

SCHOOL BOARD OBJECTS TO QUESTIONS

MORE REVELATIONS TO COME IN BORO FINANCES

Mayor Hermann Hints $75,000 Deficit Reported By Auditors Will Seem Small When Actual Figures Are Produced Monday Night

Councilman Ellis Questions Incorrect Amount In Budget For Tax Refund Anticipation

The Budget ordinance of the borough was adopted as passed on first and second reading at a meeting of the Council Monday, when the ordinance came up for final reading. Councilman Hercules Ellis asked why only $1,000 was set up in the budget, for anticipated state gas tax refund, when the amount is said to be $9,845.83. Mayor Hermann explained that when the budget was drawn up it was not definitely known as to the exact amount Carteret would receive and that in any event there could be no mistake for if the borough received the amount stated by Mr. Ellis the difference would appear as a surplus. A vote taken on the question resulted in the majority of the Councilmen feeling that the figure should be left as advised by the auditors. Ellis voted "no."

Mr. Charles A. Phillips, president of the Board of Trustees of the Carteret Public Library asked if the $6,000 appropriation in the budget for the library was to include expense in repairs to the library building. He said he thought as the building was now borough property just as the Borough Hall is, repair costs should be taken from the Buildings and Grounds appropriation. Mayor Hermann informed Mr. Phillips that in setting up the budget $500 was added to last year's amount to take care of repair costs. Mr. Phillips, however, explained that it was anticipated that the $500 was needed for operation costs as the library is its continual growth each year required more for operation. The Mayor suggested that the Library Trustees and the Finance committee get together and adjust the situation.

J. P. Goderstadt asked why the sum of $28,000 was appropriated for roads, as compared with $24,000. Mayor Hermann said, that while the last administration appropriated only $24,000, it actually over-expended $12,000. He further said that the 1931 appropriation includes the road Commissioner's salary, fees of the engineer and retainer. This year's figures are also included the deficits of the past. Mayor Hermann also hinted that the deficit for last year will be much higher than the $72,000 set in the preliminary audit for 1930 and indicated that more startling revelations will be made public when the final audit report is ready in a short time.

PLAN "GET-TOGETHER" DINNER

Plans are maturing for the "get-together" dinner to be given by the combined societies of the Congregation of Loving Justice, to be held Sunday, March 1st, at 7:00 P. M., at the St. Elizabeth Hungarian Hall. Louis Brown will act as toastmaster. Mr. J. Weiss is general chairman.

HAURY APPOINTED MEMBER OF BOARD

Mr. Frank Haury was appointed as a member of the Board of Education to fill the unexpired term of Albert Wellbund, who resigned, at a meeting of the Board Wednesday night. Mr. Wellbund will soon be transferred to Canada by the United States Metals Refining Company, to take up the position as master mechanic at the plant's Copper Cliff branch.

Mr. Theodore A. Bishop, president of the Board in going over the accomplishments of the present Board the fact that in preparing the 1930-31 budget the finance committee has done all in its power to practice rigid economy, and therefore have reduced the budget $6,500. Carteret, according to Mr. Bishop is the only municipality in the county to show a reduction in the Board of Education budget.

He cited that Elizabeth increased its school budget by $150,000 and a similar increase was seen in the Perth Amboy schools. Carteret was probably the only borough in the county to offer a reduction in the school budget.

Referring to the Nathan Hale School, the president said that over $10,000 will be saved on the new building. This is a creditable showing, especially where in other in-

EMERGENCY DEPOTS CONTINUE BUSY

Much Credit for Wives of Legion Men for Work in Conducting Emergency Supply Depots

Both depots operated under the American Legion Emergency Relief Corps report a slight increase during the past ten days. These depots are very efficiently conducted by the women who volunteer their services and the public is invited to visit these depots and witness the good work being carried on. No. 1 Depot has the capable leadership of Mrs. William Hagan and No. 2 Depot the equally capable guidance of Mrs. V. Gleckner. These women are in charge and are assisted by the following women who also are to be complimented for their services, Mrs. H. Gleckner, Mrs. Elsie King, Mrs. John Katashi, Mrs. Fred Ruckriegel, Mrs. Clarence Slug and Mrs. Edward J. Walsh. Women wishing to volunteer to help in this worthy undertaking are asked to contact the committee in charge. The public spirited cooperation of the women of the borough is what makes it possible to conduct this work at absolutely no cost to the Fund.

The merchants are continuing their generous donations of food stuffs. The A & P Stores this week donated 75-lbs. of beans. ## NEWS EDITORIAL QUERIES BRING STORM OF PROTESTS FROM BOARD OF EDUCATION

NEW COMMISSIONER FOR SCOUT TROOPS

Dr. Joseph S. Reichert Is Named Commissioner of Raritan Council—Others Named.

Three more important appointments in the Raritan Council, Boy Scouts of America, were announced today from the headquarters of the Council by Scout Executive Herbert W. Lunn.

The first is that of the appointment of Dr. Joseph S. Reichert, as Scout Commissioner of the Council; the second is Professor Rufus B. Allen, as Cub Commissioner, in his capacity as Chairman of the Council Cub Committee, and the third is the appointment of Professor Kent Pease as District Scout Commissioner of Woodbridge.

Commissioner Reichert is Director of Research of Peroxides in the Roessler and Hasselcher Chemical Company. He holds the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy awarded by Notre Dame University. Before coming to Perth Amboy he served as Assistant Chief of the Anti-Gas department of the Edgewood Arsenal in the Chemical Warfare Service of the United States Government, and for some time served as a Major in the United States Army Reserve.

As Scout Commissioner he will serve as Chairman of a newly created Board of Commissioners which is made up of the District Commissioners of the Raritan Council and which has been organized as a standing committee of the Council and will have charge of field supervision, Troop organization, and general activities.

Professor Pease is a member of the faculty of the Woodbridge High School and his Scouting experience has included his service as Assistant to the Scout Executive of Utica, New York, in addition to many years as Scoutmaster.

The complete field organization is headed in Perth Amboy District by Commissioners H. Clinton Baldwin and Matthew Christofferson; Woodbridge, Fords, and Keasbey, District Commissioner Kent Pease; Avenel, Colonia, and Iselin, District Commissioner Patrick Boylan; Carteret, District Commissioner Abraham Durst; South Amboy, Sayreville, Laurence Harbor, District Commissioner Harold C. Semonett.

President Howard W. Thorn and members of the Executive Board feel that this re-organization of the administration of the Raritan Council is a very definite step forward in this territory and will result in a still further development of the Council's work and the reaching of a larger number of boys than ever before through Scouting, Sea Scouting and Cubbing. The Council enrollment is now 1,139 boys and men.

Following a short business meeting the Ladies' auxiliary, Division No. 7, A. O. H., held a delightful card party at the club house Monday evening. The prize winners were:

Bridge: Mrs. William Conran, Mrs. Howard Burns, Mrs. Loretta Nevill, Mrs. Mary LeVan, Mrs. G. T. Gaudet, Mrs. T. J. Bonner, Charlotte Flynn, Mrs. William Lawlor, Sr.

Euchre: Mrs. J. McCarthy, Mrs. Mary Jones, Mrs. E. VanDeventer, Mrs. Fred Colton, Patrick Shay, Mrs. J. B. O'Donnell, Mrs. Daniel McDonald.

Fan-tau: Mrs. Lawrence Hagan.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our neighbors and friends, to those who contributed floral pieces to Rev. #### Youths Admit Robbery of Electrical Fixtures

While being questioned by Sergeant John Andres in connection with the entering and robbery job at Chester Osborne's garage, two boys denied participation in it, but admitted another robbery, which led to the recovery of most of the stolen articles.

