

CARTERET CITIZENS' WARNED TO IGNORE VISITING PEDDLERS

They Are Disposers of Poor Merchandise Which Could Not Sell on Open Market

ACCEPT NO RESPONSIBILITY

They Pay No Taxes, Rent, Light, Heat or Assessments and Contribute Nothing to Carteret

"Beware of the Peddler," is the warning which the business interests are sounding to the residents of Carteret.

It is a part of the educational plan advanced by this newspaper in which the evils of mail order support, chain store buying and the virtues of home shopping will be set forth.

At this season of the year there are all kinds of peddlers, men and women, plying a house-to-house trade. Beware of them. You lose in the long run. They have no connection with the local stores at all. They are no integral part of this community in any form.

The Mankowitz store had ceiling and water damages and in the Lehrer ladies' and gents' furnishing store mostly smoke damages were all.

The firemen were greatly pleased this morning to receive the following letter of praise from Attorney Maxwell Sosin.

Only because of your sincere efforts and use of common sense have you done what was expected of you at the fire last Monday morning that did considerable damage to the store underneath my law offices and other parts of the building.

I desire to take these means of congratulating each and every member of the department who responded to this important cause and especially for the excellent work you did in preventing the spread of fire that would have caused more harm.

Very truly yours, Maxwell Sosin.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO INAUGURATE NEW JR. ORGANIZATION

Activities of Junior Club Will be Explained at Meeting Tonight by Mrs. Myron Robinson

Activities of the Carteret Woman's Club are continuing unabated as interest in the Borough's newest woman's organization is rapidly growing.

A meeting will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Emil Stremelau, at 41 Atlantic street, at 7:30 o'clock tonight for the purpose of forming a junior club to allow the younger ladies to take part in civic work.

Final arrangements are being completed for the luncheon to be held at the First Presbyterian church on Saturday at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Music for the luncheon will be in charge of Mrs. J. J. Wisely, chairman of the music department. Miss Muriel Haney, of Perth Amboy, will give several monologues.

The woman's club is aiding the Kiddie Keep Well Camp drive to begin next week. A charity ball will be held under its auspices at the High School on Saturday night, June 11, with Mrs. Stremelau as chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lawlor, Jr. were Perth Amboy visitors on Thursday evening.

QUICK ACTION BY FIRE DEPTS. SAVE LEHRER BUILDING

Fire Breaks Out in Building Occupied by Coffee House After Severe Explosion

The firemen did great work in quickly checking the fire in the Lehrer Building occupied by Mickey's Coffee House at 74 Roosevelt avenue, of which Michael Toppo is the proprietor. An explosion sounded and a burst of flames that quickly put the firemen into action.

While the whole interior of the restaurant was destroyed, much wonder is expressed as to how it was possible for the other places to escape with so little damage other than smoke.

The expensive law library and important papers in the Sosin offices were saved, the damage there will be small.

The Mankowitz store had ceiling and water damages and in the Lehrer ladies' and gents' furnishing store mostly smoke damages were all.

FINE ADDRESS BY MAYOR

Compliments Citizens for Fine Showing; Gold Star Mothers Praised by Mayor

The Memorial Day Parade, sponsored by Roosevelt Post No. 264, American Legion, will remain in the minds of citizens of Carteret as a fine and fitting tribute to our dead heroes, who gave up their lives on battlefields, to maintain the principles of their country.

The commencement of ceremonies of the day started with a parade which was headed by Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill and Borough Officials, followed by school children of the public and parochial schools, Firemen, Societies, Spanish and World War Veterans and Plosts and automobiles.

The parade started at Brady's Field and proceeded through the main streets of the Borough, breaking up at the Borough Hall. Mr. Thomas Jakaway acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Invocation was given by Rev. Chas. Benetz Mitchell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and Benediction by Rev. Carl Krepper, of the German Lutheran Zion Church.

Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill, in his very inspiring address, complimented and thanked the people of the Borough for their fine showing in the ceremonies in respectful commemoration of the soldiers and sailors who departed in the acts of duty for our country.

Mayor Mulvihill was applauded and cheered for his splendid address, which was commented on by many citizens and spoken of as one of the finest addresses ever delivered here.

A salute for the dead heroes was fired, taps were sounded and members of the Spanish-American War Veterans raised the flag from its half mast.

In the afternoon, there were athletic exercises by the school children. A block dance on Roosevelt avenue to the strains of a fine orchestra was held.

The honor of being the most popular person in the borough fell to John Wilhelm, fire chief, when the final count was completed by Roosevelt Post No. 263, American Legion, in connection with its popularity contest last night.

The second prize went to Miss Mary Ivan, a $50 gold piece. Miss Ivan, who apparently was leading all contestants throughout the contest, received 82,550 votes. A gold piece was awarded to Miss Jane Duncan, who received 26,300 votes.

The Legion and its auxiliary will continue to hold their Bazaar throughout this week because of the continuous rain the week before. There was a big attendance at the Bazaar grounds all this week.

WATER CASE HAS HEARING MONDAY IN SUPREME COURT

Court Call Hearing on National Holiday to Review Water Case; Public Not Notified

CONSTERNATION PREVAILS

Municipalities Hope for a Thorough Investigation by the Legislature in These Hearings

To the amazement of the consumers of the Middlesex Water Company in Carteret, Woodbridge and Metuchen, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners allowed itself to be rushed into court on Decoration Day in the appeal of the Middlesex Water Company from the Board's order to lay a pipe line from Plainfield to Carteret.

The order was issued close on to a year ago and the water company asked the State Supreme Court to review the order. A stenographer was appointed and hearings were held before this stenographer at the convenience of the President of the Middlesex Water Company and the counsel for the Utility Commission, Thomas Brown.

The municipalities generally, were not notified. What appeared even more mysterious is the fact that alleged deficits, which came out in a rate case practically four months after the Board issued its pipe line order, was sandwiched in with the appeal on the pipe line order.

This action has caused considerable agitation and it is believed that there will be no stop now until the whole situation is thoroughly investigated by the Legislature. It is understood that certain members of the Legislature have been quietly looking into the matter and will be prepared not only to take up what has been done so far but the subsequent moves.

Expressions of opinion in the territory were to the effect that the Board of Public Utility Commissioners theoretically was supposed to protect the people but that in action at least it seemed to be treating the whole situation as if it was none of the public's business, that all the public would be interested in would be in paying the rates and paying the fat salaries of the Commissioners.

The Middlesex Water Company's rates have been jumped several times since 1920. The last increase in rate was almost 90%. The company's property, most of which was constructed 30 years ago, was jumped in value over 100%. The company has been paying 8% on its common stock. The Utility Commission sometime ago permitted the company to declare a 36% stock dividend.

SMALL FIRE

A small fire on Noe street was quickly extinguished at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Both fire companies quickly responded to the alarm. A pile of rags in a corner of an unused room were in flames filling the house full of smoke. It only required the use of a small quantity of water to put out the fire and the opening of all windows in the house to restore things to normalcy.

Assistant Fire Chief Alfred Bonner was in charge on this occasion. Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Wantoch spent Thursday evening in Perth Amboy.

CORNER STONE IS LAID HERE IN NEW CHURCH BUILDING

Rev. Eishop Thomas J. Walsh Officiates at Ceremonies; Banquet Tendered to Visitors

The Cornerstone laying of the new $50,000 brick structure of the St. Elizabeth's Hungarian Roman Catholic Church on Washington avenue, took place on Monday afternoon, amid impressive ceremonies.

The Right Reverend Bishop Thomas J. Walsh, of Trenton officiated, blessing and laying the stone, under which were placed papers of the church. Assisting in the execution of the ceremonies were Rev. Joseph Szabo, pastor of the St. Elizabeth's congregation and Rev. John Szabo, the former pastor and organizer of the parish.

Bishop Walsh addressed the large gathering, complimenting Father Szabo and the parishioners on their wonderful church and further outlined the duties of good Christian citizens. Bishop Walsh and a large gathering of local prominent citizens, among whom were Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill and members of the Borough Council, were entertained by the pastor and congregation at a dinner after the ceremonies were concluded.

In the evening a monster banquet followed in the High School Auditorium, at which were assembled guests from New York, Trenton, New Brunswick and nearby communities. Just preceding the cornerstone laying, several societies, with bands, headed by the Arrangement Committee in charge of the Ceremonies, together with the local fire departments, paraded to the Borough limits in the Chrome section and were met there by the Woodbridge and the Port Reading departments and on the arrival of Bishop Walsh, escorted him to the church.

The church building when completed will be one of the most modern and beautiful structures of its kind in this section.

New Development Opens Here Soon

The opening of Carteret's newest development known as Moheida Gardens by the Moheida Realty Company, is announced to take place soon. The tract takes in the property formerly known as the Claus tract opposite the Sabo property in East Rahway and consists of approximately 185 lots of fine level pasture land.

The opening of this tract, in a neighborhood that is fast building up, opens opportunities to future home builders, to secure property that has the possibilities of becoming one of the finest residential sections of the Borough.

ALLEGED SLAYER TAKEN IN S. I. TO BE EXTRADITED

Held for Murder Committed Here Monday of Colored Man Who Was Stabbed in Neck

ROBERTSON'S THROAT CUT

James Moore, Colored, Said to Have Confessed to Crime; Taken by Local Officers

John "Dad" Robertson, aged 45 years, a negro, was slain here Monday at 4:45 p. m. in the yard of the house at 38 Pershing avenue, and James Moore, 65 years old of 32 Essex street, captured last night about 9:30 o'clock in Staten Island, is said to have admitted the crime. He will be brought to Carteret to-day. Robertson's body was taken to Lyman's morgue.

Robertson boarded at 38 Pershing avenue, a colored boarding house conducted by George Brown. Two eye witnesses told the police that Moore stabbed Robertson in the throat with a large pocket knife during an altercation over alleged statements by Robertson regarding Moore's wife. Moore, according to one of the witnesses fled, putting the knife in his pocket as he ran. The knife was found in his possession at the time of his arrest last night, police say. The blade is nearly five inches in length.

Chief of Police Henry J. Harrington called Assistant Prosecutor Francis A. Monaghan, of Leich avenue, into conference after Moore was arrested. The two witnesses, Mrs. Clara McClain and James Green, both of 40 Pershing avenue, made statements to Monaghan and to Chief Harrington. Green and the woman were detained as material witnesses.

Patrolmen Sheridan and De Santos, the first officers to arrive, found Robertson with his throat cut nearly from ear to ear. An alarm was sent to all police stations in neighboring towns. Inquiry revealed that Moore worked at times in Dolan's brick yard in Green Ridge, Staten Island. Patrolman John Harrigan who knew Moore by sight and Lieutenant John J. Donovan went to Staten Island after the police had received a tip that Moore had crossed the ferry. Moore was captured by the two local officers as he was leaving a trackless trolley, near the brick yard.

According to the officers, Moore made no protest when arrested. He admitted stabbing Robertson but did not know he was dead, he said. Moore said he intended to return to Carteret of his own accord. He was turned over to the New York police in Staten Island to be held until today. It is not thought he will fight extradition.

James Moore, colored, 65 years, of 32 Essex street, arrested Monday in Staten Island on a charge of having slain John Robertson, colored, 45, of 58 Pershing avenue, was held Tuesday in Second District Court, New York, on a technical charge, pending extradition.

Police say Moore has admitted the slaying and that they have several witnesses whose stories of the affair agree and one of whom identified Moore in jail as the slayer. Moore is not expected to resist extradition.

Journalist Defined
A good journalist is one who can expand the material for a paragraph into a whole article, but never does so if he can avoid it; who is widely informed, but respects the limits of his information; who is violent in expressing his opinions, but reasonable in forming them; and who seeks to win the agreement of his readers, but would rather inspire their indignation than their indifference.—London Nation and Athenaeum.

Getting Things Straight
The sentence: "All men are born free and equal" is a quotation from the constitution of Massachusetts which was framed in 1779. The complete sentence says: "All men are born free and equal, and have certain natural, essential, and unalienable rights." Many people erroneously suppose the phrase "born free and equal" occurs in the Declaration of Independence. That document says "all men are created equal."—Exchange.

Compromising Connections
"Mother, if I should die, would I go to heaven?"
"Yes, dear, I think so."
"If you should die, would you go to heaven?"
"Why, my dear, I hope so."
"Well, I hope so too. It would be awful for me up there to be pointed out as the little girl whose mother was in hell."

The Difference Explained
It appears that the difference between an expert cook and a cooking expert is oral—the cooking expert lectures.—Terre Haute Tribune.

Worst Kind of Sport
Hunting trouble is a disagreeable business, but it's about the only exercise some people seem willing to take.—Boston Transcript.

American Ideas Abroad
Emigrants returning to their native towns in Europe, after having made their "fortunes" in the United States, carry back with them American ideas and the American language, which has supplanted French and German as the international tongue among the European masses. In hundreds of villages in southeastern Europe there are two districts—one the "native," built of stone and rubble, with the chickens roosting in the dining and bedroom; the other the "American," with houses of white plaster and a special barn yard for the live stock, says a correspondent of the New York Sun.

Doubles—and Quits
They were sitting out a dance. Great palm fronds hid them from view. The saxophone wailed and moaned and in the dim light the girl's head rested on her partner's shoulder. Suddenly the girl spoke: "How much do you love me?" she asked. "As much," murmured the young man, "as much, darling, as you love me!" The girl looked up and drew away. "Enough!" she said.

Whole Alphabet in Name
Here is a simple way to learn the letters of the Hawaiian alphabet. A son was born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alohikoa of Honolulu and the child was named: Joseph Keohokalanikamakanihikaetae Alohikoa. The youngster's middle name contains all the letters of the Hawaiian alphabet with the exception of "w." Literally translated the name means "the hair of the king is like the wind of Kaka'e." Kaka'e is a settlement on the island of Maui.

Talk It Up Folks!

Advertising helps business. For this reason the Business Men's Association are booming local trade. They want people to buy at home, and they are telling them through the press.

All through the ages, merchants used some means or other to let customers know that goods were on sale. At one time the mouth was the most dependable medium of advertising. Traders spoke of Venice as the world's greatest market. Venice flourished in wealth. Although talking of the best business houses to advertise them has become a lesser medium in comparison with newspaper advertising, the people in Carteret are requested to tell their neighbors of the good bargains awaiting purchase right here in town.

There is every reason why Carteret residents should buy at home. It is a great way to make this a better borough.

A New Chamber of Commerce. What?

The Business Men are showing considerable vigor in local affairs. They have decided to offer a prize to the girl with highest honors in domestic science and the honor boy in manual training in Carteret schools. They are pushing temporary reconditioning of the East Rahway highway. And they are interested in the development of East Rahway. This display of patriotism is characteristic of a GOOD chamber of commerce. All Carteret is eager that the Business Men's Association continue its enthusiasm.

Washington Avenue Beams

We see that Washington Avenue business houses are driving home a big boom for trade. The whole campaign is being centered about the opening of the new RITZ theatre. Only a few years ago there was very little trading on Washington Avenue. To-day a great change has taken place. And tomorrow the section will be a central market. What the new theatre will do toward bringing trade for the neighborhood stores should be appreciated.

Send Him—IF

Why send your boy to college? Men do not reach a common understanding in giving the answer. Some, including Cardinal Newman, say that it is a practical means for training men for a better society. Others say college fashions men for a worthy livelihood. At any rate, the advantages are great. Every year great numbers of high school graduates enter college. Many go through; some fail. The ones who fail do not know why they go. Those who get by know at least some inkling of their purpose of studying. Does your boy have any idea about college? Does he want to go—to study? If he does, SEND HIM. If he doesn't, let him go to work.

Food for Real Thought

Captain Charley Lindberg's Paris flight has caused much comment concerning our national defense in the air. Secretary of Navy Wilbur says: "His skill astounds us, but from the standpoint of defense and development of aviation the perfect performance of the engine in all the vicissitudes from San Diego to Paris is most significant. That the air-cooled engine used by Lindberg was developed by a manufacturer with financial and engineering co-operation of the Navy is sufficient evidence that the Navy has been striving for success in aviation and is ambitious to extend the capabilities of aircraft."

"Two hundred years ago," M. E. Tracy says in the 'Cleveland Press,' "the sea frothed with piracy and naval strife. Even a hundred years ago it was comparatively unsafe. Men of a gloomy turn saw the steamship as only a more terrible weapon for marauder and war lord. They were wrong as they always are and have been. Steamships have made the sea quiet compared to what it used to be. It is a pitiful philosophy that regards invention, discovery and achievement as only increasing the terrors of life. If this were so, civilization would be vain, and the sooner we scrapped it and went back to the jungle the better."

Now I Ask You?

The Public has rid itself of two murderers, Snyder and Gray. During the trial of the blonde woman and her paramour considerable evidence was obtained that bootleg liquor had much to do with the murder. Apparently one "person" has escaped. When will a trial of Public against Mr. Bootleg Liquor be held? LAW should show no partiality.

Weeds

That farmer or backyard gardener is counted shiftless and negligent who permits the weeds to overrun his fields and gardens to rob the crops and products of their nourishment. Even city folks, who buy their foods from the markets, know that the cultivated crops and vegetables cannot compete with the devouring weeds and that the farmer and gardener are given the cultivated plants to fight their battles for them. Illness is the weed in the human body. Like that in the vegetable kingdom, it should be extracted by the roots before its treacherous vines rob the strength of the whole body. Every disease and ailment of the human body has its symptoms by which its presence may be noted, so those who neglect to root out their illnesses in their infancy are like the shiftless and negligent farmer and gardener. The most insidious and treacherous "weed" in the human body is cancer. It takes a terrible toll in human lives annually because it has been left to "kill the garden." Like the weed in the field this outlaw growth starts in a small and inconspicuous way and in the beginning gives but slight warning of its presence. Left to itself the cancer eventually becomes distributed throughout the body and lives at the body's expense. If not removed in time it overgrows the normal healthy life in its vicinity and causes the death of its victim—as the weed destroys the farmer's valuable crops. Recognizing the presence and the evil of cancer it behooves all humanity to deal with it as the farmer deals with the weeds in his fields. A good gardener hoes his garden as rapidly as the weeds appear.

A loafer usually wishes he was doing something else. Time now for the June brides to begin selecting the grooms. A little trouble now and then is just what makes the best of men. Going to work isn't a habit as working after you get there. Being hurt at times isn't half so painful as going through life afraid to try anything.

TIME TO ACT?

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners initiated a new rate case late in 1926 and fixed the present rate, effective January 1st, 1927. Earlier it held separate hearings on the necessity for issuing an order on the pipe line from Plainfield to Carteret. After hearings it decided to issue this order. The Middlesex Water Company certiorari this order—that is, they asked the State Supreme Court to review it. This was before the rate case was heard.

However, in the proceedings before the State Supreme Court not only does Mr. Bergen take up the question of the pipe line but takes up the question of alleged past deficits in the rate case. This is a separate and distinct matter.

As far as the municipalities know the rate case was not certiorari.

However, it is in the minutes of the hearings on the pipe line before the court stenographer that the counsel for the Commission permitted Mr. Bergen to have incorporated in the testimony before the stenographer some of Mr. Bergen's testimony in the rate case.

What a ridiculous thing this was! If his testimony in the rate case on the question of finances was to be permitted, why was not the testimony off-setting it incorporated also?

Why was this permitted at all. The certiorari was on the pipe line case. It appears as though everything goes before the Commission as far as Mr. Bergen is concerned.

He can assail the regulatory powers of the State—he can assail the Commission's personnel. The pipe line case matter has been delayed for eight months. Finally it is rushed in on Decoration Day.

And, worse still, not only is the question of the desirability of the order on the pipe line brought in but the questions of alleged deficits in a rate case. From the outsider looking on, seeing the public made a football of, it looked as if the water company was permitted to build up exactly the kind of a case it would want without real opposition.

It is not understandable how the order of the Board on the pipe line could be attacked and then the company permitted to take the statement of the president of the company itself out of the rate case on alleged deficits and have them thrown into the review of the pipe line order. This would look as if there was no off-setting testimony on the matter in the rate case which covered several full hearings before the Board of Public Utility Commissioners. Incidentally, in the rate case the Board of Public Utility Commissioners took many other things into account including the amount the Middlesex Water Company had made over a fair return in 1926. This it applied against the deficits, although the Board of Public Utility Commissioners found that a lot of the alleged deficits were not tenable.

It was a sly thing to work this in in the pipe line order review. It was not a very nice thing for the public to have no notification of the Decoration Day celebration. It seems even worse that this deficit matter should be dragged in while the Commission apparently makes not even a gesture.

If this thing is allowed to go through the Legislature had better start now making a thorough investigation of the Utility Commission and save the people the pretence of having regulation at great expense.

The Legislature should step in once again and take control. If this state of affairs is allowed to stand, it is the best evidence in the world that this is what is needed. A real investigation might be enlightening to the public. It is about time they took stock and saw how the regulation is actually functioning.

Are the people being regulated for some one else? And are they in addition paying the expenses of a Commission?

If the Commission is being ridden nilly-willy, the public ought to know and the Legislature ought to act.

Crow Lost Its Prey

Started by a peculiar noise, Mrs. James Hennessey of Hillsboro, N. H., looked out of the window just in time to see a crow flying low with a partridge clutched tightly in its talons. Mr. Hennessey gave chase, and the bird, hampered by the weight of the partridge, dropped it and escaped. The partridge soon died, however.

Watch Oddly Preserved

After being lost for 12 months in a plowed field in England a farmer's watch has been picked up, and is going as well as if it had been in his pocket all the time.

The man lost it while he was plowing, and searched fruitlessly for it. Yet he has now found it lying on the top of a furrow. Since it was lost the field has been plowed twice, harrowed and drilled, and has yielded a crop of potatoes.

Milk Without Cream

A cow that possessed "a perfectly adjusted separator" has been reported by a correspondent to the Sydney Bulletin. "She gave a lot of milk and her calves were the fattest and biggest in the herd, but for household purposes her milk was useless," according to the correspondent. "The milk could be run through a separator without a drop of cream appearing either in the dish or in the interior of the machine. By no method of milking could she be enticed to give any cream."

New Source of Rubber

The Madagascar rubber vine, with which Edison is experimenting as a possible source of tires, is a relative of the common milkweeds, according to Dr. O. F. Cook, senior botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture. About 4 per cent of the total weight of the plant is rubber, and the product as exported from Madagascar has been regarded as of good quality, though not equal to the rubber of the Brazilian hevea tree. The lower quality, however, may possibly be due to the primitive methods now used in obtaining the Madagascar rubber, and more scientific chemical treatment may serve to remedy this. Though no serious efforts have hitherto been made to exploit the vine commercially, it is known that it will grow freely in southern Florida, and efforts to extend its range northward into the regions of occasional frosts will be followed with interest. The vine belongs to the genus known to botanists as cryptostegia.

Vail Memorial Medals, For Telephone Men

The seventh annual award of Vail Memorial Medals for heroic service by telephone workers, announced today, brings three silver and four bronze medals to New Jersey employees of the New York Telephone Company.

The medals are given in memory of Theodore N. Vail, late President of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, and recognize conspicuous acts of heroism and service by telephone workers, which best illustrate Mr. Vail's ideals of public service.

The National Committee of Award, meeting in New York, reviewed the many cases submitted by Regional Committees composed of employees of Bell Telephone Companies throughout the United States, and authorized six awards, one gold medal with $500 and five silver medals, each accompanied by $250.

Three silver medals go to New Jersey telephone men for entering the danger zone and quickly restoring telephone service at the time of the explosion of the United States Naval Base Stores at Lake Denmark last July, when twenty-five persons were killed and nearly one hundred injured.

The winners are Clayton P. Plumstead, Wire Chief; H. R. Horn, Repairman; and H. T. Wyckoff, Repairman, all of the Dover office of the New York Telephone Company. Each medal is accompanied by a bronze plaque which goes to the New York Telephone Company to commemorate the exceptional service of its employees.

The gold medal is awarded to Oscar T. Koon, Section Lineman of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, Long Lines Department, at West Palm Beach, Florida. Koon fought his way through the hurricane that struck Miami last September, travelling for sixty-seven miles mostly on foot and in darkness and in constant danger, to bring the first word of the disaster to the outside world. His reports made possible quick restoration of telephone service to provide the first land line communication with the stricken area.

In addition to the National Committee awards, four bronze medals are given to New Jersey Telephone workers by the Regional Committee, after reviewing more than seventy outstanding cases. Those not being awarded medals receive honorable mention and commendation from President J. S. McCulloch of the New York Telephone Company. Three of the bronze medals go to groups of employees for their emergency service during the Lake Denmark disaster. One is given to forty-nine central office employees and volunteers stationed at Dover, another to twenty-three central office workers and volunteers who served at Rackaway, and the third is given to a group of twenty-one Plant men of the Morristown district.

The fourth bronze medal is awarded to Edward W. Chapman, telephone installer, at Perth Amboy for presence of mind and heroic action in rescuing a man from drowning last September. Chapman jumped from a ferry boat crossing Staten Island Sound to save the man who was sinking for the third time. He was forced to knock the man unconscious to avoid being strangled, and the two were then picked up by a tug while Chapman was swimming with his unconscious burden toward the ferry boat. When the tug docked, Chapman, although nearly exhausted, took charge of the work of reviving the man and by applying the Prone Pressure Method, which is part of his telephone training, brought him to consciousness by the time other relief arrived.

