European Buffer States

Poland is spoken of as a "buffer state" for the same reason that Switzerland is—that is, because of its geographical location. A buffer state is one which intervenes geographically between larger states and lessens the danger of rupture from immediate contact of their unfriendly elements.

Carteret Stores

Retail stores are doing business today on a smaller margin of profit than ever.

The higher range of prices prevailing since the war has stimulated competition and has forced retail trade to remodel its system of operation and to make every possible improvement and economy in its methods. The stores are saving a margin for the public as a result of improved distribution methods.

Merchants today are putting more brains in their work. They get better expert advice, they understand markets better, they train their employees to render better service.

The best way to make the people of Carteret realize the fine quality of the service they get from their stores is by consistent advertising of those stores. As they read the newspaper advertising people learn about special chances to buy goods which they would never have known about otherwise.

They learn that stores are carrying lines that they knew nothing about. They get information warning them of conditions that tend toward higher prices, and showing them how they can save money by prompt purchasing. They learn that their home merchants have been scouring the country to obtain the best merchandise obtainable. They discover that their home stores are working mightily to provide the necessities and conveniences of life at the lowest possible price consistent with substantial merit.

The advertised store is the appreciated store.

Death To The Fly

If there is no breeding place for flies there will be no flies. The almost total disappearance of stables from cities has removed a prolific source of fly propagation. But not all the spots which assist the fly in preserving his species were in the vicinity of stables. Where there is filth there will be flies and where flies go there will come the filth accompany them.

Time was when flies were endured as an inevitable annoyance without an appreciation of the menace to health their presence is. They swarmed because no effort was made to eradicate them. That era is past but there are those still who tolerate conditions which in effect are not inimical to the interests of the fly. Not every house occupant can prevent flies from seeking entrance but everyone can keep them on the outside. It is within the province of all to refuse to purchase food products which are accessible to flies.

Were everyone to eliminate breeding places on his own premises and to screen and swat, the fly soon would become as completely extinct as the monsters of which we know only through their fossil remains. The fly is small but he makes up in industry and persistence what he lacks in size. We become alarmed when an epidemic threatens, yet too many of us tolerate the fly when we know his capacity as a disease carrier. Because he is no novelty we minimize the peril which he may transmit.

The Pathfinder

No man liveth unto himself alone. All need pathfinders. Newton, the scientist, said, "If I have achieved anything in science it is because I have stood on the shoulders of giants."

The young student takes it as a matter of course that he shall follow the old masters. If music, he sits at the feet of great guides—Bach, Beethoven, Chopin. If art, he works for hours before copies of the great masters—Raphael, Michael-Angelo, Murillo. The student not only knows the value of the pathfinder, but is happy to acknowledge the debt he owes these immortals.

So it is in business. The man who forges to the front in industrial or commercial life is the man who is closely in touch with everything the leaders in his line are doing. Business men are not ashamed to follow the pathfinder.

The greater the man, the more frankly does he acknowledge his debt to men still greater than himself. Plato sat at the feet of Socrates, Aristotle at the feet of Plato. Raphael learned his art from Angelo, and Corregio from Raphael.

None but a fool feels himself to be self-sufficient. The best of men must acknowledge their masters. Few there are in the galaxy of world stars that shine by themselves without the added luster of borrowed glory.

It is not weakness to have a pathfinder, but rather a mark of good sense.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, so almost anyone should be able to fit in somewhere.

Something should be done about blind crossings. Simple expediency urges the conservation of taxpayers.

The laying on of hands may have cured few diseases, but it worked wonders in chronic cases of impudence.

The man who slaps your face instead of your back plays fair. Ethics permit you to swat him in return.

Next to persons who know how to run a newspaper probably are those who are sure they could write a book if they had time.

It does absolutely no good to try to guess a woman's age. No man would have the courage to tell the truth if he were certain of it.

With the girls all working, young whippersnappers may get the notion that a helpmeet is one who will help meet the expenses.

Long hair, says a woman's page note, will come back slowly, if at all. Bobbed young ladies who are trying to grow it already knew that.

Failure of Children Too Frequently Fault of Those in Authority

By DR. ALBERT W. BEAVEN, Rochester (N. Y.) Minister.

It is the fault of the parents, the Sunday school teacher, the preacher and all the rest of us if the children fail. You can't hold eight-cylinder power with a flivver control, and that's what's the matter with the young people today. We are putting into our children's hands a great deal of power without an increase in those spiritual and moral ideals which will help them to control that power.

You give them five times as much spending money as they used to have, high-powered machines, social culture, unlimited freedom, and that calls for a high degree of moral ideals to help them to steer straight.

There is nothing our young folks need so much today as the ideals of religion. A good moral character on the part of the majority of our citizens is not to the interest of the few, but it is everybody's job, for every honest man pays the bills of the deadbeat and the criminal.

FIFTY MILLION GALLONS OF OIL FOR USE BY ONE COMPANY TO MAKE GAS THIS YEAR

Top of 3,000,000 gallon oil tank. (Showing size as compared with a man)

Public Service Electric and Gas Company, operating subsidiary of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, will use approximately 50,000,000 gallons of gas oil in the manufacture of gas during the year 1927, according to an estimate based upon actual consumption during the first half of the year. Based upon the current increase in the rate of consumption, officials expect to use about 55,000,000 gallons of oil in 1928. The company has just completed the erection of a new 3,000,000 gallon storage tank at the new Harrison Gas Works. Oil is used in the manufacture of water gas to increase the heating value of the gas. The oil sprayed on intensely heated fire brick surfaces gives off a gas which, combined with the ordinary water gas, makes carburetted gas of high heating value.

If the Merchants in our midst advertised in the newspapers of some distant city that the residents of that place could save through trading, in person or by mail, here, you would say it was not good sense.
You would consider that these out-of-town shoppers would have to spend money and time in making the trip; or would buy "blind" if they ordered by mail.
At that, these shoppers probably could buy cheaper from our merchants whose costs of doing business are smaller.
And yet it is no more foolish than for the people of this community to believe that they can buy cheaper by going to the expense of a trip elsewhere, or buying by mail, goods which they have never seen.

PLAN HIGHWAY OF 2,275 MILES

Concrete Roadway From Chicago to Los Angeles Is Contemplated.

Chicago.—A concrete highway from Chicago to Los Angeles will link the two fields of the Middle West with the oil regions and fruit lands of the Pacific. This is the plan of the recently formed United States Highway Association, which visualizes a "Main Street of America," that will serve both as a commercial and a military highway. Travel time between the two points will be reduced by several days, it is expected.

This pavement will be about 2,275 miles long and the width in heavily traveled sections will be as much as 100 feet. The mapped-out route is 200 miles shorter than any other highway or railroad between Chicago and Los Angeles and when finished the trip may be made comfortably in eight or ten days.

United States Highway 66, its official name, follows established main roadways as much as possible. In Illinois, for instance, the route follows the 275-mile paved highway from Chicago to St. Louis. However, in the interest of shortened travel United States Highway 66 breaks to the southwest from the Billonarea to Springfield and Joplin, even though a 200-mile stretch of concrete now extends westward from St. Louis to Kansas City. About half of the highway is paved from St. Louis to Joplin.

Expect Co-operation. From Joplin on there is very little paving, but through the centralized organization highway authorities are certain that the co-operation between county, state and federal government road builders will bring about an early completion of this concrete ribbon.

The route extends to Tulsa, Oklahoma City and Texola from Joplin and then touches an oil region of upper Texas. The roadway then passes on to mysterious Santa Fe, N. M., and from there to Albuquerque, which hardly anybody can spell, and on to Gallup, made famous by eastern scenario and magazine writers who have been there.

Holbrook, Flagstaff and Needles are high spots on the thoroughfare through the tombstone and cactus state of Arizona. The Rocky mountains are crossed without encountering any dangerous passes, welcome news for prospective tourists from the Great Plains. The roadway then drops down to San Bernardino, Calif., and Los Angeles but a short journey away.

Permanent Organization. The United States Highway 66 association is a permanent organization formed by chambers of commerce and automobile clubs, representatives of state officials from the Middle West to the Pacific coast. John T. Woodruff of Springfield, Mo., president of the association, has been engaged in both railroad and highway development work as an attorney and an engineer. Mr. Woodruff assisted in revolutionizing highway building in his state.

"A great highway," declares Mr. Woodruff, "cannot be worth its purpose unless, like a trunk-line railway, it connects our centers of population, taps our rich agricultural and mining regions and presages expansion for millions of young citizens in undeveloped territories. United States Highway 66, in my opinion, does all of that and more; it will, by every token, become America's 'Main Street' in reality as well as name."

FOR THE GOOSE— If you notice a person's perfect manners, chances are they ain't perfect, or you wouldn't be noticed them.

You won't keep your neighbors from kidding about your divver by dollin' it up with lace curtains.

Have a ten thousand dollar income don't make you as independent as earnin' five.

FOR THE GANDER— Don't keep a taxi chuggin' outside while you're callin'. A girl only likes a man to be a nut about one thing.

Don't think you're singin' no new song when you tell a pretty girl she's pretty. But somehow, they always like the old songs.

Give a woman all you've got. Then you can demand the same in return. And remember, the more you get a woman to give you, the more she's got for you.

EVERY LITTLE GIRL SHOULD KNOW JOY OF OWNING A PRINT SILK DRESS

WE HAVE with us a fastidious younger generation. Especially when it comes to a matter of wearing apparel are children of today showing an amusing sophistication. Designers who specialize in the creating of little folks' attire are good naturedly entering into the spirit of the thing, showing a willingness to indulge these young hopefuls in their desire to copy mother and big sister styles.

That the new tiny patterned silks which are "the rage" in the realm of grown-ups should prove of fascinating appeal to children is perfectly natural. The gay confetti and small floral designs enter so pleasingly into the scheme of childhood's fashions. There is, per example, this cunning dress in the picture—for a little girl's frock what material could be more apropos than the wee-figured silk of which this one is made? It is a style which is not only pretty in silk but it could be charmingly copied using wash chambray, which looks just like silk, or, if one prefers, cotton crepe print.

However, the fact of a really-truly silk dress counts much in childhood's realm, especially if it is adorned with little rufflings of petite ombre velvet ribbon, adding yet another note of charm. Yes, indeed, this silken frock is the ideal of all that any little girl might wish for a "Sunday-go-to-meeting" gown.

Printed georgettes occupying, as they do, a position of prominence throughout juvenile modes, confirm the statement that styles for the younger generation follow in the trend of their elders. The hat and frock ensembles of gay printed fabrics which children will wear this summer are a delight to the eye. Fine platings and ruffles, lace edgings and scallops contribute to the prettiness of the frocks. With quiet bannet shapes of the material likewise lace-trimmed and be-ribboned.