Under arrest are Charles Soltesz, sixteen years old, of 200 Elm street and a fifteen year-old lad from the East Rahway section. Sergeant Andres recovered the following articles: four electric motors, two breast drills, one hand drill, twenty-seven punches, three drills, two pairs of pliers, one electric switch and other small items.

The loot had been taken from the Public Service Electric Company at Port Reading.

ALLEGED HIJACKER TAKEN FOR A RIDE

One local man was "taken for a ride", was given a beating up and another was assaulted on the street Tuesday night to pay the penalty for "highjacking."

According to the story told to the police, four men drove up to Toppo's place on Hudson street, early Tuesday evening and asked if "Jimmy" James Gugg, of 21 Hudson street, was there. Someone volunteered the information that he was in the back. A few moments later he was seen walking out to the car arm in arm with the leader of the quartette who came in the car, as he heard the machine he was face to face with four revolvers and despite his protests, was hurled into the car.

The machine drove by Union street, where a police officer was standing.

"If you make an outcry," one of the gangsters said, "we'll fill you full of lead."

The car then traveled to Edwin street, to Roosevelt avenue, thence to Woodbridge, up Green street, toward the super-highway.

In the vicinity of the super-highway and Green street, Gugg was transferred into another car that was waiting at that point. When he was

Members Fail To Advance Information How Last Year's $9000 Surplus Was Used

Members of the Board of Education devoted almost an hour, during the session Wednesday night, sympathizing with themselves, over an editorial that appeared in these columns in last week's issue. Not satisfied with his own trade, President of the Board Theodore A. Bishop, called on each member at least twice for remarks.

One of the Commissioner's particularly took objection to the classification of the Board's business as a "Racket." Yet this same Commissioner voted for the appointment of a position that was conclusively pointed out at not necessary. Which means no more than going into the taxpayers' pockets to the tune of $1800. Was this appointment made to pay a political debt. If so, what would you call this kind of business if not a "Racket."

The majority of the Board attempted to convey the impression a few weeks ago at a meeting that there would be no more increases in salaries, no more jobs, no more contracts, but a big fat surplus for you at the end of the year. At least that was the impression many carried away, including members of the press.

After they got all through in an hour's talk telling how heroically they protected you and your pocket-books, they voted to put on another jam at $2,000.00.

A member of the finance committee seemed to think that there was always three janitors at the high school. It was pointed out by another member of the Board of Education, with more experience on the Board, that this impression was erroneous. This other member advised the head of the finance committee that the only time an extra janitor might be needed at the High School would be in the winter months. Here he referred to the fact that the Borough is now paying an athletic field attendant $1800.00. He stated that this athletic field keeper could easily be spared from the athletic grounds in the winter and put in to help out in the winter months at the high school if it was necessary.

Of course, all this is childish. The big talk amounts to nothing, they simply wanted to spend your money and did it. The thing they do not like and the thing they object to is that there should be anything in the newspaper about it.

One of these boys, who spends

OAXACA, ROCKING CHAIR OF MEXICO

Earth Tremors Common at Scene of Disastrous Earthquake.

Washington.—Chief sufferer in the recent Mexican earthquake was the city of Oaxaca, capital of the state by the same name, 220 miles southeast of the city of Mexico. Lives were lost and scores of buildings were leveled.

"Oaxaca, whose name is unpronounceable to Americans until it is phonetically worded 'wah-hah-hah,' is in the rocking chair of Mexico," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "Earth tremors are of such common occurrence there that the houses are low, massive, with a more distinct Spanish-Moorish cast than those of any other Mexican city. Certain of its dwellings are fortress-like in character, designed to resist both earthquakes and mobs.

One of Mexico's Beauty Spots.
"Despite its unsavory aspects, always quickest to get into grief, Oaxaca is one of the most attractive and interesting cities of Mexico. Only 37 years after Columbus sighted the New world a Spanish convent was established there, and its fine cathedral was founded in 1533.

"One feels that the Conquistadores have not fully relinquished their hold upon Oaxaca. With its electric lights, telephones and other modern conveniences it is not, of course, what it was when the Spaniards ruled. But one has only to step around the corner—get out of hearing of railroads and street cars, and out of sight of the electric light—to leave the Twentieth century.

"Oaxaca has many plazas, palm-shaded, each with its fountain, and several green, fabled, flower-filled parks. Visitors to the residential districts glimpse delightful patio gardens through half-opened posterns. The church bells are soft and melodious, for Oaxaca was once the most godly see in New Spain, and the faithful were called to prayer by bells of gold and silver. The streets are largely paved with cobbles of Colonial times, and there are legends everywhere. A daughter of Montezuma—a great-great-grandmother, of course—still lives, it is whispered, in Oaxaca.

"No state in Mexico was richer in precious metals when the Spaniards came. It is rich even yet, for its mines have scarcely been tapped. Hardly a day passes that some family of Indians does not drift in from the bush with raw gold to sell. The Indians never tell where they find the metal. Their experience in generations past has at least taught them to hold their tongues.

"Treasures are often found in the walls of old houses in Oaxaca. The priests and friars, faithful to their trust, concealed gold and silver vessels during insurrections in the past. One by one these custodians died, and the knowledge of the hiding places died with them. From time to time an old house is torn down, or crashes in an earthquake, and in the crumbling brick walls the forgotten gold is found. Perhaps, when the ruins left by the recent earthquake are sifted, more hidden gold will be brought to light.

Area Equal to Indiana.
"Oaxaca is the capital and commercial center of a Mexican state about equal in area to the state of Indiana. The city is connected by railway with Mexico City, and by numerous roads and trails with hundreds of villages and hamlets in its own state. A mile above sea level, the city of Oaxaca is, nevertheless, almost entirely surrounded by hills and mountains.

"The city of Oaxaca has only about 40,000 inhabitants, but the state it governs is estimated to contain almost a million people, most of them Indians of the Mixtec and Zapotec tribes, living in towns whose names, many of them, are not to be found on any map.

"The Mixtec and Zapotec Indians are among the most distinctive in North America. Their eyes have a distinct oriental slant, leading to the belief that their forebears were in some way linked with the Mongols of Asia. These Indians make beautiful wool serapes, or scarfs, on primitive looms. They are skilled basket weavers, and makers of delicate filigree work in 24-karat gold."

Ancient Shell Explodes
Capetown.—An echo of the Boer war was heard here recently when during a storm at Lady Smith a hydrite shell exploded when struck by lightning. Fragments of the shell entered neighboring houses, but none was injured. The area of the explosion was colored green.

It appears that the army made a saving of $374,208 last year in taking advantage of discounts allowed for prompt payments of its bills. It is wondered why the government as a whole does not adopt this as a general rule. Uncle Sam is sure pay, if he owes you, but sometimes his hand does linger long in that change pocket.

The savings deposits of the country increased in the year ending June 30 $237,180,000 to nearly $238,480,000,000, the record figure. Last year in the same period they decreased $105,305,000. All of which is further evidence that the way to beat the game is not to play the stock market.

Some people quit public positions, some stay until they are invited to leave, a few hang on until they are thrown out badly; and once in a while one eludes with all four legs a cat until he is torn loose from his hold violently.

If the suggestion advanced by an Englishman that all ugly women be drowned were adopted in this country, Washington's official "drownman" wouldn't have enough work to keep him out of mischief.