The silver medals for Plumstead, Horn and Wyckoff, carry the citation, "For courage, initiative and devotion to the public service despite grave personal danger." The citation states that, on July 10, 1926, when the Naval Base Stores at Lake Denmark was destroyed by a series of terrific explosions, Plumstead, Horn and Wyckoff, disregarding extreme peril from exploding shells and powder magazines, went into the danger zone at the height of the disaster and within one hour restored vital telephone communication which was immediately used to make the first report of the catastrophe to Army Headquarters.

Following the first explosion which destroyed all telephone lines on the Reservation, Plumstead and Horn drove to the Reservation from Dover with enough equipment to establish three lines. They reached the scene before the Military Guard had been established and drove a mile past the Army Base on to a point near the Navy Arsenal, where the explosion had occurred.

Shells were falling and exploding all about them, some within five hundred feet, but they kept on with the work of setting up the lines and only retreated when they had to return to a telephone terminal box near the "First Gate" of the Reservation to test the lines. There they were prevented by the Military Guard from going back into the advance danger zone.

Repairman Wyckoff, who had come up with his repair car, joined them and the three set up telephone lines from the "First Gate" to the Dover Central Office, five miles away. These lines were used for directing the work of fighting the fire, caring for the wounded and reporting conditions to Army Headquarters.

The citations accompanying the bronze medals to the groups of telephone operators and other Traffic Department workers state that while people for miles around were fleeing from the danger zone, the Dover and Rackway operators, then on duty, remained at their switchboards while others, off duty at the time, returned to their posts regardless of the hazard and conscious only of the fact that they were needed. With them came volunteers from other Central Offices. "Their loyal service in keeping upon the lines of communication between the stricken area and the outside world was of immeasurable value in carrying on the work of relief and restoration."

The group of Plant men are cited for their courageous action and loyalty to public service in entering the danger zone to restore communication and assist in the relief work in the face of extreme danger from the exploding shells and powder magazines.

Two White House "Fronts"

There are two fronts to the Executive mansion. In the days when the White House was constructed, colonial homes, especially in the South, were built with two "fronts" wherever it was possible to locate them near a river. The phrases, the river front and the land front, are found in many descriptions of colonial homes. In the early days of Washington, the Potomac flowed much closer to the White House than it does today. The building, therefore, was regarded as having a river front as well as a land front.

Closure and Closure

Closure is a method of closing debate upon a subject in a legislative body and obtaining vote immediately or at a specified time. It was first introduced in the British house of commons in 1882 and it was then called "cloture," which is a French word. Later "closure" became the more common name for this method of ending debate, especially in the United States, but now there seems to be a tendency to go back to the French word "cloture." They have the same meaning. —Pathfinder Magazine.

Ensemble Idea Is Much in Picture

Dress Harmony Is Watchword of Manufacturers; Colors Varied.

The ensemble, the idea and term in dress for which we are indebted to the French, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, is the scheme upon which the more important costumes of the present season are built. In every type of dress, from sports and tailors generally to the softest and most elaborate, ensemble is the rule, separate frocks and wraps the exception. This is not wholly a matter of matching materials and colors but of creating something harmonious, with an aspect of completeness, and to be done with success is less simple than it is at first apparent. Designers on both sides of the water have created for spring and summer some ensembles of beauty and distinction in which they present the several kinds of fabrics with new and uncommonly artistic color treatment. All of the latest shades appear in gentler tones than ever before—less pale than pastels but more subdued and, in ensemble dress, delightfully blended. The array of colors, is large and varied, but a few—conspicuously blue—are in greatest favor. Blue, in all shades, often charmingly combined with other shades or colors, is exceedingly fashionable, with the soft yellow greens next in popularity. Yellow will be much used in the finer and more sheer gowns for summer.

rose crepe, which is drawn down from the neck and tied at the waistline with long ends, illustrates charmingly the beauty of rose and gray combined. In another model from Worth, also made of alpaca chine, a large collar of gray fox is added. Premet, whose creations are always characterized by restraint, has designed an unusual ensemble in citron-green silk poplin. The dress, cut with subtly lined seams, pockets

Color Is Important.
Color is fundamentally important in the latest ensembles, and combinations of materials in colors that blend, harmonize or successfully contrast are shown most strikingly in the new sports costumes. Among these is a sports suit of the sort that will be worn to the country club and other places during the summer for luncheon, tea, or for attendance at sporting events. It is made of voile, in a rather heavy close weave, the frock of plain goods in sulphur yellow, the jacket of checked material in yellow and soft green trimmed with bands of plain yellow.

One other sports ensemble is made of navy blue and tan—the finely plaited short skirt of plain blue, with tunic-bouise of blue-and-tan checked crepe, of which the short jacket is made. The coat of this suit is lined with the checked crepe to match the blouse, and both the plain and figured crepes are used in the details of the costume.

eight coat are made. Bands of black broadcloth are stitched on both frock and coat, and the high waistcoat neckline of the dress is finished with a jabot of white mousseline.

In this detail of cloth on crepe, satin or taffeta there is an effect of giving to any costume the tailored bit which translates it into the sports type of dress suitable for many—almost for all—daytime occasions. It is a novelty which is being introduced with effect in wraps as well as in gowns and ensembles, and some especially pleasing compositions will be seen among smartly dressed women at the resorts this season. Rough white cloth is used as revers, bands, belts and collars on frocks of crepe and satin in black or navy, with coats made after the same scheme. Bands of black or colored cloth are stitched on dresses of figured or plain material of another color, and always the same plan is repeated in the coat, which may be a short jacket or long wrap. Fagoting is exceedingly fashionable as a style of relieving entire plainness in gowns and wraps.

SCHOOL DAYS

Robe de Style Is Fashion Favorite

Period Frock Never Is Out of Picture; Popular at Palm Beach

Even in a season when tendency of the mode has been marked by a feminizing influence, preeminence of the period frock comes as something of a surprise climax. The surprise, observes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, registers with more force, too, in the midst of the devotion that is still extended to sophisticated types of the sleek and silky variety, which base their identity upon the modern spirit of architectural lines, without encumbrance of any sort to disturb the contour, so frankly linked with the sports idea.

The period frock or robe de style has been on the horizon for two years. To speak more accurately, it never is out of the picture, but up to the last year it was associated with the choice of the individualist in style. Even now, when it has come out of this classification in a general way, there are many fashion authorities who contend that the skirt formed on bouffant lines departs from the current feeling in style.

It is interesting that these contenders are entirely in sympathy with the trend toward femininity in today's fashions, but support their convictions with frocks that express such items of elaboration in terms of what is graphically described by one stylist as the "striped" silhouette.

Another type evolved this season, which bridges the distance between the distending lines of the pure period frock and slim silhouette, is based on a chiffon frock by Louise Boulanger, wherein all the characteristics of the period frock are retained—that is, the closely fitted bodice in contrast to the full skirt of ankle length, the important feature being the straight-hanging fullness of the skirt.

Referring again to the bouffant period frock's emergence from the individualist's choice exclusively, one recalls the repeated emphasis placed upon it in the reports from Palm Beach during the season just closed. Not one observer alone, but several, commented upon the increased numbers of those wearing them—not only the youthful type so generally associated with it, but women of the older set. One observer especially interested and surprised at this spectacle of sophistication in period frocks, sought to find the masculine reaction to this change, with the result that the majority of the men interviewed expressed complete satisfaction with the new picture—saying that they were tired of the silky, uncolored appearance and were altogether pleased to contemplate the picturesque revival. Observations at supper clubs through the season in New York further have substantiated the note, which is not confined to the very youthful faction of the dancing assemblage.

For Afternoon Wear.
Afternoon dress finds the ensemble almost universal and delightful things of the more elaborate sort are shown. They come from the best Paris designers whose joy this type of costume is. Velvet, of which so many of the handsomer costumes in the winter mode are made, is less fashionable for summer dress than it was last year, and all of the lighter, softer, more gently textured fabrics are to be worn. The variety of designs and the many ways in which materials are assembled in an ensemble are matters of importance and interest in the styles of this season. They are elaborate in composition and in detail, yet are without a suggestion of fussiness, and some absolutely new features are presented—one, for example, being the slanting line with which the tiers on a crepe frock are cut. This line is repeated in the ends of the girde sash, tied at one side, and in the scarf with which the neck is finished. Almost every bodice is drawn up, to effect the line of the blouse and sleeves are, almost without exception, long and simple.

Rose Colored Felt Is Chic for Spring Hats

This rose-colored felt hat with ribbon drawn through the crown, and the felt stitched in design, is in vogue for spring.

False Praze

Two-Piece Frock for Afternoon Occasions

Sky-blue crepe de chine and a plaited cassock of jersey in the same color, trimmed with bands of crepe de chine, make this chic two-piece dress. The scarf is of crepe de chine trimmed with graded blue galons. The hat and bag are of the same color as the dress, with trimmings to match the scarf.

Notes of the Mode for Women Who Care

Crystal earrings made in round and oblong shapes are much larger than the button earrings being worn at present. They are mounted in silver frames.

The new tailor-mades are straight in line with the skirts plaited all around or in front only. Box-plaits are the favorite, but some have skirts with inverted plaits.

The holer offers an opportunity to use up some of the waists and skirts which have not been quite modish enough on account of the long waisted styles. Waists and skirts can be joined for a one-piece dress.

A glove for wear with either sports outfit or tailored suit is usually selected because of its tailored finish, and when a trim appearance is desired, the short wrist-length is often preferred.

To carry out a color in bracelets there are narrow ones made of leather in all the new colors. They have small eyelets and tiny buckles, but throughout on both sides are little metal tabs to carry out the sports theme.

Velvet jackets for sports have a permanent place in general favor that time does not seem to weaken. Word comes that velvet reeters are the most popular sports garments seen along the Riviera, so popular that they threaten to become common.

A lace collar always fits better if the edge of it is turned under the neck or collar of the gown. A well-fitting collar is a decoration and a finish which every well-dressed woman appreciates. An ill-fitting collar spoils the entire effect of any garment.

When joining lace, a clumsy seam is avoided and an almost invisible union made possible by closely button-holding the edges together on the wrong side. Pass a warm iron over the seam and the results will satisfy even the most exacting.

When skirts, slips and gowns are of different lengths it always is a matter of anxiety as to whether or not what is underneath shows. To avoid this, decide upon the exact number of lurches by which skirts and slips should clear the floor, then adjust so all will be alike.

A smart sports coat in brown plaids, cut in the favored seven-eighths length, is Jean Patou's choice when warmth is needed. This coat flares ever so slightly over the accordion-plaited skirt of plaid. The jumper of beige kasha provides against too great warmth by being sleeveless.

Black With Touches of White, Color Harmony

No color or combination of colors ever succeeds in being smarter than black with touches of white when these tones are put together by a master-mind of color. Every black and white dress is not smart but the black and white frock designed by the true clothes artist is superlatively chic. It has a certain distinction almost impossible to define but instantly recognized.

Troop 83, B. S. of A. In Enthusiastic Meeting

An enthusiastic meeting of the new troop, No. 83, Carteret, of the Raritan Council, Boy Scouts of America, was held at its headquarters at the Synagogue Brotherhood of Israel Wednesday evening in the presence of a large number of parents and friends of the new scouts.

Attorney Abraham D. Glass presided over the session and introduced Scout Executive Herbert W. Lunn of scout headquarters, who made a few brief remarks to the assemblage of the purpose of the Boy Scout movement. The troop committee consisting of Abraham L. Glass and Leo Chodosh were sworn in by the scout executive after having accepted their responsibilities and then Scoutmaster Leo Schonwald was also commissioned to carry on this work.

The second part of the program was handled by Scoutmaster Schonwald who presented the scouts with their tenderfoot pins after each boy had committed himself to the Scout Oath. Following this Attorney Glass assisted by Mr. Chodosh, presented the registration certificates of these new scouts. There was a wonderful spirit throughout the entire meeting and vital interest was in evidence on the part of the parents in this installation ceremony. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by a committee of ladies of the congregation.

Special guests of the evening included Scoutmaster Merrill B. Huber and Assistant Scoutmaster Walter Colquhoun of Troop 82, Carteret, which has its headquarters at the First Presbyterian church. Troop 83 consists of twenty scouts under the leadership of Scoutmaster Schonwald and promises to be one of the outstanding troops of the Raritan Council as time goes on.

Wonderful Play To Be Given at St. Joseph's

Tense scenes, mystery, comedy, a haunting melody, with quick changes. A powerful story that is charged with highly dramatic moments and holds your attention is the new play written by Joseph Hughes, and presented Thursday and Friday evening, June 9th and 10th at St. Joseph's Auditorium for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church.

Kenneth Hughes who won great renown in the part of the stuttering boy in Mr. Hughes' last play "The Unbeliever" which played in so many auditoriums throughout the East, has added new laurels to his name as "Swipes" in "Driftwood." He has the talent for real character work.
Joseph Hughes, Jr., is following well in his brother's footsteps, and plays the part of Alen Dale, a poor little rich boy, with keen intelligence. All in all this original family has earned the distinction of "the most original cast on the American stage," because in all their plays they have but four people.

Around the Corner and Gone Forever!

—Not here today—and gone tomorrow.
—Not rushing into town grabbing all business to be had and out again.
—Not by extravagant talk and over-statements forcing inferior merchandise on to you.
—Not dodging taxes, civic responsibilities and all duties of citizenship.
—Not a parasite. Not an insidious Home Town destructionist.
—Such only is the peddler, the canvasser, the self-styled traveling representative (and many of them are people who sell hosiery, lingerie, notions, etc.), who comes at any hour, rings your doorbell, takes your money—and once around the corner—is gone forever.
—Compare that type with your local merchants and business men.
—The business men are here 365 days a year to serve you at your convenience, to back up the merchandise they sell to you, to share taxes and civic responsibilities, to help make community life happier and more prosperous, to rejoice in your joys, to be neighborly, to sorrow with you when trouble comes—and to stand by you when in need.
—The future of your community hinges absolutely on community loyalty from every one of its citizens.

A TALK ON ELEPHANTS

"I WANT to give a little talk on elephants," said Mrs. Elephant, "for to my elephantine mind there is nothing so interesting."

"Elephants Are Smart and They Have Good Memories."

I think in those days that I would travel so much. I had no idea that I would see towns and towns and towns. Oh, the towns I have seen and the people I have seen! How many there have been.

"It would not be fair if we saw one little girl who was a cry-baby to call all little girls cry-babies."

"But I am so strong it is hard for me to realize that it is naughty to be playful with little things such as empty wagons! Very hard, indeed, for me to realize that."

"We do a great deal of work in India in loading and in hauling goods about, and here in the circus help load and unload."

"This way of the hose is so much more direct. But I was talking at first about my travels. And, of course, this is true of all of us."

N. J. REFORMATORY AT RAHWAY GETS STATE PRISONERS

First Offenders Will be Sent to Rahway Institution to Relieve Conditions at Trenton

GOV. MOORE APPROVES IT To Take Young Men Who Has Not Become Habitual Criminal Away From Environment

A departure in State prison management was inaugurated Tuesday, when Warden Timothy J. Murphy will start sending a group of first offenders to the N. J. Reformatory near Rahway, which will eventually total 100 in all. The plan has been worked out in conjunction with the State Department of Institutions and Agencies, and has a two-fold purpose, to relieve the present overcrowded conditions at the prison in Trenton and to take the young men, who have not yet become a habitual criminal, away from its environment. The first twenty inmates were to be transferred Tuesday.

The move has the indorsement of Governor Moore and is regarded as the first step in what is expected to be the eventual transfer of all the youths at the reformatory to the proposed new reformatory at Annandale, Hunterdon County, and converting the present buildings in Woodbridge into a branch of the State prison proper for first offenders only.

When this idea is finally developed, it is expected to result in saving the cost of building a new State prison, which would mean an outlay of from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Plans have been made at the reformatory, under the direction of Superintendent Moore, to care for the 100 first offenders now serving their sentences in Trenton, the majority of whom are under 25 years of age. It is felt by the authorities that by transferring them to the reformatory these young prisoners will be removed from associating with the hardened type of convicts.

State Commissioner of Institutions Ellis has been working on the plan and Attorney-General Katzenbach has also approved its legal aspects. Because of the fact that some 125 inmates of Rahway are out on State road work, their cells will be available for the men to be transferred. More of the reformatory boys are at work on the new Feeble-Minded School at Totowa, Bergen County.

The prisoners to be sent from Trenton to the reformatory will be put to work there in the shops, and thus will be provided a partial solution of the unemployment problem which has been vexing the prison officials here for a long time. Coupled with it has been the question of overcrowding, there being cell accommodations for 1,100 inmates, but for many years the capacity of the prison has been over-taxed; at present the population being around 1,700.

Development of activities at the Leesburg prison farm, Cumberland County, and the transferring of more prisoners to that place is another means the State is taking of relieving both the unemployment and overcrowding situations. Of the 1,000 acres on the farm, some 500 have been cleared and are now under cultivation.

Including 200 prisoners at the Leesburg farm the State prison population is 1,700. Six years ago the prison population was 1,100. There are cells for 1,135 at the prison for 1,500 inmates actually housed in the State penitentiary buildings in this city.

FINE LUNCHEON GIVEN BY LOCAL WOMAN'S CLUB

Club Makes Splendid Showing Before Large Gathering of Guests From Other Clubs

CLUB TALENT ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Emil Stremlau Reports the Progress of Fund for Mississippi Flood Sufferers

The First Annual Luncheon of the Local Woman's Club held at the First Presbyterian Church Community hall on Saturday afternoon proved to be a decided success. The various committees in charge of arrangement of the affair are to be complimented highly on the artistic decoration of the room and tables.

Mrs. Emil Stremlau, president of the club, welcomed the guests and all joined in singing "America the Beautiful," after which Mrs. E. H. Boynton, Third District Vice President, gave the blessing.

Following the delicious luncheon which was served to about fifty-five members and guests Mrs. Stremlau graciously introduced the toastmaster of the afternoon, Mrs. Russell Miles, who charmingly introduced those taking part on the program.

Mrs. Miles first toasted the president, Mrs. Stremlau, saying: "How fortunate we are to have such a president and I urge the members to give her their fullest co-operation. Let us rise and drink to her health."

Mrs. Fred Woods, the vice president of the club, greeted the members and guests in her own charming way, after which Mrs. Charles H. Seguire, president of the Perth Amboy Woman's Club, brought greetings from her club and congratulated Carteret upon the finding of such an organization. The finest thing a town can have is non-sectarian organizations.

In twenty-five years, Mrs. Seguire said this country will be a better country because of their non-sectarian organizations known as Woman's Clubs. She pointed out how many splendid things can be accomplished in your town through co-operation with city officials. The speaker then related by story the pep and loveliness of new organizations and urged them to go forth and work.

Mrs. Roy H. Minton, president of the Borough Improvement League of Metuchen, brought greetings from her club and said she was proud to think that she was present at the first luncheon of the Carteret club. "For a new club," Mrs. Minton said, "my advice is to keep close to the state organization as they can offer you a great deal."

Mrs. A. F. Randolph, president of the Woman's club of Woodbridge, brought greetings from her club and said with such a president as Mrs. Stremlau, the club cannot fail.

Mrs. Stremlau, in original verse clearly told of the workings of the organization after which Mrs. Miles presented her with a bouquet of roses in behalf of the members as a token of their love and esteem.

Mrs. James Wisely, who possesses a beautiful voice, sang "At Dawning" by Cadman. Mrs. T. J. Nevill, chairman of the civic department asked the members to go out and see what others are doing. Miss Agnes Gunderson, councillor of the Junior Woman's Club brought greetings as did Miss Gladys Kahn, the newly elected president of the club.

Miss Muriel Hane entertained with monologues, after which Mrs. Chas. Phillips, chairman of the art department, told what her department was to do next year. Mrs. John Dunn accompanied by Miss Anna Richards, sang "Sunrise and You."

Mrs. L. W. Boonton then toasted the home economics department, telling of the splendid work planned by them for next year. Mrs. Bracker sweetly sang "The Desert Song."

Mrs. E. H. Boynton, third district vice president, congratulated the members and officers and urged the members to learn to love and think and travel in the land of visions. She then spoke of the vision of Charles Lindbergh and how young he was but with that undaunted courage flew the wings of prayer over that uncharted sea to his destination. About 130 patients are under treatment at the sanitarium. A wonderful sanitarium and grounds situated on a high elevation in the beautiful Browns Mills in The Pines will be a surprise to those who visit there on Sunday.

General Cigar Plant To Employ More Girls

Many additional improvements have been made recently in the three story building of the General Cigar Company on High and Romanowski streets, in connection with the opening of a new department, where automatic cigar machines are being installed, that will employ one hundred more girls in addition to the two hundred handworkers.

According to Superintendent S. Schwartz, the building was never occupied to capacity on account of the slow procedure in learning the art by hand. With many setbacks in learning the trade by hand, not every type of girl would take to it. The simple way of operating the machines however, that eliminates the shaping and all other technical hardships, the cigar industry now employs girls of every class. Mr. Schwartz also states that this addition will not interfere with the hand department, as there is a demand for hand cigar makers as well, at his plant.

The automatic cigar making machine is one of the greatest of recent inventions, makes the cigar completely; very simple to operate and afford the opportunity for operators to earn good wages right from the start.

HELP CARTERET GROW BY TRADING HERE EXCLUSIVELY

Local Residents Should Rally to the Support of All Carteret Merchants

THEY NEED CO-OPERATION

This Is Your Town; Help It to Grow and Prosper by Home-Shopping

The community you live in does not own you—you own it! Carteret's growth and development has amazed many and the officials and business people of the community have been an important factor in bringing about this prosperous condition and increased valuations of your own home.

By living here, you are an investor in the welfare of the community. If it grows and thrives, in wealth, civic spirit and reputation, you share in the profit; if its growth is retarded and it goes backward, you lose. And at the root of all growth and prosperity, lie two kinds of public spirit—the one, which patronizes community business enterprises and the other, which helps to make every civic movement a success.

Here in a section that is bound to grow, we have taken growth and progress so much for granted that many of us have lost sight of the fact that we have an obligation on our part to fulfill. We are more inclined to sit by and discuss the advantages or disadvantages of every new plan, rather than to roll up our sleeves and get the most good out of every change.

Realizing this situation, groups of our leading merchants are working together to help pull their community out of the rut of drifting complacency, and to put it on the solid highway of consistent and persistent progress.

These men are your neighbors—not mere outsiders—and they know and can speak with authority of their town's problems. They have chosen this newspaper as their spokesman, and in its news, editorial and advertising columns they are bringing their message of inspiration and service to its readers every week. On another page, they are backing this message with their own individual announcements in co-operative form.

It cannot be denied that stores make a community, so far as its physical appearance and its financial solidity are concerned. The business districts express the vision, self-confidence and spirit of any community. Homes are but roofs over our heads—a matter of necessity and self-protection; but stores, offices, banks, garages, lumber yards and all other business enterprises are built upon faith in the people who live in those homes and furnish an index as to the real calibre of the community.

Look over our growing business district! The business men who built them have faith in you and in the town to make the investments they have made, and incur the operating expenses they entail. In every movement that has the public benefit for its aim they are the leaders, for everything they have, is staked on the future of their community, and with their community they rise or fall.

No community anywhere in the United States should be more prosperous or more progressive than Carteret. Belief in this on the part of the merchants is the basis for the biggest boosting campaign that has ever taken place in this neighborhood. The home merchants declare that nobody but the residents themselves are going to be in the front ranks of the builders of this town, for they know that in the last analysis, all that can be expected from the outside is exploitation of the natural advantages upon which going communities have been built and of the work and investment which local people have put into them.

The business men here are not asking the people to give anything to match the investment they have made and are continuing to make. All they ask is that their efforts be recognized and understood, and that the people reciprocate in spirit by spending as much of their money at home, rather than going out of the community to do their buying, unless it is absolutely necessary to do so.

That is a simple, sound and sensible appeal and with the campaign under way, the business people are already feeling the response, from those who are 100 per cent Carteret boosters.

The Latin Soccer Club will play the Carteret B. Team on Sunday at Leibig's Field. A newcomer from Scotland, Robert Sloan, will be seen in the lineup for the Latin Club as will Matt Sloan, Elliott, Thomas and Cook.

CHARITY BALL FOR KIDDIE KEEP WELL CAMP

Mrs. Stremlau and Committee of Seventy-Five in Charge of the Affair

Plans are well underway for a big charity ball for the benefit of the Kiddie Keep Well Camp under the efficient direction of Mrs. Emil Stremlau and a committee of seventy-five members of the Woman's club. Tag-day is being sponsored by the Parent Teacher's Association. Mrs. C. H. Byrne is in charge.

The last meeting prior to the actual drive for funds which was held Thursday evening brought out the number of interesting methods which are being used to assist in the collection of funds.

