open in expectation.

Jose always gave him two lumps of sugar, then the meat and finished with two more lumps of sweet. After he had swallowed the tidbits he would crawl close to the side of the young man and listen to the soft dreamy sounds coming from the strangled instrument. To some of the tunes he would keep time by spraying motion of his smooth head.

When the hills began wearing their coats of green, Hank was so tame that Jose carried him around the ranch on the trips of fence inspection. If a broken wire or a weak staple needed fixing, Jose would place Hank on the ground near by, attend to the mending job, pick the snake up, mount his pony and go on his way.

Whenever Jose would find a gopher hole on the trip he would stop and start Hank down it. Sometimes he would see no more of his pet for two or three days, then Hank would greet him from the adobe cavern.

Jose rode the boundary for five years after the discovery of the snake and, barring the first 12 months, Hank was nearly always his companion. In four years he grew from a slender young string into a handsome big black bull snake seven feet long and about three inches in diameter.

The ranch changed owners. Jose took a position some miles distant. The wife of his new employer objected to the presence of the snake pet. Almost tearfully Jose visited the adobe cavern, gave Hank a farewell supper, and played all their old favorite tunes.

Three weeks after Jose's departure from Los Flores, Hank was found curled up on the step of the bunk-house, dead. Those who knew of the strange friendship declared that the bull snake died of a "broken heart."—D. C. Reissloff in Our Dumb Animals.

Wool From Pine

Chemically treated pine needles have worked out in Germany as a substitute for wool for certain purposes very successfully. By varying the process a woolly product is obtained that comes either in the shape of fine sheet wadding or in soft fleeces that are used to stuff mattresses.

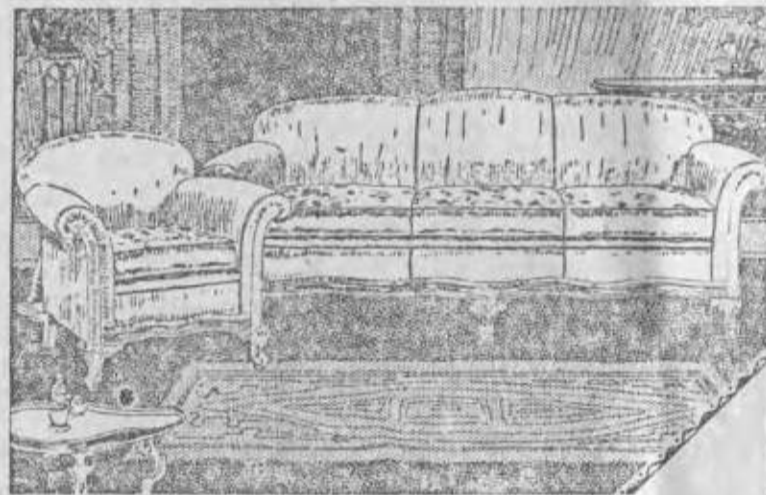

The pine wool has fine, strong fibers not unlike hemp, and finds its best use when woven into heavy materials, such as carpets and horse blankets. The new process has a valuable asset in one of its by-products that result from the chemical treatment necessary to remove the resin from the needles. The sticky residue is shaped into resinous briquettes, which have a very high fuel value and which have found a ready use in the manufacture of artificial illuminating gas.

What Lincoln Would Have Said

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE is that blasphemy that speaks,
Of heaven with the hectic cheeks
Of dissipation. There can be Another sort of blasphemy,
A sacrilege another kind:
When men assume to speak the mind
Of Lincoln, when they dare to say
What he would think upon this day,
What he would say if he had pow'r
Upon some question of the hour.

What Lincoln would have said he said;
Now let the record stand. The dead
Have rights as well as living men.
Who dares to speak for Lincoln then?
His great heart sleeps. Who shall assume

To stand beside the martyr's tomb
And answer now for Lincoln's heart?
What base ventriloquist art
With Lincoln's voice today recites?
Remember that the dead have rights.

Hide not behind the honest name
Of Lincoln, seek to cloak your shame
In his white robes. For only ghouls
Rob great men's graves, and only fools
Put on the garments they lay down,
The jester in the monarch's crown,
Play demagogue, if play you must,
But keep your hands off dead men's dust,
Nor rob the great defenseless dead
And say "what Lincoln would have said."

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

TWO CURES

IN RURAL Canada the French Canadians have the following way of getting rid of rheumatism. They go out to a fence, and leaning the breast upon it, say: "I leave you here, I leave you here, I leave you here. Den you go 'way and don't you never come back dere no more."

In another section people suffering from biliousness bore three holes in a tree and then walk three times around the tree, saying each time:
"Go away, bilious."

Here we go back again to primitive man, to tree worship and the doctrine of transference of disease.
Also the conception of disease as an evil spirit. Moreover, we again encounter the mystic number three. As far back into history and tradition as man has been able to delve certain numbers were regarded as of mystic import. Why has never been discovered, perhaps never will be.

Primitive man regarded disease as an evil spirit which could be expelled from himself by providing for it another habitation. The person, animal, object upon which he wished the disease, "caught it" from him. It was the primitive man's theory of contagion and beat the modern one "all hollow," in that when some one had "caught" the disease from you you no longer had it yourself.

The remnant of tree-worship in the two cures under consideration is obvious: The direct appeal to the tree in the one case and the contact with and appeal to the wooden fence in the other. In both cases the patients put their disease "up to" the tree-god who would know how to take care of it. Perhaps the boring of the three holes in the tree is to facilitate entrance of the disease into it.

A Wonderful Work

The Big Brother and Big Sister movement is sweeping its way to all parts of the nation. The basic principles of the organization is that humanity is just one big family, the members of which have each an individual responsibility for the welfare of others, especially of the younger ones whose problems are a little too difficult for them, and who are deprived of adequate home influences or government.

The federation now represents 60,000 members in 86 cities, besides numerous groups in colleges, schools, fraternities and clubs in smaller cities and towns. The Big Brother phase is one that every boy appreciates and every worth-while man can and should engage in.

Robert Emery, director of the Boston Big Brother Club, as reported at the Cleveland convention that he radios from station WEEI for 45 minutes five nights of each week and as a result is receiving 25,000 letters a week from boys who have been organized into a club.

The "Rolling Club" promises to displace the daily dozen. When you arise in the morning spread a blanket on the floor, lie down and roll over and over until you are sufficiently massaged.

The South Carolina legislature has before it a bill which would empower the governor of the state to remove from office a sheriff or other peace officer from whose custody a prisoner has been taken to be beaten or lynched.

To gain a permanent peace we often have to stir up a temporary storm.

Men Without A Country

Commissioner Harry E. Hull of the federal immigration bureau estimates that there are upwards of a million persons now in the United States who have entered the country illegally.

Many of them have been in this country for years and are respectable residents but being no longer citizens of the countries from which they came they are men without a country.

America may dictate on finances, steel and sport but a circle word from the artistic drapers of the female form in Paris nullifies all other efforts to control women's fashions.

An Indiana town marshal has issued a ban against hoppers who let their golfshoes flap about their heels. This might have been useful two or three years ago, but it's too late now because the boys have adopted the style.

It is quite possible to overpraise one who is not big enough to handle it, but it is always possible to harm and discourage by giving no praise at all.

Possession of Intellectual Curiosity Great Need of Young Men and Women

By W. H. B. FAUNCE, President Brown University.

Young men and young women knocking at the doors of our crowded colleges must possess, for admittance, genuine intellectual curiosity, a real hunger for knowledge.

No buildings or equipment can make a university, which is an intellectual and spiritual enterprise. The most powerful and effective machine in the world is a dead thing, useful only in the service of living men.

The object of education, as Goethe said, is not that something may be done through us, but something done in us. And when that vital thing has been done in us, when the mind has been opened and visualized and whetted and trained, then whatever the place in life we have to fill, we shall go forth as "gentlemen unafraid" to make some small spot of earth a finer place to live in.

First, I want to ask: Have you an appetite? Are you really hungry? All around our college campuses today are boys who really have no hunger for knowledge.

Church Unable to Cure All Evils Brought On by Modern Civilization

By DR. S. PARKES CADMAN, President Federal Council of Churches.

Modern civilization has beset society with more evils than the church has been able to cure, and the result is crime waves, godless pleasure, dirty drama, sex obsession and profiteering.

The majority of intelligent people admit that Christianity is the only hope of cure or prevention for these evils. If the people who so believe were united in one practical policy, they could find the cure for the present conditions in our nation and world.

Meanwhile, our upstanding and forceful men are giving their time and labor to politics in behalf of democracy. Yet when critics speak of the failure of the churches, do they take into account the even worse failure of politics and democracy?

OPINION

Mud For Children. Political Harmony. Restore Old Spirit. Poor Bill.

SCANDAL, scandal, scandal. Headlines are filled with it. Movie people thing nothing of disgracing their names, while Browning battles "Peaches" in court.

Divorce is becoming too common. God's sacred institution is being dragged through the mire of scandal. What good is life? Is there any wonder why youth should ask such a question?

NEWSPAPERS can't afford to give the people what is best for them. People would not read papers; sensation, the source of scandal, is what they crave.

THIS is the season of legislative activity. Bills are storming the Houses in floods. It is steadily becoming more difficult than ever for men to keep within the law.

BASEBALL fell off in interest tremendously in 1926. What Carteret needs is a revival of the old inter-factory contests, which created hectic fervor a few years back.

In a few weeks baseball weather will be here. Perhaps some one could introduce a plan for the organization of a factory league for the coming season.

Sports in general are at a very low ebb here. Bowling is about the only pastime enjoying any degree of patronage. Basketball this year is worse than ever, and it looks as though it will never regain its former prestige until unadulterated amateurism is restored.

AT THE age of 86, "Old Bill" Maxwell, sentenced 54 years ago to life imprisonment for murder, died Monday at Wausau, Wis.

Poor Bill most likely had no will to write on his prison wall, for jail attendants have not yet found any markings.

Life was hard for him. Perhaps in his 54 years he thought much about the folly of crime. His is a lesson for many.

TEACHERS in high school should help students to become familiar with library work. Frequent assignments to library readings, not too long, would do no harm to anyone's intellect.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

MAKE YOUR MARK

ANY man who has encountered a grizzly in the open has had an experience that was interesting and instructive, even if it was not enjoyable.

This American forest monarch, the biggest and strongest of modern wild beasts, is one of the few animals who believes in and practices advertising.

A full grown grizzly, when he has decided on what part of the hunting range he desires for himself, announces the fact by rearing himself against a pine tree, and while thrusting his claws as far as he can and writes his mark of ownership with his claws.

Should another bear passing one of these trees decide that he, too, would like that particular hunting ground, he rears himself like his predecessor and makes his mark. If it falls below the scar made by the first bear he passes on content to leave the area to its established owner.

There is much of the spirit of challenge in all life.

We all of us go about making marks and seeking to leave an impression of greatness. But while we copy one part of the grizzly's idea we neglect the far more important feature that distinguishes his act.

The grizzly stretches to his full height. Too many of us make a mark that is far below our capacity and rest content to let that stand for the best we can do.

NEWARK THEATRES

"Loose Ankles" at the Broad Street Theatre. Brock Pemberton's laugh hit that ran so successfully at the Biltmore Theatre on Broadway will open a one week's engagement at the Broad Street Theatre beginning next Monday evening with the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

"Loose Ankles" is the work of Sam Janney who has the distinction of contributing to the New York stage the first comedy hit of the current theatrical season. It is a brilliant farce comedy, chock full of wise cracks and hilarious incidents which the theme affords in abundance.

The story revolves around one Ann Harper, a society beauty who is to inherit a large fortune providing she marries, but with the approval of all of her relatives. In order to break this provision of the will Ann decided to marry the first man who will compromise her and places an ad in a newspaper for a "compromiser."

"Castles In The Air at Shubert's. For those theatregoers who make it a practice of attending only the best attractions during the season the Shubert Theatre in Newark will offer a musical play for the week beginning Monday, February 14th, that should find a prominent place on their entertainment list.

This is "Castles in the Air," George W. Murphy's romantic musical comedy success that has proven such a success in New York, Chicago, Boston and other large cities. It comes to Newark with a run of one solid year in Chicago and six months in New York to its credit. And it reaches this city in all its rich completeness of cast, production and chorus.

It will be the same identical cast that delighted the Century audiences, that will appear in "Castles in the Air" in Newark. This is headed by Bernard Granville, Roy Cropper and Thais Lawton and includes Joyce White, Era Briggs, Walter Law, Gregory Ratoff and all of the other favorites.

There will also be the same marvelous singing and dancing chorus of 100 embryonic stars that made such a sensation in New York and Chicago. This is really two choruses—the singing one that has been selected from the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera Company and the dancing one from the very best step-dancers available. The latter has been expertly trained under the guidance of John Boyle, master dance instructor.

Every season one of the best real Burlesque shows on the Columbia circuit is selected for the Old Home Week Celebration at Miner's Empire Theatre. Popular Mollie Williams and her own big show is the choice for 1927, and the big doings will start Sunday matinee, February 13.

The audience selected winners of the Saturday's Kiddie Carnival will appear in a big spectacular fantasy directed by Mr. Ray Perez, "The Kute Kiddies of 1927," is composed of 25 local children who are just a few inches away from stardom. Among them are found Vitale & Vitale, Master Jimmie Carroll, Miss Josephine Kline, Miss Rose Fiore, and a host of others.

Lecturer Visits Local Schools

The teachers of Carteret enjoyed a treat unusual in its excellency last Wednesday when Dr. Secor of the Trenton State Normal School lectured on Arithmetic. This subject often considered rather "dead" and monotonous, was completely enlivened under the skillful treatment which Dr. Secor administered. In fact, the talk was so interesting that the allotted time was up before any one realized it, and as "time and trains wait for no man," Dr. Secor had to finish hurriedly and depart.