DUELING IS CHIEF SPORT IN GERMAN UNIVERSITIES

Little Worry About Professionalism and Over-Emphasis There, Says Observer.

New York.—Football rough-housing like that which strained relations between Harvard and Princeton does not worry the German undergraduate of today, nor is there talk of over-emphasis and professionalism like that which followed the recent football season here. The chief German university sport is dueling. It is a strictly amateur affair, but for damage done it far surpasses the accidental kicks and bruises of football.

So reports a Yale senior, Gibbs W. Sherrill, who spent his last summer vacation at Heidelberg university. Intercollegiate duels are unknown, he writes in the Review of Reviews, the matches taking place between individual members of the "Korporationen," which correspond roughly to the American Greek-letter fraternity.

"The antagonists stand still in their tracks, squarely facing each other, only a blade's length apart," writes Sherrill. "The target is the opponent's head and face—never his body. The judge looks sternly around the company and immediate silence ensues—a silence which lasts without a break throughout the entire duel.

"The voice of the challenger's second snaps out: 'Anslage—fertig—los.' A click of the blades meet and the duel is on. Four times the blades flash and then each second swings up an armored arm to cover his man. The judge inspects the duelists for any cuts, which must be halted to determine later if the encounter has been won with honors.

"Again the sharp command drops the seconds to their knees, out of the way of the swirling blades. But before the required four passes are completed the seconds interrupt the fighting, for a strangely swift stream of blood is pouring down a blanched cheek. It is the boy's first duel, and he has not yet learned to regard this blood flow as unimportant.

Duels usually last 40 rounds, Sherrill declares, though affairs of honor go to 60 or even 100 rounds.

73,780 Acres Are Added to U. S. Bird Refuges

Washington.—Tracts of land aggregating 73,780 acres have just been added to the nation's reservations where migratory game birds may rest and feed free from the menace of sportsmen's guns.

Purchase of the land by the biological survey of the Department of Agriculture was authorized by the migratory bird conservation commission set up under an act passed by congress last year. The new acquisitions brought the total to date since the commission began to function, July 1, 1924, to 158,167 acres, which will be administered by the biological survey as inviolate sanctuaries for the conservation of migratory birds.

The new refuges are in Florida, California, North Carolina and Nebraska. The tract in Florida extends about 12 miles along Apalachee bay, in Wakulla, Jefferson and Taylor counties. It contains 13,981 acres.

The purchases in California add 5,882 acres to the Salton Sea Wild Life Refuge set aside by executive order of President Hoover November 23, 1920.

The North Carolina purchase embraces 11,778 acres in Hyde county, on Pamlico sound and will be used with intermingled areas of water to establish an administrative unit of about 20,000 acres, to be known as the Swanquarter Migratory Bird Refuge.

Monument on Grave in Honor of Mine Burro

Fairplay, Colo.—"Prunes," a burro that hauled ore in Colorado mines for 62 years, has a monument built over his grave on Main street here.

The aged burro, whose patient footsteps pitted through the history of Colorado, was shot recently when he lost all of his teeth, and became too feeble to eat.

He was buried with ceremony, and popular subscription erected a monument over the grave.

Modern methods have all but eliminated the burro from the mines of the states where once they were employed by the thousands.

Ceed Killed Trying to Avoid Another Accident

Ontario, Calif.—Betty Hill, seventeen, Pomona college coed, was killed instantly in a traffic crash here. An empty nurse had been placed in the street by some boys and the motorist driving in front of Miss Hill's auto stopped suddenly to pick it up. In order to avoid crashing into him Miss Hill swerved her car directly into the path of another auto coming from the opposite direction. Her light roadster rolled over several times.

Loud Speakers Silenced

Stockholm.—Following loud speakers will not be tolerated in Stockholm cafes, restaurants and other public places during Sunday church services. This is a recent edict of Henning Elmquist, governor of Stockholm.

Rabs Quarantined Home

Brunswick, Maine.—The familiar red sign warning that the house was under quarantine for scarlet fever failed to deter a burglar. He entered the home of Arthur Smith and stole $100.

Halloween

In the old Celtic calendar October 31 was the last day of the year, its night being the time that witches were abroad. On the introduction of Christianity, it became the eve of All Hallows or All Saints.

Oil's Enormous Spread

A test made by government scientists showed that 7,000 pounds of oil dumped from oil-burning ships in the high seas would drift 90 miles and cover the water to the extent of 900 square miles.

SMUGGLE ALIENS TO U. S. BY AIR

Federal Authorities Get Evidence of Traffic Across Border.

Eagle Pass, Texas.—Positive evidence has been obtained by United States immigration authorities on the Rio Grande border that a large traffic in aliens is being carried on along the international line by means of airplanes. The Mexican government has been requested to investigate the situation on that side of the border, particularly with reference to the secret landing fields which are used as the bases for the nefarious airplane service. The United States immigration bureau has also been asked to establish an air patrol of the border for the purpose of guarding it against the unlawful entry of aliens and to prevent other kinds of smuggling.

There are isolated and practically unguarded stretches of the Rio Grande which smugglers who travel by land favorably opportunities for bringing across their illicit cargoes almost at will. Some of these unprotected sections of the border are 100 miles long and are patrolled by mounted inspectors at intervals of only every two or three days.

Plane Bases Unknown.

The airplane bases of the smugglers are believed to be far in the interior of Mexico and perhaps more than 100 miles in the United States from the Rio Grande. An investigation which was recently made of the border town of Texas showed no evidence that they are being made stopping places for aliens. It was pointed out by border immigration officials that it would be easily possible for these unlawful airplane passengers to get far into the interior of the United States within a few hours after leaving Mexico and thus lessen the chances of their being detected.

According to H. C. Horsley, chief of the immigration border patrol in the El Paso district, certain knowledge has been obtained by him that there are at least four places in Juarez where aliens can obtain passage into the United States by airplane. It is probable that there are several times that number of alien agencies in Mexican border towns, he declared. Similar arrangements can be made in the more interior cities of Mexico.

Many Mysterious Planes.

Many mysterious airplanes cross the international border daily. Most of them fly so high that their presence is detected only by the faint noise that they make. It is estimated that no less than fifty airplanes travel daily to and fro across the border between El Paso and Brownsville. They do not follow the routes of the regular air transport lines, and they are so high from the earth that they cannot be identified. Evidence has been obtained by the immigration authorities that the usual charge for delivering a Chinese or other alien into the United States is $1,000 and that of this sum the airplane pilot receives $200.

Mr. Horsley has been conducting an investigation of the airplane smuggling traffic for the last several months. He declared that most of the unknown planes when they cross the border in the vicinity of El Paso are headed toward central New Mexico and the ranch region of northwest Texas. He said that the only way that this kind of smuggling can be combated is by the employment by the immigration bureau of a fleet of fast airplanes capable of overtaking the smugglers.

Beautiful Costa Rica

The republic of Costa Rica is one of the most charming of Central American countries. It has an area of 23,000 square miles, with a population of 529,765 people. Lined call at Punta Arenas, the Pacific coast port, which is 68 miles from the capital, San Jose, Costa Rica is unusually progressive, its proudest claim being that its school teachers outnumber its soldiers. Modern schools are located in every town.

First Jews in America

The first group of 23 Jews reached New Amsterdam, now New York, in 1654. They came from Brazil, having left that country when it passed from Dutch to Portuguese control. Two Jews had preceded them a short time before.

PLAN FOR CANAL IN NICARAGUA

Army Engineers Chart Best Route and Sites for Locks and Dams.