The outlook for the use of printed dainties is pronounced. Both dainty and linen prints are registered for a widespread vogue, also flowered organdy.

Where Men Are Men

Alf P. James, the Mexican bandit in "Rio Rita," tells of a fake Texas cowboy who roamed around Times square claiming to be attached to a Wild West show playing Coney Island.

One day, while bragging to a crowd of open-mouthed yaps, he bumped into a real cowpuncher, who promptly stood him on his head. After picking himself up and running to a safe distance, he defiantly shook his fist and yelled back:

"You can assault me here in the crowded city, but wait until I get you out on the plains."—New York Morning Telegraph.

Recognize Persons 13 Miles Away in Mirage

Cape May, N. J.—The most remarkable mirage seen hereabouts for years was visible the other day from the board walk. Ships that were 20 miles at sea, hull down beneath the horizon, were seen clearly. The beach at Cape Henlopen, 13 miles away, was so plainly seen that persons walking on the sand could be recognized. Woodland, back of Rehoboth beach, also was clearly visible. Old seamen say that the phenomenon is a certain sign of the approach of a severe storm.

PINNED BY TONS OF STEEL, SWEARS AND DRINKS RUM

Imprisoned Brakeman Is Cheered by Liquor as Rescuers Labor to Release.

New York.—The Red Hook section of Brooklyn marveled the other day at the fortitude of Richard O'Connor, a railway brakeman who was pinned for several hours under 14,000 pounds of steel and emerged from the experience alive.

O'Connor was riding the cow catcher of a switch engine in the New York Dock company yards at the foot of Pioneer street, Red Hook, when the engine jumped the tracks and overturned a freight car loaded with steel girders.

They tried to extricate him, but found the problem too difficult. When O'Connor scolded them for their delay, they scolded back at him in sociable fashion to keep his spirits up.

Announced That He Intended to Finish the Bottle.

fire department rescue squad came, saw, but failed to conquer. The jacks could not raise the freight car an inch. Dr. Edwin Goebel brought an ambulance and a quantity of good whiskey from Long Island college hospital.

The rescuers had been heaving and panting, and decided that they, too, could stand a drink. So the situation resolved into a race between them and O'Connor for the liquor.

Mexican Indian Sees White Man as Monkey

Usually these people (the Mexican Indians) have no correspondence with one at all. To them a white man or white woman is a sort of phenomenon, just as a monkey is a sort of phenomenon; something to watch and wonder at and laugh at, but not to be taken on one's own plane.

The white monkey has curious tricks. He knows, for example, the time. Now, to a Mexican and an Indian, time is a vague, foggy reality.

But to the white monkey, horrible to relate, there are exact spots of time, such as five o'clock, half past nine. The day is a horrible puzzle of exact spots of time.

The same with distance: horrible, invisible distances called two miles, ten miles. To the Indians, there is near and far, and very near, and very far. There is two days or one day. But two miles are as good as twenty to him, for he goes entirely by his feelings.

There'll be trouble yet at Weepah. One of the first gold rush photographs shows a poker game in which the player in the left foreground is looking over the cards of his neighbor to the right.

USE HANGMAN'S ROPE TO ESCAPE

Prisoners Slide From Roof on Death Line.

Columbia, Miss.—By means of the ropes used in the execution in the Marlon county jail here last year of Jeff Wallace for wife murder, H. E. McKeown, alleged embezzler, and John Sherwood, charged with the theft of an automobile, recently made their escape from jail in broad daylight.

Their absence was discovered by a passer-by seeing the long rope hanging from the roof in the bastille. Officers were notified and soon the sheriff and deputies were hurrying in all directions in quest of the fugitives.

Local agencies in 1925 expended $5,829,000,000, according to the board's figures, as against $5,421,000,000 in 1924 and $5,136,000,000 in 1923.

The increase in population has been more rapid than that of expenditures, however, so the per capita cost of government decreased slightly in 1925, according to the board's computation, were $96.14; for 1924, $96.58; for 1923, $91.90; for 1913, $30.24.

GOVERNMENT COSTS PEOPLE 11 BILLION DOLLARS YEARLY

Figures Represent the Aggregate Expenditures of Federal, State and Local Governments.

Washington.—The total cost of government in the United States for the fiscal year 1925 was $11,124,000,000, compared to $10,983,000,000 for 1924 and $2,919,000,000 for 1913, according to the national industrial conference board, as announced recently.

The increase over 1924 was despite a $365,000,000 decrease in the federal government's disbursements. Federal expenses increased again in 1926, however.

"Although the federal government in 1925 succeeded in checking the rising tendency of its expenditures through a consistent policy of economy and judicious debt retirement there is little hope that departmental expenses can be much further reduced owing to the increasing demand for necessary public service of all kinds," said Magnus W. Alexander, president of the conference board.

Local agencies in 1925 expended $5,829,000,000, according to the board's figures, as against $5,421,000,000 in 1924 and $5,136,000,000 in 1923.

The increase in population has been more rapid than that of expenditures, however, so the per capita cost of government decreased slightly in 1925, according to the board's computation, were $96.14; for 1924, $96.58; for 1923, $91.90; for 1913, $30.24.

Million Miles Flown for Each Fatality in U. S.

Newark, N. J.—One can now fly more than 1,000,000 miles to the risk of a single fatality. This is the present situation in this country as established by the air-mail service and which is welcomed by those interested in commercial aviation enterprises.

Hazards in commercial flying are rapidly diminishing in proportion to the distance traveled, as the area of operations expands, is the preliminary conclusion of Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician, Prudential Insurance company, who has for several years been investigating the situation.

Undersea Relief Maps of Pacific Made by Navy Washington.—An achievement of the navy during the cruise of the battle fleet from San Francisco to Australia two years ago has just come to light with publication of undersea relief maps of the route the ships followed on that historic voyage of more than 7,000 miles.

Graphic representations of soundings taken at the time by the battleship Maryland, the light cruiser Milwaukee, and the destroyer Hull are shown. They are expected to be of incalculable value to navigation in the Pacific as well as to the advancement of the science of oceanography.

Equipped with sonic electric depth-sounding devices, it was an easy matter for the ships to chart the bed of the waters as they passed over. They accurately mapped the deepest ravines. Sheer pinnacles rising 24,000

He is most enthusiastic in his anticipation for the future of flying, believing that in a few years flying will be as common on this side of the Atlantic as it is in Europe at the present time.

Doctor Hoffman is also of the opinion that recent legislation providing for the federal supervision of flying tends strongly in the direction of greater safety by providing for thorough inspection of all aircraft and periodical examination of pilots.

PLANES AND RADIO HELP CATCH FISH

Newest Things Help Oldest Human Industry.

Washington.—Aircraft and radio, the newest things under the sun, are being recruited to the aid of fishing, a human industry as old as hunting and older than farming, according to Lewis Radcliffe, deputy United States fish commissioner.

Canada, England, Scotland, France and Japan are among the countries making use of airplanes for locating schools of fish, whales, etc., and for maintaining patrols against illicit fishing. The Danish government is also reported to be contemplating an airplane fish patrol off the coast of Greenland, where there is a stretch of 225 miles of fishing waters which a single surface vessel cannot adequately guard, but which could easily be kept under supervision by a fast-flying and far-seeing plane.

The United States was the pioneer in this work, having used planes and dirigibles as early as 1913, but lack of funds and the disorganized condition of the fisheries have prevented further development in this country.

In Spain efforts are now being made to interest fishing-vessel owners to install radio telephone receiving and transmitting apparatus and at least one fishing vessel has been equipped. In addition to the benefits in case of storm or disaster, it is claimed that the addition of this equipment will enable the fishing vessel to keep in touch with the market and thus return at more advantageous periods; that canneries may be notified of expected time of arrival and extent of catch.

When I Was Twenty-One

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Maria Barrientos Had a Fitting and Sweet Revenge.

"WHEN I was a young girl my teacher took me to the great opera house in Barcelona, Spain, to sing for the conductor. I was a very small, unimpressive little girl, somewhat lost in the cavernous darkness of the great stage, but my teacher was very proud and very jealous of my ability.

"Some years later, when I had grown to be twenty-one, and of some celebrity, I was selected as the prima donna for the gala performance in honor of the coronation of the king of Spain. The conductor of this performance was the same man who had refused to believe in little Maria."—Maria Barrientos.

TODAY—Maria Barrientos is a prima donna of international fame. She was the leading coloratura soprano with the Metropolitan opera, in New York, until a few seasons ago, and created many famous roles.

Use Fish as Illuminant

The candle fish is still being used by the Indians in some parts of British Columbia for illuminating purposes. After catching the candle fish, the Indians place them in a dry, sheltered place and wait till they have shrunk and all the water has evaporated from them. They then set the head or tail of the fish alight and use the carcass as they would a torch.

Immense Watershed

The Great Divide is the name given to the watershed formed by the Rocky mountains in British Columbia, which separates the rivers flowing eastward into Hudson bay from those which flow to the southwest and empty into the Pacific ocean.

Why You Should Vote YES For a School in East Rahway

Below is listed all the families who have children of school age and the exact number of children. Most of these are small children, who, in all sorts of weather must go a mile and a half to get to school. At lunch these same small children cannot get a good warm lunch, that is absolutely essential to their health. You cannot realize this for your children are always home at 12 o'clock and are fit for their studies after a good meal.

The cost of the proposed school is not going to be a burden to Carteret taxpayers for the reason that a school in East Rahway will add valuation and also induce families to build homes in the neighborhood all of which means added revenue to the Borough.

Propaganda being circulated about the Borough showing figures as to the amount of school children, is all without foundation the accurate figures are listed here:

Table listing names and child counts for families in East Rahway. Includes names like JOHN LYSEK, PAUL LYSEK, S. JACKULIK, etc., and a total of 99 children.

MAN NEAR DEATH THRU EFFORTS TO SAVE DAUGHTER

Child's Head is Jammed in Mud of Creek While Bathing; Unusual Predicament

FATHER ATTEMPTS RESCUE

Both Are Saved by Brother-in-Law; Father and Daughter are Finally Resuscitated

A rather unusual story came to light during the past week, that of the narrow escape from death of 12 year old Anna Stotto and her father Joseph Stotto, of Woodbridge avenue, Port Reading, while they were swimming with a party of friends in Woodbridge Creek last week.

According to reports of friends of the girl and father, little Anna, unable to swim, saw the older folks diving from the bank, and thought she could accomplish the same stunt. On diving she became mired in the bottom of the creek, ten foot below the surface.