Dr. Secor spoke on the following topics: the position and importance of problems in Arithmetic; the ways in which problems may arise; "why pupils fail in Arithmetic."

Finger Prints Solve Murder After Years

Berlin.—Finger prints discovered nearly three and a half years after Otto Seimcke left them on a window frame in committing a murder at Bad Oeynhausen proved sufficient to bring the crime home to him when he was arraigned at the present term of court.

Robert Becker, a young bath attendant at the Oeynhausen Spa, was shot and killed on July 6, 1923, by burglars who had broken into the building he was guarding. Suspected of the crime, Seimcke, and a companion, Heinrich Krueger, were arrested and tried but acquitted because of insufficient evidence.

The police recently made a new examination of the murder chamber, which had been left virtually untouched. High up on a window frame an expert discovered finger prints, still distinct, although evidently made a long time before. Comparison with those of Seimcke on the police records showed they were his. Rearrested and confronted with the finger-print evidence, Seimcke broke down and confessed.

CONVICTED SLAYER DIFFICULT TO HOLD

Escapes Four Times From Prisons in South.

Nashville, Tenn.—Jail officials here have a hax in the person of one John Revisky, sentenced to 21 years in prison for killing and robbing Mae Goodwyn, a wealthy underworld queen.

Revisky just will not stay confined no matter where he is placed. For ten years Tennessee authorities have been trying to make John serve his term. But, apparently, there isn't a jail in the South that will hold him.

It was ten years ago that the murder was committed and the man was held for trial. The date for the trial came, but John was not to be found. He had escaped Nashville's best jail. Months later he was re-arrested, tried, and sentenced.

While waiting to be taken to prison he led a jail break and escaped again. Two years passed. He was arrested once more in Alabama. But when Tennessee police arrived for him he was gone, having sawed his way through the iron bars.

For seven years Revisky roamed the country, making a wooden thumb to replace one shot off during a jail break. Then he was caught in San Francisco, Calif. Taking no chances, police shackled him hand and foot and sent him direct to Nashville.

A few nights ago, while all was quiet there, he carefully dug his way through a stone wall and escaped with 13 other prisoners. All of these were recaptured except Revisky and a new friend, P. T. F. bandit.

Thoughtful in Suicide

In order to cause as little trouble as possible to the authorities and to their respective families Gustav Braunn, age forty-five, and Anna Lazar, age eighteen, chose Braunn's family vault as the ideal place to commit suicide when they tired of life in Arad, Rumania. Braunn was one of the town's richest merchants. Anna was his secretary. They became infatuated, and, when local gossip began to make life unpleasant, they decided to die together. Some years ago Braunn had prepared a vault in the local cemetery for his family. To this vault they went in the dead of night, locked themselves in, and killed themselves with revolvers.

Argentina's Winters

Apartment-house life is gaining rapidly in popularity among the Argentines, comments the Boston Post. One of the chief attractions is the central heating system, almost unknown in Buenos Aires a few years ago. Argentines say the winters have become increasingly severe in recent years and that this explains why so many detached houses, without any heating facilities, are being deserted for steam-heated apartments. One newspaper has begun a campaign in favor of heating the railway stations, street cars, subways and schools, pointing out that "every year is becoming colder, to the great discomfort of the public."

Chameleon Unhurt by Cold

A chameleon lived and thrived for three months in a wild state in a Rutland (Vt.) garden. Early in the summer Ralph A. Barton bought the lizard as a plaything for some children. Tethered by a thread, it soon escaped and was seen no more for three months, when one of the children found it about fifteen feet from the spot where it last was observed. The creature of warm climes was lively in spite of the fact that it had been out of doors on several nights when the temperature neared the freezing point.

Commerce on Mississippi

The secretary of war says that statistics show that the commerce of the Mississippi river between St. Louis and New Orleans is now greater than it ever was before. The first official census of transportation by water in the United States was made in 1889, and this gave the total commerce of the Mississippi river and its tributaries as 28,289,503 tons. The total is now approximately 60,000,000 tons, without duplication, or nearly twice what it was 37 years ago.

A DECAYED TOOTH

IS LIKE A SPOTTED FRUIT
The Good Fruit Is Soon Attacked; Just So Does One Decayed Tooth Attack a Sound One

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

Another reason why you should not neglect teeth is the longer you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything tooth, or the various diseases that develop from diseased teeth.

The feminine star of "Variety," Lya de Putti, has a leading role in the picture "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," a story of the New Orleans Mardi Gras season.

WHAT THE GRACIOUS HOSTESS SAYS:

By DELLA THOMPSON LUDS ABOUT INTRODUCTIONS

THERE are certain rules to be followed in the matter of introductions, and these rules are based on the most social laws, upon consideration and courtesy.

Children, no matter how young, if they are able to walk and talk, upon entering a room where there are callers, should be punctiliously introduced, and the caller should respond as politely and formally as if the small person were twenty-five years old.

If Mrs. Barlow's little daughter of two years comes into the drawing room when Mrs. Wiley is calling, Mrs. Barlow, if she is a thoughtful mother, will say:

"Mrs. Wiley, this is my little daughter, Jean." And Mrs. Wiley will respond cordially:

"How do you do, Jean? Will you shake hands with me?"

If Mrs. Barlow's young son of ten enters the room, she should say:

"Mrs. Wiley, this is my son, Frederick."

Children should be introduced to each other, but not formally. Formality of any kind makes them self-conscious. "Catherine, this is Robert Bingham. Don't you think he'd like to see your new game?"

"How-do-you-do" for children, as well as their elders, is the simplest response.

And children should be encouraged—by cordiality—to introduce their little friends to their parents. This they usually do unconsciously. The child says, "Mother, this is Annie Blake. She's come home with me to play." The mother, by her courteous response, can teach a very gracious lesson in introduction and reply.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Richard Bennett Worked in a Factory.

AT TWENTY-ONE I found myself in Chicago during the summer when many actors have to take a vacation, whether they can afford it or not.

"I couldn't afford it so I went to work in a factory until I could get a stage engagement. After three months at the factory I went to see a performance of an old melodrama when the manager, whom I knew, saw me between the acts and told me that the juvenile of the company was about to quit and I could have his part. Of course I jumped at the chance but I had to rehearse at night, after I came home from the shop.—Richard Bennett."

TODAY—Richard Bennett is beyond the reach of such vicissitudes of fortune. He is one of the most noted players on the American stage. An Irish-American himself, he has the remarkable talent of being able to assimilate himself into any European type, especially the Italian, and this has played no small part in his success.

Mr. Bennett recently achieved a huge success in "He Who Gets Slapped."

Haunt of Crocodiles

The delta of the Ganges river is cultivated. In the southern part of the delta bordering the sea is a dismal network of swamp land known as the Sundarbans. This swamp land is infested with crocodiles, tigers and other wild animals. Three distinct species of crocodiles are found in the Ganges—the fresh-water, long snouted gavial; the man-eating koomoi; and the mug crocodile.

received. The Mayor stated that a man who understood that work should be appointed to check the meters for the people and in cases where over-charge had been made there would be records to prove so.

Councilman Coughlin asked that the Public Service be requested to erect a shelter of some kind for the convenience of passengers who have to wait for the fast line cars at the Roosevelt avenue crossing. Also, that they place a large light at the crossing.

Councilman Brown said that he and the Overseer of the Poor had made a thorough investigation of unfavorable conditions that existed in that department and found that when a requisition was issued for a certain amount, merchandise in excess was procured and the borough billed according to the amount taken. He suggested that rules overcoming this be printed on the back of the requisitions.

Councilman Ellis spoke of the holders of poolroom licenses moving from one location to another without notifying the police authorities. He suggested that all poolroom proprietors be brought before the Council and weeded out.

Mr. Joseph Trefinko was heard in reference to the bad condition of Frederick street, stating that at times it was impassable. This was referred to the Street and Road committee.

Nine Companies To Merge With P. S. Co.

Holders of the stock of the nine leased companies which it is proposed to merge with Public Service Electric and Gas Company were notified in a letter sent out today over the joint signature of the company and Public Service Corporation of New Jersey that the time for depositing their stock with the depositories, under any one of the three offices of exchange, had been extended from February 10 to March 12.

At the same time announcement was made that more than a majority of the stock of Essex and Hudson Gas Company, Hudson County Gas Company and The Paterson and Passaic Gas and Electric Company had already been deposited, thus assuring that the plan as it affects these companies would become effective on the new date.

The other companies to which the offer of exchange applies are South Jersey Gas, Electric and Traction Company, The Gas and Electric Company of Bergen County, New Brunswick Light, Heat and Power Company, Newark Consolidated Gas Company, Somerset, Union and Middlesex Lighting Company, and Ridgewood Gas Company.

The communication to stockholders states that "the holders of substantial amounts of said stocks have expressed their desire to take advantage of said offer of exchange but have been unable for various reasons to deposit their stock certificates and complete the necessary formalities for transfer within said time limit."

'BEHIND THE WICKET'

I. O. O. F.

The regular meeting of Odd Fellows was held Friday evening at the Lodge Hall on Pershing avenue with Brother S. Srolowitz in the chair. A good attendance was present to encourage him in the good work of the order.

Several important discussion were held and thrashed out and affairs are now in ship-shape order for new business in coming events. The degree team has been re-organized and a big class of candidates are receiving instructions.

An invitation was received for the 1st degree team to present that degree to candidates. The team has accepted and the date set for the affair will be announced at a future meeting. Preparations for the work will start at tonight's meeting and a large gathering is expected. Several out-of-town lodges are to be present at the next meeting to confer degrees on local candidates.

Plans are being formed for the celebration of the 25th anniversary soon: STICK AROUND.

CAREY COUNCIL K. OF C. MEETS NEXT TUESDAY

Carey Council, Knights of Columbus expect a big attendance at their next Tuesday evening meeting, at Firehouse No. 2. Special and important business is to come up at this session.

Foresters Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Fifty local Foresters attended the twenty-fifth anniversary Social of Court Sandarg in Perth Amboy. Four hundred Foresters and their friends crowded into the Danish Hall, where a wonderful social evening was enjoyed. John Cook of Tottenville was master of ceremonies and made a short address giving a brief history of forestry. Several others made short addresses.

The surprise of the evening was the presentation of a gorgeous cake by the degree team of Court Carteret. The team marched effectively into the hall, presenting same to the officers, who courteously accepted with fraternal thanks. Court Carteret orchestra furnished the music and local Foresters gave about twelve turns in entertainment.

A light luncheon was served at 11.30 p. m. The chairman then thanked all present for their cooperation.

A delegation of Pride of Court, Carteret Circle No. 365 headed by Mrs. Frank Anders were present.

Thomas Smith headed the local delegation, assisted by Joseph Shuttles, lecturer, who arranged the entertainment.

HARMONY CLUB HOLD BANQUET

Annual Affair Largest Attendance in Club's History

MEMBERS INITIATED

The Ninth Annual Banquet of the Harmony Social Club was held Sunday, February 13th, 1927 at the German Lutheran Auditorium. A very elaborate menu was served by Philip Turk and a corps of efficient waiters. Twenty-five new members were initiated into the mysteries of harmony and it proved quite an interesting ceremony, at least to the spectators.

The banquet was served immediately after the initiatory work and was much enjoyed and followed by several interesting speeches by the officers and various members of the organization. Edward J. Walsh, president, acted as toastmaster and delivered a very interesting talk on the progress and success of the club, the efficiency of its management, the loyalty of its officers and members and the adherence to its original principals, which has distinguished it from other social organizations of its kind.

Vice President Harold Heim spoke on the possibilities of building a club house on the property now owned by the club in the near future and asked the members to make every effort to co-operate with the officers so that that end might be reached.

Secretary Joseph C. Makoski gave a short address on the financial condition of the club and complimented the members on their promptness in paying dues and other indebtedness to the organization. Treasurer Herman Gerke, also confined his remarks to the finances of the club and brought to light some interesting facts on the amount of moneys handled by the club since its organization in 1919.

Chairman John D'Zurilla spoke on the necessity of attending all meetings so that the various problems that confront the club could be satisfactorily decided. Vice Chairman Thomas Misdom also confined his remarks to encouraging a large attendance at meetings, particularly among the new members. Trustees Roman Cowalsky and Harry Mann complimented the example set by the older members of the club in the care that has been taken of the club property, particularly its furnishings and urged the new members to make every effort to live up to that example.

Councilman D'Zurilla gave a very interesting talk, addressing his remarks to the newly made members, in which he pointed out the privileges that they were entitled to in being admitted to Carteret's oldest, active social organization and being given the opportunity to continue the good work that has been so successfully carried out by the organization.

Many other members made short appropriate remarks on the occasion and the speech-making was followed by a program of impromptu made by the talented members which was much enjoyed by all those present.

GARDENS LAID OUT IN HERBAL GROWTH

Flower Plots of Today Heritage From Monks.

In the monks' herb gardens of early medieval times originated the art of present-day gardening. The monastery had to heal bodies as well as souls in those turbulent days, and the practice of medicine presupposed a good working knowledge of herb growing. Indeed, an early school of medicine, started by the Benedictines of Monte Cassino, can be looked on as precursor of our great modern botanic gardens, F. M. Verrill says, in the Commonwealth.

Earliest records of gardens, after the day of imperial Rome, are of those belonging to the Ninth century monasteries in what is now France or Switzerland—St. Maurice, St. Germain des Pres, St. Amande and St. Gall. Of this last a fully detailed ground plan still exists. It shows the cloister garden for the use of the community in the center; the physic garden with its beds of sixteen kinds of medicinal herbs; the kitchen garden laid out in nine long narrow beds for cultivation of pot herbs, and the cemetery, which was burying ground and orchard in one. A peaceful God's acre it must have been, with graves separated by shrubs, and its fifteen fruit trees, of which even the names are given. Charlemagne ordered herbs to be planted in the imperial gardens in 812, and it is interesting to note the plants on his list correspond closely with those of St. Gall.