Greytown, Nicaragua.—An American canal across Nicaragua, long a dream of shipping men and political and military strategists, will pass through a further planning stage this summer when United States army engineers will complete a thorough survey of the route and report a construction problems and probable cost, says the New York Times.

For months the engineers have been living in tropical jungles, dodging disease and watching out for insurrectionists while their diamond drills have been biting into the earth to show them where to put their dams and locks. Their survey, one of the most exhaustive studies of a canal problem ever made, has been based upon the experience gained through the building of the Panama canal, and upon the great increase in engineering technique since the Panama canal was completed.

The building of a canal across Nicaragua was considered feasible long before the shorter cut across Panama was begun; in fact, a private American company began construction there as long ago as 1857. There was a time when the United States came close to authorizing a Nicaragua canal, but—so it is said—a volcano began to smoke about that time and the government was persuaded to turn to the Panama route. Now the Nicaragua project is again to the fore, because it is contended that the Panama canal will eventually be unable to handle all the ocean traffic between the Caribbean and the Pacific.

Safeguard for the Future.

The Panama canal can be improved to increase its capacity from 30,000,000 tons of traffic annually to 45,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons or perhaps slightly more, and it is not expected that so much tonnage will pass through it for ten or twenty years; but even now there are periods—such as when the fleet passes through—when the canal approaches seem crowded. A new canal would, it is asserted, provide indefinitely for the future, and would also give an alternative route in case of war and the destruction of now existing means of quick communication between the oceans. The effect of a Nicaraguan canal on the trade and development of the Central American republics, it is also predicted, would be beneficial.

The present survey, which has been carried out by Maj. Daniel I. Suttan, has been going forward with such precision that the topographical work has been completed and only some drilling remains to be done. Lieut. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chairman of the interoceanic canal board, and Sydney B. Williamson, senior civilian member of the board, will soon inspect the work.

It is understood that the San Juan valley route will be selected as the best. Although it is seven miles longer than the Desado route recommended by the Admiral Walker commission thirty years ago, it is believed to be more economical; the estimated cost of the canal by the valley route would be about $700,000,000.

Length of Valley Route.

The length of the canal proper by this route would be 172 miles. From Brito, the western terminus, the line of the canal would follow the valley of the Rio Grande to the western continental divide, 152 feet above the sea, which would be crossed by a cut. A flight of three locks, each 1,200 feet long and 125 wide, arranged as a unit at the western end of the cut, would raise ships to the level of Lake Nicaragua, which for working purposes (it varies with the seasons) is considered as 110 feet above the sea.

From the continental divide, the canal would follow the valley of the Las Lajas river to Lake Nicaragua, thus completing the first sixteen miles of the journey. The lake, an expanse of about 2,700 square miles, deep enough to afford navigation by ocean steamships in most of the portion affected by the canal project, would be utilized for seventy miles by the ships, the last fourteen of these miles being dredged to afford sufficient depth. It is estimated that 9,300,000 cubic feet of water would be drawn from the lake for each ship transit through the locks.

From the eastern end of the lake the route would be along the San Juan river, which is 119 miles long from where it leaves the lake to where it reaches the Caribbean at Greytown. In that distance the stream falls 102 feet from mean low lake to mean low sea level. In the upper fifty miles navigation is hampered by four rapids. By constructing a dam at Conchuda dam-site, fifty miles from the lake, the obstacle of these rapids could be overcome and the level of the lake raised five to seven feet to provide better navigation.

Lengthening the Lake.

The Conchuda dam-site has received favorable consideration. The spillway of a dam built there must be capable, according to a recent official statement from the army engineer headquarters at Granada, of discharging at least 100,000 second feet of water. The effect of the dam would be to add fifty miles to the lake portion of the canal route as well as provide a deeper channel.

The locks to carry the ships from lake to sea level on the Atlantic side would be three in number and of the same dimensions as those on the Pacific side, according to present plans. Together with excavations, they would carry the canal about thirty-six miles below the Conchuda dam.

After leaving the canal, ships would merely continue along the San Juan river to Greytown and the Caribbean. The south bank of the river, for a considerable distance, forms the boundary line between Nicaragua and its southerly neighbor, Costa Rica. About twenty-five miles above Greytown the river divides, the bulk of the water flowing southeastward through Costa Rica as the Colorado river and only about one-tenth reaching the sea near Greytown as the San Juan river. In the event of the erection of a dam, a considerable portion of the Costa Rican jungle on the southern bank would have to be flooded.

Larger Locks.

The locks to be recommended by the Jadwin board are a great deal larger than those suggested by the Walker commission, which were to be only 85 feet wide and 800 feet long. In rejecting the Walker recommendations, the present engineers are not reflecting on those findings, made when conditions and engineering technique were different. This fact was pointed out by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers of the army, in a memorandum he prepared recently for the shipping board in Washington.

The army engineers at Granada likewise referred to the change in conditions during the last thirty years. "Larger ships and the greatly increased commerce that will use the canal require bigger and better harbors," their statement explained. "Locks must be larger and will require more extensive rock foundations. Curvature must be reduced in every way consistent with economy and sound engineering."

"Meanest Man in World" Given Term in Prison

New York.—James F. Farrell heard himself called the "meanest man in the world" by Justices Freschi, McInerney and Featherston recently in the Court of Special Sessions. He had previously been convicted of attempting to oppress money from sick and crippled men who sell their wares in subway trains by falsely identifying himself as a special railroad policeman.

"You have no excuse for picking on poor unfortunates," the court declares. "We impose on you an indeterminate sentence in the New York reformatory, with an expressed wish that you be given the limit term. Hundreds of cases come before us, but this is the first of its kind to be heard here. You can be classed as the world's meanest man."

James Boyd claimed that Farrell showed him a state railway police badge and asked for $5 if "you want protection to sell your postal cards on the L. R. T. subway in Queens." Detective John P. Weirle of the Hunters Point squad received many other complaints from the train salesmen, and arranged for a meeting between two of them and Farrell. He claimed that the arrest of Farrell was made after the prisoner demanded $15 from each of the salesmen.

Divining Rod Locates Water in Pennsylvania

Allentown, Pa.—The "divining rod" of the fifteenth century was reported successful in locating underground sources of water supply for wells on twelve farms in the Pennsburg section here during the recent drought.

While science has from time to time scoffed at the belief that an apple twig used as a divining rod will locate water, John J. Rothmund reports that he has never had a failure in eight years and his neighbors back his claims.

Rothmund uses a forked twig from an apple tree. Holding it in a vertical position with both ends of the twig firmly grasped in his hands, he walks over the farm where a well is to be dug. He claims that when he comes above a spot where there is a subterranean flow of water the twig turns downward with considerable force in its own reaction.

In every case, he says, water has been found when a well was dug. Rothmund locates water as a pastime and makes no charge. He says the system has been handed down in his family through several generations.

Gift Arrives for Czar: Don't Know of Change

Leningrad.—The post office here recently received a letter from the village of Ukow, in the province of Kazan, addressed: "To his majesty the Czar Nicholas II, the Winter Palace, Petersburg." There are places, the post office informs, in the interior of Soviet Russia, where the peasants know nothing of the events which have taken place during the last thirteen years to unseat the czar from his throne.

Food Long Preserved

Homemade butter and cheese made 60 years ago were found at the bottom of a well on the Daniel K. Flannery farm in Union township, near Douglassville, Pa., a short time ago. The well went dry last summer and Mrs. Josephine Flannery decided to have it cleaned. When the cleaners reached the bottom of the 40-foot well they found two crocks, upside down, that contained cheese and butter. Clay had sealed the lids of the crocks, and the contents were well preserved. It is said that many people tasted the butter and cheese and pronounced them good. The well was dug more than 60 years ago, but when an ice house was built on the farm in 1870, the family ceased to use the well as a refrigerator. The two crocks evidently were overlooked when the well's stock of butter and cheese was removed to the new ice house.—Indianapolis News.