Her father saw the little girl dive and immediately went in after her. After a considerable struggle, he managed to free the girl only to become stuck in the mud himself and he was unable to come to the surface.

Stotto's brother-in-law, Michael Paterosi, also a member of the party, rescued the girl as she came to the top of the water and then went in after her father, who was dragged from the mud none the worse for his experience.

Anna was believed to be dead. But her father and Paterosi worked over her more than a hour while Joseph Sciaro, better known as "Joe the Barber," ran the considerable distance to the nearest telephone to call Dr. Samuel Messinger, of Carteret.

It seemed at first that his arrival had been too late. He picked up the child to empty her lungs and then examined her for heart action, but found none. Then he drove a hypodermic needle through the chest and directly into the heart, injecting a dose of adrenalin.

An anxious wait followed. Finally he could detect weak movements inside the chest. They grew stronger and the cyanosis, or blueness of the face and body, gradually cleared up.

As these signs of life returned, however, complications developed. The heart action was spasmodic. Dr. Messinger found that the child's struggle for life had caused acute dilation of the heart. After the circulation had been restored, it became necessary to depress the heart action in order to prevent a break-down of the overstrained heart. Dr. Messinger remained up with the child all night, giving repeated hypodermic injections of a form of digitalis, closely calculating the quantity to keep the heart action sufficiently vigorous to maintain life, but not sufficient to cause a collapse of the weakened organ.

On the following day she was better, but remained in need of constant attention until today, when she was finally out of danger.

The creek has been condemned as a bathing place by the Woodbridge Board of Health. Stotto, nevertheless, gathered together his family and a few friends on Thursday evening and went to the place for a swim.

CARTERET H. S. ALUMNI ORGANIZE FOR COMING YEAR

Ted Daniels Elected President; Plans are Being Made for Social Session Soon

At a joint meeting of the classes of 1926 and 1927 of Carteret High School Alumni Association was organized for the next year. Ted Daniels was elected president following the election of officers for the ensuing year. The alumni turned out in full glory for the meeting which was held at Cohen's Annex, Monday evening.

The other officers elected were: Miss Dorothy Brown, vice president; Miss Loretta Kay, treasurer; and Jacob Berson, secretary. Each of the officers expressed their gratitude upon election and pledged themselves toward the advancement of the association. Before the close of the meeting former president Gervase Harrigan turned the meeting over to the new executive and wished him success. Three rousing cheers were given Harrigan by the graduates.

An executive committee consisting of Miss Mae Misdom, Herbert Nannen, Isaac Nadel and Frank Knorr, was appointed by President Daniels to work in co-operation with the officers on matters which the entire association are unable to meet. A short business session was held following the election of officers. It is quite likely that the Alumni will meet once again before the start of the next school year, in the form of a social session.

The association endorsed a movement to work in co-operation with the faculty of the high school and the Board of Education in the welfare of the high school. The president was authorized to represent the organization in such matters.

LOCAL YOUTH IS INJURED IN RUSH ON BURNING CAR

Cut by Flying Glass as Crowd Tries to Escape from Burning Trolley Car

Rushed about by a panicky crowd in their efforts to escape from a burning trolley car, John DeBot, of 270 Washington avenue, was seriously injured by flying glass, sustaining a severed artery in his left leg. The accident occurred on Victory Boulevard, Staten Island, near Clove road. A party of other Carteret people were in the car and all were badly shaken up.

John DeBot and his cousin, George DeBot, were on their way to New York City, when the accident happened. A fuse in the switch box of the trolley car blew out, causing a fire. The crowd of passengers rushed the doors of the car jamming DeBot against the door, breaking the glass and falling pieces cutting several passengers. After the doors were finally opened it was found that DeBot was bleeding profusely from the leg. He was rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital, at West New Brighton.

Very little damage to the trolley car was caused by the fire.

SCHOOL FOR EAST RAHWAY IS TURNED DOWN BY VOTERS

Proposition Meets With Objection of Voter at Special Election at High School, Tuesday

ABOUT 500 VOTES ARE CAST

Project Defeated 2 to 1; Disappointing to Citizens of East Rahway; Condemn Buses

The proposition of a school for East Rahway in the near future has faded with the defeating of that project by the voters of the Borough at a special election, held in the High School Tuesday.

About 500 voters kept the clerks of the election busy from 3.00 p. m., at which time the polls opened, till about 5.00 p. m., and at 7.30 the last of the ballots were counted.

The special election was called for the voters' approval of four resolutions, relating to the purchase of a site and erection of a school in East Rahway and the means of raising the necessary moneys.

Plans for the proposed school were prepared by F. F. Simons and presented to the Board of Education at a recent meeting of the Commissioners, when after a rather stormy session and a vote the plans were approved. Several members of the Board did not approve of the type of structure that was presented in the plans.

The four resolutions embodied in the ballot were voted as follows: The purchase of a site of sixteen lots in the tract of the Carteret Heights Realty Company, for the sum of $2,500.00, was turned down by a vote of 314 No; and 152 Yes.

The second on the ballot was: Should the Board of Education cause to be constructed a school in East Rahway, for a sum not to exceed $82,500.00. This was defeated by a still larger majority, 316 votes were cast against it and 144 for it.

The other two resolutions, one for the issuance of bonds to cover the cost of the site and building of the school were voted down by a vote of 319 to 144. The question as to the maturity of the bonds received 140 votes in favor and 294 votes against the plan proposed on the ballot.

Much opposition to the type of school that was proposed, has been circulated during the past several weeks. Voters were of the opinion that a much smaller school should be erected in that neighborhood and many spoke in favor of the portable type of school. Mr. Simons, the architect for the rejected plan, said that that type of building would not receive the approval of the State Board of Education.

Citizens of East Rahway feel that they should have a school in that section, stating that their children are exposed to considerable danger in commuting to and from Carteret by bus. There is always danger of an accident of a serious nature when a car travels the route which the bus does to reach Carteret. They feel that any additional increase in taxes would be more than made up by the additional building that a school would stimulate in the East Rahway section.

SCHOOL BOARD IN BRIEF SESSION ON SCHOOL ELECTION

Commissioners Hear Plea of Delegation of East Rahway Citizens on Revival of School Question

A brief session of the Board of Education was held last night at the High School, at which time Joseph Trefinko heading a delegation of East Rahway citizens was heard in reference to the school question, which was defeated at a special election Tuesday.

Mr. Trefinko pointed out the necessity of a school in his community and petitioned the Board to again bring before the people that proposition. "We don't care what sort of building you give us as long as it answers the purpose of a school," said Trefinko.

An estimate of the number of children to benefit by the school was placed at 95. The committee also pointed out that under the present conditions the children of East Rahway were compelled to commute by bus in all sorts of weather and undergo the hazard of crossing two track crossings.

The matter was laid over till the next meeting.

Stores in Borough Are Remodeled

Merchants in Carteret are beginning to see the necessity of improving the appearance of their places of business. Three stores at the present time are undergoing alterations. Ulman's Bakery has added considerable attraction to the Washington avenue shopping district by building a brick front on their building. Bernard Kahn has remodeled the windows of his furniture store, giving a real city-like aspect to the corner of Washington avenue and Atlantic street.

Rabinowitz's Hardware Store is enlarging its quarters taking in the building formerly occupied by B. Jacobowitz, and more than doubling their floor space. Continual growth has compelled this move.

H. Gross, furniture merchant, located at 324 Pershing avenue is also adding floor space to his store and rebuilding the front.

FULL STOP LAW ENDORSED BY ALL ASSO. A. C. OF N. J.

Raritan Automobile Club Represented at Meeting by L. W. Stalter; Pledge Support

Representatives of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey in conference at Atlantic City not only expressed their whole-hearted approval of the full stop law but also pledged all their influence and their resources as the spokesmen of motordom in the state to the education of the public as to the significance of the law and the importance of strict observance and rigid enforcement of all its provisions.

The keynote of the meeting was unanimous approval of the full stop law, all the speakers taking the position that no law or regulation had been adopted in many years that so calculated to expedite traffic and promote traffic safety as is the full stop law, provided it is rigidly observed and strictly enforced. Among the requisites for making it a success the following considerations were stressed:

That the stop street sign to be used be made uniform throughout the state; that the maximum speed on the street be enforced in order to prevent confusion and discrimination; that steps be taken to have all stop streets designated as soon as possible; that from the outset the law be rigorously enforced, the motor clubs pledging themselves to give full support to the enforcement officials and not to countenance violations on the part of their members.

The Raritan Automobile Club was represented by L. W. Stalter, of Perth Amboy, a member of the Executive Committee of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey.

EVERYONE OF US OWE OBLIGATIONS TO COMMUNITY

Backbone of Community Service Found in Support Merchants Give to Residents

ALSO HELPS BOYS & GIRLS

In Time of Need You Can Get Credit Extended to You Here in Your Home Town

What do you owe your home town?

Whatever the bill is, none will be presented to you for payment. The debt is an intangible one, no matter how large it is. If you do not realize the size of it, nobody will try to tell you. You know what the town has done for you, and you know better than anybody else what you ought to do for the town.

Two questions may serve to bring the issue home to you:

When your wife and children were critically ill, was it the doctor from the city who pulled them through? You didn't even think of calling him. Your first thought was of the home town doctor, and he saved the lives of your dear ones.

When you lost your job, who gave you credit and tided you over the winter?

It certainly wasn't the store in the city that advertises "bargains" for the country shopper. The merchant on "Front Street" or "Main Street" stood by you then, as he has for others, and as he will again some time when the emergency arises.

If these things have not happened to you, they have happened to your neighbors, and you know about them. Mere money cannot pay for disinterested service such as the doctor and the merchant render under the circumstances. And they are not cited with the idea of wakening a feeling of obligation toward those individuals who render us signal service on extraordinary occasions.

They are brought up, rather, with the view to making every man, woman and child realize his partnership in the community and his responsibility in that partnership which means so much to him.

The doctor and the merchant are not the only men toward whom others in the community owe this obligation to maintain the community as a self-sustaining entity. They are simply given as examples of how the proposition works out concretely. They are among the leaders who have consecrated what they are and what they possess to the service of the town in which they live, and all for the well-being of its people and their future as a community. On the basis of the law of compensation alone they ought to receive some form of pay for their effort, because even the Bible concedes that the workers is always worthy of his hire.

The cure effected by the doctor and the credit extended by the merchant are two specific instances of benefits coming to the resident of the small town. These are not all the benefits, for their number is legion. In good times as well as hard times they come, because they are not restricted by the season of the year or limited to periods of necessity. Like "the gentle rain from heaven" about which Portia speaks so benignly in her famous courtroom speech to Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," Shakespeare's masterpiece, these benefits fall upon "just" and "unjust" alike. Nobody is shut out from their enjoyment.