In England there is another ancient chart, a perspective plan of Canterbury monastery gardens. There is also clear evidence in English monastery records that corn, vines and fruit trees were grown in the Tenth century. As in continental gardens, there were not many different varieties of small plants and flowers. Roses, lilies, poppies and a few other flowers crept into the gardens, but only because of their supposed medicinal qualities.

In the Twelfth century both Bishop Grossetete of Lincoln and Alexander Neckham, abbot of Cirencester, wrote about plants; the first, in relation to medicine, while Neckham included a list of plants suitable for a "noble garden," still principally herbs, though peonies, daffodils and violets were added to the roses and lilies of an earlier day.

As to actual management of the grounds, all the gardens, vineyards, orchards, moats and fish ponds were under care of an officer, the gardinarius or hortulanus, who arranged for labor, bought any necessary cuttings or seeds, sold surplus elder or verjuice (raw grape juice) and kept accounts.

Accounts of a large monastery, such as Norwich priory or Abingdon abbey, show that within monastery walls there were other small gardens besides those for the cloister and the visitors. The abbot or prior, the treasurer, the precentor, the infirmarian and the sacristan had separate gardens, for which they paid a small rent to the gardinarius. The infirmarian grew medicinal herbs in his plot near the hospital, while the sacristan raised flowers for the altar.

Parish church and private chapel frequently had those sacristans' gardens. Henry VI, founder of Eton college, left "thirty-eight feet of land between the wall of the church and the wall of the cloister, to set certain trees and flowers behoovable and convenient for services of the same church."

Progress Marked by Use of Riveted Steel

Down through the centuries man has been experimenting with minerals, striving to develop steels that could be relied upon to possess the greatest strength. Wherever steel plates and shapes are joined, riveting has proven the most dependable method of bringing their seams together. This strength can be mathematically predetermined.

Our nation's greatest battleships are marvelous demonstrations of the dependability of riveted steel. From stem to stern our battleships are the emblems of dominant strength; their riveted seams are a priceless heritage, dating back to the old ironclads, the Monitor and the Merrimac, which fought their way to undying fame in Hampton Roads in '62.

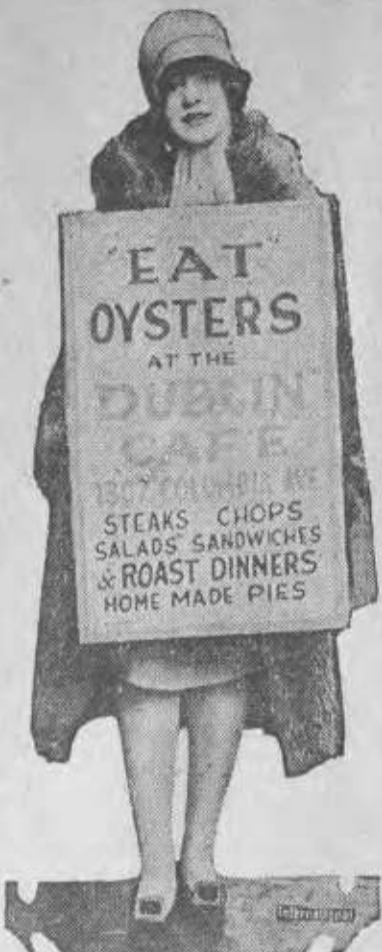

The world's finest railroad equipment, the development of centuries of applied engineering, is built of riveted steel and carries to destination with dazzling speed in safety its cargoes of humanity and merchandise. Where could the factor of safety be more important? Where could there be greater demand for dependability as assured by riveted steel?

Bridges flung across broad rivers support their burdens of thousands speeding back and forth through heat and cold, rain and snow, unconscious of the span they cross, making cities larger, homes nearer, waterways passable, all because engineers have learned riveting will stand the stress of weights and loads, the pull of movement and vibration.

America astounded the architects of the world back in the '80s by establishing a new school of architecture—the skyscraper. By means of these steel columns rising tier upon tier to tremendous heights, the real estate values of cities were trebled and the lives of multitudes made safe. Structural steel is the backbone of fireproof construction.

The dependability of riveting and its contribution to the progress and safety of humanity are reflected in every direction.

Unnecessary Mortgages
A farm heavily infested with noxious weeds is already mortgaged, just as a poorly managed business in town is mortgaged. If salaried people spend more than they earn, their future is mortgaged. Avoid the mortgage, no matter what line you are in, or what walk of life you follow.—Atchison Globe.

Pretty eighteen-year-old Margie McGurk of Philadelphia boosts oysters as a "sandwich girl." The money she earns will send her to Temple college.

Dreaming of a Body,
He Unearths Skeleton

Lebanon, Pa.—Dreaming night after night of a body buried in his cellar crying "dig me out, dig me out, I've been here 40 years," John Wentzel went to the cellar and found a skeleton buried near the foot of the stairs.

Wentzel reported his find to the police; also what impelled him to make the search. He is to be questioned as to how he chanced to locate the bones on his first response to the alleged call from the dead.

The bones are those of an adult. The Wentzel home is on the border of what was once a cemetery. Evidence of a box, found with the body, gave some color to speculation that the body may have been properly buried.

Wentzel and his family have lived at the place eight years. The bones were evidently in the ground upward of 15 years.

The Greatness of Washington

Certain historians and authors have attempted to belittle or destroy the Washington spirit that predominates America. Rupert Hughes succeeded in stirring up a tempest in a teapot by suggesting that Washington was human, that he drank and cussed and danced as the great mass of mankind did in his day and since does. It may be true that in the maze of anecdotes about his early years, in the glorification of his military skill and statesmanship, and especially in the God-like perfection of his character, the human side of the man was submerged. The fact is that Washington was a very human man. He was honest, generous and supremely capable. He liked sport, good company and knew how to make money.

With all that the greatness of Washington grows as time gives us a better perspective of his attainments. His magnificent self-restraint in his hour of victory places him among the great conquerors of the world. When his men were suffering from privation and hardship at Valley Forge he was found kneeling in the snow praying for them. Men do not pray in this manner unless they have prayed before, and that is not the first time he was found on his knees. When retiring as President he uttered a prayer that has lived with us ever since, and all evidence is that he was an earnest Christian as well as a gentleman.

The 195th anniversary of his birth will be observed February 22, not only in America, but in many parts of the world, by appropriate and patriotic programs. President Coolidge will, through 37 radio stations, address more than 20 millions of listeners when he speaks at the joint session of Congress at noon, eastern standard time. London will also hear the address. Washington's farewell address will be read in thousands of schools and colleges and his spirit, his principles, and the glory of his achievements will be revived in all our lives.

The Fight For Business

Edward A. Filene, of Boston, who issued a warning to retailers at the Chicago convention, that they must fight or give up is not a man who cries disaster without very good reasons. His suggestions for defense against chain systems is first greater efficiency and economy. Many department stores have already organized these combinations to good advantage and the plan promises to be greatly extended in the near future. The chain plan of buying is not to be confined to mail-order or chain stores. In fact, the chain department store will be able to more than meet them at every point.

Manufacturers are not enthusiastic over the prospect because in the long run it means a standardization that may result in combinations between manufacturers and retailers on a co-operative basis. Such plants would be run as any other but its output would be limited to supply the members of the group who would also participate in the dividends. Group buying by large retailers will inevitably result in group manufacturing.

The tendency of the times is to absorb waste at every point. Central buying means saving of travelers' salaries and expenses. Quantity purchases mean lower prices. It may lead to a condition under which ordinary goods would be standardized and be alike all over the country. Only specialty shops could afford to carry high-priced exclusive styles.

Whether retailers like it or not Mr. Filene asserts that it is on the way—an inevitable result of the three-cornered fight for existence between mail-order, chain and department stores in which the manufacturer will be compelled to take part and the outside retailer will be lost sight of.

The old militarist slogan: "Wouldst thou have peace, prepare for war," has been found false and is replaced by the new slogan—"Wouldst thou have peace, prepare for peace."

"Boy Guidance" Plan Big Factor in Giving Aid to Ambitious Youth

By J. B. SHAW, Dean of Men, Iowa State College.

That many boys go to college with no definite purpose, except to get through with a minimum of exertion is the main reason why a chair of "boy guidance" should be established in every school.

We need men in every school to listen to the boys' ambitions and gain their confidence. We need men who are capable of counseling with the students with a view to helping them take up some profession.

The mission of these counselors would be to advise with the boy and aid him in choosing his life's work. After the boy has chosen his profession then it would be the work of the counselor to establish a point of contact between the boy and some members of his probable profession that the latter might help him in any way possible.

Reasons Why "Back to Farm" Movement Is Largely an Economic Fallacy

By WILLIAM LLOYD DAVIS, Municipal University of Akron.

"Back to the farm" is a pretty sentiment but an economic fallacy so far as modern life is concerned. The back-to-the-farm movement would be all right if it meant more abundant life, such as a wealthy man might find in a suburban home, but it no longer means that for we have too many farmers now. One or two farm hands now do the work done by 12 not many years ago. That is because 93 per cent of the wheat, 60 per cent of the butter and 95 per cent of the hay are produced by machines.

To find the proper comforts for himself, his wife and children, the schools and other advantages, a man must go where he can earn money with which to purchase them. That means he must go where the machines are, to the industrial centers of the nation.

OPINION

Relief From Mosquitoes. Looking Forward. Responsibility Wanting. Have No Alarm.

TEN THOUSAND "gambosias" have been turned loose in many ponds and small streams to combat hordes of mosquitoes in the section about Atlantic City.

It would be well to consider protecting people in this part of the state as well.

The "gambosias" are mosquito-devouring fish. Something new.

ABOUT ten years ago the Public Service had enough business to consider building a station at Carteret (then Chrome) Junction. It won't be long before the corporation starts to think about an intra-borough line. Times brings many changes.

Within another decade or more, the main line will be about in the center of the borough. Development in the East Rahway section will bring people there and thus expand Carteret outward to almost twice its present size.

Encouragement for realtors.

Detroit once had a boulevard encircling it. Now the same boulevard is in the very center of the city.

Carteret will of course not grow as rapidly and not as extensively as Ford's city, but considerable growth is assured. And PREPARATIONS must be made.

SOCIOLOGISTS fear that further concentration of population in cities will be very harmful to future generations. Whatever they do they must prevent people from going where they can make a good living.

Industrial inducement in Carteret is inviting, and by 1940 the place should be a small, prosperous city. Here is plenty of open space for the town to devour for its people.

WHAT the Williams & Clark plant discontinued operation here is no cause for economic alarm. Perhaps something better will take its place. Carteret's good waterfront is a constant inducement to all industry.

Budding in Carteret in 1925 approached three-quarter million dollar mark, which indicates that progress is going on. Why be alarmed about the secession of one plant?

The Careless Hunter

Every hunting season is accompanied by its appalling list of casualties and fatalities, says the Rushville Republican. They do not seem alarming to the individual until a distressing accident takes place in the locality in which he lives. But hunting accidents continue to grow. Careless hunters still drag guns with muzzle foremost over the fence or through the brush, and carry loaded guns in improper positions. A little "horse sense" is all that is required. Precaution in the use of firearms should be the first essential of every hunter, because he endangers not alone his own life, but those of his companions, by the careless use of firearms. Hunting accidents are not always fatal. Lacerated wounds and scratches call for prompt and competent attention. Hunters will do well to think of the misfortune which may befall them or their fellow hunters before starting on a hunt, all the while remembering that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The United States navy has at last decided to discard the cage mast which for 20 years past has been an outstanding prominence in the silhouette of all our large warships. The land-lubber, looking at this strange tower, probably never did quite understand what it was or what its virtues were supposed to be. With its criss-cross here it looked something like that old-fashioned toy which could be extended or contracted by pressure at the base. Bgt. of course, that was not it at all. When this item of battleship construction was first adopted 20 years ago it was believed by the naval engineers that it was a wonderful improvement, and that if the latticed support of the fighting-top were largely shot away the men above could still continue their work. Foreign navy chiefs were not so enthusiastic, and so the cage mast became almost exclusively the mark of the United States warship. It has now been found that a tripod mast is quite as serviceable in every way as the old latticed affair, and so the cage mast is to go to the discard.

"Use sarcasm on anyone else in the world, but don't use it on your children," is excellent advice as far as the injunction not to be sarcastic to children goes, but poor advice if it bids you be sarcastic to others. Most clever persons are endowed with the ability to use sarcasm, but wise persons use it in ordinary conversation as they would use firearms; only when other means of self-defense have failed. Almost all great preachers and teachers have indulged in sarcasm. Buddha and Mohamet and the Hebrew prophets were occasionally sarcastic—but it was only when they were hard pressed by those who opposed them, never when they wished to give instruction or correction to simple folk or those whose allegiance they already possessed. There is really no place for sarcasm in ordinary social conversation. To use it would be like using an unguarded foil in a fencing bout.

No longer, according to an Associated Press report, will "movie" audiences have to put up with imitations along any line, for it is said that the public's demand for realism is so insistent that actual types are supplanting professional extras in all directions. Now, we are told, the casting director, when called upon to get an Indian, a fireman or a waiter, goes out and gets him, instead of having actors dress and make up to look the parts. As an example, it appears, a call for eight cheer leaders for a football picture came during the summer. These were in due time located and used. What would happen if the play called for a man from Mars?

Shubert—"The Student Prince"

Ise Marvenga, DeWolf Hopper and Halfred Young, together with a singing cast of 100 will make merry with student songs and continental university pranks in "The Student Prince" at the Shubert Theatre for one week beginning Monday, February 21st. This engagement marks the farewell for this lovely operetta by Dorothy Donnelly and Sigmund Romberg which the Messrs Shubert are sending to Newark for a second time, the first having been an engagement of one week last season.

The celebrated male student chorus is as always a feature of the evening's entertainment and is ably assisted by a feminine chorus of thirty lovely and charming women.

"The Student Prince" ends its engagement in Newark, February 26, never to be seen here again.