Present for a King

Tea was such a rare and valuable commodity a few centuries ago that the East India Tea company considered two pounds of it a regal enough present to offer to the mighty monarch, Charles II. A fashionable paper of the day, commenting on the gift, explained that it cost more to maintain a tea table than a nurse and two children.

PUBLIC SERVICE IN 1930

FACTS AND FIGURES FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT OF PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION OF NEW JERSEY

THE financial and operating statement by Public Service Corporation of New Jersey for the year 1930, reflects the industrial and commercial stability of the State, and gives promise of rapid development and progress with the return of normal business conditions.

In spite of a serious falling off in the receipts of transportation units, the operating revenues of the Corporation and its subsidiary utility companies showed an increase for the year, as did the balance available for surplus and dividends. This result was affected by the acquisition during the twelve months of two additional gas companies, but came in the main from the remarkable showing of the original gas and electric properties.

Cubic feet of gas sold increased by 1,474,651,917.

Connected load, representing ultimate industrial demand for electric power increased by 129,948 horse power, while actual consumption for power purposes, decreased by only seven-tenth of one per cent.

Of the connected load added during the year some 38,000 horse power represents the requirements of new industries moving into the territory.

The number of individual corporation stockholders increased by 1,755, while in two Popular Ownership stock campaigns 19,228 subscriptions were received for 61,234 shares.

The people of New Jersey as well as the owners of Public Service share in the progress made by the Corporation during the year of 1930.

COUNCIL MINUTES

The minutes of the Council, which is supposed to be a record of the proceedings, would be more complete and more satisfactory if they would set it in detail the bills read and approved and disapproved.

It is the public's money that is being passed upon and they are more interested in what happens to their money than in simply general motions and who is appointed to this and that committee.

As long as the Clerk has plenty of time between meetings, we might just as well put the whole story in instead of just bills approved as read. Let the taxpayers know what bills are approved. It is their money and they are entitled to know. The minutes are not complete or worth anything unless they contain this information. Failure to put the full details in the minutes in regard to bills approved, what was paid, what for, and who got it, will only lead to misunderstanding. The Council will only have itself to blame if it builds up from the start distrust and suspicion.

REDUCTION

Do not get excited. This reduction has occurred in Elizabeth, not in Carteret, of course. It is a reduction of $93,874.03 in the school budget. The Board of School Estimate in Elizabeth struck from the school budget for the coming year all salary increases for teachers, supervisors and other employees of the school system. Reductions were made in current expense, on instruction, on manual training, continuation schools, salaries of teachers, and in maintenance items. There was also applied to the unexpended balance monies found in capital accounts of $21,285.67. This sounds as if there was some feeling of responsibility to those who pay the bills—the taxpayers.

ASSEMBLY BILL No. 83

The Legislators unwittingly, due to experience in fields outside of a law office, are introducing legislation that will make the unemployment situation worse.

Assembly No. 83 is a bill of that character. Assembly Bill No. 83 would require licenses for all those operating locomotives, cranes, mine and building construction power hoists using 10 horse power. This would mean that the many thousands of operators in industry throughout New Jersey, unless they took the examination and paid the money over to the State, would be out of a job. There is enough taxation by the State already. There is enough interference by the State already in the business of the individual.

These operators in the respective plants throughout the State have their qualifications passed on by their employers. They would not be employed unless they were qualified. On the other hand, it is perfectly understandable that men that the State might give licenses to might not be acceptable to industry. If the individual is acceptable to industry and industry is satisfied with the way he does his job, and he is satisfied with his job, why interfere?

The answer seem to be to separate those who work in industry from a little bit more of their money on the theory of regulation. On the other hand, it will mean more money for the treasury till and possibly more state jobs for the workers to pay for.

Under this bill the man who is perfectly competent to do the job he is hired for might not pass the license test. In addition, although he is perfectly competent in the eyes of his employer and has been doing the job for years, he would have to give up his time, go take the examination and pay the State money. Just a little more red tape, by those who have got nothing else to do, to make it harder for the rest of the people in communities to live.

This sort of legislation should be defeated. This sort of legislation interferes with the worker and is a tax on him. It also interferes with private business in that it super-imposes political licensing bureaus to say who will and who will not be qualified to do the work.

This sort of legislation is unnecessary and smacks of building up more jobs in a licensing bureau. Their idea is license everybody and everything. One more racket.

MUST REDUCE HOURS OF LABOR

By REUBEN T. WOOD, President Missouri Labor Federation.

IF MACHINERY supplants man power in the next five years as it has in the last five, instead of eight or nine millions out of work, you will have ten or fifteen million men willing to work who can find no employment, and our industrial system cannot withstand a condition where such numbers will have either to accept alms or starve. Unfortunately, unemployment is not a new or temporary crisis, but is a little more acute at present, so it has attracted general attention. Figures of the American Federation of Labor show that normally there are 840,000 union workers out of work all the time, men who cannot find continuous employment anywhere, and the statistics did not take into account part-time laborers.

Some of the causes contributing to the new industrial system result from the concentration of colleges and universities toward improved production, with the training of thousands of scientific workers to that end, and the maintenance of experimental laboratories by every great corporation so that inventions are perfected in months instead of in years as formerly.

The situation is not the fault of the employer. He cannot fight the new industrial system. The solution must lie in recognizing fundamental facts and a readjustment of working hours, not for the physical benefit of the individual, as when we fought for an eight-hour day, but for the economic benefit of the masses who have a right to their share of the world's jobs.

The only permanent remedy in the future will be the reduction of the working hours of the individual so more persons can be employed, and a reduction of the profits of the industrial concerns so there will be a more equitable distribution of wealth.

DEPRESSION NEARING ITS END

By LEONARD P. AVRES Vice President Cleveland Trust Co.

Analysis of prospects in individual lines of productive industry does not lead to optimistic conclusions for 1931. Nevertheless, the history of a long series of previous major business depressions in this country does justify us in believing that the general trend of business and industrial activity in 1931 will be an advancing one.

All the old signs and symptoms of the bottom of business depression are here, and some evidence of approaching improvement in the situation are beginning to appear. There is real basis for hope that stabilization of wholesale prices is in the making both here and abroad.

The history of business cycles for a great many years has been an irregular progression through the phases of prosperity, decline, depression, recovery and back once more to prosperity. This is depression; we are far along in depression. The next development will be recovery, and the records of the depressions of the past half century combine to support the hope and even the qualified opinion that the evidences of its beginnings will be apparent in the spring of 1931.

NEWS EDITORIALS

AROUSE COMMISSIONERS

Your money, was quite hot up because somewhere someone suggested that there were secret meetings. Possibly this member of the Board of Education, who is so peeved that anything should be mentioned about how affairs are handled, will tell you in writing over his own name whether or not there was any private meeting or caucus held before this janitor was appointed.

Perhaps he will tell you over his own name who was present at that meeting, if such a meeting was held. Perhaps he will tell you whether or not people were present at that meeting who were not members of the Board of Education, if such a meeting was held. If such a meeting was held perhaps he will tell you what was discussed and why.