One chairman said that her aged mother now eighty (80) years old, had long been opposed to organized charity but had become so thoroughly interested in the good work of the camp that she is making dough-nuts which are being sold to help the quota. This frail little lady has made nineteen (19) dozen dough-nuts thus far and collected $12.00. She hopes to reach a total of $27.00 so that she can keep some child at the camp for three weeks. Another chairman told how a whole meeting of the American Legion was given over to the discussion of the Kiddie Camp's plans. A number of industrial managers who were approached by one of the industrial chairmen wrote in: "We have exhausted our charity budget for this year, but we think the work is so worthy that we are sending our personal check for the amount you request."

The first day of the Campaign Spotswood announced that it had already gone over the top in its quota but it was hoping to raise a considerably larger amount than had been allotted in order to send more children from Spotswood. Several of the other towns have more than one-half of their quota.

BORO COUNCIL IN BUSY SESSION AT REG. MEETING

Meeting With Property Owners of Emerson St. Last Night On the Proposed Parkway Idea

SIDEWALK TANKS BARRED

Final Inspection of Trunk Sewer by Mayor and Council Tomorrow Afternoon at 2 p. m.

A lengthy discussion, as to the paving of Emerson street took place at the regular meeting of the Council, Monday evening. Due to the exceptional width of the street, the proposal to build a parkway in the center, came up and to determine the sentiment of the property owners a special meeting was called for last night.

The Council decided to pave a portion of High street and on motion of Councilman Edward J. Coughlin, the engineer and attorney were directed to prepare the necessary plans and specifications.

Authorization to pave High street, followed the appearance of a group of land owners of High street, who pointed out the deplorable condition of the street. They felt that if the small stretch is paved, it would afford relief to traffic. The improvement will be financed through a temporary improvement note.

Councilman Ellis pointed out the danger of too many stray dogs in the Borough and expressed the opinion that something should be done about the matter. A motion was made to place this in the hands of the street and road committee with power to act.

Councilman D'Zurilla brought up the road to Rahway situation declaring that the condition of the road now makes traffic on it impossible and urged the Council to take steps to have the road repaired. It was explained by Mayor Mulvihill that bids for the paving of the road are out and the Board of Freeholders would award the contract within two weeks.

The water running in the mains here is full of foul substance, and the contention of Councilman Walter B. Vonah, who said that the consumers are complaining of its condition. According to the engineer this is due to the sediment collecting in the dead ends of the mains, on Cooke avenue and Pershing avenue, where the streets cross Noe's Creek, which gradually backs up and affects the water throughout the Borough. The clerk was instructed to write the Middlesex Water Company to investigate the matter.

The trunk sewer at Noe's Creek is practically completed, Councilman Frank Andres announced and urged the Council to inspect the improvement. A resolution authorizing the issuance of a note for $17,401.05 to cover the final payment for the trunk sewer to L. Jacques & Company was approved.

An ordinance was passed at the first and second readings prohibiting the erection of gas pumps and signs over the sidewalk. It provides a fine of $10 for the first offense and $25 for the second offense.

The street and road committee was authorized to lay a small stretch of sidewalk in front of the public library.

Councilman Ellis thought that the police should be commended for the apprehension of the negro who stabbed another ten days ago. The murder case was cleared up within a few hours he said.

The construction of a parkway in the center of street, in the course of its paving, would set a precedent, toward the general beautifying of the Borough, according to the opinion of the majority of the property owners on Emerson street at the special meeting, last night, called by Mayor Mulvihill to determine the sentiment of the people regarding the improving of the street.

Engineer Mitchell presented a sketch of the street and explained the both proposition: the first is that of paving the whole width of the street, the second proposal is to leave a 12 foot space in the center with a 6 inch curb to make a parkway. Mr. Mitchell stated that the estimated cost of the parkway would be considerably more due to the necessity of the curb on both sides of the parkway.

Mayor Mulvihill said that as the additional cost would add more burden to the taxpayers of the Borough and he felt that the property owners of Emerson street should bear part of the cost.

Councilman Brown suggested that plans and bids be secured for both propositions and submit them to the people, and the matter of additional cost could be taken up then. A motion was made to this effect and carried.

was youth and vision standing out in that courageous feat. "Your organization is young; learn to think and have visions and then go forth," she said. "Be a miser with criticism and a spendthrift with praise, and whenever called upon to do anything for your club always say 'I am ready to serve.'"

Mrs. Stremlau announced that $213 had been collected so far for the Mississippi flood relief. On Saturday, June 11, the club will hold a charity ball at the High School auditorium for the benefit of the Kiddie Keep Well Camp. Freddy Slockman's orchestra of Elizabeth will play for the occasion. There will be refreshments and a most enjoyable evening is anticipated.

The chorus composed of five members of the club beautifully sang "Let Us Grow Old Together." The honored guests of the afternoon, Mrs. E. H. Boynton, Mrs. Charles H. Seguire and Miss Muriel Haney of Perth Amboy, Mrs. A. F. Randolph of Woodbridge, Mrs. Roy H. Minton of Metuchen, and Miss Gladys Kahn, of Carteret, were presented with bouquets of sweet peas, after which Mrs. Stremlau wished the members a happy summer and told them to come back in the fall ready to do big things. A most enjoyable day was brought to a close with the singing of "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again."

Mrs. Boynton was given the high distinction and honor of being made an honorary member of the club for which she expressed her sincere appreciation.

Dreamland Park Has Orthophonic Victrola

A gigantic musical instrument, which can reproduce faithfully all tones of an orchestra, a single instrument or a human voice, with sufficient volume to be heard clearly half a mile away, will be placed in operation for the first time Saturday, June 4th at Dreamland Park, Frelinghuysen avenue, Newark, N. J. This instrument, which is the result of the same scientific research which produced the latest home type talking machines, gives such exact renditions of the entire field of recorded music as to attract a tremendous amount of attention from music critics and musicians in recent tests conducted in many of the principal cities of the United States.

The spectacular invention, which is one of the latest products of the research laboratories of the Victor Talking Machine Company, has just been installed at Dreamland Park, the first in this city, is also one of the first that has been made in the United States. Known as the Auditorium Orthophonic Victrola, it has a range of volume which can be regulated from a faint whisper up to the equivalent of several great bands playing simultaneously.

The vast capacities of the instrument will be demonstrated by the playing of a wide range of music, including symphonic renditions by one of the world's greatest orchestras, dance selections recorded by the foremost exponents of modern rhythm, vocal numbers by celebrated operatic and concert stars, and instrumental compositions played by artists of world-wide reputation.

"This instrument will bring to music lovers of this section the music of the most celebrated musicians and musical organizations, just as it would be heard at a concert given by the artists in person."

Decision to install it at Dreamland Park was made only after the most careful investigation and extensive demonstration had proved its remarkable capacities. Those who hear it undoubtedly will be impressed, with its extraordinarily lifelike tone quality, which is not distorted when amplified to the maximum capacity of the instrument.

Obviously, it would not be practical to present personally on a single program, Marion Talley, Fritz Kreisler, the Philadelphia Orchestra, Sousa's Band, the Duncan Sisters, Billy Murray, and a long list of other celebrated artists. With this new instrument, however, we are limited only by the number of celebrities who have played and sung for records. If, on Roosevelt's birthday, there are those who would like to hear the voice of the great statesman, we can reproduce it with a volume which can be heard all over the park. Benito Mussolini, in a resonant greeting to the American people, can be heard just as if he were speaking in person.

These concerts will be daily features, with frequent changes in program.

Longer Coats Are Worn With New Paris Pajamas

Parisians now are trying on in the privacy of their boudoirs what they will brazenly parade this summer at the Lido. Pajamas show longer coats as a rule, and more latitude is allowed these costumes in the matter of printed silks. Flowers, usually formalized, are either huge or else very small.

Long offers a pajama suit with straight trousers fitted somewhat snugly at the hips. A fitted top piece to the trousers is cut like a waistcoat.

Odd Legends About Inhabitants of Moon

The world marks seen on a full moon, and today known to be mountains and valleys on the face of the Queen of Night, have given rise to many quaint legends, peculiar to different countries. In certain races the man in the moon is a being who, on account of great wisdom, says a writer in the Popular Pictorial, was transferred to the moon, from which he was able to see everything that occurred. To the Chinese he is Yue-tao, who arranges all marriages. Among the old Red Indian tribes the medicine men received their power by departing into the middle of a lake and holding consultation with the man in the moon.

The German version deals with a peasant who was reprimanded by an angel for gathering fagots on a Sunday. He replied, "Sunday on earth, or Monday in heaven, it is all the same to me." For this he was sent to an eternal moonday in heaven.

The earliest English version appears in the writings of a St. Alban monk. Here it was Moses who found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath, and expelled him to the moon. In France the man in the moon becomes Judas Iscariot, and the wood is a load which he must always carry as a punishment.

Captive Wild Beasts Have Strong Appeal

Long before Christ the desire of the public to view wild animals, birds, reptiles and fish at close range manifested itself. Royal preserves and menageries are as old as the civilization of Assyria and Egypt. In 1100 B. C. it is recorded that the first emperor of the Chou dynasty in China established a zoological garden, the first of its kind of which there is definite knowledge. This garden was called intelligence park and appears to have had scientific and educational objects. The ancient Romans kept in captivity large numbers of such animals as leopards, lions, bears, elephants, camels, rhinoceroses and hippopotamuses, as well as ostriches and crocodiles. Emperor Frederick II had at his Sicilian court a notable collection from which he sent to Henry III of England three leopards, in compliment to the three animals of that species that appeared in the monarch's coat of arms. These animals, with an elephant sent not long afterward by Louis IX of France, formed the nucleus of the famous Tower menagerie.—Detroit News.

Being Allegorical

He was a sorry creature to look upon. His clothing was torn, his hair was disheveled, and there was an exhausted look upon his face. It was clear that he was going through, or had just gone through some terrific struggle. Out of sheer pity I stopped the man and asked him who he was and if there was anything I could do to help him.

"I am Office," he said. "There is nothing you can do."

"Office?" I said, a little puzzled. "Oh, yes. You are looking for the man."

"No, no," he panted. "That would be easy, I am trying to get rid of the man."

All Sorts of Things Occupy Engaged Man

Gives Wife $100,000 for Each Baby Born

Los Angeles, Calif.—A marriage compact under which J. F. White, Templeo (Mex.) oil man, agreed to give his wife, Elsie L. White, $100,000 for every baby born to their union, came to light in Federal court. The disclosure was in connection with White's court battle to defeat the federal government's steps to collect $251,120 income taxes.

Tuesday: Was interviewed by seven furniture dealers, three motor car salesmen and thirteen real estate specialists.

Wednesday: Found approximately thirty-eight pounds of mail on his desk, chiefly from florists and gift shops, with a good representation from tailors, interior decorators, greeting card handlers and seed houses.

Thursday: Held open house for seventeen miscellaneous callers who were completing follow-up campaigns.

Friday: Spent an instructive two hours perusing circulars from travel agencies. Learned that every state and thirteen foreign countries offered honeymoon possibilities. Received professional cards from three plumbers.

Saturday: Decided to close the office early, but not before the postman left a letter from a lawyer who conveyed the information in thinly disguised fashion that he specialized in all sorts of domestic misunderstandings.—Kansas City Star.

Curious Old Custom of Literary Giants

Lipogrammatic works, the product of the early Greek authors, are those books in which one letter of the alphabet is omitted throughout the volume. Tryphiodorus, when writing his Odyssey, had not an "a" in his first book, nor a "b" in his second. In so doing he was but copying the Lipogrammatic Iliad of Nestor.

Athenaeus writes of an ode by Pindar in which the latter purposely omitted the letter "s," thereby leading us to surmise that this little hoax was one of the literary fashions of the day. A Persian poet once read to the celebrated Jamil one of his own compositions with the letter Alif consistently omitted throughout. Jamil, who did not care for the sonnet, sarcastically made the following recommendation: "You can do a better thing yet, take away all the letters from every word you have written."

Although the Greeks originated this ingenious literary device, its use was by no means exclusive with them. Lope de Vega, the celebrated Spanish dramatic poet of the sixteenth century, Gregorio Leti, and at a much later day Lord North of the court of James I all employed this literary device and produced Lipogrammatic books.—Market for Exchange.

Plaid Is Important in Snappy Spring Styles

The importance of plaid in spring styles is still to be reckoned with. Not only taffetas for afternoon wear, but wools for travel, sport and morning use are shown in plaid design. Max, of Paris, who designs sports and travel clothes, as well as furs, shows a new spring three-piece suit of plaid with a simple hip-length cape. The color is light blue and navy. A jumper blouse, which looks like a vest when the cape is on, is made of light blue with an upstanding military collar.

A Bad Light

Publisher George Doran was condemning the piracy, or theft, of non-copyrighted books.

"Theft is theft," said Mr. Doran, "whether it's legal or not. Our book thieves are very glib with their pleas and excuses, but, after all, they don't show up in a very good light, do they? They're rather like the married man, aren't they?"

"A shameless married man, in the voluptuous moonlight of Coral Gables, tried to kiss a girl under a date-palm, but she pushed him off indignantly."

"How dare you?" she blazed. "How dare you try to kiss me? Only this afternoon I saw you kissing your wife, and I heard you tell her she was all the world to you."

"Yes, that's right, hon.' And the married man laughed shamelessly. 'But there are two worlds, see? Wife is the old world, you are the new.'"

Power From the Sea

By utilizing the difference of temperature between the ever-tepid waters of tropical seas and the always cold submarine waters, two French scientists claim to have discovered a method of obtaining power from the sea.

They claim to have accomplished it by boiling the tepid surface water in vacuum. All the facility steam thus produced can be employed to drive steam turbines when it is drawn by the very high vacuum that can be maintained in the condenser by the cold submarine water.

The work accomplished by the steam derived from such surface water is said to be equal to the work that would be done by the same water falling from a height of about 123 yards.

Wrong Number

Feminine logic was demonstrated in a phone call received by a startled gentleman who picked up the instrument the other evening to hear a frenzied female voice demanding: "Is this you, Jim?"

"No," he returned politely. "I am not the wrong number."

"Well, you big sap," came the voice at the other end, in snappy accents. "Why the dickens don't you hang up so I can get my party? Of all the nitwits I ever saw—why, you poor prune!" and so on, while the amused young man listened patiently to her colorful tirade.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Metric Measures

The myriameter, or 10,000 meters, is equivalent to 6,213 miles. The kilometer, 1,000 meters, is 0.62137 miles, or about 3,280 feet and 10 inches. Other units above the meter are the hectometer, 100 meters, 328 feet 1 inch, and the dekameter, 10 meters, 33.7 inches. The meter is equivalent to 39.37 inches. Below it are the decimeter, 3.937 inches; the centimeter, 0.3937 inches; and the millimeter, 0.394 inches.

Hats Too Small; Have to Construct Special Shapes

Formerly women used to wear shoes too small for them. Now they are prone to wear hats too small for them and to suffer agonies in consequence. Milliners seem constantly urging customers to choose the small hats which have to go on with a shoe horn. The unbobbed women in many cases have revolted and the milliners have had to construct special shapes and sizes for the long-haired heads.

Founded Religious Sect

Zoroaster was the founder of the religion of the Parsees, who flourished, according to Persian traditions, in the Sixth century, B. C. He seems to have been a leader among an agricultural people, whom he wished to establish in virtue, industry and thrift.

Joe Miller, whose name was given to various Eighteenth century joke books, was a very serious actor of old Drury Lane theater.

Thoroughbreds

Man—through care, scientific breeding and training—has made the horse the noblest, most beautiful and most intelligent of all animals. The thoroughbred is a living monument to the ingenuity of man upon which man, although it is his own modeling, can not gaze without awe and admiration. Why do men and women go to the race track and the circus? Is it to gamble at one and to see the clowns and acrobats at the other? Those are the attractions for many, but vastly more are lured there by desire to see the sleek coats, classic heads and fine proportions of finely trained and well-bred horses.

The thoroughbred horse is the favorite illustration of the proponents of eugenics, which is only scientific breeding applied to the human race. They point out that man demands thoroughbred horses, cattle, sheep, dogs and cats and they dream of a Utopia—such as H. G. Wells describes—in which men and women will be thoroughbreds, mentally, morally and physically.

None will gainsay that most, if not all, of society's ills spring from those who are subnormal mentally, morally or physically. Normal men and women are not found in the jails, asylums, sanatoriums and poor houses. But doesn't the fact, that only a small portion of civilized man is deficient mentally, morally or physically, indicate that humanity was well along on the road to the eugenics' Utopia long before the first eugenic invented a title for himself?

Man can not apply to himself the same laws of directed propagation he observes in the breeding of horses, for while man is master of the lower animals he is not yet complete master of himself.

Help Of All Needed

Every citizen interested in the future of Carteret dreams of the time when it will be a bigger and better community. He wants it to have more fine homes, more factories, more stores and more beautiful public buildings.

These are commendable hopes but they accomplish little or nothing unless they inspire efforts aimed at fulfillment. Castles in the air are beautiful to dream about but a "dream city" is not what progressive citizens have in mind.

To make Carteret a bigger and better city its people must do something besides dream about it. The booster must do more than talk about the wonders of his home town, and others must do more than talk about co-operation.

A community grows when the great body of its citizens concentrate their mental and physical efforts and financial resources on this one idea of making it grow in size and prosperity.

There is a need for outside talent and capital, but Carteret has not begun to tap its own resources in individual talent and capital. Men and money can be found to make existing industries and business enterprises larger and sounder and to exploit as yet untapped natural resources and advantages of the community. Home enterprise, home talent and ability, and home investment are the soundest and most lasting foundations upon which substantial growth of the city depends.

Build Carteret by encouraging home industry, by praising and patronizing home business, by promoting real estate development, by improving employment conditions at home, by investing capital here.

The measure of good times is the ability of the worthless to get credit.

Final proof of personality is to make a car salesman respect you even if you prefer another make.

Perhaps the scientists are right. Man couldn't have become as mean as he is in a mere seven thousand years.

If politics and an auto are anything alike, doubtless lady politicians always will prefer a middle-of-the-road policy.

Conceit is just a realization of how good you are; swelled head is a conviction that you couldn't be better.

Evening Schools of Home-Making Great Help to Women and Girls

By MISS ADELAIDE S. BAYLOR, Federal Official.

EVENING schools for home-making, encouraged by federal aid, have had a great growth in the last eight years in both large and small communities.

Evening classes in home-making reach three groups of girls and women—those who expect soon to have charge of their own homes, those who wish to extend their knowledge of home-making, and those who have responsibility for the home in addition to their regular employment.

Ordinarily one lesson a week is too few, and four lessons a week too many. A minimum of two lessons a week with a maximum of three lessons a week seems to produce the best results, while two hours an evening is a fair amount of time to utilize in one period of instruction. This must all be determined by local conditions in the small town, as well as in the city.

Diversity of methods of instruction from the standpoint of age should characterize small town evening classes because the younger women are found there.

The final goal of all home-making instruction is to build up better homes, to work for such a balance in all home-making activities as will make for family morale.

City Managers Are Doing Their Work in Highly Commendable Manner

By PROF. L. D. WHITE, University of Chicago.

THE city manager plan is rapidly replacing the commission form of government. I base my deductions on a nation-wide survey recently completed, in which I visited 40 cities in all parts of the country and found, with few exceptions, that city managers are carrying out the business work of a city in a highly commendable manner. The council-manager plan is no longer experimental—it is now in use in 875 cities, including such cities as Cincinnati, Cleveland, Kansas City and Rochester, N. Y.

The council-manager plan has the merit of setting up a clear line of distinction between legislative and political functions on the one hand and executive and business function on the other—by giving all the business duties to the manager. This clear line of distinction has never been successfully developed in other types of city government.

A mayor elected by the voters is under a great handicap in handling the affairs of the city on a business basis, for he is almost invariably elected by a local political party to which he is indebted and whose demands for appointments and favors he must meet. The elected mayor is too much a part of the community to resist effectively such appeals. A city manager's success depends on his good judgment, careful expenditure and wise economy, and he is not in politics.

The country is passing through a transition period in which the old political order is slowly disappearing and which seems destined to be replaced by a new era of scientific administration. The council-manager cities are leading the way in this transition and have a much wider significance for this reason than their local successes would imply.

WHY THE UTILITY COMMISSION ?

The Middlesex Water Company put in two increases in rates in 1920. The first increase in rate was granted in full by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners. The second was an increase to take care of the cost of coal. The increased rate was on a sliding scale and was not allowed the way the water company asked it. The water company wanted a flat surcharge. The Utility Commissions allowed them to fix the charge so as to depend upon the rise and fall in cost of coal—apparently an intelligent way to fix it.

In 1924 the Middlesex Water Company got an increase in rate, under order of the Board of Public Utility Commission. Various hearings were held and in the hearings the Utility Commission was assailed openly by the President of the Middlesex Water Company. So, too, were some of the staff of the Commission.

In the hearing room, crowded with consumers, the representative of the water company personally assailed one of the Commissioners, who found for a lesser rate than the Middlesex Water Company asked. He also ridiculed a member of the engineering staff who was said to have had something to do with the fixation of a rate lower than the Middlesex Water Company desired.

In January, 1926, the Middlesex Water Company put a rate into effect that amounted to almost 100% increase. According to an affidavit of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners itself, these rates yielded over 14% upon the valuation of the Middlesex Water Company's property as found by the United States District Court. Despite the fact that the Commission knew this early in 1926, no change in rate was made until January, 1927.

This change in rate, a slight decrease, was made after hearings held in the latter part of 1926.

Were the hearings held before the same Commissioner who for months had heard the rate case?

Oh, no. Strangely enough, the Commissioner who had heard the details of this complex case and had found a decision adversely to the water company did not continue the hearings. The engineer who had been bitterly assailed for the most part appeared practically out of the picture.

In this new rate case delay after delay was granted to the Middlesex Water Company. In the meantime the consumers continued to pay the high rates. By dragging out the hearings and adjournments a new rate was not possible until January 1st, 1927.

To some of the onlookers at least the new rate case, initiated by the Commission, looked more like a gesture than anything else. It appeared as if the Middlesex Water Company was not offered any serious opposition.

Prior to this new rate case the Board held hearings on the necessity for the pipe line from the Park avenue, Plainfield, station of the Middlesex Water Company to Carteret. Finally it issued an order that such pipe line be laid. The company claimed for years it wanted to lay a pipe line. Practically 30 days after the order was issued the water company took an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

An official stenographer was appointed to take testimony of witnesses. The hearing dates apparently were agreed upon by the attorney for the Commission and Mr. Bergen, president and counsel for the water company.

Despite the fact that it was alleged for years by representatives of the company that such a pipe line was needed, these hearings were delayed and delayed. The first hearing was held on October 7th, 1926; the next hearing was held fairly soon, October 22nd, 1926. No hearing was then held for a month and a half practically, until December 6th, 1926. Then no hearing was held for two months, until February 3rd, 1927. The next hearing was held a month later, March 3rd.

Strangely enough, the representatives of the municipalities were notified of the hearings on October 7th and October 22nd, but not generally of the subsequent arrangements between the counsel for the Commission and the counsel for the water company. Yet the municipalities were vitally interested and the Commission knew it. On one occasion, when one of the earlier dates was scheduled between these counsel, the appointment was called off by agreement between the water company and the Commission's attorney. The municipalities' attorneys were not notified and they went all the way to Mr. Bergen's office in Newark to learn that the counsel for the water company and the counsel for the Utility Commission had agreed to postpone the hearing. One would think this was simply their private business. You may wonder why the attorneys for the municipalities had to travel all the way to Mr. Bergen's office, who had so bitterly assailed the Commission and the municipalities in general. Others wondered at this, too, so that you are not alone, but it was at his office that all the hearings were held.

Subsequent to October 22nd the counsel for the municipalities and other interested parties did not generally receive notice.

It is certainly strange that the municipalities' counsels should receive notice of the first hearings and no general notice of the subsequent ones. It did seem at some of the earlier hearings, when counsel for the municipalities interrupted to ask questions, that this appeared not to please the counsel for the water company, Mr. Bergen.

Regardless of who may or may not be handling the case, the responsibility for the whole matter is the Utility Commission's.

The public, the consumers and the taxpayers, no doubt will be amazed to learn that, despite the fact that the Commission's representative agreed to months of delays between these hearings on the pipe line, the case was suddenly rushed before the State Supreme Court for argument on Memorial Day. One of the newspapers stated, "pressure of other cases was accepted by counsel as sufficient reason for proceeding with the arguments of appeal yesterday, (Decoration Day)."

Certainly this is a strange procedure in view of the previous history of the entire case—six hearings in six months—and then—two months later—on Decoration Day—rush it before the State Supreme Court.

Another decidedly "strange" feature! In the appearance before the State Supreme Court the newspapers tell us the water company had Robert H. McCarter appear in company with Mr. Bergen. Why? In the four years of the various phases of the Middlesex Water Company's controversy, Mr. McCarter never made any appearance whatsoever. Everyone knows that Mr. Bergen certainly knows all the angles about this little water company so as to squeeze every dollar out of the consumers who have been paying fat dividends, as well as stock dividends. Then why the sudden appearance of Mr. McCarter before the State Supreme Court on Decoration Day?