Broad St.—"Love In A Mist"

Madge Kennedy will be presented at the Broad Street Theatre, Newark, next week beginning Monday night, in a comedy by Amelia Rives and Gilbert Emery, bearing the nebulous title "Love In A Mist," which ran for a considerable period on Broadway last Spring. The plot of the play concerns a charming southern girl who is unwilling to choose between two suitors—the man she loves and the man who needs her love above all things in the world. She finally accepts the former, but before she has definitely disposed of his rival. She tries in vain to avert the unhappiness of the disappointed lover, her efforts to dissemble finally collapsing with climatic effect. Miss Kennedy in the leading role and Sidney Blackmer as the lucky lover are said to give beautifully finished performances of their roles. Others in the cast are Alice John, Gwendolyn Hathaway, Mary Marble, Jack Willard and Murray Bennett.

Matinees will be given on Tuesday (Washington's Birthday) and Saturday.

Miner's—"Around the World Revue"

An attraction that lives up to its title more, perhaps, than any in its field of entertainment, is James Thatcher's new Columbia Burlesque offering, "Around the World Revue," at Miner's Empire Theatre, commencing Sunday matinee, February 20th. Scanning some of the scene titles gives a clue to the locales in which the 15 colorful settings are laid: A Country Home on Longs Island, the Hawaiian Isle, Chinese Tea Garden, Enchanting Cairo, The Bull-Fight in Spain, and Apache den in Paris and so on ad infinitum.

Of particular charm and delightful interest will be the dance diversions led by Mlle Hilja, mistress of classic Terpsichore. In several scenes Mlle Hilja appears as premier danseuse, leading a bevy of skillfully trained coryphees in a diversity of dance maneuvers. Taken all in all the tickets for "Around the World Revue" will prove a worth-while investment in merriment plus a globe-trotting tour for the entire family at low cost. Week of Sunday matinee, February 27, "Jiggs, Maggie & Dinty."

Correct Pronunciation

Perhaps it is quite natural that the new batch of officially sanctioned pronunciations just issued by the advisory committee on spoken English, which exists to tell British radio casters how to pronounce, should have, as is reported, seriously upset numerous persons, says the Christian Science Monitor. And this despite the fact that Bernard Shaw, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and the poet laureate, Robert Bridges, are included among its personnel. For under its rulings "centenary" is to be pronounced with the second syllable rhyming with "bean," and the second syllables of missile and doctrine are to rhyme with snail and mine, respectively. Then, too, one reads that the secretary of the committee informed inquirers that no showman, except in America, would dream of allowing the first syllable in "patent" leather to rhyme with hat. But we still are left to wonder how to pronounce "bath," so as to be strictly in the running of fashion.

John D. Rockefeller at the age of eighty-seven goes to Florida to play his regular game of golf. An interview with Chauncey M. Depew printed recently told of his regular hours at his desk. Elbert H. Gary is still the active head of the United States Steel corporation at eighty. Joseph G. Cannon, who died at ninety, had been active up to two years ago. Apparently one of the distinguishing characteristics of men of affairs is enormous physical vitality. They accomplish much because they can work all day without getting tired. They have enormous stores of physical energy to put into their driving management of business. Elhan Root is eighty-one; Clemenceau eighty-five; his rival, President von Hindenburg, seventy-nine; George F. Baker, head of the First National bank of New York, one of the biggest in the world, is eighty-six; Edison is seventy-nine, and President Eliot of Harvard university was active up to the time of his death at ninety-two. Bismarck lived to be eighty-three and Gladstone to be eighty-nine.

Aged Coed Indorses Modern Ideas

Mrs. N. O. Freeman, seventy-seven years old and the widow of a well-known Methodist minister, is a student in Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., and is quite up to date with her bobbed hair and short skirts. She believes girls should be allowed to smoke and sees no objection to a "snifter" before dinner.

In the Social Swing
"Did the Indians have any fraternities or social activities?"
"Certainly; haven't you ever heard of Indian clubs?"

A Sop's Fable
Once upon a time there was a man who knew all the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner."
He was Francis Scott Key.

No Escape
Grocer—Sir, this bill of yours has been running for a long time and—
Brown—So have I, but I can't seem to outdistance it.

IF ONLY SHE KNEW

He—Wonder what makes all these trees lean?
She (very stout)—Oh, if only I knew!

Gracious, Yes!
Alice—Jim certainly plays the violin beautifully.
Freddie—Zat so? Why, I didn't even know he could blow one!

Fatal
Grimes—A little learning, as the saying goes, is a dangerous thing.
Reed—Yes, especially if it's learning to drive a car.

Hard to Swallow

"Rudolph Valentino made a million a year, but left nothing behind him, and the movie trade explains that it was Valentino's generous habit to give all his money away to deserving friends."
The speaker was Gerald Gould, the San Francisco philanthropist. He went on:
"That is hard to swallow. It isn't the first movie trade pronouncement that I've found hard to swallow, either. The movie trade, in fact, reminds me of the egg story.
In a restaurant that made a specialty of new-laid eggs they used to stamp on each egg the date of laying. Thus the patron could refuse any egg that wasn't perfectly fresh, you see.
"Well, one evening a chap asked for a couple of eggs laid that day.
"Sorry, sir," the waiter said, "but today's eggs are all out. However, if you don't mind the date, I can give you a superb brace of tomorrow's."

Rather Annoying

Will H. Hayes, the mogul of the movies, said the other day:
"The latest story is that India is going to bar out American films and make her own. American films aren't good enough for her. Stories of that kind come regularly from England and France and Germany and Italy, too. It's rather annoying.
"It makes us movie people feel like the famous preacher who drank a soda at a soda fountain one hot afternoon, and, when he came to pay up, the druggist had the nerve to offer him charity.
"Oh, keep your 15 cents, Doc. I'll take it out in preaching," said the druggist.
"My friend," said he, "I don't preach fifteen-cent sermons."
"Oh, that's all right, Doc." And the druggist gave a loud, foolish laugh. "That's all right. I'll come three Sundays."

Careless Chap!

Traveler—My! But the ocean looks beautiful!
His Wife—John! Do you realize that your head is hanging out of the port-hole? You must want to get your brains knocked out!

SHORTER COATS COMING IN, MANY OF WHICH ARE VELVET

NOT always does "cut it short" pertain to interviews; in the parlance of the stylist it refers to the latest-mode winter coat. Recent advice from fashion's headquarters is to the effect that shorter coats are "coming in."
Now that plaided and plaided skirts are so fashionable, one welcomes the short-coat vogue, for together they produce a chic and youthful silhouette. A very interesting short-coat model is shown in the picture.
Perhaps you are questioning in your own mind as to the material employed for the development of this charming coat. Velvet, of course, is the answer, for velvet is one of the smartest of midwinter cloakings.
This pretty coat in the picture might just as well have been made of black velvet with a rich dark fur trimming, but the creator of this girlish wrap decided on a beautiful vibrant blue with chinchilla collar, cuffs and borderings, for colorful velvet is very popular for daytime coats as well as evening ones.
The fact that the sleeves are so fancifully furled, emphasizes this season's fashion trend toward cuffs of extreme novelty. The bordering of this coat is also somewhat unique. Note how it separates toward the front just enough to allow a row of cunning buttons between.
Now that colorful velvet coats have come into fashion, the vogue promises some extremely interesting versions. Very choice is the black velvet coat collared with unspotted ermine. Straight from Paris comes a black velvet tailored jacket bound with braid, worn over a black rep skirt. The tight-fitting sleeve is slightly belled at the wrist.

An attractive Paris-made ensemble shows a dark green velvet jacket designed with a manish waistcoat, just above which one catches a glimpse of a Nile-green crepe blouse. The skirt is a plighted plaid one with green the dominant color. It is assuring for the future to know that in advance Southern resort and Riviera apparel many velvet coatees are included.

WHY CHANGE?

A friend of ours complains that the coal he gets nowadays isn't what it used to be or what it should be for the cost. We are reminded of the story of an inventor who went to a coal dealer and said: "I have here something that you'll want, something new—a substitute coal that you can sell at half price."
"Shucks!" returned the coal man. "Haven't we got one already that we sell at full price?"—Transcript.

REJECTED

Edward—Could we marry on my salary?
Mary—Just about, but I'd want to eat the next day.

Looking Forward

Irate Papa—What! You want to marry my daughter—why, you don't make enough to pay the rent!
Dumbissimo—Well, Eloise and I hadn't expected you to charge us any rent.

He Was It

"Do you think it's true that every man has his price?" asked the heiress.
"I'm sure I don't know," he answered, thoughtfully; "but if you want a bargain, you needn't look any farther."

For Doggie's Sake

"And her mean husband thinks she's extravagant!"
"Why?"
"Just because she insists on having Fido's monogram stamped on his dog biscuits!"

SUFFICIENT FOR HIM

"Son! You left this office early yesterday. How was it you said nothing to me?"
"I said good-by, sir!"

Contagious

Mrs. Greene—The professor's wife is almost as absent-minded as he is.
Mrs. Blue—What did she do?
Mrs. Greene—Bullt a fire in the bureau and put her stockings in the stove.

Human Nature

"What would you do if you had a million dollars, Jim?"
"Oh, I suppose I'd spend most of the time comparing myself with some one who had a billion and was feeling discontented."

That Kind

Tillie—What kind of a boy is Jimmy?
Tessie—Oh, he called and talked about the weather all evening, and when he went home he took dad's umbrella.

Modernized

Her Mother—Betty, how would you like a new doll? One that says "mamma" when she's squeezed?
Betty—I want one that says "ba yourself, big boy."

Exactly

Mrs. Wiggs—The postman just brought you a letter with two cents' postage due on it.
Wiggs—For two cents I'll tell that fellow what I think of him.

Between Sportsmen

"Any luck today?"
"Two rabbits, nine geese, a turkey and four ducks."
"All with one gun?"
"No, with one motor car."

Woman Expert Blacksmith

Rosa Steinklauber of Eggenberg, Austria, is one of the best-known artisans in her part of that country. A diploma testifies that she is "duly articulated, having served her apprenticeship and satisfied her examiners that she is entitled to call herself a master blacksmith." Rosa is a cartwright as well as a blacksmith. She is a handsome woman, whose strength is equal to that of any man, and can shoe the most refractory horse.

Shark Chases Man in Boat for 40 Miles

Portland, Maine.—David Conrad, fifty, rejoined the crew of the fishing schooner Benjamin Thompson here the other night after a thrilling adventure at sea, in which he was forced to row all day and all night to reach shore and escape a huge shark which pursued him.
Lost in a fog while out in a dory, Conrad, given up for dead after an ineffectual search for him, started to row to land, 40 miles away. Soon he spied a shark in his wake and before he arrived at Damaris Cove light station he had thrown overboard all of his fish to appease the hunger of the creature chasing him.
Conrad was without food or water during his row, but, with plenty of tobacco and matches, he managed to keep himself going. His hands were covered with blood and blisters and he was nearly exhausted when he got to land.
After being cared for overnight at the lighthouse, he started for Portland on another craft.

Winter Sports Are in Full Swing at Quebec

New Thought

Telling Time by Knots

One of the earliest methods of telling time was that of burning a piece of rope in which knots had been made at intervals. When the rope burned to one knot it was one o'clock. When it reached the second knot it was two o'clock, etc.

A DECAYED TOOTH

IS LIKE A SPOTTED FRUIT
The Good Fruit Is Soon Attacked; Just So Does One Decayed Tooth Attack a Sound One

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

Another reason why you should not neglect teeth is the longer you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything tooth, or the various diseases that develop from diseased teeth.

PEOPLE OF NO IMPORTANCE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

PEOPLE of no importance, people like you and me. People the proud will push aside, the fawners fall to see, People who bear the burdens, people who write the songs, People to whom no heaped-up wealth, to whom no crown belongs— Once in a while we wonder, once in a while we ask, We who toll with the pick and pen, we with the humble task, Just why the good Lord made us, why we were born to earth, When, in the minds of the fawning few, only the great have worth.

Well, I will make you answer, well, I will write a rime Just for the folks like you and me who never the heights will climb, People with saw and shovel, people with pick and pen, People who sweep the kitchen floor, the servants of serving-men, Yes, I will make you answer, answer not you, but them, All who worship the golden calf or kneel to a diadem or brass or labored among the pines, Yes, I will shout the answer, answer them loud and clear— Maybe they scoff at the humble man, but maybe our God will hear:

Here is a house of splendor, here is a castle grand, Here is a ship that sails the seas, hurrying land to land, Here is the crowning fortress holding the foe at bay, Here are the churches fine and fair where even the great must pray, Here is the level highway stretching to towns afar, Here are the bright and shining rails, here is the speeding car, Here are the carving, gliding, high on the marble wall— People of no importance builded them, after all.

Painters have painted pictures, poets have written lines, Some one has mended iron or brass or labored among the pines, People of no importance, people like you and me, People the proud will push aside, the fawners fall to see, This is, I know, the answer, this is the true reply: God made poets and God made men, and this is the reason why— People of no importance, yes, even the fool who sings, Are the people of most importance in the final scheme of things. The Hotel Stenographer

"WHO'S the guy?" asked the House Detective. "Mine," answered the Hotel Stenographer. "I am as proud of him as if he was my own child. I reformed him, Kelly. He used to be a taxi cab driver carting around joy riders. I met him at a dance and got interested in him and he has quit and is now chafing a hearse for an undertaker. It is much more respectable, and besides he never has to work nights and not often in the forenoons, and while he has a lot of plate glass to polish, there isn't much mud to clean off, as there are good roads everywhere, to cemeteries at least. He must be making money, for he brings me flowers almost every time he comes to the house. "I have been thinking about having him take a correspondence course in undertaking. There is a lot of money in it, although an undertaker is the last person I want to spend money with. But a lot of people do spend money with them, and all the undertakers I ever knew seemed mighty nice fellows. "All women, Kelly, feel it is their business to reform every man they meet. I am certainly proud of that guy who just went out. The only trouble is that as soon as they get all made over to suit you, they expect you to marry them, and, Kelly, that's too high a price for any girl to pay for a remodeling job. After all, a man who has no more strength of character than to let a woman make him over will make a mighty poor husband." (© by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Public Service To Dissolve Power Co.