For instance, there are the schools: Everybody pays toward their support in proportion to his ability to pay. They are open to all the children, and by their precept and example they are helping your boys and girls to their place "in the sun." Schools bring to the young a bigger share of life, and set before them the high ideals of our democracy. They show the son of the rail-splitter the road to the president's chair.

The church is another institution that makes community life pleasant for every member of the family. It stands for a better community all around. As the word is used here it refers to all creeds, and is in no sense to be considered in its sectarian or denominational significance. Pastors are leaders in all good causes, and they rally their congregations to civic wholesomeness in the life of the community.

Happiness and contentment bring about also a rich social life. You get together with your neighbors in moments of relaxation from your day's toil and enjoy intercourse with them. Clubs and organizations unite you in bonds that hold you together for one purpose or another.

A score of other things might be mentioned, but space forbids. For instance, there is the library, with its rich storehouse of the best in the world's literature. Also, there are the material things that minister to

RISK DEATH TO DELIVER MAIL

U. S. Air Pilots Constantly Beset by Dangers, Archives Reveal.

Washington.—Everyone entering or leaving Washington cannot help being struck by these words carved high on the pediment of the United States Post Office building:

"Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

These lines, written by Herodotus, probably describe better than any contemporary the glory which every American attaches to the air mail service since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made his flight. Yet they were not written with any New York-to-Paris flight in mind, but as a compliment to the couriers of Cyrus the Great, hundreds of years before the birth of Christ, writes H. Cabot Lodge, Jr., in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Colonel Lindbergh has shown us that they are not an overstatement, but how many of us realize that hidden in the yellowing archives of the Post Office department are reports of air mail flyers who by their thoughtless bravery justified that tribute before Colonel Lindbergh became the cynosure of all eyes?

The reports of air mail pilots in the Post Office department reflect that very humor, heroism and modesty which every one now exalts in Colonel Lindbergh. The corps to which he belongs is a magnificent background for him, and more should be known about these men who risk their lives throughout the twenty-four hours so that a business letter may reach San Francisco on time.

It is hard to make a selection from the wealth of material in the archives of the Post Office department. One first of all is struck by the many humorous incidents connected with the air mail service, which are all too often coupled with desperate fights against the elements in a Rocky mountain gorge.

Wants Ride if Plane Is Safe.

Here is a worthy on a Utah ranch who makes this unique contribution to the division superintendent:

"Your flying machines pass over my ranch nearly every day and I am quite interested in them. If they are absolutely safe I would like to take a ride some day when I come up to Salt Lake. I noticed one passing the other day which didn't have any propeller on. It seemed to be in a terrible hurry to get to Salt Lake to get another propeller."

Then there are stories of planes which land on rabbits and of eagles which land on planes and are pursued by their mates. One eagle got caught in a strut of the plane's wing, and when removed the pilot was interested to find that it had a wing spread of eight feet and weighed eight pounds.

A novel version of Charles A. Dana's definition of news is recorded when a dog tried to bite an airplane at the Concord (Calif.) field. The propeller cut the dog's head off and flung it in the face of a nearby pilot with such force as to cut a large gash in his face.

But these humorous anecdotes are only the flavoring for the real bulk of the story of everyday heroism which these records contain. There is "Red" Andert, for instance, one of Lindbergh's brothers in arms on the route from Salt Lake City to Pasco, Wash. One night last December "Red"—his real name is Paul—had some rough riding, which is told in the following report by his division superintendent:

"Andert hit the mountain ranges covered solid with heavy fog. He stuck his nose into it, but couldn't see the end of his wing, so changed his mind then and there. No breaks in the fog for over thirty miles—but he wouldn't come back. Landed on a highway leading through a pass and started taxiing to the summit. His progress may not have been so 'swift,' but it was 100 per cent complete."

Roads "Bad" for Planes.

The report then explains the difficulties of driving over mountain roads in an airplane, and then states that "Red" was stopped because one of the wings of his plane hit a post.

"Then he walked several miles," the report continued, "and hired a Ford truck to tow him over the saddle. Got sufficient visibility to take off—right off the road. Another hour of flying and more fog. No road to land on this time, but there was a river deep down between steep walls on either side. He made for it, flying under the bank of fog just above the water. Thirty miles of this. Then the fog lifted."

"Andert was now in unfamiliar territory. Over another mountain covered with fog and landed at a farmhouse to get loc on. The house, he found, was empty. While he had gone to the house his filling motor had stopped. The main gasoline tank was dry, but there were ten gallons of gas in the emergency tank. From the time he had been out and the way his compass had been spinning he could have been in Colorado, Wyoming, Oregon or possibly Idaho, where he was supposed to be."

"He started out again and soon hit a clear space and familiar territory. Arrived in Boise having been out eight hours for a trip of a little more than 800 miles."

Another pilot, C. K. Vance, by name, ran into a snow storm on the Nevada-California state line in the middle of jagged mountain peaks.

"After trying for three hours to break through," so runs the official report, "he found himself in the center of the storm, with fuel low and darkness coming on. He landed in an open space covered with six feet of brush without injury to himself. He started out in the storm to the mining camp at Last Chance."

Spends Night in Snow. "Making little headway," he decided he couldn't reach the camp, and therefore, started a fire between two fallen trees and spent the night there in the snow. At daybreak he started for the mining camp and reached it about 7 o'clock. Accompanied by miners, he started back to the ship with pack mules, for the mail, which was delivered at Colfax post office at 9:30 that night. Meanwhile all planes in the vicinity were searching for him, as there are no telephone facilities at Last Chance."

A veteran of the Salt Lake City-San Francisco loop, Pilot C. Eugene, "Johnny" Johnson, had a harrowing experience last February, which he describes in the following terms: "Across Sacramento valley I had a ceiling of about 2,000 feet, with light rain most of the way. Troy and Reno weather reports not unfavorable and I could see mountain tops on the hump (this means the Sierra Nevada), just before landing at Mather field."

"Was forced onto the railroad two or three miles east of American canyon, at which point the rain had turned to snow. The dark leeward sides of the snowsheds made a good mark to follow in the snowstorm until I reached a point about Troy, where I lost sight of everything."

"Circled several times trying to get on, but gave up. Decided to return to Mather, but was only able to return a mile or two. It had closed in behind me and the going was not too good in between these points. Was gradually forced to the floor of the canyon, much below the level of the railroad, and finally was limited to a tight spiral, in order to see the ground at all."

"By this time the lower wing was just clearing the trees and the rocks and the exceedingly rough going made things quite impossible. Saw a cleared space of perhaps a hundred yards between the trees and tried to park the wreck in this space, but due to rough air and rotten visibility I was unable to judge my turn so that I could head into it. Missed it three times."

Parked in the Trees. "Was in practically a vertical bank all the time and finally decided that clear space or not, I had to get down. Cut out switches and parked in the trees. Broke off a pine tree at the snow-line about 18 inches in diameter. Apparently in the air when I struck it, for the ship piled up a washout 30 feet beyond the tree in one mass."

"When a plane 'piles up a washout' it means in ordinary English that it has been completely wrecked."

"I had lost my sense of direction," Johnson continues, "so with the aid of a pocket compass I headed south. The snow was 10 to 15 inches deep and I was told later that 40 inches of it had fallen in the preceding 24 hours. My snowshoes sank into it for at least a foot every step. This, added to the fact that there was a 45 to 50 degree slope covered with crevasses, made the going pretty bad. It was for this reason that it took me so long to get word to Reno."

"After four hours of climbing I picked up the railroad and started hiking west—down grade. Found a telephone in a snowshed about a mile away."

There are many more fascinating tales in the archives of the Post Office department, all showing a similar picturesqueness and insouciance. Some get killed and many take mortal chances, but the mail is delivered regardless of risk.

Dog's Death Attributed to Grief for Master

Butte, Wash.—What is said to be a case of broken heart resulting in the death of a dog grieving for its master has been revealed.

Several weeks ago Homer Emerson, miner, was injured and died.

A Chesapeake dog, a year old, was raised by Mr. Emerson. The day following the death of his master the dog refused to eat, and on the day of the funeral carried one of his master's shoes out to the garden and, lying on the shoe, continued to whine as though in pain. Friends who tried to take the shoe from the pup were greeted with bared teeth and snarls.

Mrs. Emerson then tried to bring the shoe back into the house but the dog refused to allow her to touch it. During the evening the dog buried the shoe and slept over the mound of loose dirt.

The dog died ten days after

KELLY DESERTS FLAGPOLE AFTER 12 DAYS' SETTIN'

"Shipwreck" Is Acclaimed New Hero of the Air by Newark Populace,

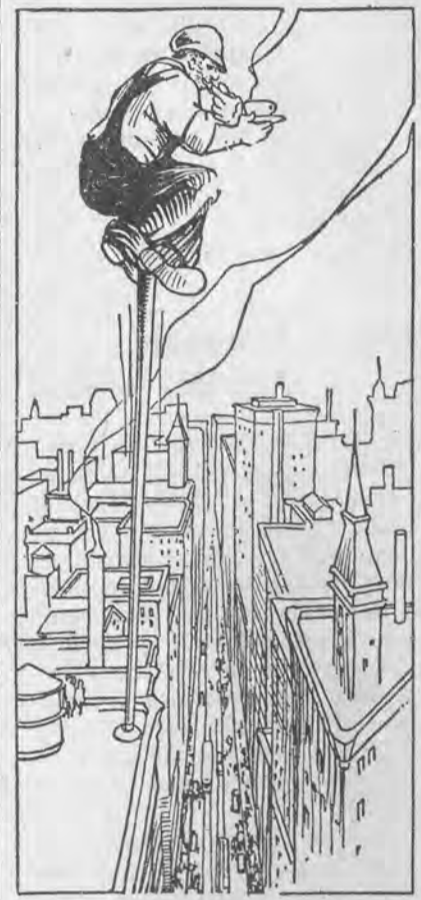

Newark, N. J.—Alvin ("Shipwreck") Kelly came down from the flagpole atop the eight-story St. Francis hotel, the world's champion flagpole sitter.

Twelve days, twelve nights and twelve hours "Shipwreck" had sat on that pole, and he came down triumphant, to the acclaim of several thousand Newark citizens, who jammed the streets while the police reserves were called out.

No human hand parted his shoulder during all that long vigil. No human voice whispered words of encouragement in his ear even while the rain trickled coldly down his spinal column.

Refuses to Heed Wife.

His wife hollered at him occasionally, especially when his week was up. He had promised to come down then, having equaled his own record, set in New Orleans. But he did not. So his wife, a bride of six months, sighed a little sigh for all women who happen to marry flagpole sitters and resumed her crocheting at the foot of the pole.