It would appear that the Legislature may very properly make thorough investigation as to whether or not the Utility Commission, as it has operated in this case, is functioning in the manner outlined by the Legislature.

It would pay those interested in the government of the State to make a special study of the Middlesex rate case in all its relationships and all subsequent cases before the Utility Commission so as to be prepared when the new Legislature opens.

Atlantic City Host To 150,000 Shriners

The "Playground of the World" is teeming with an enthusiasm never before experienced. For though it has the thrill each year of being host to 400 national conventions, it never before has experienced the happy task of entertaining a convention of 150,000 delegates.

This work falls upon Atlantic City during Shrine Week, beginning next Sunday, June 12. Having handled successfully many thousands of gatherings, Atlantic City is putting forth its best efforts to let the world know that none can be too big.

The city is in holiday attire, by order of the City Hall. Merchants have graced their stores with bunting. Shrine banners are stretched across apartment houses. Hotels have been draped in flags.

Governor Moore, who will welcome the visitors, has called upon Atlantic City to exert the hospitality New Jersey expects of it, and the resort is striving its utmost to meet its greatest test.

More than fifty special trains from all over the country will arrive next Sunday and Monday, in addition to regularly scheduled service. One city, Chicago, requires seven trains for its 2,000 delegates. Atlanta, Brooklyn, New York, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Newark and Reading are among the cities sending large hosts.

Fifty-five bands of a total of 2,000 pieces are coming. Scores of uniformed patrols and chanters' organizations will arrive.

Two special trains will come from Hollywood with movie stars to appear in elaborate floats in two parades to be staged by the stars as supplementary events to the three magnificent Shrine parades.

The Boardwalk is being lined with two huge grandstands. The city is on the qui vive and the Shriners will find awaiting them a welcome such as only a host city is capable of extending.

Nahant's Town Seal

The town seal of Nahant, Mass., is supposed to depict a white man purchasing the peninsula from an Indian sagamore for a suit of clothes or a pair of breeches. This transaction occurred in 1630 and the white man shown on the seal is Thomas Dexter.

Dexter's title to Nahant was denied from the start by the town of Lynn, and, after a contest lasting 30 years, Lynn prevailed. The town seal, however, is based on this transaction.

Uniforms for Women

How can humanity revel when it is plagued with doubts about its dress? That is one reason why women should insist on a uniform evening dress. This uniform need not be worn always, but it should be obligatory on formal occasions. Men may be painfully perplexed as to the choice between "tails" and dinner jacket when no hint has been given, but they should realize that women are always in this position of wondering whether they have suited the dress to the occasion. A uniform is the solvent of such distress.—London Saturday Review.

Music in Surgery

Music has been employed successfully in an eastern hospital while operating on persons under a local anesthetic. Special headphones are worn by the patient, music being relayed from a phonograph in a distant room, so that it cannot disturb the surgeon or other attendants, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It has been found that the tunes ease the patient's mind, divert his attention from the operation and thus make it easier for the doctors. Although the local anesthetic eliminates pain, in many cases difficulty is experienced while operating on persons under such conditions because they remain conscious and nervous.

Insult to Injury

An elderly man was cycling down the street when a dog rushed out from one of the doors and, getting under his wheel, threw him to the ground in a sitting position. The dog, in playful mood, rushed round him, seeming to enjoy it.

A boy stood gazing at the two for a minute, and then inquired, in a quiet voice: "Did you fall?" "Well, I should think I did," said the man, rising and rearranging his clothing.

"Ah," responded the youth, as he walked away, "I thought you couldn't have sat down to play with the dog."

"Know Thyself"

When we obey the command, "Know thyself," it does not mean merely that we shall learn our intelligence quotient, our lung capacity, our muscular strength, it means also that we shall know the origin and meaning of our powers and impulses. The injunction has, therefore, a historic as well as a present bearing and value. As in the case of fear we learn that impulses which may now be hindrances or actually destructive were once vitally important. We recognize their true place, utilize their value if they have any, or else banish them from our lives. As in one sense perfect love casteth out fear, so in another sense perfect knowledge puts fear into its true place and makes man no longer its servant but its master.

The young lady across the way says electricity is almost universally used in the cities now, but in the country many people still have to get along with artificial light.

Normal Span of Life May Yet Be Century One of the greatest advantages of the modern civilization is the way in which the span of human life has been increased, points out Brenda Ueland in an article in Liberty.

The Exact Witness A barrister was cross-examining a rather innocent-looking countryman. "So you had a pistol?" the barrister asked. "I had, sir." "Whom did you intend to shoot with it?" "I wasn't intending to shoot anyone?" "Then was it for nothing that you got it?" "No, it wasn't." "Come, come, sir! By virtue of your solemn oath, what did you get the pistol for?" "By virtue of my solemn oath," said the countryman, "I got it for ten-and-sixpence."—Weekly Scotsman.

Too Obscure Frequently in restaurants and other places where a certain rule is continually being ignored, we are reminded of an incident related by a friend of ours while wintering in Spain he lunched at the monastery of the Benedictines. After lunch he took out his cigar case "I don't suppose you object to smoking here?" he said to the white-robed monk attendant. "Yes, sir, we do," was the prompt reply. "There's a law against smoking in the refectory." "Then where," said our friend, "do all the cigars and cigarette stubs come from that I see about me?" "From men who didn't ask about the law," the monk replied, mildly.—Boston Transcript.

Worked by the Tides A water-mill that is nine miles inland, yet obtains all its power from the tides, is claimed to be the only one of its kind by the inhabitants of Woodbridge, Suffolk, formerly one of England's great shipbuilding centers. Just how long this wheel has been answering to the rhythm of the tides no one is certain, but about 740 years ago a mill, standing on the same spot, was leased for a yearly rental of a pound of cummin, valued in those days at about twopence. When the tides of the River Deben are at their highest and lowest the little mill rests, but at any other time the great wheel is turning.

Heroic Swiss Guards Swiss Guards were a body enrolled in the Seventeenth century for the special protection of the person of the French king. Left without directions when Louis XVI placed himself in the hands of the national assembly, they defended the Tuilleries against the revolutionists for some time, but in the end were butchered as they retired in obedience to the king's order based on a treacherous promise.

Hid Surplus Coin in Jars of Baked Clay One of the most interesting items in a coin collection is an ancient "botija" or baked clay jar about a foot high obtained from San Juan, Porto Rico. It is round in shape and with an opening of about two or three inches in diameter. It was brought to Porto Rico from Seville and Cadix during the colonization period of the island and served for a long time for the carrying of olive oil. Later, they were used by families; in the homes of the poor to carry water from the brooklets and rivers, and in the homes of the rich to store money. When filled with gold and silver coins, a cork or wooden stopper was put in them and then sealed with sealing wax. After this they buried the "botijas" in the ground or hid them in the ceilings of their homes.

The custom was brought over from Spain, where money was also buried in the ground. The use of the "botija" in Porto Rico started about the middle of the Sixteenth century, when the first settlers began to realize profits from their farms and from the sale of fruits.—Exchange.

Both Wondered It is natural for many of us to stand off and wonder how our neighbor can live as he does. Because he has different standards and doesn't enjoy our kind of games, we wonder how he can possibly have any fun in life. There is a delightful story which Jonas Lie, the artist, told. The artist was at the seashore working at a sketch, when he noticed an old fisherman who seemed to have no luck, but just constantly fished all day long rebaiting his hook at intervals.

When the day ended, the fisherman said to the painter: "Hi, neighbor, been watchin' yer! How has yer the patience to stand and paint all day?"—Exchange.

Book Buyer Got Bargain A recent issue of the Boston Herald announces the presentation to the Harvard College library of "A Book for Boys and Girls," by John Bunyan, and published by "Nathaniel Ponder at the Peacock in the Poultry, London." Ordinarily a child's story book would not be of great interest to Harvard librarians, but this book is different. Perhaps Miss Miller, the former owner of the book, can best realize just how different this book is from the other books, for she purchased it from a peddler for about six cents and only a few months ago sold it at auction in London for $10,000.—Market for Exchange.

SECRET OF GOLD LOST IN DEATH

No One Has Ever Been Able to Locate Michigan Indian's Dugout.

Lansing, Mich.—Are there great deposits of gold and silver yet to be discovered in the copper district of Michigan? There are many of that opinion. An old Indian, who stalked deer on the trail that led in to the land of Hiawatha, used to return after his many trips to a secret dugout somewhere up in the hills of Keweenaw county, and would produce lumps of the precious metals to pay for his tobacco and fire water, but no amount of persuasion on the part of the white men elicited from the silent red man any indication of where it might be found.

This fire water imbibber of the Sioux tribe had also a secret cure for rattlesnake bite—the only cure then heard of among the white men. This mysterious Indian came from somewhere in Wisconsin with his rattler and, careless as he was with his personal appointments—always had the drug with him and also the snake.

Bared Arm to Snake. The rattler lay peaceful enough in the red man's pockets—most of the time to the fear and dread of others about him—and when he wanted to show off his wonderful cure—heap big medicine—he produced the struggling rattler and placed it upon the bar, tantalized it into fury, and then bared his arm to the reptile's deadly bite and immediately applied the medicine and there would be no swelling, no paralyzing or deadening of the senses. The amazed spectators would leave the saloon to tell their friends and families the thrilling performance.

The red man would then poke the rattler into his pocket and be off on one of his journeys for golden nuggets that he found in some mysterious place in the hills and after many days return with both the gold and the snake.

Some there were among the white men who thought to follow him and find where he gathered the mysterious lumps of the precious metal, but using his Indian cunning he would elude them and again come into the old Bull-Way house saloon and get his fire water and begin to fill up.

A Fatal Celebration. One night the Indian drank too much fire water in his cabin. He had found more gold than usual and wanted to celebrate, so he took the snake and started out to show off before the trappers, miners and lumberjacks assembled in the saloon, in what was to be his last performance.

He was by this time pretty drunk and waddled into the room and up to the bar. Every one gave him a wide berth—every man slid a goodly distance away from him. He had the bar. He pulled the unwilling rattler out of his pocket and drove it back with it tried to crawl away. Finally after tantalizing the reptile he got it to coil and then bared his arm.

The snake fastened its deadly fangs into his arm as it had done many times before, and he reached complacently into his pocket for the medicine and, horrors! he could not find it. The Indian had left it at his old shack. He was too drunk to fully realize his peril and before the excited spectators realized the tragedy, he was in the full grip of the deadly poison—and it was too late. The Indian had loved danger and had fallen into it. The snake was soon dispatched. The lying red man lay stretched out on the floor to await the final outcome of his rash folly. And thus died the two secrets of the old Sioux Indian—one the cure for rattlesnake bite; the other, the gold and silver mines hidden away somewhere in the hills of Keweenaw county.

Woman Runs "Dude" Ranch, and Is Writer

San Francisco.—With the "rah, rahs" of undergraduate cowboys on the Hawaiian "dude ranch" ringing in her ears, Miss Armine von Tempski pegged away at her typewriter, nourishing in odd moments an ambition to become an author. When her father died from the effects of an injury sustained in roping a bull, she was left with a cattle ranch and a young brother and sister to support.

"I did everything from cooking and pitching tents to cutting firewood and teaching dudes to ride without galling a horse," she relates, "but I would not swap the eight hard years of my life that I struggled before I sold my first book for anything."

"Bula," Miss Von Tempski's first successful novel, has run through three editions, and publishers have accepted two more.

"The Super-Boys" "There," said Snaggy at the club "there is a magenta . . . a leader among men; a man who controls 50,000 jobs. His slightest word is a command to millions in money. When he throws the United States treasury treasures!"

"Gee!" Barkness exclaimed. "Is he telephoning now to some bank president?"

"Well," he's phoning his wife for permission to stay downtown for dinner."

Mother's Cook Book

WORK AND PLAY

THE one who said "that housework was powerful constant" knew what he was talking about, for it is the work that greets you with the rising sun and does not cease at the going down of the same.

As the most valuable and least regarded of all possessions is good health, and the strength which goes with it, the wise housewife will choose which are the really worth while things that must be attended to, letting the others take their turn in being done, as to the most important.

With the multiplicity of duties which today confront the housewife and as over 80 per cent of us are doing our own housework without the aid of a maid, and a large per cent without even a laundress, the saving of strength is a large item to the house mother who is so invaluable in the home.

She who can use the energy she would spend on scrubbing a floor, in studying the problem of keeping within the family budget and serving wholesome attractive meals, not only helps herself, but improves her home. Unfortunately floors must be cleaned, but a well and carefully mopped floor can be cleaned in half the time it takes to scrub it, and a floor can be very much soiled before the neighbors will notice it.

The woman who wastes her energy doing things because she has always done them, or it was the way her mother did them, needs some lessons in loyalty to her family, for times have changed, and none of us wish to fall behind in the march of progress.

A schedule is a valuable aid in work, but no schedule can be followed in any iron-clad way. Circumstances alter cases, never get so tied up in system that you cannot put your rising bread in the ice chest or collar, or leave the dishes in the sink, in case of an important duty.

We all know capable and fine women who do certain things on certain days, though the heavens fall. Would such a woman leave her work to take an hour or two in the open air or the woods, if invited for a ride? More than likely not, for she must finish the ironing or clean the silver.

In many homes the mother says it is much easier to do the work herself than to try to teach the bungling little ones who love to work. It is not fair to them nor to herself not to let them share in the household tasks. The tiny two-year-old can be taught and will love to do it, many little step-savers, like putting away their toys and hanging up their own wraps. This training will help them all through life in many ways, giving them orderly minds and trained hands.

NEWARK TEAM TO PLAY HERE AS CARTERET A. A.

Mgr. Elko Secures the Services of Bay View Wheelmen A. C. as Local Team

Manager J. Elko, of the Carteret A. A., after experiencing difficulty in holding the local boys together, in his determination to place a first class team on the field, has secured the services of the fast Bay View Wheelmen Club of Newark, to represent Carteret.

Local fans will remember the club as they have beaten Carteret on several occasions, once this season. They are placing on the field the same team that gave the local boys a drubbing the first part of the year. The line-up is as follows: Hass, c; Shore and Matt, p; O'Brien, 1b; Amberg, 2b; Jennings, ss; Rissio, 3b; A. Mottocia, rf; Hoe, lf; J. Mottocia, cf.

CARTERET FIELD CLUB FIRST GAME AT PERTH AMBOY

One of the Best Line-ups to Represent Carteret Will Be Seen On the Field Sunday

After dickering, since the season's opening, Manager Henry Staubach has succeeded in getting together what is no doubt the best team Carteret has had in many years, with such men as Frank Brugg, Pennoyer, Butch Worth and Ace Samson in the line-up Staubach's team should be a good one.

On Sunday, the Field Club travels to Perth Amboy to play the Amboys and as Carteret puts up such a fight against their old rivals, much is to be expected.

Build For Fire Safety Urges Fire Chief

In reviewing measures now being taken by the International Association of Fire Chiefs to combat the appalling loss of life and property by fire in the United States, Fire Chief Wilhelm points out that one of the most effective ways to reduce the fire danger is to give such buildings as we erect the highest degree of incombustibility.

"It would be impracticable, of course, to build an all-fireproof structure," Chief Wilhelm continued. "In a residence of this nature the beds would have to be steel or concrete slabs and furniture would have to be of a similar material. There could be no draperies, rugs, linen and clothing. But it never is impracticable to construct a building as fire-safe as is compatible with comfort."

"Take the average wood frame house as an example. When the wood frame is covered with a sheathing of wood, and this in turn is covered with wood siding; and when the lath under the plaster and the shingles on the roof are of wood, you have a highly combustible, conflagration-breeding type of construction—one that would put surrounding structures in jeopardy if a fire should break out, particularly if there were a high wind blowing. For a high wind would carry burning embers to adjoining roofs and scatter sparks far and wide.

"But it probably a long way off before wood frame houses will be altogether abandoned, particularly since the development of modern building materials has resulted in a protected type of wood construction that retains all the good features of the all-wood house."

"In building such a fire-protected wood house the wood frame is erected in the regular manner. But instead of a sheathing of wood being applied over the frame, an incombustible type of sheathing is now used. This protects the frame from the outside. To protect it from the inside a metal or rock lath is used in place of wood lath. With a roof-covering of asbestos or other fire-resistant material, a house so built possesses as high a degree of protection from fire as is possible in a frame structure."

Chief Wilhelm feels that preventing fires is just as important a part of the Fire Department's work as fighting fires, and along with the thousands of other fire chiefs throughout the country, he is actively cooperating with the International Association of Fire Chiefs in its great "1927 is Fire Prevention Year" movement which it is hoped will acquaint the public with means for reducing the annual fire toll.

Captain and Mrs. Harry DeLong, spent Wednesday evening, with friends in the Borough.

A party, consisting of Mrs. F. F. Simons, Mrs. James Mullin, Mrs. Andrew Christenson and Mrs. O. S. Birkeland, left last Tuesday for Atlantic City, to spend several days there, returning tomorrow. They intend to stop along the Jersey Coast at various points of interest and entertainment.

Each Thinking Other Dead, Brothers Meet

Mason City, Iowa.—Two brothers, each thinking the other the man who was found murdered in a box car, met face to face in a street here and the most promising clue to the man's identity went glimmering. The brothers are James Schell of Runnels, Iowa, and Phil Schell, an itinerant printer with temporary headquarters here.

Hearing of the murder the Runnels man came here and found every mark about the corpse to conform to those on his brother's body. He took charge of funeral arrangements.

The Mason City brother went into a pool hall and was told the name of the dead man had been found to be Schell. Confident it was his brother, he hastened to the undertaking place to confirm his fears. He was on his way when he met his brother in the street.

ON JOB EVERY DAY 48 YEARS

Train Dispatcher Spends Spare Time as "Silent Evangelist."

Arkansas City, Kan.—Fred T. Horton, in retiring from his job as train dispatcher on the Santa Fe railroad in Arkansas City, is closing nearly half a century's career at railroading with an outstanding record.

He has never missed a day at work. He has never been laid a day, except once, when his home was on fire. He has never been responsible for any serious trouble on the line while he was on duty.

He has refused all offers of promotion to official position. His refusal of offers of promotion by no means indicated a lack of interest in his work, however.

"Even when a little boy playing 'choo-choo' I said I was going to be a train dispatcher. I love the work and there never has been a day when I did not go to work in the morning with the eagerness of one who loves what he does," is Mr. Horton's unusual testimony after 48 years at railroading—38 years as train dispatcher at Arkansas City, seven years as dispatcher in St. Joseph, Mo., and three years as telegraph operator in Galesburg, Ill., his home town.

Wanted Time as "Evangelist." Mr. Horton simply wanted all his spare time to carry on his work as the "silent evangelist of Arkansas City" and this requires more time and work than the title indicates.

To do work at the office with all possible skill and care and then to slip out to a hillside near Arkansas City and in full view of the Santa Fe tracks north of the city there to construct his "sermon on the mount"—a rock inscription 475 feet long—these were the chief ambitions of Mr. Horton.

Mr. Horton has been preaching his brief "sermon" day after day, year after year, for about thirty years, without ever entering a pulpit. It reads "Christ Died for the Ungodly." This quotation Mr. Horton has built of rocks in letters 16 feet high and whitewashed so that it can be seen for miles. Some of the letters are 40 feet in circumference. It has taken time, money and work to build the sermon. How many miles he had walked back and forth while collecting stones, it would be impossible to estimate. He has rebuilt the letters four times. He counted up that he walked 700 miles rebuilding the letters once. Frequently he has even worked by moonlight, for all the work has been done after office hours.

It costs from $50 to $100 a year to keep up the text, since it takes three barrels of whitewash costing $15 to $20 twice a year to keep the giant letters visible, explains Mr. Horton.

Thousands of railway passengers, pedestrians and motorists see the verse. Some scoff, Mr. Horton says, but others read it and stop to think or perhaps go home to look it up in the Bible and read for themselves. Horton is absolutely nonsectarian and trusts entirely to his silent sermon and his own methods of living to reach the public.

Links Work and Faith. Horton's religion and his work are closely united.

"Not even the president of the railroad is more interested or more anxious to have things to run smoothly than a train dispatcher," he said. "No one is more anxious to hear 'trains whistle at the same time' than the train dispatcher. They like to live by clockwork. There is no more responsible or strenuous job, either. Now there are more automatic signals, the quick telephone service to supplement the wire, but even so washouts, long trains, floods, storms and such things are always on hand to make the life of a train dispatcher exciting. Sometimes it has seemed to me like playing checkers with trains across the map. I have worked straight through two shifts for 16 hours to relieve a fellow worker who was sick. I have often worked all day without stopping for a bite to eat.

"Fifty orders in eight hours are considered a good day's work. I have given out as many as 125 orders within eight hours besides the regular schedule orders."

Manipulating trains has become a sort of second nature to Horton. There have been times, he says, when he felt there was nothing left for him to do but pray that things would come out right.

"Once when I had three trains standing east and three west with only a blind siding between them, I did all I could and then prayed for divine help. Another time when someone failed to give an order for a train to wait at a station until a long overdue train arrived, and I knew there was only a blind siding without an operator between those trains, I knelt down by the tracks and prayed. I had a man climb to a telegraph pole and see if he could see what was happening. It was little short of a miracle that the train waited for some reason, until the freight reached safety.

Woman Saves the Day.

"On another occasion an operator on the road forgot to flag a train I had ordered to stop at a siding to let another pass. As soon as the train pulled out, the operator remembered the order. He was a quick thinker, however, and telephoned a woman up the line to stop the train. Dropping the phone, the woman rushed out and flagged the train with a red table cover and relayed the order.

"Such things naturally make a train dispatcher do considerable thinking. My thinking led me to the Bible and the Bible taught me to depend upon God both in my own life and my work."

In his daily life Mr. Horton lives simply. Born in Galesburg, Ill., 67 years ago, he attended school there until 1877. His brother taught him telegraphy and he took his first job at nineteen years of age on the C. B. & Q. railroad in his home town.

Naturalist Finds Owls Can See in Daytime

Vancouver.—Dan McCowan, a naturalist and photographer of the Canadian Rockies at Banff, Alberta, has just discovered that owls can see in the daytime. McCowan, who has spent 20 years studying and photographing the wild life of the Banff National park, during which time he has taken more than 10,000 negatives, gives his judgment on the seeing capabilities of the owl as follows:

"One day recently I climbed up a small Douglas fir near the Banff Springs hotel to photograph a nest full of young horned owls which could be snapped from the top of this tree in their nest in a big stump. I was just taking a closeup of the owls when the mother bird came at me in full flight, hit me in the back of the neck and knocked me out of the tree. I dropped about 25 feet, grasping various limbs as I fell, but being a Scotchman I kept a firm grip on my camera, which had cost money."

Only a short time previously McCowan had climbed 500 feet up the steep slopes of a cliff near Banff to reach an eagle's nest. He had just succeeded in photographing the young eaglets when their feathered protectors swooped down from a thousand feet above and made such menacing motions with their dangerous looking talons within a few feet of McCowan's face that he scurried down the cliff to safety.

Hat Doffing Traced to Knightly Custom

Sunday promenaders on Fifth avenue see more hat doffing than do the crowds that move along the sidewalks on workdays. After church the avenue fills up with neighborhood people, who at least know many members of their own congregations. But few among them, from those wearing informal fedoras to those in ceremonial silk hats, probably ever question where this hat doffing originated.

As a fact, the doffing of the hat was a common custom long before the modern types of headgear were fashioned. In the days of knights in armor, when a man traveled incognito under all-enveloping helmets, it was customary to remove the iron headdress in the presence of a lady so that she might see his face. By this act she would be assured that her grim ironclad visitor was a friend or acquaintance.

As a custom of respect the practice thus came down from feudal times. Today not only to the fair lady but also to persons of dignity, and in places and situations demanding particular respect or reverence, men uncover their heads.—New York Times

PRETTY WEDDING TAKES PLACE AT SAINT JOSEPH'S

Miss L. Blanche Olbricht Becomes Wife of Frank Cole, of Warren, Pa., Wednesday

Miss Lillian Blanche Olbricht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Olbricht, of 3 Washington avenue, became the bride of Frank Cole, of Warren, Pa., at a pretty wedding in St. Joseph's Church Wednesday. The Rev. John R. O'Connor, pastor of the church, said the nuptial mass. The altar was gaily colored with ferns and palms.

Miss Loretta Walsh, aunt of the bride, of Bloomfield, acted as bridesmaid. Henry J. Harrington, Jr., was best man. The bride, one of Carteret's prettiest girls, looked attractive in her white satin gown, which was trimmed with pearl beads and rhinestones. She wore a picture hat and white slippers and carried a shower bouquet of peonies and white carnations. Miss Walsh wore orchid crepe, white satin slippers and hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Following the wedding ceremony in the church, which was attended by a large group of friends, a delightful reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, with relatives and friends numbering over 100 present. The couple left by motor for Newark, where they boarded a train for Warren, Pa., to visit the groom's parents, and after a stay of one day will proceed to Atlantic City and Niagara Falls for their wedding trip. The couple will live in Warren.