Public Service Electric and Gas Company filed with the Board of Public Utility Commissioners today application for permission to issue $18,712,000 first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, 5% series, due in 1965; $4,173,600 6% cumulative preferred stock, 1925 series and 300,000 shares of common stock without par value.

Capitalization of Public Service Electric Power Company is as follows: 300,000 shares of common stock without par value issued at $10.00 per share $3,000,000

To provide this sum, $18,712,000 of Public Service Electric and Gas Company gold bonds are to be sold at 95 providing $17,776,400; $4,173,600 of Public Service Electric and Gas Company 6% preferred stock are to be sold at par, providing $4,173,600 and 300,000 shares of common stock without par value are to be issued at $10.00 a share providing $3,000,000 which makes up a total of $24,950,000 necessary.

Fixed charges on the securities which the Electric and Gas Company proposes to issue will be $935,600 and the dividend on the preferred stock, not a fixed charge, will be $250,416 so that the total charge against income ahead of common stock, which will be owned by Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, will be $1,186,016 as against a present fixed charge in the form of rental under the lease of $2,100,000.

The rental was fixed to yield an amount equal to two and one-half times the bond interest in order to insure the sale of the bonds. Since the Kearney Station enterprise was undertaken Public Service Electric and Gas Company has been formed with a financial structure of such strength that the separate existence of Public Service Electric Power Company is no longer necessary.

Announcement of the plan for the purchase of Public Service Electric Power Company by Public Service Electric and Gas Company was first made in a letter to stockholders of the latter company, dated January 10, 1927, when a plan for the merger of nine underlying companies was submitted. Public Service Electric Power Company was formed on April 17, 1923 for the purpose of erecting Kearney power station for lease to Public Service Electric and Gas Company. Under the terms of the lease Public Service Electric and Gas Company had expended on the Kearney property up to December 31, 1926, $9,496,879.28 in excess of $23,000,000 represented by the capitalization of the Power Company.

Boro Council Contemplates Bond Issue of $150,000

Money Thus Gained To Be Used In the Immediate Repair of All Needy Streets—Councilman Ellis Speaks On Delinquent Personal Tax

The bad condition of unimproved streets of the borough, and the continual expense of placing ashes on the streets prompted the discussion of floating a bond issue of about $150,000 to pave all necessary streets at one time, took place at the meeting of the Council Monday night.

Mayor Mulvihill brought the subject up after listening to the complaints of several citizens on the impassable condition of some of the streets in town. After considerable remarks from various councilmen it was decided to place the matter on the ballot this fall as a referendum.

Relief was promised to residents living in the neighborhood of Frederick street, also travelling made easier on the lower end of Lafayette street leading to the plants on the north side of Roosevelt avenue, by the filling in of that street with ashes.

In a communication from the American Legion, suggestions were offered to do away with the danger that some of the children of the Borough were subjected to in their roller skating. The Legion suggested that a street be closed to traffic during certain hours for the children's benefit. After due deliberation this was left to the Police committee to confer with the Police Chief and to make what arrangements were necessary. Councilman Ellis brought up the necessity of a curfew law.

The Mayor complimented the Legion on their interest and said that the matter had been under consideration.

Councilman Ellis spoke of the delinquent personal tax and the necessity of some solution to the situation. He also spoke of a tax sale for this year and said that the sale would have to be completed before July. The Mayor said that an assessment sale should be held as there were delinquent assessments some dating back for twelve years, and on motion this was left to the finance committee.

The Clerk was instructed to write to the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders in reference to making some temporary repairs to the road that leads to Rahway. The Mayor said that a new concrete road was assured and work would be started as soon in the spring as weather permitted, but that the road was in such bad shape that repairs would have to be made now.

A sewer system for the East Rahway section was discussed, the matter was petitioned by residents of that part of the Borough some time ago and had been referred to the engineer at that time for investigation. Mr. Mitchell reported that plans showing a provision for the whole section would be drawn up and submitted to the State Board of Health for their approval. The Mayor suggested that the Council meet with the property owners of East Rahway and go over the situation.

Mayor Mulvihill spoke of the remaining of Roosevelt avenue as strangers in the Borough found that the long continuation of the one street confusing, their being two intersections of Washington and Roosevelt avenues, and two intersections of Roosevelt and Pershing avenues. This was laid over for further consideration.

Much praise was given to Chief Harrington by Councilman Ellis for his splendid co-operation and the clean-up of the town.

Mr. Maxwell Sosin was heard in reference to sidewalks and curbs for Harris street for which a petition had been presented at the last meeting and which matter had been left to the Street and Roads Committee. Mr. Sosin wished to know what had been done about the matter. A rather heated argument followed with the result that the Council as a whole decided to investigate the matter.

A resolution was presented granting the Bookkeeper in the Collector's office an increase in salary which is to be $1900 a year and to take effect March 1st.

An ordinance for sidewalks and curbs on Emerson street between Washington avenue and Noe's Creek was passed on first and second reading.

An ordinance establishing the grade of Post Boulevard along the lands fronting and owned by the Carteret Park Realty Company was passed on first and second reading.

Borough Council Acts On Polling Question

An adjourned meeting of the Borough Council was held at the Municipal Building, Wednesday evening, for the purpose of re-polling the Borough which according to a statement made by Mayor Mulvihill at Monday night's meeting, was very necessary as their were close to 700 voters in each of the five districts and a general congestion took place at the polls on election day.

Many plans and suggestions were presented by the Councilmen and after considerable deliberation the addition of three polls was made. Splitting the five districts of the Borough into eight polls which will give each one about 450 voters. This plan in the estimation of all present was the proper solution to the problem.

CONSERVATION LEAGUE REPLYS TO SEN. BRIGHT

Resents Alleged Misrepresentation of Facts Regarding Appropria- tions

QUOTE OFFICIAL FIGURES

Misrepresentation is forging to the front, declares the New Jersey Fish and Game Conservation League, in the effort to turn aside the protests of the sportsmen, bird lovers and other conservationists against bills pending at Trenton, which, they assert, would repeal the law protecting the fish and game department's funds from diversion to other purposes. As an instance of the alleged misrepresentation, the league cites recent statements attributed to Senator William H. Bright of Cape May County.

"Senator Bright," the league states, "has given out copies of a letter he wrote in reply to a protest from the secretary of the New Jersey Audubon Society against the proposed legislation at Trenton. In it are stated the following:

"In 1926 the estimated receipts reapportioned showed in round figures $267,000, but the actual receipts were over $300,000, and out of that sum of money the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners spent for the purchase of fish, eggs, game and poultry $18,314.99, and you say in your letter 'that the hunters and fishermen voluntarily contribute the above amounts for the specific purpose of protection and replenishment of game and fish,' yet the same commission spent in 1926 for gasoline, grease, oil, tires, tubes and maintenance of autos and boats $21,248.55 and $11,523.42 for sundries."

"This is an obvious attempt," the league continues, "to create the impression that all the commission spent in 1926 for game and fish was $18,314.99. If that is not misrepresentation, it is an indication that the senator's memory is falling sadly, for he should be quite aware that the State Fish and Game Commission has game farms and a hatchery where it raises the great bulk of the pheasants and fishes it annually liberates from eggs produced by its own breeders—and raises them at a cost far below what it would have to pay for them if it could buy them in the open market from commercial farms and hatcheries."

"Surely, Senator Bright will admit that the money spent for the operation of the game farms and hatchery is expended for 'replenishment of game and fish' and should be added to the $18,000 most of which, by the way, was spent for habits and that the money spent on the automobiles that distribute the products of those plans should also be added. He doubtless will concede likewise, on thinking it over, that the salaries of those who transport, plant and protect the game and fish for those who are legally entitled to hunt and fish for them should be added, too. Most of us will agree that even the commission's office stationery has a rather important part in the work of replenishing the game and fish. That being true, we eventually and inevitably arrive at the conclusion that all of the commission's receipts go toward fish and game propagation and protection. And we fail to see the justice in penalizing the commission and the sportsmen for believing it a wise policy to raise their own pheasants and fish at a cost of about half their market value."

Incidentally, the Conservation League takes exception to criticism by Senator Bright of the Audubon Society for, as he put it, "going outside its sphere of usefulness" in protesting legislation directed at the fish and game funds. Since the work of the wardens includes the protection of the multitude of non-game birds, the league maintains that the Audubon Society has a vital interest in the subject.

"We regret Senator Bright's attitude very much," the league concludes, "for we had exceedingly pleasant recollections of a speech he made at our annual dinner when he was president of the State Senate. Four or five hundred sportsmen from all over the State heard him pledge himself to serve their best interests. Is he doing it when he supports proposed legislation to repeal the law which protects the fish and game funds from diversion to other purposes?"

BOYISH FORM FAD CONDEMNED

Physicians Agree That Only Prop- er Method is Dieting; Herald Tribune Publish Articles

The "fad for slenderization" has recently taken such a hold on American women that it has become a national menace. To combat the disastrous effects of this craze for the boyish form, the American Medical Association recently called the country's foremost physicians and dietitians to a "weight conference." The results of this conference are now being published as a series of articles in the New York Herald Tribune Sunday Magazine.

The overweight, the underweight, the pouter, the roller and the imbibor of quack remedies are all considered in these articles, and sound, authoritative advice given with a view to restoring them to normal weights and healthful conditions. Specific menus, scientifically compiled for different types of men and women accompany each article.

Next Sunday, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of "The Journal of the American Medical Association" and of "Hygeia," writes on "This Reducing Craze," and the possible effects of the present trend away from womanliness. A page of diets to help control your weight appears in this article.

Because of the widespread interest in this series resulting in a great increase in the demand for Herald Tribune, it would be well to place your order with your dealer in advance.

The following are the twelve specialists of the Adult Weight Conference who are contributing this series of articles on "Control Your Weight" to the New York Herald Tribune Sunday Magazine: Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, president of the American Medical Association; Dr. Thomas D. Wood, professor of physical education at Columbia University; Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of "The Journal of the American Medical Association" and of "Hygeia"; Dr. James Alexander Miller, formerly president of the National Tuberculosis Association; Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, associate professor of clinical surgery, Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Lewellyn F. Barker, emeritus professor of medicine, Johns Hopkins University; Dr. J. E. Lane, consulting dermatologist, New Haven Hospital; Dr. Russell Wilder, professor of internal medicine, the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.; Professor Flora Rose, director of the College of Home Economics, Cornell University; Dr. Charles Davenport, director of the Eugenics Laboratory, Cold Spring Harbor, L. I.; Dr. Charles L. Dana, chairman of the public health committee, New York Academy of Medicine, and Dr. Harlow Brooks, professor of clinical medicine, New York University.

GIRL CONQUERS HIGH MOUNTAIN

Miss Pilley First of Her Sex to Scale Hoary Slopes of Baker.

Vancouver, B. C.—The high peaks of the new world have been rapidly conquered in the last three years. In 1924, the first winner ascent of Mt. Cook, monarch of the New Zealand Alps, was made for the first time. Last year Mt. Logan, highest of the Canadian peaks, was scaled successfully. Now comes news of the first ascent by a woman of the northeast route of Mt. Baker, in northern Washington, mecca of thousands of tourists of the western states and western Canada. Miss Dorothy E. Pilley and I. A. Richards, both of the Alpine club of England, have just made the ascent, accompanied by Ben Thompson of the Mt. Baker forestry patrol.

Named after Lieutenant Baker when, as Captain Vancouver was sailing through the straits of Juan de Fuca, this giant of the Pacific Northwest, a little over 14,000 feet high, definitely suggests the volcano—a heavier but not less soaring Fujiyama. To Miss Pilley not even Mont Blanc, from the hills above Grenoble, or Mont Rosa from the cathedral of Milan, famous as these sights are among European landscapes, have anything to boast over Mt. Baker, 70 miles from Vancouver and about 100 from Seattle, the commercial capital of Washington.

The route usually followed is via the little village of Glacier and Heliotrope ridge, past crevasses that, although stupendous in themselves, offer no insuperable difficulty. Walking sometimes along a ten-foot causeway of ice between canyons whose vertical sides plunge downward for hundreds of feet, sometimes zig-zagging between narrower fissures, and then making good progress across immense slopes of innocent snow, one comes to what is called the Saddle, an extensive plateau.

Scene of Tragedy.

The slopes near the Saddle were once the scene of an accident as pathetic as any in the annals of mountaineering. Two old-time prospectors were using the mountain as the easiest way over the Baker lake region. In the days before trails were in existence, doubtless it was a relatively easy way, though not a safe one for ill-equipped men, unfamiliar with the dangers of glacier travel.

What might only too well have been expected happened. One of them broke through the surface of snow covering a concealed crevasse and fell into the engulfing darkness below. Injured and trapped beyond any possibility of escape, he was yet able to speak to his companion above, to give him a last message to his wife and family, and bid him make his solitary way back to safety.

Many unroped and inexperienced persons distort themselves on the glaciers of Mt. Baker, and it is surprising that more such fatalities have not occurred. Even a highly experienced mountaineer is not immune from these dangers, as the death, through a similar accident in 1913, of C. P. Bishop, president of the British Columbia Mountaineers, showed only too clearly.

Describing her ascent, which was made from the Austin pass, Miss Pilley says: "Leaving Heather Meadows you follow an easy trail, and make your way over several small glaciers to a point known as Kaiser's Camp, where the presence of firewood enables you to spend a comfortable night. From there the whole route of the ascent lies in plain view.