The lone owl of the flagpole sitters is surprisingly like other men in appearance. No one would pick him out of a crowd and say, "There is a born flagpole sitter." He is a small man, about thirty-four years old, not likely to work on St. Patrick's day.

Two Incidents Mar Occasion.

Two regrettable incidents marred his landing. One was that when he was half way down the lights playing on him suddenly went out, the prey of an unappreciative fuse.

"Stay right where you are," his press agent yelled, "until we get those lights on again!" Kelly stayed.

The other was the absence of Grover Whalen from the reception committee.

Kelly does not take credit solely to himself. When he speaks of his feat he says "we" and "us," meaning himself and his flameole.

Fishes for Catfish, Catches Litter of Drowned Cats

Petersburg, Ind.—While fishing for catfish in Flat creek recently, Kell McCormack, a farmer of Cato, made a catch of cats, but the fish were not there. McCormack had a "bite," and he gave a jerk, and brought to the surface a sack filled with cats. McCormack did not investigate, but thinking he had solved a deep mystery and the body of a child was in the sack, he rushed to Cato, where he told his story, and was accompanied to the creek, where the sack was opened, and five dead cats were found.

Three Youths Rescued From Death in Lake

Sandusky, Ohio.—Adrift three days in a severe storm on Lake Erie, three small boys were rescued from a tiny open boat the other day off Put-In-Bay, Ohio., after all hope of their being saved had been given up.

William, fourteen; Thomas, ten, and John, eight, sons of Charles Jackson of Bowles Harbor, Mich., paddled out into Lake Erie at six o'clock in the morning to fish. They took their dog with them. Night came, and the boys did not return. The frantic parents appealed for aid, and search parties went out.

Nothing more was heard of the youngsters, and when a severe storm came up it was believed that they had perished. The third day after they left home Henry Sampson of Put-In-Bay saw a boat adrift in the lake and braved the rough water to make a rescue.

Sampson found the boys asleep in the boat, with the dog standing guard over them. He got the craft and its occupants ashore, and soon the famished boys and dog were comfortable at a hotel with Mayor T. E. Alexander of Put-In-Bay and villagers caring for them.

The boys were adrift 60 hours and traveled 70 miles. How the boat survived the storm is a mystery to lake fishermen. William became "terribly seasick," but his brothers were not affected. The hands of the boys are blistered from trying to row the boat to land against the high seas that rolled on them.

Bites Hand Saving Him, but It's in His Mouth

Michigan City, Ind.—Dr. G. C. Kasdorf will carry tooth-mark scars on his right hand the rest of his life, the result of saving the life of James Johnson, twelve, of Porter, near here.

The boy had choked on a bit of apple and had lapsed into unconsciousness when the physician arrived. Seeing that, unless relieved, the boy would soon die from loss of breath, the doctor did not take time to unlumber surgical instruments but plunged his fingers into the boy's throat and extracted the cause of the trouble.

He was in the act of withdrawing his hand when consciousness returned to the victim and his teeth crunched down on the doctor's hand. It was some time before the boy let go.

Court Sentences Dog

Winchester, Va.—The Circuit court of Frederick county has solemnly imposed the death penalty on a dog. The case came up on an appeal from a decision of a magistrate who ordered the dog killed after deciding it had been "running, wounding and killing sheep, against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth."

Bridegrooms Pick Types

A helpful German philosopher has made it easier for a man to decide what sort of a wife he ought to have. All he has to do is to find out whether he is a hyomaptic cyclothymous type or an antistisic schelzoid. As soon as he knows this the rest is easy, says "Capper's Weekly."

Shaft to Honor Yankee Dead of Canadian Army

Washington.—Selection of a site in Arlington cemetery for a monument to be presented by Canada to the American government in commemoration of Americans killed in the World war while serving with Canadian units was begun the other day by a commission from Ottawa. The monument will be known as "The Cross of Sacrifice."

The delegation consisted of Col. H. C. Osborn of the Canadian department of national defense, and Ernest H. Scammell, assistant deputy minister and secretary of the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment. They conferred with the War department officials and visited the cemetery, accompanied by Merchant Mahoney, commercial secretary of the Canadian legation.

Girl Stowaway on Ship En Route to Hollywood

San Francisco.—Rose Host, eight-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hattie Host of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a stowaway on board the Panama-Pacific liner Manchuria, en route up the Pacific coast from the Panama canal. The announcement was made by the local offices of the company, following receipt of a message from Capt. W. J. Munro, stating that the girl had stowed away on his ship in order to get to Hollywood and seek work in the movies. The company ordered him to "treat the girl well and put her off the ship at San Diego."

the comfort and well-being of the people. Among them are paved or macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks, corner lights, police protection and a fire department; electric or some other system of lighting for the home, gas to make kitchen work easier, water, sewer and similar improvements and conveniences.

The stronger the community spirit the more of these there are. The taxes you pay settles the bills for the things already acquired; the weight of your co-operation with the progressive leaders assures others in the future. ### "Humanity" Student

Humanity may be defined as a student of human affairs. In this sense Shakespeare is called the great humanist. The term more generally means a student of the "humanities," that is, a student of the ancient classical languages, literature and history.

How It Started By JEAN NEWTON

"CATERWAULING"

THIS term, frequently used to describe a tumult of harsh noises, is assumed to refer, of course, to the cries of cats. And while it is true that this association enters into its significance, there is far more to the word than that. There is a story in its origin.

"Caterwauling" is English for "Katsenmusik" (cat music), which is the German translation of "Charivari," the name of a well known institution of French rowdiness of former times.

"Charivari" described the hubbub and uproar produced by the noise of pots and pans and dishes mingled with bawling and shrieking which was designed to express dislike or disapproval of the person against whom it was directed. During the Middle Ages in France a charivari was frequently raised against people marrying the second time, the widow particularly being booted by the masked participants who usually had to be bought off to give the victims peace. The same thing happened at weddings where the mating was considered unequal because of great disparity of age.

"Charivari" existed under different names in many countries in Europe, sometimes taking such violent form that military interference was necessary to put it down. In the fourteenth century the church threatened punishment and even excommunication to people participating in such demonstrations. Later charivari took on a political significance, as during the Restoration in France. By that time, however, the world had advanced to the stage where the attacks and violence began to take intellectual rather than physical form, the medium being the public press. Indeed a paper called "Charivari" was established in Paris in December, 1832, with the avowed purpose of satirizing the happenings of the day. From this came the German "Katsenmusik"

Fashion and Good Breeding

A circle of men perfectly well bred would be a company of sensible persons in which every man's native manners and character appeared. If the fashionist have not this quality he is nothing. We are such lovers of self-reliance that we excuse in a man many sins if he will show us a complete satisfaction in his position, which asks no leave to be of mine or any man's good opinion.—Emerson.

Stroller Stubs Toe on Costly Ambergris

Los Angeles, Calif.—"This is my lucky day," sang W. R. Richardson of Pasadena, as he strolled the sands at Laguna beach. He stubbed his toe and fell, but continued to sing. Then he looked down and found he had fallen over a large mass of ambergris. The substance, weighing more than a pound, has the consistency of wax. Richardson was told he had made a valuable find, as perfume makers cannot get enough ambergris for their needs.

SECTION WORKERS KILL BIG RATTLESNAKE

Giant Texas Reptile Weighs 113 Pounds.

Raymondville, Texas.—Section hands at Rudolph, a station on the Missouri Pacific lines in Kendall county, north of here, killed a rattlesnake which weighed 113 pounds, according to the section foreman, Will Reeves, who was in Raymondville.

Reeves stated that the rattlesnake had 24 rattles and measured four inches across the head. He said the monster snake crawled right into the midst of the section crew, before they were aware of its presence, and began striking at the men, all the time making a hideous whirring noise with his rattles. He was 11 feet long, Reeves stated.

The men killed the reptile by plunging crowbars into his body, after the manner of throwing spears.

Reeves states that he has lived and worked on the Missouri Pacific line as section foreman in Kendall county ever since its construction through those wilds, and that he has killed rattlers with as many as 40 rattles, but that it was the largest one that he had ever seen.

Woman Who Lost All Inherits Big Fortune

Duncan, Okla.—Part of a fortune which was taken from Mrs. Pat C. Byrne of this city by Mexican bandits and rebels 25 years ago is coming back to her. For 20 years she has been a seamstress in a Duncan tailoring shop.

Now, through the death of an aunt in Mexico, she has inherited part of an estate worth $1,000,000. The Mexican government has just recognized

Controlling Temper

If you wish not to be of an angry temper, do not feed the habit; throw nothing on it which will increase it; at first keep quiet and count the days on which you have not been angry. I used to be in a passion every day; now every second day; then every third; then every fourth. But if you have intermitted thirty days, make a sacrifice to God.—Epictetus.

Mrs. Byrne's Claim to Part of the Property.

The aunt, Mrs. Otella de Gollado, lost her wealth in Mexico when Mrs. Byrne and members of her family also lost theirs. Mrs. De Gollado, however, remained in Mexico to fight for the estate when the Byrnes moved to Oklahoma.

Just before the aunt died most of her property was restored to her. This act at the same time paved the way for restoration of the Byrne estate to the rightful owners. This angle of the case is to come up in the Mexican courts soon, it is believed.

Mrs. Byrne takes the news of her suddenly acquired wealth calmly. To those who congratulate her, she replies: "The Mexican government may get it after all."

"Uncle Tom" Bloodhound Saves Life of Eliza

Universal City, Calif.—Jeff, a bloodhound cast in a role to chase Eliza across the ice in a screen version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," reversed the action here and died saving Eliza's life.

Outside the picture, Jeff, whose registered name was Ledburn Barrier, had become a great friend of Eliza, played by Margarita Fischer. As Eliza stood at the edge of the "ice-flaked" river under a protee tree, the tree toppled. Jeff sensed the danger to his friend and rushed at her, literally shoving her out of the path of peril, but the tree caught the bloodhound and he was crushed to death.

Bears Wallow in Muddy Holes and Tie Up Traffic

Kelso, Wash.—Black bears wallowing in muddy chuck holes of the Braynton Mountain roadway held up travelers one day recently and a delegation of farmers came here to protest to Cowlitz county commissioners. Bears are shedding their last winter's long hair and a thick layer of drying mud aids in the separation. They splash and spatter in the holes in dead of night, but leave the roads in no condition for motoring. The protesting settlers want heavy surfacing with gravel and culverts to carry off surplus water.

KANSAS WOMAN PREFERS "SOBBY" TO MODERN HOME

Says It Has Many Pleasant Memories for Her and Refuses to Give It Up.