Miss Olbricht was one of the borough's most popular young girls. The couple received a large assortment of handsome and valuable gifts.

LOCAL BANKS INAUGURATE A SERVICE CHARGE

Ruling of M. C. B. Ass'n Effective July 1st; Applies to Less Than $100 Daily Balances

On July 1st a service charge of $1.00 per month will be made by both local banks upon checking accounts maintaining a daily balance of less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) and against which more than three (3) checks are drawn during any current month.

Many banks have analyzed the cost of carrying small checking accounts and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that accounts which carry daily average balances of less than $200.00 are not profitable.

It is doubtful whether bank customers having the use of this service realize the expense incurred. Many items enter into the expense account as the result of check account service. There are the salaries of tellers and bookkeepers, stationary for records within the bank, cost of check books and deposit books, also the responsibility involved in passing upon the signatures on checks and making collection of check deposited.

Under the new plan beginning July 1st, such accounts as will be subject to the service charge, will be debited on the last day of each month. Officials of both the First National Bank and the Carteret Trust Company have expressed the hope that their customers will endeavor to maintain balances that will eliminate the necessity of the monthly service charge.

OUTING HELD BY BUSINESS MEN IN USUAL ENJOYMENT

About One Hundred Members and Friends Have Good Time at Somerville on Sunday

ALEX LEBOWITZ ADDRESSES

Tells of Good Work That Association is Doing for Carteret Against Gamblers

The Carteret Business Men's Association held its annual outing last Sunday at the Bulkin House, Somerville, N. J. The affair was held mainly as a testimonial to two of its members, Thomas Cheret and S. Kline, both of whom will spend vacation trips in Europe. About one hundred members and their friends were present.

Several after-dinner talks were given. Thomas G. Kenyon was toastmaster.

Alex Lebowitz, president of the organization, spoke of the good that is being done by the Business Men, especially in keeping travelling gamblers from fleeing local people. He did not express any objections to recreation at carnivals, but to the gambling devices which relieve people of money without giving any benefit, material or otherwise.

Almost twenty autos left town about eleven o'clock Sunday morning. After a little rest at the Somerville place, the party ate dinner at 2.30. The whole day was filled with the general good time that is a feature of all the Business Men's affairs.

POSSIBILITY OF AIRPORT STATION FOR CARTERET

Would Make Carteret a Pioneer in Air Service; C. of C. Actively Engaged

Luring the last three months or so, the Local Chamber of Commerce received numerous requests concerning the possibility of an airport station either in Carteret or its vicinity. Representatives of two large firms from New York were here during the last few weeks and have gone over the territory very thoroughly. It is thought that should suitable grounds be obtained an airplane service for freight and passengers might be started to New York and other points within a short time.

The Carteret Chamber of Commerce have been very active in advertising our Borough throughout the United States and have invited manufacturers to locate here.

Should an airport be established in this vicinity, it will mean that Carteret will be one of the pioneers, which in turn will increase business and enhance realty values.

Attorney Maxwell Sosin, Secretary of the Carteret Chamber of Commerce refused to affirm or deny anything concerning the airport propositions for the reason that those interested did not want real estate brokers to start realty booms here at least until options were obtained. All this information was revealed to a News reporter from sources outside of Carteret.

CAMPAIGN FOR KIDDIE KEEP WELL CAMP SUCCESSFUL

Over Half of the Local Committees Have Turned in Their Full Quotas

The Kiddie Keep Well Camp Committee will hold a meeting at the Elks Club, New Brunswick on Wednesday, June 15th at six o'clock.

Early reports indicate that more than one-half of the local committees have reached the quota assigned them and the other committees are still working on their quota and expect to reach them before the camp opens. Thus far the amounts reported reach a total of approximately $6,000.00.

The largest amount received from any tag-day was that of Perth Amboy which reached $513.00. Other notably successful tag days were at South River and New Market.

Twelve municipalities have appropriated varying sums of money to support the work of the Kiddie Camp in their community. A number of other municipalities have pledged amounts but are waiting for a meeting of their township committees.

School nurses and welfare workers have been active in recommending children for the camp. Nearly every community has a large waiting list of children who will be sent to Camp if any vacancies occur. The headquarters have urged a waiting list in each community as there is a possibility that the camp will be enlarged this year.

An active camp committee composed of trained men representing the Boy Scouts, an engineer, a city playground official and the public health nurses have been making an inventory of the camp requirements for the season.

A force of men are now working at the camp clearing the grounds and preparing the buildings in preparation for the camp opening.

PORT RARITAN COMMISSION IS HARD AT WORK

Will Endeavor to Have Wood- bridge Creek Deepened; Other Work Outlined

At the recent meeting of the Port Raritan District Commission the need for deepening of the channel of Woodbridge Creek was brought up by John F. Ryan, the Commissioner representing that municipality. He told of getting in touch with some of the large manufacturers whose plants are adjacent to the waterway, and said they were favorable to some plan that would result in deeper water in the Creek.

Chairman R. E. Watson named as a special committee to give the matter prompt consideration, Commissioner John F. Ryan, Chairman; Secretary C. S. Atkinson, and Counsel Douglas M. Hicks. This committee will ascertain what the tonnage was formerly in Woodbridge Creek, and get some data relative to some of the work formerly done by the federal government. Also, it will endeavor to learn what is the reason for the falling off of the tonnage, and how the commerce may be restored.

The Port Raritan District Commission is doing some excellent work in connection with the movement for deeper channels in the Raritan River and South River, and at the last session of the New Jersey Legislature secured the passage of an act authorizing an appropriation of $200,000 to straighten South River. The money was not obtained this year owing to the numerous demands upon the State Treasury, but it is expected it will be made available next year.

GRAND ASSOCIATION MEETING

The Past Noble Grand Association will hold a regular session at the home of Mrs. Charles Morris on Washington avenue next Wednesday. All members are requested to attend.

UNION IN SPOTLIGHT

It is the plan of Carteret, Linden and Rahway to dredge the Rahway River, straighten it and prepare it for advantageous navigation. The proposal was introduced by Linden almost a year ago. Since then this town and Rahway and Linden formed a commission solely for the purpose of improving the waterway.

But Carteret is the only municipality in this county working for the channel. Linden and Rahway, on the other hand, have by their side men from their whole county, men from Elizabeth, from Plainfield and elsewhere—and present at the meeting. It is a glaring sign of the difference between politicians in the two counties.

The local members of the commission present at the session last night were: Mayor Mulvihill, Vice-President, Frank Andres, Samuel Brown, John Nevill and W. B. Vonah. The City of Linden had Jules Verner, President of the commission, L. A. Watson, N. M. Palermo, Atty. Emerson, Judge Whitmore. Rahway was represented by Mayor Fyffe, George Bechler and Henry Jardine.

State Senator Pierson, Assemblymen Muir, Otto, Compton and Clift were also present. Their suggestions were encouraging, considering their high position in state politics. Assemblyman Clift of Summit, said that the improvement was not only a provincial interest, but one in which the entire state should be elated.

LARSON ABSENT

Assemblyman Larson, of Middlesex, was invited to attend the session, but did not appear.

The gathering set first to enjoy a banquet when all first met. With eating done, Mayor Fyffe of Rahway, greeted the delegates to his city and promised them all courtesy. J. Verner gave plans of the Harbor Commission, especially for the benefit of the men of higher influence. Then he asked for suggestions. None was backward in offering points, because right from the start the proposal took with effect.

Mr. Verner, of course, stated that concentrated support would be necessary before the channel could be seen in the river, for, as he said, he realized that the project is one of deep importance.

He mentioned the debt of gratitude which the municipalities in this region owe to Linden for the way in which that city sponsored the movement. All the time he stressed the benefits that would rise from the dredging.

"MORE BUSINESS ASSURED."

"It means more business, more people, more prosperity," he said. "Years ago shipping flourished on the Rahway River. People who saw that shipping should know today the value of a channel."

Mayor Mulvihill agreed with Mr. Fyffe and added that Carteret could not but obtain benefits from Rahway River shipping.

"Almost all of the waterfront on the Staten Island Sound is taken," the Mayor said. "Now, we must develop the Rahway River to induce other factories to come to these parts."

VITALLY INTERESTED.

Mr. Mulvihill explained that in a few years streets would be made to the waterfront in East Rahway. "Why, it won't be many years before that whole section will be built up," he stated. Perhaps Carteret will make its public dock there.

"Carteret is vitally interested," Mayor Mulvihill concluded.

Attorney Emerson, of Linden, who represented the Mayor of that city who is ill, pointed out that the three towns pushing the project are situated naturally to obtain the benefits of the river.

Judge Whitmore asked why the country at large was not developing its natural resources to a greater extent. He outlined the difficulty that (Continued on page 3)

Carteret Park Is Selling Very Rapidly

Carteret Park is the real center of real estate activity. Heavy sales are reported during the past week on Post boulevard, the main street on the tract, and one of the finest in the Borough, because of its anticipated improvement of parkway in the center, with four beautiful brick piers at its entrance. It is the plans of the owners to plant trees and shrubbery along this parkway.

A five acre park will be developed on this tract and there is already an artificial lake that will be improved and re-built with bridges and walks and benches that will beautify the whole section and give Carteret a real home residential section, that carries with it restrictions that give assurance of a real Carteret suburb.

Contractors are now at work grad-ing and constructing cement side-walks five feet in width. A space of 8 feet between the curb and sidewalk will leave ample space to plant a grass lawn and shrubs.

Aside from the developments un-der way, plans are spoken of for the erection of a bridge across the Rah-way River that will give a state high-way to meet with the new New York—New Jersey bridge, giving an out-let to almost any section and a quick route to New York. It is rumored that a highway running along this property leading to Philadelphia is under way.

This section of the Borough shows a tendency to boost real estate values here and become a real center of elaborate homes, that will keep the high wage earners of our industries in Carteret, instead of going to out of town places.

As a real estate operator said yester-day, why not create conditions that will bring in that 60 per cent of wage earners that do not care to live here, yet work here.

TELEPHONE CO. DISTRIBUTES ITS NEW DIRECTORY

A Finer Edition and More Com-plete Than Ever; Many Num-bers Are Changed

"Bigger, better and more useful than ever," is the way Local Com-mercial Manager, D. H. Ford, of the New York Telephone Company today characterized the summer issue of the telephone directory which is now being distributed to telephone sub-scribers in the Perth Amboy district.

The new issue gives the names, ad-dresses and telephone number of all subscribers in northern New Jersey with the exception of Monmouth County, and approximately 454,000 copies will be distributed at this time. Since the last issue was published the telephone listings in the directory have increased from 350,000 to 365,000, approximately.

The admonition to "look up the number before you call" is again em-phasized by the Telephone Company because of the latest authoritative compilation of "who's who" among New Jersey telephone subscribers contains not only the telephone num-bers of many new subscribers but also number changes due to subscri-bers moving to new addresses, open-ing of new central offices and other causes.

The classified business directory, which in recent years has become a feature of the telephone book, is larger and more complete than ever. It lists business and professional con-cerns alphabetically and under var-ious headings so as to provide accu-rate and easily used information as to where to buy or secure almost any type of goods or service.

STATE-WIDE HOPE SHOWN IN RAHWAY RIVER NAVIGATION

would be encountered in obtaining an appropriation, and also showed the mistake of the Elizabeth Chamber of Commerce in not spending enough money on the development of the Elizabeth River.

"If you go into this proposition, men, go into it with strength and make it worthwhile," Judge Whittamore said. "Elizabeth spent little money on its river channel and it did not amount to much. What you should keep in mind is the fact that this Rahway River can be developed to such an extent that it would be a benefit not only to Rahway, Linden and Carteret, but also to this whole region."

Jules Verner, President of the Commission, said that the State might open up a highway along the Public Service Trolley line. Reports have been made that the Public Service has offered to give a right of way to the State for such a road. Verner pointed out that this additional improvement would mean a great deal and would work well with a better Rahway River.

"State Highway Engineers are working on the project right now," he asserted.

Senator Pierson spoke of the affects that the Vehicular Tunnel to New York will have on this part of the state. He was certain that in two years the state would build a highway through here.

"Then deep waterways will be of priceless value," the Senator remarked.

"These parts have a better opportunity in deep waterways than Newark has."

PLAINFIELD HAS HOPES.

Thomas Muir, Assemblyman from Plainfield, said: "If Los Angeles can develop the harbor of San Pedro, a distance of 25 miles, Plainfield can certainly look for benefits from the Rahway River. I believe that we can get the necessary appropriation."

John Clift, of Summit, then spoke: "You men have the approval of Union County delegates. Now the whole state should give you encouragement. The project has my hearty support."

Jules Verner stated also that the Central Railroad has written of its approval and confidence in such a development.

The enthusiasm that reigned over the session was deep. It was discouraging that Middlesex County was not better represented.

PLANTS ALSO HAVE DISEASE CARRIERS

Leaf Hopper Found to Spread Yellows Disease.

New York.—Just as yellow fever is due to an invisibly small germ or virus carried from person to person by an insect so are some of the most serious and destructive illnesses of plants due to invisibly small germs carried from plant to plant by an insect.

In a report to the Engineering Foundation Dr. L. O. Kunkel, plant pathologist at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, Yonkers, tells how a little gray insect, the aster leaf hopper, spreads the yellows disease of asters by first biting sick plants and then, after the virus has had ten days to incubate in its interior, biting healthy ones and planting the infection in their tissues.

Carries It to Fifty Others. The same leaf hopper that transmits yellows to the China aster also carries it to more than fifty other species of wild and cultivated plants. Lettuce is one of the most important hosts of aster yellows. On this plant it has long been known in the Southwest as the Rio Grande disease and in New York and other eastern states as the white heart disease. In the winter yellows lives on perennial weed hosts. During the summer, when the carrier leaf hopper is very active, it spreads rapidly to susceptible annual plants, such as the China aster and lettuce.

Spread of aster yellows and its host range depend largely on the likes and dislikes of the aster leaf hopper. The African marigold is quite susceptible but seldom takes the disease even when grown adjacent to yellowed aster plants. The leaf hopper does not like the marigold and seldom feeds upon it when other plants are available. If confined in a cage containing only marigold plants hunger drives it to feed upon them and they readily take the disease. It is fortunate that although wheat and other cereal crops are favorite hosts of this leaf hopper they are immune to the yellows.

Disease Known Only Here. The aster leaf hopper is thought to have been accidentally introduced into the United States from Europe fifty or more years ago. Although it is prevalent in Europe and the Orient, where the China aster is extensively grown, the aster yellows disease is known only in America. Thus a disease which is apparently endemic in America has been rendered much more serious through the importation of a European leaf hopper, and of an oriental plant, the China aster.

No satisfactory means is known of controlling the aster leaf hopper, but the yellows which it spreads can be held in check by digging out all infected perennial weed hosts in the vicinity of the field to be protected and by destroying all diseased annuals as soon as observed. A yellowed plant is a menace to nearby healthy plants just as a malaria patient is a menace to a healthy community in a region infested with the Anopheles mosquito.

Find Old Roman Town on Farm in Britain

London.—Recent discoveries in and around the town of Stockbridge, Hampshire, have led archeologists to believe that the site of a former Roman town has been discovered.

In 1924 Ernest Barnard discovered on his 850-acre farm the foundations of two Roman baths and three villas. He has since unearthed the positions of over a dozen other Roman buildings.

Among the more recent discoveries are several hundred copper coins, parts of a tortoise-shell necklace, an oyster opener, a razor, a quantity of broken pottery and two grinding stones.

Barnard has also discovered what he believes to have been a Roman vineyard, with terraces cut in the rising upland. Further finds were two huge stones, probably forming the bases of pillars of the entrance gates of an imposing Roman building.

Roman bricks have been found built into the walls of an Elizabethan cottage in the town, while in the neighboring village of Kings Somborne several people have collected quite a show of Roman and early British relics. Such importance is attached to the discoveries that a British museum expert is making a personal investigation.

The Man Who Returns Sees Progress

All of Carteret takes pride in seeing workmen filling in nasty Noe's Creek. One who has been away from the borough for a time returns with great surprise to notice the wonderful advancement that Carteret is making.

It was not a foolish statement that Noe's Creek has been a foul detriment to Carteret. Nor is it an idiot's remark that this borough will obtain great results toward progress now that the dirty creek is being wiped away. When it will be only a black memory and that ground which smells from its odors is cleaned over, then all citizens here will have a REASON to be pleased with Carteret.

Already we see that contractors are planning to build in CARTERET CENTER, which is that part of the town over-run by Noe's Creek. In time there will be a thriving business district there. The borough hall will be a beautiful monument THEN. Its wholesome appearance will not be marred by filth, but will be enhanced by signs of activity and business.

Customs

Most everybody has wondered where the customs of shaking hands and lifting the hat originated. The question of origin has probably been inspired by thoughts of the futility and uselessness of both customs.

One theory of the origin of the hand-shaking custom is that prehistoric man proffered his right hand to the passerby to indicate that he had left his club at home and was bent on some peaceful pursuit. The custom has deteriorated to a less significant salutation.

The custom of lifting the hat is supposed to have originated when knighthood was in flower and armored knights raised the visors of their helmets upon passing a lady that they might the better see and be seen.

But today one is more apt to hear "tip the hat" than "lift the hat." Is there any relation between this and the fact that men now touch their hats to a lady, whereas they formerly removed their hats entirely with a grand flourish? Customs are subject to change, although most of them survive in some form or other for centuries.

The Parisians—reputed to be the most gallant and courteous of men—are said to be welcoming with a zest a league against hand-shaking in process of organization in France. It recalls the spontaneous public approval given to suggestions to abolish the traditional white house hand-shakings in the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

Good Old Summer

What is the best season of the year? Summer, to most people—though the other seasons, especially spring, have their charms. And the older you get, the more you will like summer, the more you will dread winter.

Spring corresponds to our babyhood. It is the sprouting season, full of hope, dreams, uncertainty, danger of frost.

Autumn is like the waning years of life, when we harvest as we have sown, when we suffer for our negligence and mistakes and are rewarded for our effort. Most of us, when we look backward in the autumn of life, say: "If I only had my life to live over again. . ."

Winter, of course, corresponds to human death, the hibernating of old growth until new growth is ready to sprout and bud.

All three of these seasons are preparatory to or the aftermath of summer. And summer is the period of Life—of accomplishment—symbolic of the lives we are living. Lucky are you who have survived the frosts of life's springtime. Your crop of success is started. Toil and weed, for autumn of life will be upon you before you are aware. For results, it's now or never.

Advertising As A Science

Like all things, advertising has had an evolution. A century ago the leading merchants resorted to what is now the classified ad and the modern display ad was unknown. The store which a century ago purchased newspaper advertising in quantities of a half dozen lines weekly now contracts for one and two pages and the landlady advertising for a roomer or a young lady seeking a lost cat consumes more space in the newspaper of today than the most thriving merchant of yesterday.

As in quantity, so has advertising had an evolution of quality. Within the shopping memory of the present generation the advertisement, both newspaper and magazine, has risen from a relation of articles and prices to attractive displays artistically phrased, graphically illustrated and in the case of magazines often beautifully lithographed. The modern advertisement is not a narration of goods and prices; it is storehouse of information about buying, styles, thrift and economy. The public once complained of spending a penny for a newspaper and getting 50 per cent, more or less, of its paper in advertising. Now magazines are purchased by many for their advertisements alone, and as for the newspaper, the advertisements form an important part of the day's reading.

Read Newspapers

The woman who knows her paper from the date line to the want ads can pick an argument with her husband about blondes becoming extinct, or a candidate's chances, and the result is that she gets all the argument she wants without interfering in the least with her domestic happiness.

Instead of panning one of her husband's associates' wives she can land the harpoon into some dame who is dragging her husband through the divorce courts, or she can grill the dramatic critic who doesn't like a certain show as much as she does. She can voice an opinion about a bit of news and throw more of a scare into her husband than if she tried to crown him with the goldfish.

Women read the papers more carefully than men do. At least this is the consensus of opinion in newspaper circles, where a close tab is kept on the tastes of people and the things that interest people.

It is interesting to come to the forks of a strange road and make a decision on which way to go.

The Austrian artist who says American girls are dolls has never tried to feed one with sawdust.

The world's speediest stenographer writes 9,120 words an hour, if anyone can think of 9,120 words an hour that ought to be written.

Expert says women talk too fast over the phone, but it is difficult to believe it after trying to get in touch with some one on a party line.

CARTERET BENEFITS WHEN ALL WORK FOR DEVELOPMENT

People Have Power to Show Appreciation of Service Rendered by Officials and Tradespeople

SPEND WHERE YOU EARN

Every Citizen of Carteret is a Partner in the Prosperity of the Town

Carteret is your community! You are a partner in its prosperity. If it grows and thrives, you profit in hard dollars and cents; if its growth is retarded and it goes backward, you lose. We have taken the former so much for granted that we have lost sight of the latter—particularly our own obligation in the matter.

You and your neighbors can say which it shall be. You are a partner with everybody else here, and the community—which is all the partners collectively—can be only as prosperous and progressive as the sum of the prosperity and the progress of the individual partners.

The chief victim at the present time of the wave of real estate speculation prevalent in the county is the local businessman—more especially the local retail merchant.

At first glance this may seem like a contradiction, but the fact is that while every one else in the community can reap profits from the sale of real estate or is sitting back and counting potential profits as property values soar, the average merchant is faced by an arbitrary increase in overhead expenses induced by the realty boom. Values of business property, like those of acreage, are advancing far more rapidly than those of residential property, and the merchants' problem is to increase his volume of business to keep pace with his rent and taxes.

The people of a community have it within their power to show their appreciation for the prosperity this realty valuation is bringing, by considering the home town merchants a little more in planning their shopping. If every dollar that is now thoughtlessly or needlessly spent in the larger centers were passed through the cash registers of the local business people, the discouraging conditions under which the merchants often labor would be completely removed, and they would be given such incentive to increase their stocks and improve their service that there would be no need for ever going out of town to secure necessities of life or of comfort.

In such a movement the local banking institutions have an important part to play. The retail merchant and the business man who shows by his advertising and his ambition and ability to serve the public, is given the most liberal credit consistent with the circumstances—not credit that is based so much on the balance he is able to keep in the bank, but upon the capacity of his business to use credit in serving the community.

The merchants, the local newspaper and the banks are "Three Men in a Boat," and the success with which they navigate their craft through all the difficulties that beset business today, depends upon their faith in each other and their disposition to pull together at the oars.

No one can place a value on the service rendered by the business men of the community. Take the druggists, for instance. He is there to save the life of a member of the family if the prescription is needed and he is right in the neighborhood to render this service in time. He has no easy bed of it. He has to pay special taxes, or license fees as an apothecary, a retailer of narcotics, a cigar dealer, a seller of whiskey (on prescription, of course) and some as restaurant keepers.

Besides inspections by representatives of the State Board of Pharmacy, their establishments are subject to oversight by the local board of health, by the fire department, by the prohibition agents, by internal revenue deputies, by plumbing inspectors and by postal department inspectors, when a post office branch is maintained.

Years ago, a pharmacist solely dispensed drugs, but he has been forced, in compliance with demands that customers be inconvenienced, to undertake a wide variety of other activities. Why then isn't the drug store in your community worthy of your full patronage?

Don't impoverish your town by taking the money out of it and sending it to a mail-order house far away. Don't take train, bus or trolley for a place distant to buy there. In the former instance you are making some rich corporation richer—at your expense—and in the latter instance you are helping some big city store pay its heavy overhead by the higher profit tacked onto every single article you buy.

It's time you stopped robbing yourself and your town, and paying tribute to out-of-town stores and merchants, who do nothing for you or for your community.

IN THE ROOSEVELT NEWS

WEEK OF JUNE 15, 1917

A pretty wedding was solemnized here on Tuesday, June 12, when Miss Mary C. Kelly became the bride of Leo J. Coughlin at St. Joseph's Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. M. J. Hagerty.

A committee has been appointed by the Home Defense League to organize a Red Cross society here. Of late there have been numerous inquiries why no Red Cross work is being done. Up to now our own people have not suffered from the war. But now we must share the sufferings that Europe has endured.

The response of the Foresters of Carteret to the new Liberty Loan issue is great. They have decided to purchase two hundred dollars worth of bonds. Encouragement for other members to purchase them has been made, too.

Governor Edge sent the official and corrected figures of military registration to Washington this week, showing that 302,842 men from New Jersey, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, have enrolled under the selective service act on June 5.

The fire department held its regular weekly drill last evening. Lieutenant William Firth thought it necessary to meet twice each week. It was decided to drill on Monday and Thursday hereafter.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ross returned from their honeymoon this week, after a trip through New York State. Mr. and Mrs. Ross are now living in their little bungalow in Lincolnville, and are open house to their borough friends.

While several boys were engaged in a ball game Sunday afternoon, Henry Bunk, ten years old, of Rahway avenue, was struck on the nose by a foul fly ball.

Now that windows and doors are open all day and until late at night (warm weather), which fact permits noise to be more penetrating, several residents are complaining about the screeching noises made by the whistles of railroad engines. Some engineers seem to have no regard for other people at all.