"Below you a tortuously riven glacier fills the valley. Beyond, the open snow slopes rise, broken only by the shadowy criss-cross markings of crevasses to the clear edge of the summit plateau. They are divided by a long, low ridge that falls toward you, crowned by a point, Pumice Stone pinnacle, which at this distance of several miles looks unimportant, and marked at its foot by a hollow bare space in the glacier, which, when you approach it, proves to be a moderately alive crater, puffing out wisps of steam and vapor, and dotted with fragments of sulphur.

"Our intention had been to go by way of the crater, but, on the way we came across a line of faint tracks, left, we knew, by a party of the week before. The party had failed, and we knew the reason. An impassable rift in the glacier, stretching, it was reported, right across the whole face of the mountain, had barred their further progress. We knew that a similar failure might easily be the result if we followed them, but somehow, on that perfect morning, with the swelling, rounded steps of the glacier beautifully dappled with blue shadow, and sparkling in the early sunlight with myriad stars of diamond light, the attraction of the snow was irresistible. So, risking failure, we determined to go and look at the reported impasse. Up we wound, halting only a little once where a little pool of water, caught in a cleft of blue and gleaming ice, beckoned us to lunch. After gaining a great height we came to a point where another line of returning tracks could be seen branching off toward the ridge of rocks on our right. We must, we knew, be near the difficulty. We breasted a short slope of steeper snow and there it was.

Overcomes Obstacles.

"A chasm, 50 feet across, with vertical walls of pure white ice, cut like an enormous trench across our path. It seemed unending to right and to left. Here the tracks which we had been following danced about over a small area and then turned downward again. The only possibility seemed to be offered by a weakness in the opposing wall some hundred feet to our left. To cut steps up such a wall would be a task requiring at least two or three hours, if it were practicable, and this was doubtful. A really formidable work of excavation would be necessary. However, it seemed worth while to look closer. So we wandered up to a point to the left to survey the obstacle to better advantage.

"The result was a delightful anticlimax. Less than 70 yards beyond our former limit of vision the great impassable chasm suddenly narrowed to nothing. Just at that point where it ceased a brother chasm, even larger, opened, but between them, athwart the obstacle lay a neat connecting gangway about as wide as a garden path, and just as easy to follow. A short detour for the preceding party, when we reflected that they had been defeated by a difference of some ten feet only in their line of vision."

Easy progress followed until they came to the last pinches. A light fall of snow the previous week made the going powdery, and the snow had to be padded down solidly. At the rate of 100 feet an hour they reduced the distance between them and the last wall, which was the tallest.

"The angle of the slope was far too sharp for any risks to be taken," says Miss Pilley. "A slip would have terminated long before the party could have checked itself in the blue-black depths of a lovely but sinister crevasse that gaped below. Just as we braced ourselves for a toilsome and difficult hour the snow improved again. It grew deeper and moist enough to bind under the foot if carefully and repeatedly trod down. How the heart tightens at the last prospect! The sky seems more cheerful. The distance shrinks. Fresh energy wells up in mind and body. Anon we were there."

Crosses the Ravine.

As they crossed a low belt of rock in the snow below the plateau they found, with some astonishment, a long thin piece of sash-line, tied to the rocks and hanging in a loose end. It looked thin and frail as though it might have been there for many years. "The first party, and probably the only other party to climb the mountain by our route, descended in their own tracks," says Miss Pilley. "This was in 1906. No doubt they fixed this piece of rope to aid them in their descent. To think of it swaying there aloft on that unvisited slope in the winds of 20 years gives the mind an odd and not unpleasant thrill. This vestige of humanity seemed to add something to the wildness of the mountain rather than to detract from it.

"We had anticipated a cold wind in the final stages," says Miss Pilley, "and now, as we made the last few steps and swung ourselves over the sharp edge onto comparatively level ground it was a pleasant surprise to find only a moderate breeze blowing and the mist enshrouding us shot through and through with sunlight. A little later we stood on the dome-shaped summit looking out in all directions over a broken wilderness of cloud masses, pierced irregularly with black outlines of lower hills."

SCIENTIST SAYS AMAZONS WERE MEN WITHOUT BEARDS

Declares Greeks Mistook Sex of Ancient Warriors on Account of Their Shaven Faces.

Philadelphia.—The centuries-old legend about the Amazons, a nation of female warriors who carried fire and sword to ancient Greece, Asia Minor, Arabia, Syria and Egypt, was declared a myth by Dr. J. L. Myres, secretary of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, who was here recently attending the meetings of the American association.

The Amazons, according to Doctor Myres, were not women at all but men who had shaved and consequently looked like women to the bearded Greeks, who first gave them a place in history.

Professor Myres declares careful study of recent archeological evidences clears up the mystery of the Amazons. Their shaven appearance, he adds, either led their foes to believe them women, or they were called women in contempt for the effeminacy of their appearance.

Archeologists, said Doctor Myres, have found representations of beardless men in the Hittite monuments on a plateau near the headwaters of the Sagartus river, the modern Sakaria, in Asia Minor. By deciphering the Hittite language it has been learned that these men actually participated in the wars against the Greeks when the Amazon legend originated.

At about 1250 B. C. the fashion for beardless men among the Hittites suddenly ended, the monuments show. Doctor Myres believes the Hittites decided a succession of defeats by bearded warriors of other nations was due to the fact that their faces were shaven and they decided to let their whiskers grow.

Choked by False Teeth, S O S Brings Relief

Boston.—Two false teeth in a seaman's throat led to a call for help from the British steamer Zimorodok recently. The steamer Thuringia of the Hamburg-American line answered the call and arrived here with the seaman aboard. He was taken to a hospital.

The Zimorodok left Philadelphia for Hamburg. A few days later Eric Jonsson, a Swedish sailor, awoke to find that two false teeth had dropped from their pivots and lodged in his throat. There was no doctor aboard and Jonsson was in danger of suffocation. The steamer flashed a radio call for help.

The Thuringia picked up the message, but, due to bad weather, was unable to come alongside until afternoon. Six men manned a lifeboat, carried the ship's doctor through heavy seas to the Zimorodok and brought the seaman back. The doctor was able to relieve his suffering, but could not remove the teeth, which now have worked farther down into his body.

Students to Be "Stung" in Study of Bee Poison

New York.—Fifty young men and women students at the Homeopathic Medical college have volunteered to be artificially "stung" by bees and spiders in an attempt to determine whether the venom can be made to serve some medicinal purpose.

Members of the squad with notebook and pencil will record the mental and physical effects of the poisons as they are injected while experts make careful observations.

While the layman probably never has noticed any beneficial result from an encounter with a bee or a spider, the scientists at the college believe the poisons of the insects may be a remedy for forms of kidney disease.

Small amounts of the poisons will be given the students at first. By summer vacation, doses will be increased to such an extent that hospitalization may be necessary.

Boos and Hisses Greet Short Skirts in Lisbon

Lisbon, Portugal.—Portugal frowns upon the short skirt. Women who attempt to adopt the "up-to-the-knee" style have been subjected to popular manifestations.

Two young women of good family, selling flowers and medals in the streets for a charitable institution wore short flimsy skirts which fluttered in the wind as they accosted the passers-by. But the boos of the market vendors, chiefly women, drove the girls from the street.

Prince Henry Meets "Double" for First Time

London.—After hearing about his "double" for a year or so, Prince Henry recently met him for the first time.

Lieut. James Ford of the brigade of guards and husband of Princess Marie Bariatinsky, is the "double."

His likeness to Henry is striking. Upon meeting the prince he volunteered to shave his mustache, if Henry desired, but the king's son remarked that if any shaving had to be done he would do it himself.

SEES SOUND SENT OVER RAYS OF INVISIBLE LIGHT

Dr. Donald C. Stockbarger, Noted Scientist, Tells of Wonderful Era of the Ultra-Violet Ray.

Cambridge, Mass.—An era of the ultra-violet ray, when sound will be transmitted over beams of invisible light and a multiplicity of scientific marvels hardly yet envisioned will be commonplace, is predicted by scientists.

Here are a few of the things foreseen by Dr. Donald C. Stockbarger, the results of whose investigations were demonstrated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology:

Motion pictures transmitted on invisible ultra-violet rays.

Automobile headlights that will flood highways with invisible light but will themselves be dark.

Roads, fences and sign posts that will be coated with a fluorescent substance which will glow when beams of the light strike them.

War-time messages which may be sent without fear of interception because the light rays may be focused on a given point.

Other uses for the violet ray are expected when a glass is perfected which will allow the rays to pass through and work their curative values on sufferers from many ailments, and their action in chemistry is thoroughly understood.

Doctor Stockbarger gave a graphic demonstration of the magic ray and its properties.

Motion pictures projected from an ordinary machine with a filter in the rear of the lens to permit only ultra-violet rays to pass through were shot on invisible beams to a fluorescent screen where they appeared with a ghostly, greenish, blue glow.

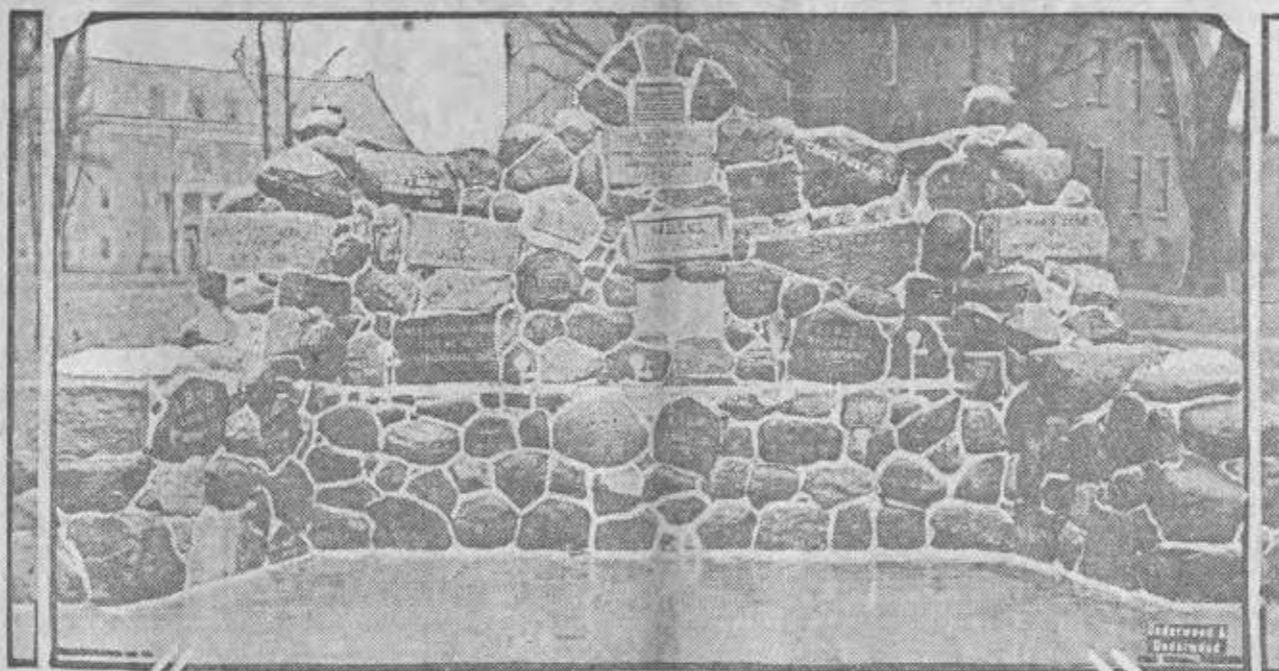

The human voice coming through the ether as a part of a radio broadcast was sent over a ray of the light, but when a person's hand, or any other object, was thrust in the way, the sound ceased.

An automobile on a miniature road with scenery and bridges and fences illustrated how the danger of glare from headlights at night might be eliminated and the lights themselves darkened, giving off the ultra-violet rays alone.

Beams from such headlights will shine brilliantly when they fall upon roads and guide posts coated with fluorescent substances but will be invisible to other motorists.

The results that the demonstration foreshadowed may come into practical realization by 2000 A. D., Doctor Stockbarger believes.

Ready to Wed, Drops Dead Beside Fiancee

New York.—Louis Fisher, forty-six, was a baker living alone on the top floor of a plain little house back of 73 Melrose street, Brooklyn. Mary Schmid, a little younger, "lived out" and had no permanent home. The two met, passed evenings together for company and eventually became engaged.

Times were not so good in the baking business. If Louis worked three days a week he was lucky. However, he had a little money from the old country and Mary Schmid had a little saved. The pair decided to get married.

Preparing to settle down, the prospective bridegroom wanted to take out citizenship papers and he went to the naturalization bureau, in the Brooklyn post office, taking Miss Schmid with him. While waiting for his papers, Fisher suddenly was seized with a heart attack and fell dead beside his fiancee.

Neighbors said Fisher had been complaining of "heart sickness" only the day before. Miss Schmid took the body away for burial.

Bobbed Hair Girls Ousted by Village

Munich, Germany.—Word has reached here of a miniature peasant uprising against bobbed hair. Two young Viennese women, accompanied by their husbands, arrived in the Alpine village of Lungau and, tired after a long tramp, removed their hats. Shocked villagers observed that their heads were bobbed.

Turning in an emergency fire alarm, one of the local citizens hastily summoned the village graybeards to a conference. The meeting promptly decided that the two Viennese Alpinists must be deported from Lungau. Despite rain and chill darkness, the bobbed-haired women were routed out of the inn at night and forced to leave the precincts by a crowd of indignant villagers.

The innkeeper who had given shelter to these "disreputable" guests was warned never to disgrace the village again by harboring bobbed-haired strangers under his roof.