Quinter, Kan.—In the center of this town of 1,000 population and one block from the post office is one of the original "soddies" of Gove county.

The owner, Mrs. Mary Springer, seventy-nine, refuses to abandon it for the reason, she says, it is warmer in winter and cooler in summer than its modern frame, brick and stucco neighbors. However, Mrs. Springer compromised with present-day modernization of the home and her pioneer abode has comforts and conveniences little dreamed of by her and her husband when they built the sod house, said to be the first dwelling in Gove county 30 years ago.

There are electric lights and a piano. The walls and ceiling are papered and carpets cover the floors of the four rooms. Vines and shrubs almost conceal the earthen wall material of the front of the house, while within doors the furnishings are very much the same as in any other residence of persons in well-to-do circumstances.

Mrs. Springer has four married children, two sons and two daughters, all of whom have pleaded with their mother to live with them. But Mrs. Springer won't listen to their entreaties.

"My husband and I lived more than a score of years in this house and old associations and memories count for a great deal," Mrs. Springer explained to a visitor. "I am happy here, so why leave? Besides, I have my garden and chickens to keep me busy."

"You see, a lot of persons here depend on me for their chickens and eggs. Then my life-long friend, Mrs. Sophia Baird, who is alone in the world, too, lives with me. We are contented and have plenty to do."

Mrs. Springer and her husband, the late Henry Springer, came to Kansas from Warren county, Mo. Mr. Springer died seven years ago. The husband of Mrs. Sophia Baird, who makes her home with Mrs. Springer, has been dead eight years. The two women prepare their own meals, do their own housework and work a garden. Mrs. Baird is one of the first settlers of Gove county, moving there in 1852.

Its Benefits Universal

Many people have not learned to look upon advertising in the light of the realistic rhymester of an olden time who penned this famous verse on advertising:

Go forth in haste; with bills and paste
Proclaim, to all creation,
That men are wise who advertise
In every generation.

In large part the public regards advertising as being of possible advantage to the advertiser for which the consumer pays, and yet the facts prove otherwise. Time and again it has been shown that well judged, properly conducted and persistent advertising insures to the benefit not only of the person who attracts attention to his wares in this manner, but also of the community.

After interviewing large numbers of distributors as to the economic effects of advertising, a committee of the national distribution conference reports:

"Broadly speaking, it would seem that where the advertising creates an increased demand for products of a certain class, a wider distribution of such products—in other words, makes new business, bringing about lessened distribution costs and lessened production costs owing to increased demand—there can be no doubt as to the value of such advertising, not merely to the concerns that pay for it but also to the public that consumes the goods."

"Bills and paste" have given way to newspapers and magazines and those "who advertise" are not only wise but altruistic and philanthropic, for by helping themselves they are helping others.

Your Town And You

Your town boosts you. Why not do as well by the town as it does by you? No citizen is so powerful, none so humble, but what the town is an aid to him in some way or other.

The food that he eats, the clothes he wears, the recreation and amusement that he enjoys, all originate in the town, because the money with which they are procured is made there.

When a fellow boosts his own town he does not stop there. He is performing an act that improves his own condition, for every good word and every good deed has its elevating influence.

A few people are always home town boosters. They accomplish much in the way of community betterment, and this improves the condition of not only themselves, but also of those who do not boost at all.

If every citizen would constitute himself a home town booster the result collectively would be many times as great, and opportunities for self improvement would be more numerous.

Think it over in your odd moments. Then get into the boost-wagon and hit the pace.

Adventure

"When I hear a man tell of wonderful adventures I do not believe him, my own life has been so commonplace," says E. W. Howe.

Here is a man in his seventies condemning life for being humdrum and monotonous. The editor of "potato hill" is but one of many. In every walk of life there are men and women finding life too commonplace to be interesting. They are not entirely tired of life, but are extremely bored. They work, eat, sleep and attend a social function or a lodge meeting now and then and hope for the great adventure which never comes.

What Howe and others like him are pitying themselves for lacking others are extracting out of the commonplace things of life. The inventor, the scholar, the business man and other workers make their work an adventure by putting romance and imagination in it. Making a success out of life is excitement and adventure every step of the way.

The ordinary happenings of the day assume the proportions of an Arabian Nights adventure in the eyes of the romantic and imaginative.

Food For Thought

Weather forecast: More summer. Some men are wise, some otherwise. If we could all do as we please who would wash the dishes? The flapper thinks a grand piano is one that plays by pushing a button.

Fine motto: Don't look for wider fields until you cultivate those you have. Wouldn't it be great if all grouches were as bad off as they think they are?

Expediency: The polite name for a bit of crookedness that seems essential to a profit. And yet we doubt if red theories have done more to retard civilization than red tape.

This is the age of speed. Wouldn't it be great if next winter were to come this summer?

About the only difference between a hobby and a job is that you get paid for the job.

Women look better than men, but a man doesn't have to stay at home after he washes his head.

"American girls are selfish," says a writer. But when you ask one for her hand you usually get a whole girl.

United States' Illiteracy Bill a Heavy Tax on the Nation

By FLOYD PARSONS, Professor of Economics.

IN AMERICA, we find a lot of people educated so far beyond the capacity of their intellects that they live in a world of impractical theories. Then, turning in the other direction, we find that here in our own country, nearly one-quarter of our adult population cannot read a newspaper or write an intelligent letter.

Furthermore, out of 35,000,000 population between the ages of five and seventeen, 3,000,000 do not go to school. If there is any truth in the conclusions of one group of investigators that an ordinary school education doubles a child's potential earning powers, then it is conservative to say that America's illiteracy bill now totals at least a billion dollars a year.

Along with the challenge of illiteracy to American education is the menace of propaganda. The educator is interested in how people think—the propagandist in what they think. And the principal desire of the educational propagandist is that people act promptly without further thought or investigation. Teachers are pulling for maturer thinking and propagandists for hastier thinking.

And the battle is one-sided. The compensation given the propagandist is many times more than that paid the professional educator. Until, therefore, we pay our teachers better money, we may expect to see propagandists winning the battle for looser thinking and hastier conclusions and a more errorful America. Each new convert to propaganda increases the army of people who refuse to think. And a nation made up of a minimum of doubters and skeptics will not make rapid advances in education. Doubt is the foundation stone of progress.

HEAD-HUNTERS' LIFE DESCRIBED

Chief of South American Tribe Presents Foe's Skull to Doctor's Wife.

New York.—When Dr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Dickey recently visited New York following a nine months' trip through the jungles of South America they brought with them a mummified head and apparent disillusion regarding the romanticism of head-hunting. A chieftain presented the head to Mrs. Dickey as a token of respect for medical services rendered by her husband. Doctor and Mrs. Dickey left Guayaquil, Ecuador, in which state Doctor Dickey is a practicing physician, October 25, 1925, and were nine months on the trip. They first of all crossed the Andes, and then traveled about 300 miles on foot, Mrs. Dickey, the first white woman to attempt the journey, being carried in a chair strapped to Indians' backs. Reaching the Napo river, Doctor Dickey bought two mahogany canoes for $24 and the party paddled and shot rapids 1,000 miles to the Amazon. Then followed a 2,000-mile trip down the Amazon to Para, Brazil.

Live in Primitive Fashion. Doctor Dickey said the South American head-hunters live in scattered and small tribes. They exist in primitive fashion, and, contrary to popular belief, will not disturb whites as long as they are left alone. He thought a large band might be attacked, for there is still a memory of the rubber and slave days, but a few traveling through would not be disturbed. He himself spent six weeks in the encampment of a head-hunting chieftain, and was able to take pictures of the entire process of mummifying a dead enemy's features.

His direct acquaintance with the chieftain began over a snake bite, he said, and went on to state that, again contrary to popular belief, there are not many snakes in the jungles. One evening the party stood on the bank of a swollen river and were wondering how to cross. An Indian came with the statement that a sick man was lying on the ground a little distance behind them, so the physician took his kit and went to see what was the trouble. He found a head-hunter suffering with snake bite, treated him and then, on invitation, accompanied the warrior to his encampment.

Almost the first prize which was shown him was the body of a down-river warrior named Anguashi who had been killed not long before and whose head was then being treated for display purposes. During his stay at the village Doctor Dickey watched the method used in hardening the flesh and shrinking it to about a sixth of the normal size. When Anguashi had been fully treated, Doctor Dickey said, the chieftain gave it to Mrs. Dickey as a token of respect. He added that they left early the next morning so that the donor would have no time to take the rather unpleasant trinket back.

Women Are Slovenly. As for South American head-hunters in general, he said, they speak no language he had heard, and the one they use is composed, it seemed, almost entirely of grunts. The men are well built in a strong and sturdy way, he continued, while the women were slovenly and tawdry looking.

Among the head-hunting tribes the cause of casualty is usually a woman, he said. A warrior from one tribe will visit an adjoining encampment and steal a wife. She usually goes without much resistance, but her brothers—and former husbands—immediately pursue, steal some of the captor's wives and kill as many men in the rival tribe as they are able.

It is considered quite a feat, he added, for the raiding party to capture the original thief alive and take him back with them. Torture of the most savage kind is then the next thing on the program, and after the victim is dead, his head is treated, made smaller, and then worn as a macabre necklace.

After a woman is captured by a rival tribe she is immediately set to work. Between snatches of manual labor she brings up the children and cares for the dogs which run wild all through the encampment. As she gets older it is the woman, strangely enough, who becomes the distiller, chewing the yuca plant and making the mash, which, when fermented, forms a highly intoxicating drink.

When asked as to the weapons used by the head-hunters, Doctor Dickey replied that they were blow-guns and darts poisoned at the point. He smiled and added that the poison on the darts was for the most part manufactured in Hamburg, Germany, and found its way into the middle of the forests by a succession of merchants and itinerant traders.

Find Balzac Paid Bills by Writing Ads in Novels

Paris.—Balzac, French literary genius and creator of the "Human Comedy," was an early discoverer of the uses of publicity.

Henri Clouzot and Rene Valensi, two enthusiastic students of Balzaciana, have brought to light the fact that tailors, hatters, bootmakers, dressmakers, milliners, pastry cooks and caterers frequently mentioned in Balzac's stories were real persons. He thus conferred upon them a measure of immortality in proportion to the amount of their unpaid bills.

A scientific man who indulges in an amateur way his taste for gardening says that he likes to know the scientific names of flowers, of course, but that in gardening the names he cares most for are the common names. These, he says, are like the nicknames and pet diminutives one keeps for intimate friends—not formal, but businesslike nor dignified, but just friendly.