The good material that the borough can boast of can be seen in the promotion of Joseph Young to corporal in the National Guard while at post in South Amboy. It is with pride that we mention this, always alert to boost the borough, and there is little doubt but that more such news will be heard from others who have enlisted from the borough.

At a meeting the other night the Firemen's Relief Association decided to purchase close to one thousand dollars of Liberty Bonds. Consent to do this was unanimous.

Last Monday the members of the Council made an inspection tour of the borough's roads. They especially noticed the poor condition of the East Rahway road. But the Council has the assurance from the County that work will be begun on it in a short time, as specifications are being drawn for the work.

The News has been asked to give publicity of a section of the army act as regards the sale of intoxicating liquors to members in military uniform.

"It shall be unlawful to sell any intoxicating liquor, including beer, ale or wine to any officer or member of the military service while in uniform."

An editorial in The News states as follows:

"We do not wish to play the grandstand and are not assuming to play any favorites, but henceforth we shall advocate, and justly so, too, for the abolition of either the Carteret or Chrome post office."

"Here we have a stream which, when the tide is out, most anyone can jump. It will only be a remote memory in another decade or so. If we two continue to live apart what then shall divide us? (The News therefore advocated the present name of the borough)."

Rays Have Similarity
There is no difference in principle between Hertzian rays and gamma rays of radium. Hertzian waves are usually polarized and, of course, have a very much greater wave length—furthermore, they arise from mass movements of electricity, while gamma rays arise from vibrations of single electrons.

"Tail" May Precede Comet
The naval observatory says that the tail of a comet is directed away from the sun, and therefore "precedes the comet" when the latter is receding from the sun. It is called the "tail" on account of its appearance, regardless of whether it follows or precedes the comet.

ENGLAND'S STORY REVEALED IN INNS

Faded Signs Tell Past of Many Villages.

Birmingham, England.—English villages in agricultural sections are often more than 1,000 years old, and bits of their history are often written in quaint signs which have survived for many centuries.

Next to the church, the inns and smithies are usually the oldest buildings in the villages which have not been engulfed by industries. Before the days of railways and motors the smithy was the center to which everyone had to go both in peace and in war.

Inn signs are particularly useful in tracing the history of villages, as they often show the souls or insignia of lords under whose protection the village thrived in past ages, and frequently indicate the past character of the neighborhood.

But the purely fanciful signs are even more interesting than those which have historical background. One sign, which used to be very common on old English inns, was the "Five Ails." The sign represents the king, "who governs all"; the bishop, "who prays for all"; the lawyer, "who pleads for all"; the soldier, "who fights for all"; and the laborer, "who works for all."

Although many individuals in direct line of descent link the present villagers with their ancestors before the Norman conquest, the villagers of today often know little about the history of their communities, and search of village records often yields little information about the early struggles of the tiny communities which are made up of low brown cottages screened by trees and vines.

Says He Has Found Lost City of Ophir

London.—After a search lasting 20 years, a British naval officer, Commander C. Cranford, declares he has discovered the lost lands of Ophir, whence the queen of Sheba brought to Solomon her magnificent gift of 33 tons of incense, spices, gold, jewels, apes, peacocks, pearls and other valuables. Lecturing to the United Services Institute recently, Commander Cranford said he found the city of Ophir exactly where it ought to be—in Arabia, about 400 miles east of Aden.

The city, with its ruined temple of God, is now little more than ruins, which have been visited by many seamen and political agents, he said, but they have never identified it. The commander suggested that excavations on the site would be richly repaid, and said that the land, which was mineral wealth, should be developed.

"The city is ideally situated," he said. "It has a harbor to the north and has a river which gives wharf space for a seaport. But a thin ribbon of coral sand is drawn across the harbor mouth. It is this strip of sand that strangled the life of Ophir. There is great wealth in Ophir still."

"Palestine now in the Palestine of King Saul. It lies in our power to develop the land to the prosperity of Solomon. There are gold mines and precious stones in the ground, a veritable Transvaal there."

French Alchemist Again Reports Making Gold

Paris.—France's modern alchemist, Joilvet Castelot of Douai, again is sure he is hot on the trail of the famed but unfound philosopher's stone with which the ancients believed base metals could be transmuted into gold. This alchemist asserts his process of producing gold synthetically now is commercially profitable.

Out of six grams of silver, two of sulphur of antimony, one of orpiment and one of tin, he affirms, he has produced ten milligrams of gold.

He melts the metals, he says, heating them to 1,100 degrees Centigrade, and a complicated process ends in precipitating the gold. The addition of tin, he says, has improved his earlier process. He claims that besides the gold, almost all the original quantity of silver is recoverable.

Twin Runaways

New York.—The Rosenberg twins of Brooklyn, aged five, have run away from home 11 times now. Each time a policeman has found them, their faces as like as their sailor suits, asleep.

President in Power in Troublous Times

James Buchanan, as fifteenth President of the United States, occupied the White House when the questions of slavery and states rights were dangerously fermenting. His administration, from 1857 to 1861, saw the prelude to the Civil war. Buchanan was born April 23, 1791. As a Pennsylvanian he disapproved of slavery, but being a strict constitutionalist and a Democrat, he held to official convictions. He publicly denied the right of secession, and refused to treat South Carolina representatives as foreign delegates. His chief difficulty was an unsympathetic congress. The Dred Scott decision and John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry so stirred the nation during his administration that those events somewhat submerged his diplomatic accomplishments of settling the question of British dominion in Central America and by stopping Great Britain's "right of search" on American ships. The first Atlantic cable was laid in Buchanan's administration. Before he died, June 1, 1868, Buchanan wrote his own vindication of his administrative policies.—Exchange.

Easy for This Student

A school inspector in Hampshire, England, having set the children some sums to do, and having gathered the answers for correction, demanded silence, during which the class might write a description of a cricket match. Looking up a moment later he saw a boy with folded arms, regarding his paper with satisfaction. "Well, my boy," he said, "surely you can find something to say about cricket." "Oh, I've finished, sir!" was the answer, and the essay was handed up. This is what the inspector read: "Match postponed on account of the wet."

Train Pushes Truck Into Passenger Car

A locomotive engine damaged a truck and a passenger automobile at the crossing of the U. S. Metals Refining Co. Tuesday afternoon. The truck was hit first and pushed into the passenger car. The damage was not great. No one was hurt. William Langan, of 723 First street, Secaucus, was driving the truck into the plant at the time. The other car, which was parked nearby, was owned by Albert E. Davis, of Rahway. Detective Patterson of the Central Railroad made a report of the accident to the police.

PARTNERS IN PROSPERITY

You and Carteret are partners in prosperity.

If your town, prospers, you profit.

This is simple logic. You have made this town your home. Your interests are here. As the town grows, as its business develops, in a like degree grow the benefits of the community for yourself and family.

Keep your money where your interests lie. When you patronize out-of-town merchants, the money which you spend will never be used towards the growth of your town.

When you spend it here, you invest it. And the investment will pay dividends in making your community a better place in which to live.

The prosperity of Carteret is assured, if you make it a point always to

Mr. Brown, of Brown Bros., on Roosevelt Ave., spoke of building near his place of business that was over the line on sidewalk. Andres spoke of the same matter. This was left in the hands of the Attorney to look into, on motion by Andres and Vonah.

The following resolution was presented by Andres: That the Mayor and Clerk sign Improvement Note No. 144 for $17,000.00, to meet the final payment of the cost of the construction of No. 6's Creek Sewer due Jacques Construction Co.

On motion by Vonah and Ellis same was adopted, all voting yea on roll call.

The following ordinance was introduced by Andres: AN ORDINANCE TO PROHIBIT THE ERECTION, CONSTRUCTION OR MAINTENANCE OF ANY BARBER POLE, OR ANY APPLIANCE FOR THE FURNISHING OF AIR OR WATER, AND OIL OR GASOLINE PUMPS, OR OTHER APPLIANCE FOR THE SUPPLYING OF OIL OR GASOLINE OR SIMILAR SUBSTANCE, AND THE ERECTION OF ANY SIGN OR OTHER OBJECT PROJECTING BEYOND THE BUILDING LINE, INTO OR OVER ANY SIDEWALK, STREETS OR HIGHWAYS OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET.

New Style of Uniform for Operators Of Public Service Trolleys and Buses

Public Service trolley and bus operators are soon to be attired in natty new uniforms of an entirely different design and color than those now worn. The change is to become effective at once for new men entering the service and will be adopted by present employees as their old uniforms wear out and they buy new ones. The familiar blue uniform will give way to a uniform of heavy whipcord, olive green in color. The official Public Service design will be embroidered on each side of the collar. Breeches and black puttees or long trousers will be worn. A decided innovation is the adoption of an army officer's style of cap, of the same material as the coat and breeches, but with brown visor and strap. A nickle-plated badge of attractive design will replace the enamelled badge now worn on the cap.

again Thursday, June 9th, at 7 o'clock p. m., was carried. Motion to adjourn was carried.

H. V. PLATT, Borough Clerk.

ADJOURNED MEETING

An adjourned meeting of the Council of the Borough of Carteret was held in Council Chamber on Thursday, June 9th, 1927, at seven o'clock p. m.

Present—Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill. Councilmen—Andres, Brown, Ellis, Vonah.

Absent—Coughlin, D'Zurilla. Business of meeting—Paving of Emerson Street.

There was considerable discussion among the Council and property owners on Emerson St., the engineer explaining two ways of paving this street. The majority of the property owners present asked for a parkway in center of street. The Mayor explained that this would be an extra cost over the ordinary paving and felt that the property owners should stand that extra cost. The Council present also felt the same way. The Mayor then said he would have plans drawn for street paving also for parkway, and advertise for bids and put same before the property owners to see which improvement they wanted. Motion by Andres and Vonah that the Engineer prepare plans both ways was carried, all voting yea on roll call.

Motion to adjourn until Saturday, 2 p. m., at Borough Hall, was carried. Motion to adjourn was carried.

H. V. PLATT, Borough Clerk.

LOCALS WIN FROM PORT RICHMOND IN CLOSE BATTLE, 8-7

Visitors Stage Late Rallies But Are Unable to Overtake Big Lead of A. A. Nine

The Carteret A. A., in reality the Bay View Wheelmen, turned in a close victory over the Port Richmond K. of C. nine at Brady's field on Sunday afternoon, 8 to 7. Hard hitting featured the contest. The visitors staged rallies in the seventh, eighth and ninth frames, but could not overtake the good-sized lead which the local outfit had piled up.

Next Sunday the A. A. will engage the Harmony nine of Perth Amboy. A win will give the locals a sight for the county championship honors. On the following Sunday afternoon the New York Bloomer Girls will come here for a game.

Score by innings: Port Richmond 003 000 112-7, Carteret 003 320 60x-8. Two-base hits—Maiman, Bricks, Sterns, Martocio, Rossland. Three-base hits—Bricks, O'Brien, Martocio. Home runs—Thor, Hoe.

Girl's Brittle Bones Mystery to Doctors Burton-on-Trent.—An eleven-year-old girl here, the daughter of a miner, is puzzling medical men who have come from all parts of England to study her case. Her bones are so brittle that they break easily and she has already suffered seven bone fractures, five to her legs and two to collar bones. She spent two years in a local infirmary, but had been discharged as cured several weeks ago. Two weeks after she was discharged she stumbled and fractured a leg bone again.

BRUSKIE TAKES FIRST JUMP IN CHAMPIONSHIPS

Locks Good in Titular Jog Over One Mile Course at Providence, R. I.

John Bruskie took a flying start toward the New England bike championship in the one mile for professionals at Providence, R. I., Monday night. A formidable entry was stacked against the local pedaler, but Bruskie merely displayed some of his old time skill to win easily.

Bruskie made a good name for himself in Providence last summer when he did considerable riding there. The fans know him as "Andy Gump of the race track." They claim that "Andy" is one of the best of the season. They like his way of riding and his sportsmanship.

As regards the championship title for the one mile, there will be eleven more races. The man with the best showing in all twelve will be awarded the championship.

Nickel Pinchers Not Exponents of Thrift

I have never known a stingy person who was nice, who was one of those persons the thought of whom makes your heart expand with warmth and affection. I am not inveighing against those who are sensibly economical and thrifty. When a man or woman says: "No, I can't afford that. It's only a dollar, but a dollar is important to me," that is all right. The quality of being unashamed transgressors almost anything into something all right, even charming.

But a stingy person tries to pretend that the expense is nothing; that isn't what interests him. Oh, no! Yet his worry over the slipping away of nickels is so intense in him that it makes your flesh creep. When there is a restaurant check to be paid, when you invite a tightwad to have a soda with you, click, click, you intuitively feel the cerebrations going on in his anxious brain as to which of you will have to give up the mazzima for the indulgence.

"I don't want to embarrass them by taking them to the Ritz," the very rich girl rationalizes her economy, "so I will just take them down to that interesting little place under the elevated, with the sawdust on the floor."

"I don't want persons to get to care for me only for my money," says the very rich snob, who as often as not is the richest debutante of the season. So she always makes it a point to "go Dutch."—Elizabeth Barbour in the Saturday Evening Post.

First Silver Tokens in America's Coinage

Old records show that silver tokens for making change were first used in this country in Annapolis. With the consent of the government, I. Chalmers, an Annapolis gold and silversmith, in 1783 turned out by hand sixpence, threepence and shilling coins, to combat sharpers who, after depreciation of paper money, began to cut five "quarters" out of silver Spanish dollars.

Because of lack of change the cutting of Spanish dollar into halves and fourths was condoned, and even necessary, until it was discovered that expert cutters were reaping a small fortune. When expertly cut the fifths could be discerned from quarters only by keen eyesight or by weighing. Chalmers produced new standard coins and took the short pieces in exchange until the fraud was stopped.

Mother's Cook Book

At our house we laugh an' we sing and we shout, And whirl all the chairs and the tables about: An' rascal my pa, an' get him down, too, An' he's all out of breath when the fightin' is through: An' ma says that our house is surely a sight, But pa an' I say that our house is all right. —Edgar Guest.

THE MARSHMALLOW

THERE is nothing the children like better around the campfire than toasted marshmallows. In winter the grate is often the campfire and may be just as enjoyable. The marshmallow is a confection which lends itself to many culinary achievements.

An ordinary cream or lemon pie becomes especially stylish when decorated with a few quartered or whole marshmallows. They puff up, look so tempting and taste so good that it always pays to have a box of them for use in food. Cornstarch pudding, chocolate pudding, jelly, salad dressings or fruit are all improved by the addition of a few marshmallows.

An apple or other fruit pie baked uncovered and decorated with marshmallows is both attractive and digestible. Hot chocolate or cocoa for the children is made most festive by a marshmallow swimming around on top.

Plain cookies, vanilla wafers, crackers or saltines are all the basis of most attractive little cakes when decorated with marshmallows, nuts and fruit preserved or dried. Place in a hot oven to puff and brown.

Figs soaked overnight in grape juice, then drained and stuffed with nuts and marshmallows are delicious. Pineapple marshmallows and whipped cream are delicious poured over slices of angel food for dessert.

Gingerbread and sponge cakes cut in two while hot and filled with marshmallows, put together and placed in a hot oven to melt, then served as a dessert are delightful. Be sure that the mallows are fresh or the melting takes too long.

By JEAN NEWTON "CARRYING COALS TO NEW CASTLE" TO GIVE a hat to a milliner, to carry flowers to a garden or salt to the sea, to give anyone something of which he already has a goodly supply, is described as "carrying coals to Newcastle."

This phrase, so popularly used in common parlance today, goes to England for its origin. The reference is to the city of Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, the great coal center of the Northumberland and Durham regions. It received its name in the Eleventh century from the fact that Robert, eldest son of William the Conqueror, began, in 1067 or 1080, to build a castle there. And located in the center of a district rich in coal it became famous early in its history as a great coal-distributing center. Hence, "Carrying coals to Newcastle!"

The Executive Committee of the Kiddie Camp Well Camp has completed selection of the camp personnel for the summer.

Mr. M. Carleton Thoroman, a graduate of Purdue University, will act as director of the camp this summer. Mr. Thoroman has had about eight years experience in camp life, including army camp life, work with boys camps and in camps conducted by settlement houses. Mr. Thoroman has just completed a year's post graduate work in the course conducted by the Playground and Recreation Association of America. He will arrive at the Kiddie Camp June 24 and will make definite plans for the routine of the camp before the children arrive on July 5.

Mrs. Heroman, who is also a graduate of Purdue University in the Home Economics Department, will assist Mr. Thoroman and plan diets for the children and have charge of housekeeping arrangements. Eight councillors have been selected for work with children this summer. None of the councillors will have more than twelve children under their care at any one time. These councillors have all been carefully selected and are specialists in some one activity such as physical training, hand-craft work, kindergarten work, dramatics, story telling or nature study. All of the councillors are either teachers or college students. All but two of the councillors are residents of Middlesex county and have been out to the camp and are enthusiastic about beginning their work. The councillors will be at the camp on June 28 and will have a three day institute conducted under the direction of Mr. Thoroman.

Some of the speakers at this institute will be John E. Toolan, president of the Middlesex County Kiddie Camp, Dr. Wm. B. Lonsdale, Miss Agnes B. Holmes, Miss Marie Nielsen, Mrs. Mabel Fales, Miss Nancy R. Clement and Klemmer Kaltrousen.

Mrs. M. Behme, who has charge of one of the lunch rooms in a New York City high school, was the cook last year and will be at the camp again this year. She will have two assistants to prepare vegetables and have care of the dining room. Mrs. Behme plans to use green vegetables almost entirely at the camp this year.

Four of the councillors are now attending a camp course given by the Children's Welfare Federation at the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City. This course is an excellent one, with talks by all the leading camp people in New York. One day is given to a trip to Bear Mountain for the inspection of the Bear Mountain camps.

BD. OF EDUCATION SANCTION PLANS FOR E. R. SCHOOL

Board Members Differ as to the Type of Proposed East Rahway School Building

MATTER UP TO VOTERS

Option for Site in Carteret Park is Withdrawn; Plans are Presented by F. F. Simons

The one story structure, that is popular now in the construction of up-to-date schools, is the opinion of the majority of the members of the Board of Education, as the best kind of building for the proposed East Rahway School, according to a vote, after a difference of opinion had been voiced by some of the members, at Monday night's meeting of the Board of Education.

A sketch in colors of the proposed one story structure was presented by F. F. Simons, who was engaged as architect. After viewing the plans Commissioner Schwartz voiced his objection to the one story plan on the grounds that the two story building was much more beautiful and cheaper to build the roof according to Mr. Schwartz. The one story building would be quite expensive he said. According to the proposed plans that have the approval of the majority of the Board the building will be a six room structure with four rooms finished and two unfinished.

Mr. Schwartz was backed in his views by Commissioners Lebowitz and Brown. When the matter was put to a vote Commissioners Conrad, Cselle, Dalrymple, Jeffreys and Hiel voted in favor of the one story building while Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Brown voted against the one story structure. Commissioner Lebowitz, who is president of the Carteret Park Development Company, then withdrew the option on the site in that company's territory, declaring that a one-story building would not look well in the park. The only remaining option left to the board is that on a site of sixteen lots in the Carteret Heights Realty Company tract.

A resolution to hold a special election to seek the authority of the voters of the district to purchase the site and erect the one-story building was then adopted, the cost of the whole affair not to exceed $85,000. Architect Simons said that he had not been instructed as to the design but had sketched the kind of building that, in his opinion, suited the country district where the building is to be erected. Later in the evening Mr. Simons pointed out that a one-story building exposed the pupils to less danger from fire in a district far removed from the fire engine houses and that one story buildings are more in line with the modern trend in school houses.

Commissioner Coughlin, reporting for the committee on playgrounds and athletic field, announced that the playground and athletic field will be enclosed with an iron fence. Abe Chodosh and Pinkus Wexler were appointed playground instructors for boys and Miss Mamie Schwartz for girls.

FIREMEN RECEIVE PRAISE

Whole Stock of Varida's Dry Goods Store a Total Loss; Chas. Roth is Owner

Fire, for a short time threatened the entire business section in the block on Roosevelt avenue between Pershing and McKinley avenues, last night, when the Dry Goods store owned by Louis Varida at 55 Roosevelt avenue, burst into flames.

On the arrival of the firemen on the scene of the blaze the aspect of the situation, with dense volumes of smoke pouring from the building, engulfing the entire block, looked bad, and inspired hurried action by both departments.

Shortly after openings had been made in the building, the upper floor burst into flames, directing the firemen to the seat of the fire. Water soon brought the blaze under check, preventing its spreading to adjoining buildings.

Mr. Charles Roth, owner of the damaged building, and operator of a department store, two doors away, complimented the departments on their fine work in extinguishing the blaze before other buildings were affected.

The entire stock of the Varida store is a total loss, and when questioned as to origin of the fire, Mr. Varida was at a loss as to how to account for it.

CAMOUFLAGE ON CITY MERCHANDISE IS USUAL PRACTICE

Home Town Merchants Not Required to Pay High Advertising Price and Overhead

PAYING FOR CITY STYLE

They Price One Article at Cost and Make Up on All Other Stock in Store

"Camouflage" is one of the expressive words handed down to us by the war, but it exactly fits a similar practice in our peace time pursuits. We refer here to the so-called "bargain" of the city merchant, advertised for the benefit of the little town shopper, behind which the city merchant screens his true purposes. It is not his real aim to sell the man or the woman from the country a bill of goods at less cost than that same bill can be bought at the former's home town merchant; his aim is to use the specially-priced article as a bait, and then sell him other goods—once he has the visitor in the store—at such prices as will yield sufficient profit not only to cover the latter but to bring a good return also on the under-priced article.

It cannot be denied that in many cases this "leader" is cheaper than the same article can be bought for in the home-town store. And the country shopper, makes much of the point. But do not let that mislead you. If you will give the matter a little thought, you will find that in rare instances it is a staple article that is thus under-priced, and even if it were the situation would not be greatly changed. In the end, you pay well for it just the same. The Carteret merchant will be the first to admit that he cannot meet the price at which such "bargains" are offered and still make the reasonable profit to which he is entitled by his investment. But bring your receipts bills to him after your return from the city shopping-expedition, and he will show you how he could have saved you money by striking an average of more reasonable prices all the way down your list.

In the preceding article we emphasized the heavy overhead that the city merchant has to meet. If you remember that you have to pay your share of this total of his fixed charges every time you visit his establishment, all will be well with you, for you will compare his range of prices with those of your home-town merchant and you will buy only those few things that are under-priced—if you buy at all. Desirable business locations double and triple in value because of the competition for their possession. High value means high taxes. The downtown congestion means greater fire hazard, with the resultant increase in insurance. You help to pay for the style and pomp displayed, and for the employment of many superfluous clerks and attendants—which in no sense add to the value of your goods.

Even more, however, is the country buyer singled out by the city mail-order house. This kind of buying is what the boy with the broken-bladed jackknife, in an effort to awaken our sportsmanship, so that he can foist his useless article upon us, calls "un-sight-unseen." We have all been "stung" in that way.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN IN LOCAL PRIMARY VOTE

No Contests in the Candidacy for Offices Here Result in a Day of Rest for Election Board

The little interest shown here in Tuesday's primary election made the duties of the District Election Board, at the eight polls, rather light, it taking just about fifteen minutes after the polls closed for the Board to conclude its work.

Former Councilman William J. Lawlor seeking the nomination of Freeholder, received a total of nine votes in the eight polls. Only occasionally would a voter appear to cast a ballot most of which were Republican ballots as only a few Democratic ballots were cast.

As no contest prevailed here the candidates for the various offices in the regular fall election will more than likely be as follows:

Running for assessor for the Democratic nomination is William D. Casey, while Charles A. Phillips seeks the nomination unopposed on the Republican ticket. Collector Charles A. Brady seeks the Democratic nomination for re-election. Lewis N. Bradford is on the Republican ticket for that office. This is probably the first time in the history of the Borough that opposition will be faced by Mr. Brady. Councilman Walter B. Vonah and John Yuronka are running for Councilmen on the Republican ballot and Frederick Colton and Adam Malwinski on the Democratic ballot.

For Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill, the primary this year receives somewhat greater attention. As clerk of the Board of Freeholders he is interested in the nomination of Freeholders Robert Vandenberg and George Applegate, both of whom are opposed by Joseph Policastro and Courtney Brown for the Republican nomination.

Miss Julia Elko Weds Thomas Goza

Among the numerous June weddings in the Borough this year, was that of Miss Julia Elko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Elko, of 5 Sharot street, who was married Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, by Rev. John R. O'Connor, at St. Joseph's Church, to Mr. Thomas Goza, of Irondale, Mo.

The Bride was very attractively dressed in a period chiffon dress, trimmed with white lace and satin, with a veil of cape effect. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Bueckshy wore a green dress with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Thomas Bell acted as best man.

A fine reception followed the wedding, at the Elko home, which was attended by a large group of friends. The couple received many fine gifts. During the reception the couple stole away, leaving for a wedding trip to Canada and on their return will make their home here.