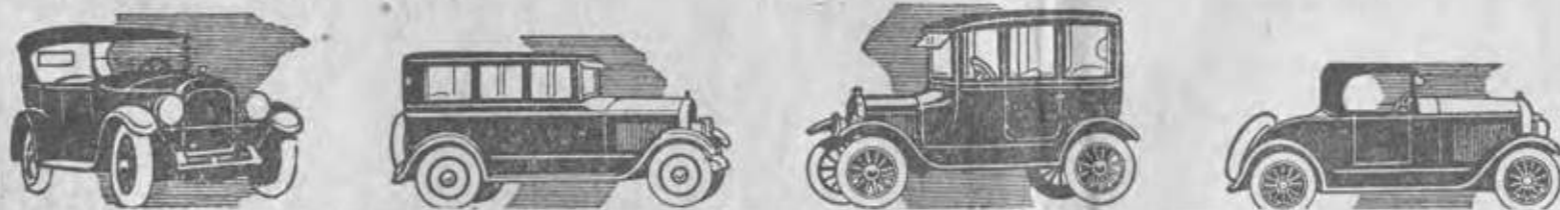

Lights Replace Models for Trying on Gowns

London.—Mannequins will no longer be needed at big stores to display frocks if a new invention comes into universal use. Mrs. Suburbia and Lady Mayfair will be able to try on their frock themselves while still wearing their fur coats.

The scheme is something between a ghost mannequin and electricity. The would-be purchaser enters a small room and stands in front of a full-length mirror. Her body is made to "fade out," by special lighting, leaving the head in the mirror. Then a headless model dressed in a particular dress "comes through" and fits exactly under the head of the purchaser. If this means is successful several gowns could be tried on without the removal of any outdoor garment or the use of a mannequin.

Folly of Fashion
"So great was the weight of the elaborately padded garments worn by men in England during the reign of Henry the Eighth," points out Frederick Tisdale in an article in Liberty, "that a bench was built along the house of parliament so the fainting dandies could rest their matted thighs."

The Corn Borer

The House of Representatives has passed a bill providing $10,000,000 for immediate use in fighting the corn borer.

The corn borer originally a little moth, lays her eggs on the leaves or tassels of the corn. They hatch into tiny caterpillars which immediately bore into the stalk, become big ones, feast on the vitals of the stalk, weaken it, destroy it.

The noly remedy known is a wasp-like parasite also found in Europe. It is similar to a wasp but very slender. This wasp pierces the corn stalk in which the borer is hidden and drops some of its eggs into the cavity.

Alien War Claims

The House measure providing for return or payment of alien property seized during the World War, has been materially altered by the Senate, who would hold 40 per cent of such property to guarantee payment of claims of American nationals against Germany.

It was intimated that attorneys had entered into contracts covering the recovery of some $30,000,000 of these claims, on the representation that $12,000,000 of that sum was to be used to get the bill through Congress.

To Supplant Military Rule

Senator Willis, of Ohio, has introduced a bill in the Senate to establish the office of insular affairs which is intended to take over the insular work now being done by the war department.

As a general thing people of the United States do not endorse military government of another country by us, and the natives of other countries also resent it. Rigid military discipline of people unaccustomed to democratic forms of government always has and always will result in resentment and revolution.

Senator Norris believes that Congress and the people should have detailed information in regard to American oil concessions and related matters in Mexico. His resolution asking for the names of American individuals and corporations claiming oil lands prior to May 1, 1917, as well as those who have acquired oil concessions since that date, together with correspondence filed in the State Department, has been adopted by the Senate without a roll call.

Train of Evils in Constant Changefulness of Modern Times

By REV. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK, New York City.

Few problems are more serious than the effect which the shifting changefulness of modern life is having upon us here in New York. All the winds that blow on earth blow through this town, and in a city where so many shifting winds blow the temptation to be weather-vanes is very strong.

I am not pleading that anyone accept my positive convictions about life's abiding truth, its deep faiths, hopes and loves, but surely, no one can be so blind as not to find here, if he looks for them, some convictions of his own to which his mind assents and for which he knows he ought to live.

OPINION

Spanning Kill Van Kull. Edison Shirks Foolishness. Baumes Law. A Factory Ball League.

CONSTRUCTION of a huge bridge across the Kill Van Kull between Bayonne and Port Richmond, S. I., has been approved by both New York and New Jersey. The $14,000,000 structure is expected to be done by 1932.

Authorities say that the money spent will be a good investment, inasmuch as the span will be a tremendous relief to cities in North Jersey confronted with severe traffic difficulties.

The structure will be as large as the largest of its kind in the world now under construction across the harbor at Sydney, Australia. It will be two-thirds as large as the Hell Gate Bridge across East River. The span will be from 1,600 to 1,700 feet.

People here are eager to see a bridge from Carteret to Linoleumville. The desire to have Carteret grow fathers the thought; but such an idea appears wholly improbably at present. A bridge from Perth Amboy to Tottenville will throw traffic to Staten Island and keep it wholly from Carteret.

The bridges, instead of bringing traffic to this place, will take it away.

THOMAS EDISON is eighty years old and has not yet fulfilled a promise. When the electrical wizard was 75, associates say he assured them that at 80 he would "learn to play bridge and talk foolishly with the ladies."

Thus we see a man, who has done great wonders for civilization, apparently uninterested in social activity. Instead, he works in his laboratory, always striving to shape out something that might be as useful to mankind as his electric bulb.

All this leads us to recall what a wise man once said, "Genius is nine-tenths perspiration and only one-tenth inspiration." Social activity is ideal for diversion, but as a lifetime interest there is nothing more discouraging. Be a diligent worker, pay less to foolishness and amount a more than a problem for sociology.

A BILL somewhat similar but less drastic than the Baumes law of New York has figured prominently in the sessions of the New Jersey Legislature. The laws in New York impose life imprisonment upon anyone guilty of crime four times.

New Yorkers have asserted that the Baumes laws did encourage work in decreasing crime there. But unofficial notice has been called to the increase of crime in this state. This fact points out that New Jersey needs to do something to make criminals coming from New York to "keep moving, and to cause them to dislike this state's vigorous laws.

A movement is under foot to have the Baumes laws adopted by all the states. The criminal is being hotly pursued, indeed. His business is being cramped.

Look at what appeared in the papers the other day: "Jailbirds, so long put out by the extremely poor quarters offered them by Chicago, are starting to look forward with measurable anticipation to the completion of the new model Cook county hoosegow."

Everything up-to-date, modern in every respect. And comfortable. Will it be said that jail is a cozier place than many a poor man's home? "The poor criminal, he is being treated too inhumanly; better and more comfortable jails must be constructed."

What has come over our judiciary authorities?

Chicago has the reputation of being the country's "best fortified city." Bootleggers and hijackers haul machine guns out into open and hold warfare. Lives of people are not safe in some sections of the city. And Chicago is to treat her law-breakers with more comfort and luxury.

WITHIN a very short time major league baseball clubs will be training feverishly for the coming season. And in a similar way Carteret players will be getting ready to glide through a few months of Hamond activity here.

Much consideration has been given the formation of a factory league. It is evident that the men must begin organization work immediately because considerable time is necessary.

Found in Tobacco Leaves Tobacco leaves when submitted to chemical analysis yield nicotine, which is its most characteristic constituent; albumin, a gluten-like substance; gum, resin, malic and citric acids, and a large amount of inorganic constituents. 100 parts of the dry leaf yielding from about 19 to 27 per cent of ash. ISSUE OF FEB. 23, 1927

On next Tuesday night Court Carteret will honor one of its oldest members. The evening's festivities will be dedicated to William Walling who has served for twenty-one consecutive years as financial secretary.

The Methodist Epworth League class held a valentine party at the home of Miss Mary Pirong. Most all the members of the league were present and a wonderful evening's entertainment was enjoyed. Mr. Heitzman, president of the League, was elected master of ceremonies and Miss Anna Richards was selected as queen of ceremonies.

Roosevelt Lodge Loyal Order of Moose was organized last Tuesday night at Odd Fellows Hall and the following officers were elected: Past Dictator, Joseph A. Hermann; Dictator, William Lawlor; Vice Dictator, Henry Seidler; Prelate, Morris Garber; Secretary, F. F. Simons; Treasurer, Dr. J. J. Reason; Trustees, Adolph Grohman, Joseph A. Hermann, C. V. Connor, J. W. Teats and Edward Krebs.

Mr. and Mrs. Soren Koed of Emerson street were Elizabeth visitors Wednesday evening, to attend the Masquerade Ball at the Elks Club.

Mrs. Thomas Currie and Mrs. R. J. Murphy attended a card party at Mount St. Mary's convent at Plainfield last Saturday.

P. S. To Enlarge Terminal Building

Plans are now being drawn by Public Service Production Company contemplating an extension to Public Service Terminal Building, Newark, including a fifteen story tower at the corner of East Park and Pine streets.

The plans will call for extending the north wing of the present building along Pine street to East Park street, making a nine story building along the entire length of Pine street from North Canal to East Park streets. In addition the specifications will provide for six additional stories on the corner, in the shape of a tower. The tower portion of the new structure will have a frontage of eighty-six feet on the Pine street side and sixty-seven feet on East Park street, the height to be 214 feet.

The extension contemplated will embrace altogether 121,530 square feet of space and will afford increased office facilities for the various Public Service companies. The work of construction, it is expected, will be started this spring and will be finished the latter part of 1928. The extension will be a steel frame, with pressed brick construction and limestone and terra cotta trim, in keeping with the present building.

Two extensions were made to the building in 1924 when seven additional stories were added to the two existing ones on Pine street and the frame building on the corner of North Canal and Pine streets was replaced by a nine story building. A ninth story was also built on the North Canal street portion of the structure.

Pa's Marathon

It's the running expenses that keep father out of breath.—Wall Street Journal.

Why So Piffing?

We would like to stop for just a little sermon. Why need all the stories of motion pictures be so piffing? Why need the heroes and heroines have to be fairly plastered with virtues? Wouldn't a good deal of creditable behavior be assumed by the audiences if all the tags were left off, and average people just put through their paces? Maybe not. But there is one thing we are sure of, and that is that which is enchanting to the eye can be greatly increased if there is some genuine emotion behind it.

He—What do you think of my prospects as a whole? She—As a hole.

Considerate Candor

"If you will marry me," said the persistent suitor, "you will make me happy." "You're happy enough now," answered Miss Cayenne. "I think a great deal of you, and I would rather see you joyously paying for taxicabs and theater tickets instead of worrying about the rent."

Poet's Error

Literally "derring do" means "daring to do." But Spenser mistakenly used it as a noun phrase and it has been popularly used ever since to mean daring feats or desperate courage. Spenser says: "Dread for the derring doe and bloody deed."—Putnam Magazine.

Recipe for Success

Find out where the money is and get there as quickly as you can and when you get there get all you can get there and then get out of there with all you could get out of those that are there before those that are there get out of you all that you got there after you got there.—Kansas City Star.

THE FRIENDLY SPIRIT OF THE SERVICE

Business men know that modern banking service is very much alike. Facilities have been standardized and banking procedure established. The outstanding difference in banking service is the friendly spirit behind it, the degree of willingness to co-operate fully and personally.

This friendly spirit is ever present at the Carteret Trust Company which is in truth "a bank of personal contact." And it is this spirit which makes for the prompt and smooth transactions of business and the establishment of pleasant relationships.

Bird Migration

The reason why birds migrate is a mystery to biologists. They have been studying for hundreds of years to find out and are as much in the dark to day as they were 200 years ago, according to Dr. Alexander Wetmore, president of the American Ornithological union.

One Way to Look at It

Practiced list says women's feet are getting larger. At any rate, they're proving more and more their ability to fill men's shoes.—Arkansas Gazette.

Dies to Save His Dog From Path of Train

Atlantic City, N. J.—George Kovalak, forty-one years old, a cook, was killed instantly here when he saved his dog, Pal, from destruction by a Pennsylvania railroad electric train. He flung the dog out of the path of the train, tripped over a rail and was cut in two.

The dog had run out on the tracks, heedless of the train. Kovalak shouted, but the dog apparently believed his master was playing a game with him and did not respond. So Kovalak dashed out in front of the train to his death.

DIED FOR BEAUTY THEY NEVER SAW

Three Austrian Youths in Love With a Memory.

Vienna.—Infatuated with the memory of a beautiful baroness who had killed herself for love long before they were born, three Austrian youths recently killed themselves, one after the other, on the tomb of the woman.

Ewald Laumann, twenty-four years old; Heinrich Bur, twenty-two, and George Dollner, twenty-two, were clerks, the sons of middle-class families. They were inseparable companions, going everywhere together.

But it was not until after their deaths that photographs and literature were found in their rooms indicating they read everything they could lay hands on that related to the romantic death of Baroness Maria Vetsera in 1890.

The baroness was the beloved mistress of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, who had been forced to wed a Belgian princess. His love for the baroness, however, grew greater after his marriage than it was before.

When the demands of the emperor that he give up his illicit love affair became too insistent the crown prince and the baroness entered into a suicide pact, which they carried out together.

This romance, with death as its culmination, was brooded over by the three young clerks for so long that their minds broke under the strain and they looked on Maria Vetsera as some one they had known. It was then they decided to follow her in death, it is believed.

Firecracker Restores Hearing to "Deaf" Man

New York.—A huge firecracker was used effectively by skeptical Jersey City policemen to break down the pose of George Abbott, nineteen years old, that he was deaf and dumb. Abbott had been arrested as a suspicious person as he was coming out of an apartment house in Jersey City.

With signs he indicated he was deaf and dumb, and he supported his contention by producing from his pockets a number of cards which set forth in large type that he could neither hear nor speak. Abbott indicated he had been selling the cards to obtain money to pay his way through college.

After five hours of sustained conversation, carried on with the aid of pencil and paper, Abbott stuck to his story. John Torpey, captain of detectives and the "boss" of "bottle-able skepticism, sent for a large firecracker. This was placed beneath Abbott's chair from behind and set off. Abbott left his chair with a yell, and thereafter was able to talk and hear as well as any of his questioners.

Three Fingers Amputated; Skin Grafted on Hand

Little Rock, Ark.—Skin removed from three amputated fingers of the right hand of Mrs. G. N. Malone, nineteen, was used to cover the back of the same hand in an unusual operation performed by surgeons of the Baptist State hospital.