If such meeting or caucus was held perhaps he will tell you why members of the Board of Education have to go to such caucus or meeting to decide what to do with your money. As long as these boys were broadcasting over an hour, questioning the rights of the press to ask questions, at the Board of Education meeting, they might as well go on the air for the benefit of the public at large. Stamping up and down to relieve their feelings, while relieving the taxpayers of $18,000 more through a janitor, will not do. If the members of the Board of Education know their job, they know that another janitor is not necessary and it is just a little more load for you and your family to carry.

Apparently the members of the Board of Education are well fixed. Probably they do not have to bother about such a thing as depression. They apparently do not know that some merchants in town are extending heavy credit because of conditions. They seemingly do not know that perhaps your income is reduced. They seemingly do not know that some people have no income. They should worry. One more job for the boys.

And you have not heard it all either. One of the Commissioners even suggested that they might provide for four more teachers this Fall. Before those four more teachers are put on this town will see a merry scrap. If they think they have had some publicity now, wait until they see what happens by then. The fact of the matter is that close to one thousand people have left the town in the last year or so. So there will be no alibi for creating more jobs as teachers.

Attempt was made to account for $165,000 for teachers by one of the Commissioners. It was claimed that it was difficult to forecast accurately just how much would be spent for salaries of teachers. He said that actual salaries amounted to $162,300 and then told about another item of $2500.00 to pay for substitute teachers.

His statement was to the effect that each teacher is entitled to five days absence for sickness. He said this amounted to $25 extra cost per teacher or $2500.00 a year. This would mean to the average person that there are one hundred teachers on the payroll. Does he actually mean this and that all of these one hundred teachers are sick five days in the school year? It would seem remarkably strange that every teacher in the school system should be out five days with sickness.

If this is not so and these five days are regarded as five days more vacation with pay, it is time the taxpayers woke up! Surely they do not mean to tell us that in addition to the practically three months of summer vacation, Easter vacation, Christmas vacation, five days a week at short hours, and dismissal at noon on rainy days, that the taxpayers have to give them five days in addition with salary and pay for substitutes!

In this item at least the paper was not off when it said the $165,000 did not actually total up the salaries. As a matter of fact we would be quite surprised to find the teachers actually did get $162,300. If the Board of Education feels annoyed that anybody should raise the question as to where the money goes and who gets it, we would be very glad to print a list of the teachers, who they are, where they live and what they get. It will be easy enough for anyone to check one of the principal items of the budget, teachers salaries. It is the public's business and they should know. Let the public know who they are employing and how much they are paying. Of course, the Board of Education possibly regards this as none of the public's business. The Cezars and Kings in their palatial mansions had nothing on our Board. Our Board of Education must not be questioned about the public's business. However, before the town becomes bankrupt this Board and other boards are going to be questioned about the public's business.

In attempting to reach a mark of $165,000 this Commissioner found he still had a difference of $1625 and this largely covered expenses for attending conventions. He said last year the convention was at Atlantic City and next year it is in Detroit. We suppose we should be thankful that they do not hold conventions in Hong Kong, China, or we would have a lot more in the budget under "salaries." What a blessing it is to be on a public payroll at a time like this! The public pays for everything.

In all the talk to relieve their injured feelings none of the members of the Board of Education said anything about the $9,000 surplus which was supposed to have been left over from last year. Where did that go? Instead of attempting to justify the need for a new janitor one of the members of the controlling party of the Board of Education took exception to having the minority raise that question. He alleged they were not interested in economy before and why should they be interested now. In other words, he practically admits at no time was anybody interested in economy. The fact that this is the world's worst depression, that industries in the town are distressed, that storekeepers are feeling the changed conditions in one way or another, and that the average citizen, who is not now and has not been on the public payroll, is feeling the situation, means nothing to the boys.

Any set of children over 12 years of age could settle the question of the janitorship in three minutes. The only question to be settled was—the janitor necessary. Yet everything under the sun except the necessity for such a job was discussed. When members of the minority attempted to have the vote on a new janitor rescinded and attempted to further discuss both the need of a janitor and the desirability of further burdening the taxpayers now, move was made to close up the meeting entirely. Yet they are interested in the taxpayers and the taxpayers' money. God help the taxpayers in Carteret!

Conrad said the Mayor and Council were attempting to save the taxpayers as much as possible and that the Board of Education should attempt to do the same thing since it was the taxpayers' money, regardless of who spent it. Here Coughlin said that it was possible to do this janitor work efficiently with two men and that it was only during a few months during the hard winter season, that a third janitor could possibly be necessary by any stretch of the imagination at the high school building. He said that the athletic ground keeper could take care of that extra work and that there would be no need to spend $1800.00 for still another job. Apparently the principal business of the Board at this meeting was to make another job and they went right to it regardless of protest and by a straight party vote, the Republican control put one more on the payroll at $1800.00—Morris Cohen. Those voting against it were Conrad, Jeffreys and Coughlin. Attempt was made by Coughlin to have them reconsider the resolution but they rang the curtain down. The big job for the day was finished. They had aired themselves and they had made a job.

The ringmaster was the President of the Board of Education, Mr. Bishop; his associates in getting on the air and making a job for you to find the money for were Messrs. Yuronka, Mittuch and Bradford. Incidentally, as a little side issue, and, of course, the side issues are the important issues with the boys, Welblund's resignation was received from the Board of Education and Haury was elected in his place. Welblund, it appears, is leaving Carteret.

The thing that kept the boys on the air so long, was telling the world how their feelings were hurt by the raising of question as to where your money went, in some detail. Of course, it is only by raising questions that the public can find anything out. Incidentally, we have not found out yet. We do not think you have either.

By the way, the Board finally came around to having an audit. If the audit is not any better than the audits the Borough has been having for its previous administration of affairs they ought to save the taxpayers the money. The public will probably learn more if the new crowd has the audit done. The public will not be satisfied by having the present Board telling us everything has been done in a fine business-like way. That is what we have been hearing for years about the local town administration and the auditors are not anywhere near through yet. After this last demonstration many of the public do not believe that the present Board of Education cares anything about a businesslike administration and no pretty report will change the feeling.

On this question of janitors, $21,500 was in the budget. We have pointed out that this was more than what we understood was the total of the janitors' salaries. One of the members of the Board of Education who was quite excited about it admitted we were right. It was our question that smacked them out into the open. He said that the janitors' salaries total actually was $19,240. He added to this that the amount of extra pay for janitors who work 64 nights at evening school. This he claims is $648.00. He said the Board expected to put on another janitor and that this would make up the difference.

So the facts were as we stated before the hot air and after the hot air! We said that $21,500 more than covered the janitors' salaries. By their own statement it did. The Commissioner apparently in his excitement forgot to say that in addition to the item of janitors' salaries of $21,500 that the new budget also has included under Eve School for Foreign Born $260.00 for janitors' salaries. So the budget to some extent, in addition to the $21,500, has also got provision in it for this extra pay to janitors when they work night shifts. These are the same janitors who get paid nice fat salaries the year round with little or nothing to do during the summer months.

We are surprised to find the janitors' salaries amount to so much. We think the public would like to know what they get and who gets it and how many? We will be glad to print it if the Board of Education will make it public.

As long as the Board of Education is so much bigger than the taxpayers whose pocketbooks have to be opened to find what they spend and are so annoyed that anyone should ask what the money is spent for and how much in any detail, why not save themselves the pain of all this by giving a little more detail? Is not the public entitled to know the details of how much money is spent, how many jobs there are and who are in the jobs. For instance, has anyone directly related to any of the Commissioners been recently put in any job anywhere? If they published a list of all the job-holders and all their salaries, you will know. You are entitled to know. Before you lose the roof over your head, you had better find out!