PASSAGE OF ORD. BY COUNCIL FOR 10 P. M. CURFEW

Fire Whistle and Siren will be Sounded Each Night at 10 O'clock for Children

SWAMPS BREED MOSQUITOS

State Expert Explains why Carteret is Not Rid of Summer Pest; S. I. to Co-operate

Mayor Mulvihill and the Borough Council have taken steps, at their regular meeting Monday evening, to establish a curfew lay in the Borough, by the first and second reading of an ordinance, which limits children under the age of 16 years, the privilege of being on the streets to 10 o'clock, unless accompanied by parents or guardian. The fire whistle and siren will sound the curfew each night. Parents of children, violating this ordinance will be liable to a fine ranging from $10 to $25. Councilman Walter Vonah introduced the ordinance.

Mr. Thomas J. Heady, entomologist, connected with the New Jersey Experimental Staff in a communication, explained the reason for the excessive mosquito pestilence in Carteret.

Mr. Heady wrote that mosquitoes in Carteret would come from two sources, salt marshes and stagnant pools of fresh water in uplands. The marshes about the borough have been ditched, he wrote, but added that the station had no knowledge of any ditching done in the marshes in Staten Island.

A copy of the letter will be sent to the Borough of Richmond in Staten Island and to the Board of Estimate there. A communication will also be sent to Mrs. E. H. Boynton of the Mosquito commission and a request for more funds from the county for extermination work will be made.

The matter of the bad condition of the East Rahway Road was again brought up by Councilman Frank Andres, chairman of the street and road committee, who said that the Freeholders should do something about this road as its condition was becoming worse each year. Mayor Mulvihill said that the Board of Freeholders intended to act on the matter within the next few days.

Mr. H. Ellis, chairman of the finance committee, commented on the splendid condition of the Borough's finances according to the report of the auditors for the first quarter of the year, showing a better report than for the same period of last year.

A map of Moheida Park, a realty development in East Rahway, was adopted with certain changes to comply with maps of adjoining tracts.

Recorder N. A. Jacoby, in his report for April, presented a check for $993 collected in fines. Councilman Ellis, of the police committee, reported that a dog catcher will be engaged and put to work in the borough this week.

An Ordinance to change and establish the grade of Roosevelt avenue from the present sidewalks westerly to the Borough line was presented by Councilman Andres and was passed on first and second reading.

The final passage of the Ordinance to prohibit the erection of barber poles, signs, gas tanks or any other object beyond the building line or above sidewalks, was laid over till the next meeting to make several changes in the ordinance. Two ordinances providing for the paving of streets, one for Emerson street and one for High street were passed on first and second readings as was another ordinance for sidewalks and curbs on Roosevelt avenue, from the present sidewalks westerly to the Borough line.

Property owners of Longfellow street, from Washington avenue to Blanchard street, petitioned the Council for a five-foot bitestone sidewalk. It was referred to the attorney and engineer for the preparation of necessary ordinances.

W. Martenczak petitioned for a permit to operate a poolroom at 43 Pershing avenue. The application was filed.

Enforcement of the parking ordinance was urged by Councilman Walter B. Vonah. Police Commissioner Hercules Ellis said that the enforcement of the ordinance cannot be put into effect until the proper signs have been placed on the streets. The need of checking speeders was related by Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

Plans have been completed by the Ladies' of the Roosevelt Republican Club to hold a Strawberry Festival at the Washington avenue Headquarters on Thursday evening, June 30, at a meeting of the Club held Wednesday evening. Mrs. C. Drake was appointed chairman of the committee to arrange the affair.

HORSE ON MAIL ROUTE 21 YEARS

Old Bay Mare Still Gives Faithful Service.

Kokomo, Ind.—The old bay mare is still what she used to be, 20 long years ago.

Daisy is twenty-three. Ever since she was two she has traveled a rural mail route out of Kokomo. She has seen her equine kin give way to motorized service, and she has tilted an ear skyward at the hum of an airplane, roaring from New York to Chicago in less time than it takes Daisy to make her little circuit twice a day.

But Daisy disdains the thought that any motor car or airplane could take her place. She could almost deliver the mail alone.

She is credited by Ben Boughman, her present owner, with having twice saved his life, when he failed to see trains at grade crossings.

Throughout the years Daisy has pulled the same tiny and ancient mail cart with which she started. She has lost but 18 days at work, and that because she hurt a leg in the line of duty.

The carrier who trained Daisy is long since dead, but the horse passed to succeeding carriers without a break in her service record.

Faithfully she plods around her route, and when she gets home she refuses to go another step. When her owner litters on the homeward trip, Daisy goes on home to supper and lets her master leg it.

She has one complex. Circus day has scared her ever since the ringmaster rode down Main street ahead of the parade shouting "Hold your horses, the elephants are coming." When the big top is spread in Kokomo, Daisy is skittish all day.

Right now Daisy is on her annual vacation. Each summer she spends an outing in a familiar pasture. But she'll be back at the old grind in the fall.

"Pickling" in Paraffin

Saves Museum Groups

New York.—"If you think we're waxworks," he said, "you ought to pay, you know. Waxworks weren't made to be looked at for nothing. Nohow!"

"Contrariwise," added the one marked, "Dee, "If you think we're alive, you ought to speak."

Alice's dilemma would no doubt have been considerably increased had she encountered beings who looked very real and almost alive, and yet were indubitably waxworks, in the literal sense of being completely sculptured in wax. This is exactly what two workers at the American Museum of Natural History have done.

G. K. Noble and M. E. Jaekle, confronted with the troublesome fact that frogs and toads and spotted salamanders and all manner of other interesting but nonfar-hearing creatures cannot be successfully stuffed and mounted by the ordinary methods of taxidermists, have solved the problem by literally pickling them in solid paraffin wax. They first remove all trace of water from the specimens by appropriate chemical means, arrange the little animals in natural positions and soak them for several days or weeks in melted paraffin, until every tissue is thoroughly impregnated and you cannot tell where the flesh ends and the paraffin begins.

By this method reptiles and amphibians can be worked into naturalistic museum groups and made as "alive" looking as birds and fur-bearing animals, instead of being pallid corpses pickled in jars of alcohol. They keep their natural colors indefinitely, except that sometimes their eyes need to be touched up with a little gold paint.

Play Four-Part Music With Ancient Violin Bow

Berlin.—A new type of violin bow, or rather rediscovery of a very old type, which permits the playing of four-part music on a single instrument, has recently been demonstrated here by a well-known virtuoso, Herman Barkowski.

The bow is deeply curved instead of straight, as in the usual modern form, and the strings are left very loose. It resembles the bows shown in medieval pictures of performers on the ancient Celtic chrotta or crewth, the ancestor of the violin.

It is stated that the new bow makes possible the rendition of early violin scores which have hitherto been riddles to modern performers because they called for the simultaneous reaching of strings impossible to the straight bow.

THIRD DEATH ADDS TO KANAGA RIDDLE

Caves of Island May Hide Wild Animal.

Kodiak, Alaska.—Do the deep sea-worn caves of lonely Kanaga Island conceal strange animal-like men who venture out at low tide to prey on natives and white fox-farm attendants? For the third time in a year a Seattle man's death adds to the North riddle. Thus far the toll of Kanaga includes T. Shrager, Tom Marrah and T. H. Munro.

More than a score of Aleuts have fallen victims to some mysterious power at various times in recent years, yet there has been no witness of the terrible deeds committed nor has a view to the malefactors been found. Fox-pelt poachers do prey among the fur islands, but they rarely molest the islanders, fearing disclosure of their crimes. The Aleut natives are peaceful men, seldom perturbed to the fighting point.

Has Largest Blue Fox Farm.

Kanaga is the home just now of the largest blue fox farm in the world. The island lies near the tip of the Aleutian group, the relic of terrific volcanic upheaval centuries ago. Besides Aleuts, there are a few persons descended from the Baranoff explorers and the Muscovian influence is shown in their mode of living—low-roofed stone houses with large fireplaces where the fires seldom die down as a rule. Pelting of furs is the occupation, besides fishing and hunting.

Day after day in autumn and winter Kanaga is veiled with dense fog; the furious sea beats the rocky shores, wearing deep caves far into the bowels of the sandstone formation. Some of the caves are a mile back with high vaulted ceilings. In these natural tombs Aleuts bury their dead, each body rolled in layer after layer of long seaweed or kelp. The dead were mummified and today are in a good state of preservation.

Wild Beauty in Spring.

In spring Kanaga casts off the drab clothing of winter. Lupines, lilies and wild cherry transfer it into a great flower garden. Sea food by the hillside come to eat the wild rice and "bobots" of fish. The towering cliffs are covered with spruce and there is a strange wild beauty all around. Wild bird semi-domesticated fox overrun the land.

Lured by the natural torpid surroundings, the Aleuts have become half-dazed, the white settlers morbid, and all move about as dead living people. In the mummy caves are found grotesque masks, ikons and ornate carvings. The bench receives a backwash from many shores. Driftwood from Asia reaches Kanaga in the Japan current. This adds to the terror and superstitions of the islanders.

Little wonder the stranger landing at Kanaga is held at a distance, and bearing eyes-watch from secret places until suspicion is overcome.

On Kanaga island it is said Irish turn into Russians, Russians become Chinese and all finally become queer primitive human beings lacking ambition and imbued with a curious desire to worship the mummies in the echoing caves of Neptune.

20 Families Kin to Pre-Conquest Saxons

London.—The controversy as to the latest family tree in England reached a climax when A. C. Fox-Davies, genealogist, and Sir Francis Galton, anthropologist and Darwin's cousin, came out recently with authoritative comment.

Mr. Davies declared there were 20 families who have direct descent from Saxon ancestry before the Conquest, while 35 descended through the male line from ancestors who rode in the ships of William the Conqueror. None is yet bold enough to say how Caesar's soldiers figured, Sir Francis Galton, in writing "The Ancestral Law," calculates that a man descended from a Norman baron, assuming a weight of 100 pounds, contains one-fiftieth of a grain of blue Norman blood, which hardly seems enough to fuss about.

Going back to 1066, it was ascertained that a person born in the early part of the Twentieth century has 7,108,870 ancestors, while nearly half of the actual ancestors—33,554,432—are accounted for during the Norman conquest, which is greater than the estimated population of western Europe of the year 1100.

Origin of Shoemaking Traced Back to Egypt

New York.—It may boot little to you that the origin of shoes has been traced to Egypt, through the footwear taken from mummies in public museums, but in the days when "woman bangled her arms, binged her hair and bungled her face," as Homer or Herodotus put it, she always was careful to "tittivate her toes," asserts Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly.

The Israelites wore sandals. The early Chaldeans wore neither sandals nor shoes, but shoes were not unknown to the Assyrians even in the earliest period, for they were indicated on the feet of foreign tribute-bearers as early as the Black Obelisk King, Salmeser.

American Army Relics Still Seen in France

Chateau-Thierry, France.—American army relics and souvenirs are still visible throughout the former battle zone in France.

Some recall grimly death and devastation of war; others have a lighter touch showing that the doughboy's sense of humor never abandoned him even when shells were flying.

The motor of the plane flown by Quentin Roosevelt on July 14, 1918, when the son of the former President of the United States was killed in aerial combat at Chamery, is installed in the American War Relic museum at Chateau-Thierry. Though battered and smashed, it is kept clean and shining.

When the American soldier, who modestly signed his design of an Indian's head, "L. G. Q., Santa Monica, Calif.," finished his work in July, 1918, he little realized that he was creating a masterpiece for the admiration of natives for miles around Missy-aux-Bois.

The owner of the ruins expects to rebuild his property this year, but he says he will keep the stones upon which the Indian's head is "painted." Driving through the St. Mihiel sector, the correspondent noticed a baker's delivery automobile which had a familiar appearance. It was one of the old ambulances of the American army. Now it is dispensing bread to the French in the same sector.

Fish Fight to Regain Homes in Flood Area

Memphis, Tenn.—With conservation of all wild life the aim of every true sportsman in the flooded areas, no greater opportunity for restocking of favorite lakes and ponds with game fish has been offered than that which is being afforded now as the flood recedes and the high waters, especially in the lakes, pour out into the bayous. This is especially true, observers claim, for Horseshoe lake and the other smaller lakes in eastern Arkansas.

Thousands of small game fish between an inch and two-inch growth are fighting their way up the streams in an effort to get into the lakes. At four culverts on the Horseshoe lake road a party saw countless numbers of small fish swarming at the bayou side of road culverts, unable to push their way up against the heavy outpouring stream from the lake.

More to Come

Cesarea, Turkey.—This town in eastern Turkey has a railroad connection for the first time in history and has 100 less sheep and one less camel than before modernity arrived. The animals were sacrificed in ceremony when the railroad was opened.

New Diamond Fields Attract Farm Labor

Pretoria, Transvaal.—More than 60,000 Europeans and 120,000 natives are working on the newly discovered diamond fields in the Lichtenburg area, according to Dr. H. A. Lorentz, Dutch consul general here.

The lure of lucky strikes is responsible for a great dearth of farm labor, and Lichtenburg farmers are bewailing the fact that kaffirs cannot be induced to do farm work when they can earn 30 shillings a week in the diamond fields.

No less than 43 per cent of the diggers belong to the agricultural classes, and only nine per cent are diamond miners by trade.

Curious tales of fortune hunting abound. Some who believed they had the richest claims suffered disappointment, while, on the other hand, an old man who sat down when he saw he was being beaten in the race for claim pegging, dug where he sat and struck a rich patch.

In another case a digger cursed when he sprained his ankle, falling over a tuft of grass, but later discovered that he had fallen on a claim that is now panning out rich.

Find 100-Foot Worms Off California Coast

Berkeley, Calif.—Species of sea worms classified as "amazing creatures," some of which are said to be 100 feet long, have been seen and studied in the Pacific ocean near San Diego by Prof. W. R. Coe, Yale university, as guest research worker at the University of California, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, at La Jolla, he reports.

These remarkable sea denizens, known by the scientific name "nemertean," have been examined by few biologists of the world. Doctor Coe is believed to be the only living scientist knowing much about them.

To zoologists the worms are especially notable for their length, some of the more common species extending a yard, their bodies being only a fraction of an inch in width. Certain of the nemertean species are reported to be longer than any known animal, 100 or more feet. Even the whale has not been found to reach quite that length, says Doctor Coe.

Soot From Smudge Pots Colors Grave Monuments

Tappanish, Wash.—Sextons are busy with sponge and chamol cleaning grave monuments after the sootfall from the smudge pots burned in central Washington to fight off frost. Polished granite has an affinity for heavy soot and most of the tombstones in cemeteries resembled charred tree trunks in fire-swept forests. The heavy smoke and soot did much temporary damage, but through it all the fruit and prosperity were both saved to the apple growers.

Briton Makes Bungalow of Air Liner Cabin

London.—Everyone knows that most English houses of any antiquity at all generally boast a small collection of spoils, but it is believed that no house on these islands is quite as "shady" as the summer home of Capt. G. H. Leverton, in Wallington, Surrey.

Through it roam the shades of 10,000 travelers who have flown over the city of London in the Vimy-Bells Royce air liner of the Imperial Airways. After the big plane had outlived its usefulness flying from London to Paris, Captain Leverton bought it and turned the roomy cabin into a bungalow.

DAGGER IS FOUND IN UR 5,000 YEARS OLD

Hilt Made of Lapis Lazuli With Studs of Gold.

London.—A wonderful five thousand-year-old golden dagger was one of the many treasures of Ur described by Prof. Leonard Woolley, head of the British Museum section of the Anglo-American expedition which has been excavating the neighborhood of the birthplace of the patriarch Abraham. The flight of time is vividly depicted by Woolley in his latest report to the British museum when he emphasizes that many of the expedition's finds date from a period "more remote in time from Nebuchadnezzar than Nebuchadnezzar is from us, and 2,000 years or more older than the treasures of Tut-Ankh-Amen with which they challenge comparison."

The excavation work has just been closed for the "season," partly owing to lack of funds, but Woolley and his fellow-scientists strongly favor more extensive examination of the ruins for, as he says, "The further we go back the more elaborate and the more finished seems to be the art of Sumeria." At the end of the expedition's fifth season archeologists and historians are now able to picture in detail the civilization of Mesopotamia in 3500 B. C., and "what is truly surprising is the wealth and the high level of the culture of that remote time."

As regards the dagger referred to, Woolley declares the hilt is made of one piece of deep blue lapis lazuli decorated with studs of gold; the blade is of gold, sharp and bright; the sheath, also of gold, is plain at the back, but in front covered with an exquisite design in filigree. With this was found a golden reticule also decorated with filigree, containing a tiny toilet set, tweezers, siletto and spoon, all in gold. They were at least five thousand five hundred years old.

Seals of Kings. Excavating the ancient cemeteries during recent weeks the expedition found cylinder seals of no fewer than five early kings, of whom three were unknown to history. It was when the excavators got below the two thousand-year-old graves that they made the best discoveries, for below these they found three thousand two hundred-year-old relics and, still lower, graves going back to 3,500 years before Christ.

The earliest graves were the richest, though naturally not all the treasures they once contained had survived the passage of time. There were no rock-cut chambers, hermetically sealed, such as preserved the woodwork and even the linen fabrics in Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb. In a land formed entirely of river silt, the ancients but dug a hole, laid at the bottom of it a square of matting, placed on this the body, draped likewise in a mat, with found it such offerings as they could afford; spread another mat over all and then filled up the pit again.

"Naturally after 5,500 years," says Woolley, "much has perished. Wood may have left a film of brown color in the soil, black flint may represent the fasselted garments or the shroud of the dead, but that is all. Silver is generally reduced to powder, copper may survive, or may become green dust or splinters, the very bones of the man himself may have vanished; only gold remains untouched by time."

But although much has gone a vast deal was yet found to throw light on the earliest period of Mesopotamian history. During the last month of the expedition's work not a day passed that did not produce at least one gold object; vessels of pottery and stone; copper tools and weapons, beads and amulets turned up daily in bewildering numbers and every now and then there was a special prize in the shape of some unique monument of art.

A Gaming Board. One such remarkable treasure was a gaming board. The actual wooden board had long since decayed, but the incrustation which had covered it remained in position in the earth. It was a difficult and lengthy task to lift without disturbing them the hundreds of tiny bits of inlay that composed it, but this was done at last and now it needs only to be rebaked and clean the mosaic to possess again. Just as it originally was, this royal "chess board."

The edging of the board is of mother-of-pearl, the border of mother-of-pearl, ivory and lapis lazuli. The squares, divided by strips of blue lapis and red paste, are of shell engraved and inlaid with red and blue in geometrical designs. Woolley says it is indeed a triumph of ancient craftsmanship.

Incomes in U. S. Increased Billion Dollars in 1926

New York.—Total income in the United States among its 110,000,000 inhabitants was $78,049,000,000 in 1926, compared to $77,313,000,000 for the preceding year, the National Industrial conference board reports. If the value of all goods and services produced in the country last year had been evenly divided, every man, woman and child would have received $671.43, the report says.

Lord Balfour Admits He's Lazy and Likes It

London.—Lord Balfour is a lazy man—and admits it. "I am a great lover of idleness myself, though I never say much about it, and I always love to hear that there are to be certain hours of the day when no one will ask me to do anything," the former prime minister said at a luncheon of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology.

"The institute is engaged upon one of the most important tasks facing people engaged in social welfare," Lord Balfour went on. "That is the complete explosion of the superstition that all hours of work are a minus quantity in the happiness of life and all hours of idleness a plus quantity." Lord Balfour's idea of perfect bliss and laziness is to listen to performances of Handel or Beethoven and read "thrillers" or detective stories.

WARNS AUTOISTS TO WATCH ROAD HOBOS

Free Rides May End Up in Robbery.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Despite the fact that only a small percentage of "highway hobos" are criminals, they are a menace to motorists because there is little organized police protection on Missouri's roads. T. H. Cutler, state highway engineer, in a warning to motorists, says that the number of ride seekers has doubled or tripled in the last three years.

Travelers, elite and rough, were not slow to discover a cheap, enjoyable transportation as Missouri's highways became more heavily traveled. Sometimes a motorist would carry them a long distance and the time required would not be greatly in excess of that of de luxe passenger trains. It was not long before the blind baggage and empty box car were forsaken in favor of the back seat of a comfortable motor car. Today "Weary Willies," hijackers and adventuring youths hail motorists for "lifts."

Youths Learn to Sponge. "Many young men," Mr. Cutler said, "who ordinarily have paid railroad fare are tempted now because of the success of others to sponge off the motoring public."

"The habit of picking up strangers on the highway should be discouraged, for it is not only increasing the number of tramps, but it is fraught with much hazard to the motorist. It affords unexcelled opportunity for robberies, assaults and murders, as frequent newspaper accounts testify."

"The experience of a road contractor about a year ago is well to the point. Travelling along route No. 50 toward Kansas City, he met an elderly woman, poorly dressed, held covered by a huge sunbonnet and a basket of clothes under her arm. To all appearances she was carrying home a day's washing. The contractor stopped his car and invited the woman to have a ride. Without saying a word she climbed in beside him. He had not driven far when he glanced downward and noticed a large-sized man's brogans. Immediately he suspected the washwoman's garb was a disguise.

Gets Rid of Woman. "Reaching the top of a hill and observing that he had a long descending grade ahead of him, the contractor abruptly stopped his car a little beyond the crest, saying he believed his rear tire had gone flat. His emergency brake was not working, so that he would have to use the foot brake to hold the car.

"He asked the 'woman' to get out and look at his rear tire. With a little show of hesitancy the woman set her basket down, alighted and started toward the rear. In an instant the driver released the brake, threw in the clutch and started down hill as fast as he could go. When he reached the next town he stopped to examine the contents of the wash basket. Lifting a big blue gingham apron, he found the sole contents of the basket was one large navy revolver, loaded for business."

Hunt for Mammoth Shifts to Oklahoma

Washington.—The trail of the prehistoric American elephant has led from Florida to Oklahoma. Dr. James W. Gidley, paleontologist of the United States National museum, has just returned from a partly successful search for elephant bones to complete a great mammoth skeleton being assembled for exhibition purposes. Near Alva, Okla., he found portions of a small elephant which were of considerable scientific interest, but of a different species from the composite skeleton which the museum experts are mounting. This particular variety of mammoth came from Florida and attained a huge size, twice as large as the ordinary elephant of today.

A prehistoric relative of the armadillo, probably a hitherto unknown species about as large as a cow, was among skeletons unearthed by Doctor Gidley in Oklahoma. The thorough exploration of Oklahoma for animals of past ages was urged by Doctor Gidley. He stated the state was rich in rock formations containing evidences of the life of 500,000 years ago.

Frenchmen Draw Line at Colored Umbrellas

Paris.—Light-pink and vivid-purple hats caught on with certain vivacious elements of Paris' male population, but an umbrella maker who tried to sell them colored rainsticks had his trouble for his pains. No one bought, and he is having a large supply dyed a sober black.

Early-season predictions that brilliant coloring would mark male clothing for the year have been realized only in part. "Sardine blue," a rather bright effect and several more or less intensive browns and navies found a good many buyers. But few persons indulged in the pinks, purple or other more vivid colors.

Middle-Age Superstition

During the Middle Ages it was believed by scientists that hags, weird mad by looking at a certain star in the east on the twenty-first day of the March moon.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS BY H. IRVING KING

BREAKING THE NEEDLE

THE superstition with regard to breaking a needle while sewing upon a new garment differs in different sections of the country; but has in all a general signification of good luck. In some places they say that to break a needle while sewing upon a new dress is a sign that the owner will live to wear out the garment. In other places they believe that it is a sign that the person for whom the garment is being made will, if single, be married before the year is out; while in some sections the breaking of the needle means that the garment will be "lucky" for its owner.

The magic of this superstition is based upon the idea so firmly held by the ancients that iron was obnoxious to evil spirits—they hated it and they feared it and sought to work mischief upon anything into the composition of which iron entered and to revenge themselves upon those who worked in iron.

The needle is an iron implement—or, which is the same thing, a steel one—and the evil spirits hover about in anger when it is being used, but are afraid to touch it. They might, however, try to "hoodoo" the garment which was being constructed by the feared and hated implement. But when you break the needle, thereby destroying it, you do just what the spirits would have done had they dared and they go off satisfied, leaving the garment being worked upon therefore "lucky"; their vengeance is accomplished by the destruction of the needle.

NOT EASY TO GET SHINE IN FRANCE

Bootblacks Not Familiar Sight on Streets.

Paris.—"Shine, sir!" Don't expect to hear in Paris the cry familiar outside railroad depots back home. But even at that you don't have to walk around the streets of the French capital with rusty footwear. No, it is no use thinking that all you tourists have to do is to place your shoes outside the door of your hotel room, as you will find in the guidebook advice. The half awakened chambermaid or night watchman will merely wipe off the dust, slap about one centime's worth of polish on the shoes, and let it go at that.

You won't find shoeblacks at every corner as you do in New York or Chicago, but you can find a few if you know where to go. There are not many, half a dozen or so in the whole city. When you get off the train at the Gare St. Lazare you can have your shoes shined right in the station or in a hidden arcade across the street. With a 4p it will cost you about two francs, or eight cents in real money.