Look out for the "Bell Ringer" Canvasser.
He bothers you at every hour of the day and he sell merchandise that does not carry the brand of "Quality."
He makes enormous profits by selling you at the door. When he leaves, he takes himself and his profits out of the community.
Compare him with the local merchant, who is established here to stay, who guarantees the merchandise he sells, who extends you Credit when it is needed, who gives you service every day of the year and who spends his profits in the Community to make your home town a better one to live in.
After once buying from the "bell ringer" salesman, chances are you will never see him again.
On the other hand, the home merchant is your neighbor and your friend.
Isn't it worth more to you to patronize your neighbor instead of a total stranger?

Auto Plunges 60 Feet, but Is Undamaged

San Francisco.—M. Cordillo of San Leandro has an automobile that has survived theft, a plunge over a 60-foot cliff and hanging. It still runs on its own power. The car was stolen recently and found later suspended from the branches of a cypress tree 60 feet below the Lake Chabot road. A garage crew hauled it to the highway with block and tackle, cranked it and drove it back to San Leandro.

BANDIT WAS WET, BUT KNEW HIS JOB

Police Take Victim Back to His Spare Pants.

Chicago.—On the face of it the mere fact that it rained copiously the night before is no reason why Anton Schletter should have ridden home in a patrol wagon, yet Anton himself admits that the sequence of facts which won him the free transportation was logical enough, albeit outrageous. Having called on a young woman, he was putting his sedan in the garage at his home, 1924 North Lowell avenue, when the bandit appeared. The bandit was all wet, which, considering the weather, was excusable. "Get in the car," he ordered, displaying a gun.

"What have I done?" queried Anton, "that you should take me for a ride?"

"I'm not taking you for a ride," he was told, "you're taking me."

With a gun in his ribs, Anton splashed over to 4309 Drummond place.

"My feet are wet," the robber told him, plaintively. "So are my pants."

"Am I supposed to cry?" queried Anton.

"That's up to you," said the gentleman with the gun. "Gimme yours."

Anton yielded trousers, shoes and $10. The robber gave him back his watch, then forced him from the car. "Here," said the bandit, tossing him a laprobe, "cover your legs before somebody takes you for Ann Pennington."

Clad in laprobe, underwear and socks, Anton aroused a householder, who promptly called the Cragin police. They took him back to his spare pants.

Pity Poor Goldfish, Give Them a Castle

Seattle, Wash.—Poor goldfish—swimming lazily, no debts, no jobs, clothes nor autos to worry about—have their troubles just the same, according to Charles M. Farrar, president of the King County Humane society, who appeals in their behalf.

Having no lids to their eyes they cannot stand the constant glare in all directions coming into their aquarium, says Farrar, who recommends a state law to protect the pets by requiring keepers to provide castles, water plants or wooden floats for hiding places.

The use of a soda straw or syringe to blow air bubbles into the water regularly is another piece of legislation favoring the fishbowl captives.

Left Her 38 Times; Now He Is Alone

New York.—William M. Le Comte was married to Mrs. Sadie M. Le Comte for nine years. They left each other 38 times during those nine stormy years.

Mrs. Sadie didn't even want any alimony from him when she won a divorce.

Mrs. Rose Le Comte in the courtroom was just looking on.

An attorney called her as a witness and she said she was married to William legally, or so she thought.

And then she found in the back of his watch the picture of a little girl.

She accused him of being the father of the child, and therefore already married and she left.

Chinese War Chariots of 500 B. C. Found

Washington.—While Chinese armies are engaged in civil warfare with modern weapons, American archeologists have brought to light two Chinese war chariots, two thousand five hundred years old.

The chariots, which were excavated by Smithsonian institution scientists near Cheng Chow, Honan province, indicate that the ancient Chinese civilization antedated the western civilization in the use of wheeled vehicles.

The Chinese chariots, the archeologists assert, date back to 500 B. C., the latter part of the Chou dynasty, while the earliest wheeled vehicles found in the western section of the world date back only to 400 B. C.

Ship Matches in Coffins for Sake of Economy

London.—A striking example of economy was disclosed at London docks when a cargo of Swedish coffins were unloaded.

Each coffin was packed with Swedish matches.

These coffins, which cost little more to make than the ordinary packing cases for matches, were afterward bought by British undertakers who provide cheap funerals.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

AS YOUNG AS SHE LOOKS

IN SPITE of all the problems that are bothering the world at present, this one, "Should women bob their hair?" continues to be discussed from New York to San Francisco and from Hudson bay to the Gulf of Mexico.

This question has now entered on a new phase. It has been made practical in all the great industrial centers of the country because many employers have taken sides.

Some say that they do not approve of bobbed hair in business.

Others say that they have no opinions on the subject, but may have later on.

Why, it may be asked, should there be such a fuss in a busy nation like America over a trivial matter like this—if anything feminine may be called trivial?

The fashion cannot be condemned as immodest. In fact, it is perfectly innocent and youthful.

That consideration gives a hint as to the true cause of the objection to bobbed hair in business.

For some mysterious reason women in general, for their age, tend to grow younger and still younger in appearance.

The woman of thirty is more youthful in looks than her grandmother was at nineteen or twenty.

She does not lose interest in her appearance as her ancestors used to do. She considers that her husband ought to find her as charming as a wife and mother as he did when he first met her, and didn't know whether she would accept him or not.

An American woman always dresses as well as she can afford to; always looks as well as she can and always, nowadays, wants to be as young as she looks.

She doesn't change her opinion, or her practice, on this subject when she goes into business.

There is nothing sentimental or foolish about the matter. It has nothing to do with making an impression or anything foolish like that. It is just a question of self-respect, of physical efficiency.

Men take a different view.

A great doctor said recently that every fresh gray hair in his head meant a new patient, and a successful lawyer said that his practice grew by leaps and bounds when he grew bald.

And so it goes. If women want to get along in the business world, they will have to make some concessions to masculine prejudices and not look as girlish as they can.

Embroidery Ancient Art

Embroidery was an established industry in China centuries before the visit of Marco Polo. The earliest extant specimen is assigned to the Eight century, but it is certain that this art was followed at a very much earlier date.

"Auto's" Derivation

The word automobile was taken from the Greek "auto," meaning self, plus the Latin "mobilis," meaning movable. It is of French origin and is an adjective used as a noun. In its first usage it was applied only to pleasure vehicles or carriages. The term was created to meet the sudden demand for a word to describe the horseless, or self-propelling vehicle.

Advised Columbus

Eratosthenes, ancient Greek philosopher, is said to have deduced the roundness of the world and measured its circumference. In the Fifteenth century, Toscanelli, a Genoese scientist, came across his writings and is said to have imparted them to Columbus with the assurance that if he sailed to the west he would discover new lands.

Only Rich, Nothing More

Some years ago there died a multimillionaire, and a newspaper man who furnished news stuff to a syndicate of papers wrote an article concerning him. Six papers published his article and five of them did not. One of the five wrote the correspondent his reason, saying: "The man was merely rich; that was all there was to his life."

HOOKED RUGS CHANGE STYLE

Ancient New England Art Is Undergoing Process of Evolution.

Boston.—Much has happened to the oldtime hooked rug of New England since it left the farm and journeyed to the city. Its evolution has proceeded until the housewife of other days would scarcely recognize the product. Present-day hooked rugs of fine yarns sheered on top have little of the home-made, hand-made look that constituted the old rug's charm. Even those made of rags, such as the early housewife used, bear the marks of the impulse to try to improve designs.

The craft is a very old one. Some collectors assert that hooked rugs antedate the Revolution; other researchers deduce that they come from still earlier times, even before 1700; others, that they did not make their appearance until the early part of the Nineteenth century. There are examples extant that were made on foundations of homespun linen.

Hooking Rugs Yankee Art.

In any case, hooking rugs was a part of the down east domestic handicraft, and they were being made as late as 45 years ago. The frame was homemade and so was the pattern. The figures were drawn on the burlap background with a bit of charcoal. They represented a local scene, conventionalized flowers, a dog or a horse in action, geometric designs.

The material was generally worn-out bits of wool, cotton or silk cloth, dyed at home to get the colors wanted, and torn into narrow strips. In New England the hooking frolic was once as popular as the lunking bee and the quilting party. The women gathered around the rug frame, which was supported on wooden horses, and hooked until coffee and cake, or apples and nuts, molasses candy and popcorn were passed around.

At present a woman does her rug alone, except for occasional aid from a kindly disposed house guest; hooking now is a pastime, no longer the sole means whereby floors might be covered.

Material is now turned out by the factory ready prepared, either yarns or strips of cloth wound into skeins of any color. The old-time frame, made of four strips of wood nailed together at the corners, has been replaced by a standing loom, and the hook has become a hand-operated machine, which is to the old hook what the sewing machine is to the needle.

Patterns Changed, Too.

But the greatest change in hooked rug making has to do with the pattern. This comes stamped, in the manufacturer's idea of what are the proper colors. Rug makers who adhere loyally to the antique tradition seek in vain for such patterns as will give their product the air of age.

The hooked rug now aspires to ape all sorts of rugs rather than to be itself—a heresy begun in Nova Scotia. One enthusiast copies an oriental rug with her hook. Another hooks a Persian prayer mat or a Navajo blanket. "Mayflower" and "Frisilla" are eclipsed in popularity by "Bubbles" and "Madame Butterfly." Designs are taken from Chinese carpets, embellished with dragons or chrysanthemums, and from Mexican rugs. Some might be described as a futurist artist's impression of Coney Island on the Fourth of July.

Betrayed by Radio Love, Gets Months to Repent

London.—Love may be entered as an excuse for many crimes, but when love is linked up with radio the reason is not always considered valid. This fact was vividly demonstrated to Clifford Roberts, who was found guilty of stealing radio apparatus, valued at approximately $200 at Wolverhampton, England, recently. His defending counsel pleaded that it was simply a love of wireless that had made his client commit the offense, but the magistrate was unmoved by the appeal and sentenced Roberts to three months' hard labor.

Would Prohibit Airplanes Flying Over Their City

Kenosha, Wis.—The Kenosha Advancement association has gone on record as favoring curtailing of airplane flights over the city as a public safety measure, in view of the fact that the vehicles are coming into more general use. In adopting the motion the association pointed out that there would be few objections to cross-city flights if the planes were at a height sufficient to allow them to glide to open country in case of engine or other trouble, but that many aviators would fly at too low an altitude to allow this.

"Irish Navy" Sold

New York.—The "Irish navy" has been sold for $100. The submarine constructed by John P. Holland for Fenian supporters was knocked down for that sum to a junk man.

Who Is First?

New York.—Two handsome young bachelors hold world records for photographers and newspaper space. The prince of Wales was first. He is now second.