Any other detailed information that the Board of Education would like to tell the public who pays the bills covering such items as text books, why so much is needed every year; janitors' supplies, insurance, janitors' equipment, other equipment, other expense, "sundry individual salaries" we will, of course, be glad to print. Such items as "sundry salaries" mean nothing. Who are they and what do they get and why?

This will inform the taxpayers as well as get the complete story of the Board of Education in the hands of those who pay.

Opening of Early Rail Line Important Event

"Yesterday was a great day on the new railroad between Baltimore and Washington, being the first day of its being opened for travel all the way from the depot at Baltimore to the foot of the Capitol hill in this city," said an article in the National Intelligence of August 26, 1835.

"It was a glorious sight to see four trains of cars, with each its engine, extending altogether several hundred yards in length, making their entry by this new route, to the delight of thousands of spectators in the grounds directly north of the capitol. These cars, besides bringing luck our own mayor and members of the corporation and city guests who went out to meet them, brought about as many ladies and gentlemen of Baltimore as made up the whole numbers of about a thousand persons carried by the cars. These, accompanied by two bands of music, after debarking, marched in procession to Gadsby's and Brown's hotels, at both of which sumptuous and bounteous entertainment was provided and liberally partaken of. The cars arrived at a little before one o'clock, and at four our friends from Baltimore re-embarked and returned to their homes without, we trust, any accident or other inconvenience than what was occasioned by the dust on the roads and streets."—Kansas City Star.

More Proof of Wisdom of Sage of Monticello

When Jefferson imported the French sculptor, Jean Houdon, in 1784, to execute a statue of Washington, there existed the opinion that the author of the Declaration had better stick to statecraft. A short time ago Houdon's marble bust portrait of the Countess de Sahrnan was sold for $80,000 to a New York collector. Previously the small bust of the artist's little daughter was bought by Mrs. E. S. Harkness for $245,000, thought to be the highest price ever paid for a piece of sculpture.

Jefferson's ability to recognize Houdon's genius and his wisdom in introducing it on American shores when our art was in its infancy was part of his own genius. It was but one aspect of the greatness of the mind of the Master of Monticello, that kindly Democrat who might have been found in his study at work on an essay on political philosophy, and then again among his plants gathering seeds for a friend overseas.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Nebraska Saved by Trees

When the Missouri was first crossed by settlers, Nebraska was known as the largest body of treeless land in the country. There was scarcely enough wood for fuel for the wagon trains. Today there are 2,500,000,000 trees in Nebraska. And the annual rainfall has increased to such an extent that the once "great American desert" has become "Nation's Breadbasket."

These "hand-made" forests are scattered all over the state. Settlers were permitted to homestead 160 acres of land and then were given an additional 160 acres as a "timber claim" if they would plant one-quarter of this second claim to trees. These trees have been long in coming, but they now cover the state with a great green blanket which is credited with increasing the annual rainfall to more than 30 inches.—Exchange.

Legal Precedent
One legal authority says: "In the Anglo-American legal system a decision by a court, made on a question of law arising in a case and necessary to its determination, is an authority, or binding precedent, in the same court or in other courts of lower rank, in subsequent cases where the same question is again in controversy." This is called the doctrine of precedent, or "stare decisis et non quieta movere," which means "to stand by the decisions and not disturb what is settled."

LEGION TO HOLD BENEFIT PARTY

In Legion Rooms in Borough Hall on Tuesday Eve. Farewell to Welblund Tonight

Carteret Post No. 263, American Legion will hold a card party at its rooms in the Municipal building on Tuesday evening, February 24th. The following committee is in charge of the affair: Clarence Slugg, John Kennedy, Thomas Jakeway, Harry Gieckner, Morris Cohen, Walter Tomczuk, Michael Borach, John Katushi and Michael Pally.

The next meeting of the Post will be a joint meeting and will be held Tuesday evening, March 3rd. It will be followed by a social session. Refreshments will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary and moving pictures taken at the Department Convention at Wildwood, N. J., and at the National Convention in Boston will be shown. These films having been secured through the efforts of Commander Hagan and they will be presented by Dr. Seymour Deber of the local post.

The National Commanders Dinner-Dance and Reception for 1931 is to be held at the Elks Club, Newark on Saturday, March 7th. This affair will be honored by the presence of many distinguished persons in addition to the National Commander Ralph T. O'Neil. Reservations are necessary and can be made through Finance Officer John Kennedy.

Legion Notes

The application of Benjamin Goltowicki was received at the regular meeting held Tuesday evening and he was accepted to membership. This makes a total of four new members this month. There has been a noticeable increase in membership throughout the country during the last few months. This can possibly be attributed to the appreciation of the ex-service man with regard to the efforts of the Legion to secure consideration for those unemployed and further legislation for their benefit.

Tonight at the Legion rooms the members will tender a farewell party to Comrade Al Welblund who is leaving for Canada. All members and their wives are invited to attend.

The Drum and Bugle Corps will enter competition at the Military ball given by Perth Amboy Post, No. 45, on Saturday evening. They have been rehearsing twice a week for the last month for this affair and will play a bugle march that has never been rendered before. It was composed by the bugle instructor, William Misdom and is entitled "The Adjutant Walsh March" named in honor of the Adjutant of the local post, Edward Walsh.

FORMER BOROUGH RESIDENT HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Edward Gurka, of 854 Myrtle avenue, Elizabeth, formerly of this borough, was held on a technical charge of manslaughter, after his car struck an unidentified man in Linden Monday night.

The victim walked into the path of Gurka's car, police were told.

Mrs. Morris Ulman of Washington avenue, will be hostess to her Bridge club, Friday, February 20th.

HAURY APPOINTED SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER

Monthly reports were also submitted by Miss Elizabeth C. Fezza, school nurse; Truant Officer Kurt Grohman and Bill Misdom, janitor of the high school.

Permission was granted to the Carteret Fire Company band to use the Nathan Hale school auditorium on Monday nights for practice.

In accordance with the suggestion of Commissioner George Yuronka, chairman of transportation, the board voted to transport a few pupils who live on the Mexican Petroleum grounds to the schools via train service.

The Rev. Father Charles J. McCarthy, pastor of St. Joseph's church requested the use of the high school baseball field by St. Joseph's team. The communication was filed and will be given prior consideration, when the season opens.

Miss Pearl Peterson, of 155 Valentine place, Woodbridge, applied for a position as home economics teacher. Miss Mildred Sorenson, of Metuchen, petitioned for a job on the teaching faculty; Miss Mildred Cohen, of Jersey City, applied for a position on the high school staff and Ruth Gast, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Phoebe Conran, of this borough also applied for teaching positions at the high school.

Permission was granted to the Methodist (negro) church to use the Columbus school auditorium on the nights of March 13 and 14 for a play.

Morris Cohen was appointed janitor in the high school to fill a vacancy effected when John Brandon was transferred to the Nathan Hale School. Commissioners Coughlin, Conrad and Jeffreys opposed this appointment. Commissioner Conrad said the Mayor and Council are effecting considerable savings in the conduct of the borough's business and he felt that the Board should do the same. "No wonder you are criticized," he said.

Commissioner Coughlin asked the Board to re-consider their action on this matter after the resolution making the appointment was passed. He said that with the worst part of the winter over he felt that the work in the high school could be efficiently done by the two janitors.

The recommendation of Commissioner Coughlin was ignored when President Bishop forced an adjournment.