Then there are two worthy "commissioners," or public messengers, who sleep half the day on little stools on the two corners of the Boulevard des Italiens where it runs east from the Place de l'Opera. If you can wait up one of them when they are not busy carrying a bunch of flowers to a blonde or ringing a bell somewhere to awaken a late riser, you can have the job done under the eyes of half of Parisian Paris which never misses a chance to watch the antics of "those crazy Americans."

If you understand some of their argot you will at the same time learn what they think of people who spend money getting their shoes shined and then tell France she must pay her debts.

References to Angels

There are three well-known phrases in which reference is made to angels. These are: "Tears such as angels weep," "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread," and "Like angel visits, few and far between." The first is from Milton, the second from Alexander Pope and the third from Thomas Campbell.

First Autos in New York

According to the November, 1895, issue of the Horseless Age, a Frenchman, Roger, brought three horseless carriages to New York in June of that year. They were run around the city streets to advertise R. H. Macy's department store. In 1896 Bayum & Bailey advertised that they would exhibit a horseless vehicle as part of their show.

Writings in Blank Verse

Blank verse is unrhymed verse, depending on meter alone. The earliest example of blank verse in England is a translation from Latin of Virgil's masterpiece, "Aeneid," which appeared in 1547. Milton's great poem, "Paradise Lost," is written in blank verse.

Orchids of Africa

There are gorgeous orchids, often two to three feet in height, and many "bubbly" plants in Africa, says Nature Magazine. The glorious Kufiriboom has the bluest of skies as a background for its crown of red blossoms. The Cape chestnut is clad in a mantle of pale mauve pink.

Present-day methods of beekeeping were for a time in the dark as to their development and beginning. The long-lost manuscript which deals with this industry has been found and turned over to Cornell university.

Vacation Time

Something more than a change of location is necessary if vacationists who are able to take only two weeks from their work each year are to get the best results from the time.

The surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service says that indoor workers should make as nearly as possible a complete change to outdoors, and that workers in the open will find their greatest recreation in reversing the conditions with which they are familiar in their employment.

The fact is that very few persons are overworked physically, but what they need is a change of environment that will give them the mental relaxation that is necessary if the keenness for their tasks is to be restored in the brief time usually available for vacations.

Vacation should be a definite change from vocation, and unless this can be secured to the maximum degree much of the value of the period of relaxation will be sacrificed.

It should not be necessary to suggest to any one the wisdom of carefulness in the matter of eating and drinking when on vacation. That is taken for granted.

Good Old Summer Time

The human race needs the summer time in which to cool off. The beasts hibernate; they have no strenuous intellectual life.

But humans need to estivate too get the same rest-up from their period of greatest activity. They have lived a thousand years in one during the long winter.

Forget it. There's a big wheat crop; cherries are cheap; the hens are laying. It's a big year, a fine year, a fat year.

What Carteret Can Be

Nothing is in such bad taste as that form of community criticism that is pure and unadulterated "knocking" without a semblance of constructive review.

Constructive criticism may find fault with existing conditions but it always is said in a way that sounds like boosting.

The man in business, whether or not he deserves it, gets most of the credit or blame for what his community is.

That community which is without faith in itself is without hope. And if its business men lack faith in it how can the community expect to enjoy the faith of the lay citizen?

The wise business man never knocks, regardless of how bad business may be. He knows the "hammer" may rebound and strike him.

Making Shopping Easy

This is truly the age of advertising, and ever expanding advertising. One, who counts himself among the "common people," on reading the advertisements in his newspaper remarked that it is dangerous to the purse to read the advertisements too carefully because you can not even scan them without finding something you want and at a price and of a quality you can't afford not to take advantage of.

It can not be charged against newspaper advertisements that they force upon the public unwanted merchandise. They do, however, inform the public where their merchandise wants can be fulfilled and at the lowest cost.

Hikers and Hitch Hikers

Hiking has become one of the popular and healthy methods for recreation and there may be found no happier groups of young people than those who have gone out for a day or days in the open.

It is difficult to find any excuse for approval of the groups of young men and, not always so young, women who make themselves conspicuous along the highways, on the ferries and in every train on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The Boy Scout hikers are orderly always but they are never lacking in spirit and while they manifest plenty of animation they do not become offensive and they show some consideration for the comfort of other travellers.

The hitch-hiker has become one of the pests of every highway in almost every section of the country and motorists have grown wary of extending any courtesies to the hitch hiker.

The Automotive Farmer

The United States Department of Agriculture recently made a study of the standards of living of 2,800 farm families living east of the Rockies. The investigation revealed that nearly three-fourths of the farm homes lack running water, kitchen sinks and electric lights.

Visual Education

A Chinese proverb says in effect that a picture is worth more than a thousand words. This truth has long since been borne on the minds of educators, for even the crude illustrations in the school geographies of half a century ago are remembered when the text is forgotten.

The claim is made in Boston that the "Tales of Mother Goose" was written by Elizabeth Postergoose, ancestor in direct line of Mary Elliot, in 1692. President Elliot of Harvard claimed descent from the old lady with much pride.

But the average parent nowadays knows no more of the uses of Spartan philosophy than his children do. He has little taste for simple and unpretentious things. That is one of the reasons why children emerge every year from monumental and showy high schools and colleges at the end of their formative period to begin the education by which they must live through hard contacts with a world as strange to them as a foreign country.

Who says we are a hard-boiled, cynical nation? Why, haught all, we still believe in fairy tales, says the Girty Tribune. Two men have been arrested in Chicago charged with getting out one of the wildest wildcat mining stock schemes you can imagine.

Eight hours' sleep, eight hours' work, eight hours' play was the sage advice insisted on by Dr. Alan Craig in the medical conference at Winnipeg. Men and women shorten their own lives by ten to fifteen years through taking life too seriously.

"Split an infinitive now and then if it adds to the clarity of your meaning," says an eastern educator. This is comforting to the ordinary person, but probably disheartening to those whose paramount issue in life is the discussion of proper usage of the language.

"I must have been crazy to leave a good home," said an escaped lunatic to the officer who picked him up. There are many young people who leave good homes who haven't even sense enough to know how crazy they are.

Time was when women bundled their heads up in huge veils when they went for an automobile ride, and today, if any bright young flapper could find mother's old veil she could trim it down a little and make a lovely summer frock.

"Perhaps you didn't hear me distinctly," remarked the exasperated parent to his permanently unemployed son; "I didn't say you ought to yearn your own living."

A stone which has a color dispersion even greater than that of the diamond is olivine, or demantoid. A bright green variety comes to us from west of the Ural mountains. Olivine has a brilliant luster, but it is rather soft.

The three hardest metals known are nickel, cobalt and manganese.

PARENTS OF 24 HAD STRUGGLE

All Born Within 23 Years; Six Die in Infancy, 18 Alive.

Goodhue, Minn.—Twenty-four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Rosener of this village, all within 23 years.

Among them were five sets of twins. Six of the children died in infancy. Eighteen are living, and all but four have left the parental roof.

The last born of the children arrived in 1900—Edward, who with his brothers, William, nineteen, and Theodore, twenty, and a sister, Rosie, twenty-one, remain at home.

Anton Rosener is the village blacksmith, who came here about 23 years ago after seven years in Hastings, Minn., to which city he immigrated from Austria with his wife and three children.

In those early years there was much blacksmithing, much shoeing, much wagon-making and repairing to be done. The arrival of the vanguard of the amazing procession of children was hailed with joy. With the wages from the Hastings shop, a garden and good pieces within reason, they could get along, though they could save nothing.

Borrowed to Buy Beds.

When they came to Goodhue their family had increased to six children, the youngest of whom was three months, the eldest, eleven years. They had acquired few household furnishings and Anton had to borrow money from his partner with which to buy additional furniture, including a bed or two to meet the exigency provided by the "little blessings" that were coming so frequently.

Business was good in the blacksmith shop, but with mounting household expenses—the doctors' bills, the food, the school books—the multiplicity of births caused the parents much concern.

"Would you, if you had your life to live again, like to have another large family?" Mrs. Rosener was asked.

She shook her head; silent a moment while in quick review of the years of her motherhood, then smiled and reconsidering her negative gesture said:

"I could have good health—"

"Oh, but it was hard work to take care of them," she continued. "I put in a big garden—three lots—and then got out of another lot so I could raise more. I raised all the vegetables for winter use."

"Twenty at the table every meal. But I did them good. We had a cow and pigs—yes—and some apple and plum trees, and a cherry tree, too. I made sauerkraut and did much canning. Better I made, too."

"With all the sewing and mending and the girls got large enough to help, I knitted all their stockings. I got clothes from other people and sold them over for us. For myself I never went down in my husband's pocket for a cent."

Illness Passed Them By.

Neither husband nor wife has ever been incapacitated by illness of any sort. All the children that have grown up have had excellent health.

"Diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever—all around us sometimes," Anton Rosener said, "but my children, they never knew none of them. I think I lucky! We don't keep them in house because weather cold or it rain. They stay out much and they keep healthy."

His wife, William and Edward, help their father in the shop, but in an independent way. They view blacksmithing in the village as a waning trade. They do not care to learn it. Their brother, Theodore, is a barber, and that is more to their liking. Or, there is here, now twenty-six, chief mechanic in the Red Wing fire department. "He has a real job," these younger brothers say.

Grace was the first of the children to leave home. She married Harry Howard, a Minneapolis painter. One year after, the 14 others went away. "I had to shove them out to save for themselves as soon as I could," Mrs. Rosener said sadly. "Now only four left. Rosie married, but I keep her here just as long as we can get along together."

German Beauties Shy; Shun Bathing Suits

Speik.—Germany is soon to have a beauty queen worthy of the title "Frau Deutschland" to participate in international beauty contests.

The crowns of all gretchens, including that of Hilde Quandt, who was recently chosen as the prettiest girl from 50 competitors, have been challenged as unrepresentative. So the League of Cultivation of Physical Beauty has organized a contest on the American plan. Forty-four cities already have consented to select their prettiest beauties.

The rules provide that girls will not have to wear bathing suits unless they desire, but "no artificial aids to shapefulness" are to be permitted beneath whatever single tight-fitting garment the contestants want to wear. The bathing-suit regulation was made optional, the league announced, because many provincial gretchens shy at revealing too much of their figure in public. The winners of the city contests will then enter the finals in Berlin.

Found His Match

The man who would steal the copy of the eyes of a corpse has a rival in the thief who stole the bronze markers from the veterans' graves in Hannover.

Does Not Stay Conquered

The hard thing about conquering the city is that you must do it again every time you go on.

The Sandman Story

By Martha Martin

AT THE MUSEUM

"ONE story has reminded me of another," commenced the Sandman. "The other day in a big museum where all sorts of old and quaint things are to be seen, there was a special exhibition of dolls and toys.

"An exhibition, as you know, is something put on view for us to see. An exhibition of pigs at a county fair means that there are pigs being exhibited or being shown.

"Or there may be an exhibition of drawings from the drawing class in school.

"But this exhibition was of old, old toys and dolls.

"About 4,000 years ago there lived an important and noble gentleman who thought it would be interesting to have everything he owned copied into a toy.

Wonderful Toys, These Were, of Many, Many Years Ago.

"So the boat that he went forth a-sailing in was copied. The animals he owned were all copied into little toys, too; so were his children and all the things that were a part of his life, too.

"Every day he would watch his cattle go by and he had a toy made showing himself sitting and gazing upon the cattle as they went by—just such a toy as you will see today of a whole circus, only more interesting.

"And these toys seemed more amazing and were so beautifully made.

"When I say that he had his children copied into toys I mean that instead of having their pictures taken as people would do these days he had little toys made which looked just like his children.

"Just as though I had some toy maker come and make a little figure to look exactly like Ntk or exactly like Nancy—and yet it would be a toy doll!

"And then he had a toy copy made of the kitchen boat that used to go alongside the boat he was in and at mealtime it would come up closer and the kitchen workers would pass over the meals. All of this was copied into toys.

"There were toy copies made of both boats, you see, when close together and of the figures in the boats.

"Oh, wonderful toys these were of so many, many, many years ago, and for a great, great many years these treasures were hidden in the ground.

"When I saw these toys I thought at once of taking you both to see them soon, and we'll go, just as soon as ever we can."

Both the children were delighted, for they wanted to see just how these old, old toys were made.

"And as I said," the Sandman continued, "the story I had to tell you of the dolls and toys reminded me of the little girl who was sick.

"She had been sick for quite a long time. And her dolly felt so badly that she, too, had been sick. She had been in the bed with her dear little mother and she had been very quiet and very still as she did not want to disturb her mother.

"And then, of course, she did not feel well herself. Oh, no, she didn't feel well when her darling little mother wasn't well.

"But one day her mother began to feel much better and the doctor said: "She is so much better she can sit out in the sun today."

"So they took her out in the sunshine and she sat in a little chair, feeling quite weak, but oh, ever and ever so much better.

"And beside her sat her dolly, enjoying the sunshine, too. For just as soon as her mother had felt better she had felt suddenly so much better, too.

"So together they had been sick and together they got well, and Mr. Sun did his work, never fear, both for the little girl and for her beloved dolly.

"And he smiled more brightly each day than ever as he saw the strength come back to his nice little friend whom he had missed sadly when she had been ill.

"For she had always been very fond of Mr. Sun, and he knew it, too!"

Civil War in China Boosts Chop Suey

London.—The upheaval in China has brought the Chinese "chop suey joints" into great favor with London's exclusive society set. An after-theater tour of Piccadilly Circus or the Strand at night reveals that the "best people" who formerly sought only the most expensive and most exclusive hotels to enjoy a quiet meal away from "the rabble" are now patronizing Chinese restaurants. It seems that society's latest fancy is to absorb a little Far Eastern atmosphere and to see Chinese at close range.

White-Crowned Sparrow

"Next to the meadowlark, no doubt, most people will vote the white-crowned sparrow the most fascinating singer of the Northwest. Often through the darkest night in the Virginia creeper or honeysuckle around the porch he utters his plaintive song—seeming to say . . . 'Sweet, sweet, listen to me, won't you?'"—William Rogers Lord.

Woman Army Officer

The only woman who was ever commissioned regularly in the United States army was Arabella Macomber Reynolds, who was commissioned a major by Governor Yates of Illinois in recognition of her gallant conduct at the battle of Shiloh. Her services are mentioned twice in General Sherman's memoirs.

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

FISHING IS BETTER THAN EVER

Bass Are Running A-plenty in Fresh Waters, N. J. Game Commission Reports

With the opening of the bass season June 15, the jubilee of New Jersey anglers is at its height. All of the fresh water game fish are now legal creel fillers while along the coast the big summer run of salt water fish is beginning to test the patience and skill of thousands of surf, bay and deep sea fishermen.

Survey of the opportunity that New Jersey offers the modern Isaac Walton suggests why sportsmen know it as "The Anglers' Paradise." No other state can offer such a variety of good fishing. And instead of becoming poorer as population increases, the fishing in New Jersey under the policies carried out by the State Fish and Game Commission actually is improving. Slowly but surely the State is conquering the greatest foe of fish conservation—the needless pollution of streams. And as rapidly as streams are made safe for fish life they have been restocked by the commission with varieties that are best suited to their particular conditions.

Trout fishermen seem to think the sport this year has been the best they ever have experienced. New Jersey, in fact, through intensive stocking with adult fish has created artificially but wholly satisfactory trout fishing in practically every stream and lake in the state that will support trout life. The average Jerseyman can now enjoy sport that only a few years ago was reserved to the wealthy sportsman who could travel to distant climes in pursuit of this pastime. Pike and pickerel are reported plentiful and there is a great revival of interest in these fish.

With the various varieties of bass now in the forefront, most anglers for the next fortnight will devote their spare recreational hours to efforts to lure these gamey denizens from their habitat. Small and large mouth bass are considered the gamiest fish, pound for pound, found in Jersey waters, but not the least popular of the bass family is the crappie or calico bass, introduced in Jersey waters a few years ago and now populating many lakes and streams and giving joy to a multitude of sportsmen young and old. Blue gills are another fish recently introduced by the State that are carving a place for themselves in sportsmen's favor. This fish is a beautiful specimen of the sunfish family and a savage little fighter when hooked.

Bruskie Will Meet McNamara Tonight

Riding in good form, John Bruskie defeated Bill Heinsberg and Al Crossley in a match race of two heats straight at Providence last Friday night. Both heats were close. Bruskie will meet Reggie McNamara and Bill Fenn in a similar race tonight. The local flash is sprinting better than ever and has gained weight.

Builders' Error

Lack of foresight by Twelfth-century builders has resulted in cracks in the walls, towers and arches of the cathedral at Mayence. The builders of 800 years ago apparently did not reckon with the chance that the level of the Rhine would fall.

Where We Get "Cobwebs"

Cobwebs are webs spun by spiders or larva of certain insects. "Cob" is derived from an old English word meaning spider. Most of the cobwebs which hang from the ceilings of houses are made by very small spiders which are seldom seen by those living in the houses.—Pathfinder Magazine.

MARGARET CHILD FINISHES SCHOOL AS BEST STUDENT

Graduated With First Honors from High School; Exercises Held Last Friday

The Carteret High School graduated its second senior class in history Friday night. Thirty-four students received diplomas. Such notables as John E. Toolan, prosecutor, and Edward J. Heil, president of the Board of Education, were present at the exercises.

Of the eight prizes awarded for efficient work, four were won by Miss Margaret Child, daughter of Joseph C. Child, Sr., who for a time held a seat in the Borough Council. Miss Child was first in science, mathematics, history and English. Her lowest average was as high as 96.2 per cent. The prize in science was given by Joseph A. Hermann, in mathematics by John J. Lyman, coroner, in history by the local post of the American Legion, in English by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Frank Bareford had the best attendance record and was given an award. The Parent-Teacher Association donated it. Ernest Jurick received a prize from the Business Men's Association for being first in manual training. Two prizes in domestic science were awarded to Kathryn Harko and Fannie Schwartz. The prizes were offered by the Business Men and Joseph Hermann.

Prosecutor J. E. Toolan gave an inspiring talk to the graduating class. He cited the success achieved by great inventors, surgeons, and other men, and urged the students to keep abreast with world progress.

"Never expect to have anything unless you work for it," Mr. Toolan said. Before giving out the diplomas, Edward J. Heil mentioned the fact that the diplomas signify the accomplishment of the primary step in the graduates' careers; "and may they be incentives to spur you on to renewed effort."

Mr. Heil offered the students a few words of advice:

"My advice to you, going forth into different fields of learning, would be to make yourselves deserving of the name you hold here, to live up to the lofty sentiments instilled during your four years and to ever make yourselves worthy exponents of this institution."

Miss B. V. Hermann presented the class. Miss A. D. Scott, principal of the high school, awarded the prizes. The Rev. J. R. O'Connor offered the invocation.

The graduates names: Classical course—Dorothy Miriam Brown, Margaret D. Child, Bernard Chinchin, Abraham Chodosh, Catherine Janet Clifford, Anna Rita Conlan, Edward Simon Dubow, Harry Lewis Glass, Frances Jean Harrington, William Huber, Ernest F. Jurick, Loretta V. Kay, Anna Sophia Lewandowsky, Louis J. Lukach, Herbert W. Nannen, Thaddeus Stanislaus Leszczynski and Grace Margaret Van Pelt.

OLD VIOLIN SHOP BOASTS FAR FAME

Great Musicians Pick Way to Dingy Quarters.

Atlanta, Ga.—All the world's a stage for Mays Badgett. In it he humbly plays the part of a violin maker.

His shop, two stories above Atlanta's busiest corner, is dingy. About his bench is a confused ensemble of musical instruments. The clutter of traffic pounds in through dusty windows. But Badgett, as he works away with the knowledge that the proof of the fiddle is in the playing, would not trade his shop for a palace.

Famous personages of the musical world have made a beaten path to his place. Once a year he has a big party attended by members of the Metropolitan Opera company. Once Badgett gave a bear supper to 800 guests, including the opera stars, Sousa's band and southern artists.

Artists who sing and play for the public for thousands of dollars perform for Badgett between courses. Occasionally the party is broadcast and opera goes rush away from the auditorium to reach their radios for two more hours of music by the stars.

Proudly displayed by the violin maker is a letter from Eugene Yaey, praising his instruments. David Love, New York conductor; Fritz Schaeffer and Henri Georgia of the Metropolitan orchestra, and Richard Schleiwer of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music are among those who use his violins.

One of Badgett's latest violins was made from a bedstead of curly maple more than two hundred years old. Badgett's wife is an expert string maker.

Flying Boats in Orient to Serve Meals at Bar

London.—Extensive flying tests are being made by Imperial Airways pilots in Singapore in a Rolls Royce flying boat—a large, all-metal aircraft built for the air ministry to co-operate with the fleet at sea—and it is now announced that two all-metal flying boats will be built to make experimental flights over the Calcutta-Rangoon section projected on an empire air route connecting London with Australia.

Each of these new passenger flying boats will be driven by three Jupiter engines, with a total of 1,350 horsepower, and will be equipped with a refreshment bar for serving hot and cold meals while in flight.

New Gears for Planes Climbing in Rare Air

Lynn, Mass.—The addition of two gears and a small "impeller" to an airplane engine now makes possible higher power at all altitudes, which in turn means higher speeds or heavier loads. This is accomplished with a built-in supercharger developed at the research laboratory of the General Electric company here, after the design of Dr. S. A. Moss, it was announced recently.

Previously the supercharger has only been used extensively in military airplanes, and then only as an attachment, but now several large manufacturers of engines have adopted the new supercharger as an integral part of their motors built for commercial planes.

"The supercharger does exactly the same for the airplane engine as the oxygen tank does for the pilot when flying at high or unusual altitudes," stated Doctor Moss. "At 20,000 feet there is but half as much oxygen in the atmosphere as at sea level. An ordinary engine loses power rapidly as it ascends, but with the supercharger in use this is not the case."

The Wrong Market

It will surprise few intelligent people to learn that the Communist movement in America is at its lowest ebb today, with between 5,000 and 7,000 members, as against 35,000 in 1919. The Reds, in coming to the United States, have brought their wares to the wrong market. Labor is too busy to be interested, says the New York Herald-Tribune. Wherever the "boring-in movement" was measurably successful it resulted only in long and expensive disputes between employers and employees, a conspicuous example being that of the garment trade, from which the Communist agitators have now been mostly expelled. Communism thrives best in lean years and hard times. In a period of long continued prosperity the waving of the red flag may serve to frighten a few timid publicists, but it is futile as a rallying point. If the Communist agitators hope to recruit a following, they will have to transfer their activities to some other country.

The joint expedition of the British museum and the museum of the University of Pennsylvania has been digging around in the ruins of Ur, in Mesopotamia, and has turned up the fact that the ladies of 2000 B. C. used powder and paint in much the same manner as the girls, old and young, do today. Abraham doubtless beheld the spectacle of the flapper of his time with a feeling that the world was going to the devil, says the New York World. No report has been turned in as to the length of the ladies' skirts, or one-piece bathing suits, or the deplorable state to which dancing had fallen; but it may be fairly assumed that the mixers of that remote day had the equivalent of jazz, cigarettes and cocktails with which to shock the elders.

It is too bad that the visitor to the forest does not more often carry with him the good manners and consideration for others that he practices at home. He should know that it is unpardonable to throw down the lighted match or cigarette in the forest, just as well as he knows he must not throw tin cans and old clothing into the street at home. He should learn how to behave in the forest just as he learns it for the drawing room. The smoker would not throw his match or cigarette stump or empty cover, but, without giving it a thought, the same smoker tosses a burning match or ashes on the floor of his host, the forest, where it threatens property worth millions and even human lives.

CLAIMS BLOOD OF NOW EXTINCT RACE

Believed Only Survivor of Nah-Dah-Ko Tribe.

Anadarko, Okla.—Blood of an extinct race flows in the veins of Harry Shirley, believed to be the last of the Nah-Dah-Ko Indians, who attained a degree of civilization as long as four centuries ago.

His father, Pat Shirley, was a white trader, but his mother was a Nah-Dah-Ko. With his white wife and two children, Shirley lives on a farm near Anadarko. He is fifty-five years old. Virtual annihilation of the Nah-Dah-Kos was completed when Shirley was four years old, and his knowledge of the fate of his people is vague. The band, which was not great in numbers, and he believes it was annihilated in an internecine war when he was a child. He was taken to Texas by his father when hostilities broke out, and did not return until the war ended.

The town of Anadarko is named for the vanished tribe. Legend has it that the elder Shirley's Irish pronunciation of the tribal name was responsible for the corruption of the name from Nah-Dah-Ko to Anadarko. Although the present town was not founded until 1901, an Indian agency of the same name was located near here as early as 1858.

The original home of the Nah-Dah-Ko band was in Louisiana. Records of a Spanish explorer reveal that in 1542 the Indians lived in houses, farmed extensively and owned cattle. They were driven westward by the encroachment of the white man and gradually lost their identity through absorption into other tribes and losses in warfare.

"In a single day the hippopotamus in a New York park," says Capper's Weekly, "eats 150 pounds of hay, 15 loaves of bread, 5 heads of cabbage and 60 pounds of cornstalks." After all, however, how else is a hippo to occupy his mind?