The fingers were crushed in an automobile accident, making amputation necessary, but the skin was not broken. Surgeons said that it is possible the skin was "killed" and will not grow upon the injured hand, in which event other skin will be grafted. However, they believe the grafting is final.

Mrs. Malone suffered the injuries to her fingers and hand when the truck in which she and her husband, with a driver, were en route to Hot Springs struck another car, a glancing blow, shot off the highway and rolled over twice into a ditch. Both Malone and his wife were pinned under the truck.

Tire Hurls Horseshoe; Motorist's Face Is Cut

Westfield, N. J.—While driving along the main highway in a small coupe from this town to Rahway, George J. Marsh picked up on a rear tire a horseshoe which was hurled through the windshield of another car 50 feet to the rear. Its driver, Robert G. Sargent, a golf instructor of Westfield, received injuries from flying glass.

He drove faster to catch up with Marsh's car to ascertain what was causing it. Both searched the two cars and found that the rear seat of Sargent's car was covered with powdered glass and an iron horseshoe. The shoe had been picked up from the road by Marsh's car and missed Sargent's head by only a few inches.

The Reclaimed Outcast

EVEN as a small child Polly showed marked propensities in the matter of reclaiming things. From flowers to animals and on to humans her quaint disposition led her into many trials.

Feeble, struggling plants in the garden Polly nurtured and loved and brought to glorious flowering; hungry, ear-chewed and lanky cats always found tender care and sometimes blossomed forth as silky and purring pets; a strange, ill-clad and wistful child would invariably be the one selected by Polly as her best chum—and so on until she began her wedding career among various grown-up human beings.

"Why is it that Polly always has some poor benighted soul dangling about?" questioned her brother. "I hope her charitable reform work won't lead her into some mess—she might even present us with a broken-down, half-starved poet as a member of the family."

"She's certainly the limit!" "Won't take the slightest interest in any well set-up member of society! Did you ever see such a collection of derelicts as she can find? I wonder she hasn't brought us in an abandoned baby!"

These were other expressions regarding Polly's propensities.

Then—there was Billy Norwood—a perfect specimen of a man. The kind of man that every mother dreams of as a bedding mate for a treasured daughter. But—Polly wouldn't even look at him. There was nothing about him to attract her mothering instincts and without that there was simply no lure at all.

And Billy felt that life without Polly was just not life at all. "It's no use," said Polly's brother. "You'll have to become a ghost-and-outer, gambler or some ghastly piece of wreckage if you want to marry Polly and I don't mind telling you right here and now, Old Bean, that there's no one I'd rather welcome into the family."

"Dick," said Norwood, "if you can sort of drop the merry word about—I'll be the most dissipated, broken-wretch that ever won a woman's heart. You'll have to help—just cast the word casually about that I've taken the downward grade—I'll do the rest, and if it doesn't take Polly and all her salvage corps to reclaim me then—"

"Put it there, Old Top!" laughed Dick.

It was no time at all until rumors of wild orgies were whispered about as having taken place in the Norwood flat. Vivid etchings of convivial parties well embellished with details of the host's sudden plunge into the mire of dissipation.

Polly began to prick up her ears. Dick very thoughtfully tried to hush up the matter but the questioning in Polly's limpid eyes was so insistent that he was forced to give her some of the gruesome story of Norwood's downfall. And he watched his sister's fierce interest rising and her reclaiming instincts flowing out already to the errant Norwood.

One evening he reported at the flat and the two men shook hands.

"I feel that I can almost safely be putting in an order to my tailor's," said Dick. "She's all aglow with desire to save you. But don't let down too quickly, old man, or the game will be lost and, for the love of Pete, don't ever let Polly know we've swindled her."

"I love her too much for that, Dicky," said Norwood seriously. "I don't mind saying, however, that I'll welcome the day when I can wear pressed clothes and clean linen. You know I throw my suit on the floor at night and leave it there until I don it in the morning. This filthy cork I rub about my eyes—" "But," he added, "I've been wondering whether, when Polly and I are married, we shall have to have a broken-down house, scrawny kiddies and starved animals and derelict friends in order to keep the home fires aglow."

"No—I fancy this will cure her," laughed Dick. "Cure her! Great Scott! I hope not. It's the most adorable trait any woman ever had." And Norwood's whimsical smile played about his mouth.

That evening when Dick returned home he hinted darkly that he began to think a woman was at the bottom of poor old Norwood's downfall.

"That's always the way with the finest chaps that were ever born. When they go to pieces they go hard. Darn these women," he added forcefully and left Polly to think it out. He had, however, seen the flush on Polly's fair cheeks and the tears that hung on her heavy lashes. "Done!" he told himself as he threw off his coat and prepared for bed.

Next morning, when all self-respecting business men were hard at their tasks, Billy Norwood was seen loafing about the streets and his manner suggested a night of carousing. He had flung himself upon a park bench when she approached him and sat down beside him.

Norwood assumed a vapid expression as he turned toward her, but his heart gave a great thump of triumph. "Billy dear," she suggested softly and tucked her hand well into the curve of his arm, "don't you think a drive up Riverside would do you good? I want to tell you something—something awfully nice."

FORCIBLE HAIR BOBBING SETS TOWN IN UPROAR

Woman's Long Curls Cut Off by Force When Husbands Admire Them.

Whittier, Calif.—When pretty Mrs. Evelyn Thompson suffered her long, twisting curls to be bobbed by force one day recently this little town was suddenly thrown into an uproar. Men, women and children divided into two camps, one side favoring bobbed hair and the other side battling the modern "flapper." Now the entire state of California is becoming entangled in the fight.

The admitted instigators of the whole affair are facing prison sentences. One, Mrs. Florence Nutt, is held in jail of $5,000 awaiting trial in Los Angeles on a charge of mayhem—willfully disfiguring a person.

The other, Mrs. Lucille Raulston, is sought by the police all over the nation, although neighbors declare she told them she was moving to India. She, too, is charged with mayhem. Conviction on this charge in California means from one to fourteen years in prison.

Back of all the bobbed hair war in Whittier is the green-eyed god, Jealousy, police assert. Mrs. Evelyn Thompson was a little more than twenty years old. She has a good husband and little boy and drives a pretty automobile. She was fascinating—so fascinating that there was not one gentleman in Whittier who wouldn't admit it.

Refuses to Bob Hair.

Not one woman would admit Mrs. Thompson's charms, though. She dressed well. She was popular at the town's leading social events, and probably she would have been the town's prize beauty if a beauty contest had been held.

Making Mrs. Thompson more unpopular with the women was the fact that she had refused month after month to have her hair bobbed. She liked it old-fashioned, she said. And husbands everywhere agreed with her judgment—agreed so well, in fact, that they carelessly mentioned the preference in the presence of their wives. It later was revealed.

The climax came when the husbands of Mrs. Nutt and Mrs. Raulston mentioned their appreciation of Mrs. Thompson's pretty locks. One afternoon soon afterward Mrs. Nutt and Mrs. Raulston invited their friend, Mrs. Thompson, into Mrs. Raulston's house.

As she stepped into a sewing room the door was locked. On the table lay a large pair of shears. Mrs. Raulston, police say, spoke very slowly and decidedly:

"You have flirted with my husband long enough. I am going to fix you so no man will ever stop to look at you again."

With this the shears were brought into play. Snip, snip, they went, while Mrs. Thompson's long curls fell off. Her neck was cut. Her hands were wounded, and her face was scratched as she fought against the two women who held her, it is alleged.

Taken to Jail.

It was a sorry looking Evelyn who ran home to tell her husband what had happened to her curls. But it was a sorrier pair of women who a few hours later were taken to jail by police on charges of assault and battery. The judge fined Mrs. Raulston $50, Florence Nutt demanded trial at a later date.

While Mrs. Thompson's town rocked in a bobbed hair war—with the "flappers" belligerently set against the more conservative women—Mrs. Thompson went to Los Angeles and called at the district attorney's office. Next day Mrs. Nutt was rearrested on a charge of mayhem. The officer from the Los Angeles office went to Mrs. Raulston's home to arrest her on the same charge. But he was told she had gone to India, "where her husband took a job rather suddenly."

No Wonder Army Officers Resign

Army officers stationed at Camp Meade, Md., say that war was never as bad as living in the ramshackle buildings they are forced to inhabit. With a view to improving the housing conditions of the officers and enlisted men of the army, Hanford MacNider (center), assistant secretary of war, and Maj. Gen. B. F. Chatham, quartermaster general, visited the camp and are shown at the entrance of the "beautiful mansion" of one of the officers. On the right is Col. O. S. Eskridge, commandant at Camp Meade.

Save Space for Pie.

One who was lurching in a downtown restaurant frequented by business and professional men at the noon hour was the cause of interest and comment because he concluded his luncheon with a large piece of hot mince pie and a second cup of coffee, says the South Bend News-Times.

Some of his friends envied him his ability to consume mince pie and coffee; others marveled at his digestive strength. The consensus was that to be able to eat mince pie and drink a second cup of coffee was a mark of distinction. One observer noted, however, the clue to the enjoyable dessert. The diner in question had looked ahead to the end of his meal. He had taken only a little soup and a thin sandwich ahead of the mince pie. In fact, he had, as it were, paved the way for his pie and his second cup of coffee. He knew his digestive limitations and because he likes pie and his coffee he is willing to sacrifice some of the meat and potatoes of life. And, he thinks, one quarter of mince pie of the right manufacture is worth an emperor's sirloin of beef and a whole Idaho of potatoes.

A DECAYED TOOTH

IS LIKE A SPOTTED FRUIT
The Good Fruit Is Soon Attacked; Just So Does One Decayed Tooth Attack a Sound One

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

Another reason why you should not neglect teeth is the longer you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything tooth, or the various diseases that develop from diseased teeth.

We charge nothing for examining your teeth, telling you just what is needed, if anything; how long the work will take and what it will cost.

Auto Is Faster Than Fleet Prairie Coyote

Aberdeen, Wash.—No ordinary coyote can outrun an automobile, claims A. C. Galliac, who exhibited here as proof the spoils of a recent highway chase. He was returning from Olympia when the coyote leaped out into the road and ran ahead of the car. Galliac speeded up and soon overtook the animal, which disdained to turn out. The car knocked the coyote senseless and Galliac finished its career with a wrench. He brought in the pelt for the bounty.

BOY USES TEETH TO SAVE FRIEND

Pulls Tree Branch From Impaled Pal's Neck.

San Francisco.—One University of California student saved the life of another following an unusual accident by pulling part of a sharp branch from his companion's neck by the use of a strong set of teeth.

Those concerned are Paul Phelan and Kenneth Reynolds, both of whom live in Alameda, and attend the same classes at the university infirmary. They started on a hunting trip in the mountains near Napa. Phelan fell over a steep bank and into the branches of a manzanita tree.

A fragment of one of the branches pierced Phelan's neck and broke off. His classmate succeeded in extricating him and placing him on the ground, where he lay gasping in a semiconscious condition. Trying unsuccessfully to pull out the branch fragment, Reynolds finally grasped the end with his teeth and withdrew the piece of wood.

Following this, Phelan was in danger of bleeding to death. But his companion tore up part of his shirt and bandaged the wound. Then, carrying the injured youth, Reynolds started with him for Napa. It required two hours to walk there.

After receiving first-aid treatment in Napa, Phelan was taken to the university infirmary and given further attention. His classmate's efforts saved his life, officials there said.

Two Teachers Fined for Whipping Schoolgirl

Detroit, Mich.—"The age of barbarism has passed," Samuel L. Vreeland, justice of the peace, said in passing sentence on Mrs. Mary Griffiths and Paul H. Coover, teachers in the Maple Grove school, after finding them guilty of assault and battery in whipping Irene Begeman, a ten-year-old pupil.

Coover was told to pay a $50 fine or serve 30 days in the Detroit house of correction. Mrs. Griffiths was given the alternative of a $10 fine and costs or a ten-day term. The costs in each case amounted to $3.50.

Irene testified that Mrs. Griffiths instructed her to remain after the class was dismissed for the day, but that she went home. She was furious about returning and got her mother to accompany her. Her mother, she explained, informed the teacher she wanted Irene to return home early, but had forgotten to give her a note. "Mrs. Griffiths talked real nice to mamma, but later she took me in the cloakroom and gave me a licking with a paddle," Irene testified. "I went to my seat and cried. Then teacher took me back to the cloakroom and gave me another licking with a rubber hose—worse than the first.

"I started for home, but Mr. Coover brought me back to school. He said the licking Mrs. Griffiths gave me wasn't enough and hit me about 24 times with a rubber hose."

Drug Addict Must Go to Church to Stay Free

New York.—Federal Judge Winslow looked meditatively at the youthful prisoner before him. He was John Spinella, eighteen years old, and had pleaded guilty to possessing heroin.

"I will sentence you to six months in the penitentiary," said the judge, "but I will suspend sentence on one condition," Judge Winslow added.

"You must attend church at least once a week during the period of suspension.

"I shall ask your rector to keep me posted about your attendance. Your fate is in your own hands. If you fail once you go to jail for six months."

"I do not want anyone to think," said Judge Winslow afterward, "that I consider going to church a punishment in any way. I just wanted the boy to be under good influence during the period of his suspension."

Girl Playfully Points Gun; Slays Her Mother

Kenosha, Wis.—Edna Wade, seventeen years old, is under the care of a physician in her home here, prostrated with grief over having accidentally shot and killed her mother when she playfully pointed a revolver at her and pulled the trigger. She did not know it was loaded, she said.

The tragedy occurred while Mrs. Wade was preparing a party in observance of her forty-fourth birthday anniversary. The girl's father had just purchased the revolver and loaded it for the first time. No official investigation will be held because of the girl's condition, according to Coroner Joseph Friend. He gave "accidental death" as the cause.