To Revive House Plant

When a house plant, especially a fern, is dying, pour a tablespoonful of castor oil around the roots. This will make the plant look green and fresh in a short time.

Dignity and Posture

Personality is the quality that enables you to be dignified without seeming to pout.

LINK GRASSHOPPERS OF WEST TO BIBLE LOCUSTS

Insects That Harass Crops in California Similar to Those That Afflicted Egypt.

Washington.—The plague of grasshoppers now threatening the grain region of northern California is made up of insects similar to the plague of locusts that afflicted Egypt in the days of Moses. True locusts are all winged grasshoppers. In seasons favorable to their hatching they often appear in dense swarms, following a definite line of march, or rather of flight, and destroying every green thing that lies before them.

Officials of the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture state that while the present California outbreak may be a little more severe than usual, it is by no means an isolated or unusual event. Every year there is more or less of a grasshopper problem in the California grain belt, at about the time when the wheat is in the "dough" stage of ripening. The half-hardened grains seem to represent the grasshoppers' idea of the ideal food.

The grasshoppers hatch in the spring from eggs laid in the ground during the previous fall. Eggs laid in plowed land are of course exposed to the weather and destroyed; but alfalfa fields normally stand for a number of years without plowing, and these make favorable beds for the hoppers' eggs.

It is emphasized that the report of "seventeen-year locusts," that spreads abroad whenever there is an outbreak like the present one, has nothing whatever to do with grasshoppers. The insects commonly called seventeen-year locusts are really seventeen-year cicadas, and are much more nearly related to squash bugs than they are to grasshoppers.

Barefoot Pupil Sent Home, Returns Glorified

San Francisco.—A barefooted boy in overalls still can have all the education he wants in the public schools of a modern city.

San Francisco determined that in quick order when a deluge of public protest following the ousting of a boy, eleven, from the Harrison grammar school because he attended classes clad only in overalls, forced school authorities to order the lad back to his classes.

The boy is Robert Anderson. His father is in a government hospital, a disabled veteran of the World War. His mother has been working to support him and his sister on $50 a month.

Robert was told by his principal, Mrs. Alice R. Norton, to go home and stay there until he could dress more suitably for school. The matter became public.

Leaders in every walk of public life, including city, county and state officials, joined in a storm of protest against the action as un-American and an indictment of the modern school system. Three hours later Superintendent of Schools Gwinn had ordered Bobby Anderson back to school in his overalls.

"There will be no aristocracy of dress here," he said.

It was admitted Bobby's overalls always were clean and the boy always good.

Radio Program Doesn't Aid Cows, Helps Milkers

Olympia, Wash.—Experiments conducted by the state department of agriculture as to whether cows give more milk and freer when the dairy barns are filled with radio music programs show that rhythm does not affect the cattle but does influence the human attendants.

In milking barns where grand opera stars warbled and jazz orchestras symphonized, men and women aiding in milking were good natured and contented. They handled the cows gently, adjusting the milking machinery neatly and quickly, kept out of each other's way, hummed tunes and whistled softly.

The responses to such affection coaxed greater quantities of milk from the milch animals, declare agriculture scientists.

Five Million in Oil Is Woman's Record

Tulsa, Okla.—The oil industry has bestowed the title of "Oil King in Petticoats" upon Mrs. Charles Murray, president of a $15,000,000 oil concern and the first and only woman oil operator in Oklahoma.

"Plain luck is the only basis of my success," Mrs. Murray says.

Within six months after she entered the oil game, she had amassed a fortune of $5,000,000, she admits. Discouraged by minor reverses she deserted the oil industry for two years but returned as head of the recently organized Murray Oil company. This time, she intends to stay.

Mrs. Murray is her own geologist, financial manager and drilling superintendent. She wears overalls, boots and gamlets and wades into the muck and mud of the oil fields for her practical information.

SIX YOUNG WOLVES CAUSE A PANIC IN COURTHOUSE

Women Flee in Terror From Animals in Sioux Falls Building.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Six wolf puppies escaped from a box in the office of the county auditor and for a time had full possession of the Codrington county courthouse. Young women employees in the county offices were panic-stricken when the little wolves ran wild through the corridors and offices.

The puppies had been taken to the county auditor by Glen Campbell, a farmer, for the bounty, he having neglected to kill the animals and bring in only their scalps, which would have been sufficient for bounty purposes.

Women Seek Place of Safety.

The women employees sought every conceivable place of safety while the wolf puppies were being rounded up by attaches of the sheriff's and other offices. Work was suspended during the excitement.

One of the wolf puppies headed down a hall and dodged into the sheriff's office. Another dashed across a corridor and hid in the clerk of court's office. A third took possession of the vault in the auditor's office, and the others distributed themselves as rapidly as possible in out-of-the-way corners of the building, from which they were dislodged with difficulty.

Friendly Pat Brings Bite.

The panic resulted when Mrs. Verne Haas, register of deeds, reached one of her hands into the box to get the head of one of the animals. It instantly fastened its teeth in the flesh of her thumb and hung desperately on. In striving to release herself Mrs. Haas pulled the puppy from the box, and this left the way open for the other five to crawl out of the box and dash about the county building.

Campbell, captor of the wolf puppies, after they had all been recaptured and replaced in the box, was told the puppies would have to be dead before the county auditor would consider the matter of paying bounties on them, so he took them away and chloroformed them, later bringing back the carcasses and receiving the bounty on them.

Prisoner Tells How He Slew Nine Persons

Tampa, Fla.—How a man killed nine persons, five of them because of an error in an effort to cover up a crime, has just been revealed here. The man is B. F. Levins, whose arrest for the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Merrell and their three children caused a riot in which five men were killed and more than a score injured.

Last June, as a result of an argument over a woman, Levins killed C. H. Alexander with an ax, he is said to have confessed. Then, to hide the crime, he is reported to have admitted killing Bee Rowell, in whose house Alexander lived, and Rowell's mother and daughter.

Another brother, Edward Rowell, knew of the slaying, and Levins decided to slay him, also. He went to the home where Rowell lived and killed the five persons sleeping there. The victims were the Merrell family, however, for Rowell had moved away. The murder chain ended here with the arrest of Levins.

As a result of Levins' story Leonard Thompson has been arrested in connection with the previous murders.

THE VACATION WARDROBE SHOULD INCLUDE A SIMPLE JERSEY FROCK

OF COURSE you are not thinking of starting on that vacation trip without a smart jersey sports frock.

If so, be of good cheer, for there is yet time to change your mind, and it's a fact your wardrobe would be sadly lacking without a pretty, becoming jersey one-piece dress or jumper suit. Nothing equal to jersey for faithful service! A jersey frock has the faculty of being tucked into any corner of auto trunk or week-end suitcase, coming forth at the propitious moment unwrinkled and ready to wear.

The jersey frock in the picture is a likeable model, because of its extreme simplicity; likewise its extreme modishness. It makes its style appeal in such smart details as a to-the-front plaited fullness, also its twin-belt effect, these two-in-one belts being outstanding in the season's showings. Clever innovations are continually being introduced in the styling of jersey frocks. They are such as tend to maintain a lively enthusiasm for the dress or suit or ensemble of jersey. There is, for instance, the unique method of employing several shades of the same color, as in case of a blue jersey frock, which seems several cone-shaped sections together, ranging from navy through deift and marine, to palest tint, the entire crossing the blouse from one central point like rays of the sun. So deftly are the colors assembled and the fabrics manipulated, the effect is rather that of an ombre material which is dyed in the knitting. Metallic interknitted effects are smartly exploited in jersey.

Lovely for summer sportswear are pastel colored or white jersey frocks embroidered with gay woolen yarns.

Huge Lumber Savings by New Inventions

Washington.—Devices which the National Lumber Manufacturers' association says will save 100,000,000 feet of timber annually by elimination of waste have been perfected as the result of an invention contest sponsored by that organization.

GIVES UP FAMILY FOR GOOD HOMES

Philadelphia.—Yearning for his daughter, whom he has not heard from since she was eight years of age and who now, if still living, is thirty-four years old, John R. Moore, Jr., has asked the facts of his search be published.

"In December, 1890," he writes, "I was married in Camden to Ella C. Tyson, Philadelphia, and a year later our daughter, Emma Moore, was born. My wife and I separated and when the child was seven years of age my wife procured a decree of divorce when I failed to appear in court to oppose the suit.

"We continued to be upon cordial terms, however, for some time and I frequently saw both mother and daughter, until the former inherited a substantial sum of money. They then removed to New Jersey and I soon lost trace of them, never hearing from either again. At that time my daughter was about eight years old."

With no thought of appealing for sympathy for herself, but with her soul in her eyes, Mrs. Burgess tells her story. How the children were born following her first marriage to Bert Leas, who died two years ago. How she married Mr. Burgess last July in the hope of giving her chil-

Steal Watch Dog as They Rob Store

San Francisco.—What value to place on a vicious and capable nightwatching German police dog is the question confronting Bob Wood, local manager of the Fidelity and Deposit company.

Wood insured a Portland department store against burglary. The place was burglarized several times. Then came on the scene the German police dog, doing night watchman duty. Thieves entered the store one night recently, stole considerable plunder, and, leaving, took the dog.

"What I want to know," said Wood, "is how to arrive at the loss to be paid, because there is a certain discount for the presence of a watch dog in certain places, but the dog was stolen."

Woman Sees First City After 70 Years on Farm

Washington.—Mrs. Francis Leanna Warfield, who has passed 70 years on a farm near Damascus, Md., 25 miles north of Washington, is in Washington, paying her first visit to a city.

She was born within a stone's throw of where she now lives and had never been in a town of any kind until 25 years ago when she visited Rockville, seat of Montgomery county. About a month ago she went back to Rockville to testify regarding a robbery and was so amazed with "the tall buildings"—three-story ones—that she decided to visit Washington. She romped about the city, went up on the Washington monument and had a big time generally.

Mrs. Warfield had never seen an elevator, a statue, a moving picture, a typewriter or a big building.

Trees' Distinct Value

Longleaf pine is a particularly valuable tree for farm woodlands in many parts of the South because of its capacity to grow in the poorest and deepest sandy types of land. It will grow on the driest soils as well as on wet lands, and with dual products of timber and turpentine often may convert such lands from an economic

Posodas

The nine-day celebration in Mexico just before Christmas is called the "Posodas." It is a combined Christian and Aztec year-end holiday. The Aztecs originally celebrated December 16 to 24, and the Christians December 22 to 24. Being unable to suppress each other, the two tribes finally compromised and extended the Posodas to include both festivals.

"Blue as a Razor"

The word "razor" in this proverbial expression is probably a corruption of "azure," the original phrase, which is sometimes heard, being "blue as azure."