W. B. D. CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the W. B. D. Club held in the home of Edna Albrecht, of 84 Lincoln avenue, last night, Jeannette Baier, was elected president of the club, and Edna Albrecht, vice president and Anna Mazio, treasurer.

Following the business session a social time was held.

T. J. NEVILL REAPPOINTED POSTMASTER FOR CARTERET

Postmaster Timothy J. Nevill was officially notified of his re-appointment as postmaster for Carteret this week. The confirmation of his appointment took place in the Senate on Tuesday. Mr. Nevill has been appointed for the third consecutive time.

Pigeon That Won Fame

Unquestionably the most famous bird of the World war was Cher Ami, credited with saving Major Whittlesey's "Lost Battalion." Released with a message on October 21, 1918, at 2:35 p. m., during intense artillery action, Cher Ami delivered a message 40 kilometers distant in 25 minutes and was the only pigeon to get through the enemy's fire. Although wounded in the breast, and the leg which carried the precious message was shot away, the tiny tube, still intact, hung to the exposed ligaments. Later he crossed the seas with the doughboys on the Ohlson transport and died in June, 1919, from the effects of the wounds.

Oldest Trees in Europe

Between Loch Rannoch and Loch Tay is Glen Lyon, the longest glen in Scotland, which stretches its mysterious beauty from Loch Lyon over 20 miles. Many a tourist in Perthshire has rushed past it, little knowing that he was missing a haunt whose loveliness would cheer him long after more notable places had become dim in his mind. The Scots call it "The Dark Crooked Glen of the Great Rocks." The place is red with history and legend, battles of kilted and crosses which go back to the earliest days of Celtic Christianity. Its yew trees claim to be the oldest authentic specimen of vegetation in Europe.

Days of Rest and Joy

Mary E. Hazeltine in her book "Anniversaries and Holidays," says: "The calendar includes 77 holidays, special days, seasonal festivals and holidays, without counting the feast days of the saints or constitution and statehood days, which in some countries and states are observed as holidays; the former are counted with the names of persons, of whom there are 892; the latter with events, of which there are 229; a total of 1,198 calendar entries, an average of three and a half for every day."

Food Vitamin

Government tests show that Vitamin G, a food factor promoting growth, is from five to eight times more abundant in beef liver, pork liver and beef kidney than in lean beef, pork or lamb.

Public Service Statement Shows Gain in '30

A comparative statement of combined results of operation for the twelve months ending January 31, 1931 issued by Public Service Corporation of New Jersey shows for the corporation and its subsidiary companies gross earnings of $138,542,497.58 as against $138,058,071.24 for the twelve months ending January 31, 1930 an increase of $484,426.34.

Operating expenses, maintenance, taxes and depreciation for the period were $94,605,098.75 a decrease of $1,055,845.27 leaving a net income from operations of $43,937,399.13 as against $42,397,127.22 for the twelve months ending January 31, 1930 an increase of $1,540,271.91.

Other net income amounted to $2,776,192.02 and income deductions to $16,095,247.59, the balance for dividends and surplus being $30,618,343.56 as compared to $30,194,992.07 for the twelve months ending January 31, 1931 an increase of $423,351.49.

Gross earnings for the month of January 1931 were $12,911,833.40 as against $12,531,282.11 for January 1930 an increase of $380,551.29. Operating expenses, maintenance, taxes and depreciation were $8,299,993.22 a decrease of $146,503.39. Net income from operations was $4,611,840.18 an increase over January 1930, of $527,054.68. Other net income showed an increase of $31,514.94 over January 1930 and the total net income was $4,661,718.59 an increase over January 1930 of $358,569.62. Income deductions were $1,343,372.90 or $103,528.09 more than for January 1930 leaving the balance available for dividends and surplus $3,318,245.69 as against $2,863,204.16 for January 1930 an increase of $455,041.43.

Iceland Sagas The Flateyjarbok is a collection of sagas, once preserved in the island of Flatey, Iceland, but now in the Royal library in Copenhagen. It was written in 1380-1395 by two priests of Iceland and is one of the main sources for the belief that the Norsemen discovered America.

"I Have Found It" The word "Eureka" is Greek, more correctly "Heureka," meaning "I have found it." It is an exclamation of delight, appropriate when a discovery has been made. Eureka is the motto of California, in allusion to the gold discovered there.

Seals Must Learn to Swim The water is not the natural habitat of the seal and the baby seal must be given a course of instruction before it learns to swim. The mother seal gives her young the necessary encouragement to enter the sea and by her example teaches it to conduct itself in the water.

"Plate" and "Window" Glass The main difference between plate glass and window glass is that plate glass is cast in flat sheets and ground and polished, while window glass is blown in cylinders to the thickness desired, and flattened by splitting the cylinders and allowing the glass to flatten under its own weight.

The Valley of the Kings The Valley of the Kings is located on the west bank of the river Nile, opposite the towns of Luxor and Karnak, which are close to the site of the ancient city of Thebes. The location is in upper Egypt, about 320 miles south of Cairo.

CARD CROOKS PESTS TO SCOTLAND YARD

"Doing" Trains Now, but Victims Seldom Kick.

London.—The only crook that can nod and smile at a Scotland Yard man one day and be free to do it again the day after is the card sharper.

And as though this situation isn't enough to plague these lean man-hunters, the gentle task of "plucking a pigeon" now has become a family affair! Authorities say it is not uncommon to find a father and son "working" the trains together. Before the war this form of thievery was confined mostly to ocean liners. Spasmodically commuters reported they had been "plucked," but their numbers and losses did not present a serious problem.

"Sharppers" Doubled. Now, however, the situation has changed. The number of "sharppers" has doubled. Railroad detectives know these men, but are powerless to act unless they actually catch one cheating or a victim complains.

Few of the latter, however, take the trouble to report their losses. They dislike the publicity and the subsequent jibes of their friends.

Chief Inspector A. E. Earle of the London & North-Eastern railway police calls them "pests."

Then Earle ruminated upon the number of men whose keen wits enable them to win a fortune in the business world but "who fall for the time-worn" three-card trick.

Even before the potential victim is comfortably settled in his train compartment he has been marked as a stranger and an assult on his pocket book planned. One by one the sharppers enter the train and as though complete strangers select seats beside the "pigeon."

Money Refunded. A few moments after the journey has begun some one suggests a game. The one stranger is invited. He accepts. And there the story ends unless he refuses to take the loss sitting down. If he makes known his intention of reporting it to police his money is hastily returned to him, according to authorities.

Once the sleek "sharppers" are caught, however, they do not face the American equivalent of a $100 fine or a month in jail. They listen to a sharp rebuke from the judge and then prepare to do months and perhaps a year at hard labor in a prison.

The News is only $1.50 a year.

Seven Found Near Death From Hunger and Cold.

New York.—Seven sailors out of Newfoundland arrived in port with a tale of a thirty-day battle with a midwinter Atlantic that seldom has been surpassed by any epic of the sea.

Mast Lost in Storm.

Capt. Cyril Harwood and six seamen put out from St. Johns in the John W. Miller, a ship of a schooner loaded to the gunwales with salt cod.

Food is Exhausted.

The rudder had gone with the first blow, said Captain Harwood, and there was only the battered stub of a mast left and for sail there was not enough canvas left to make a shirt.

After long since almost given up hope of being rescued, when one morning a thousand miles east of Nassau the lookout sighted a wisp of smoke on the horizon.

Linger at Stage Doors for "Closeup" of Stars

Familiar among Broadway's night sights are the small crowds who gather near stage doors after the show is over. Usually between the hours of eleven and twelve they are to be found waiting for their favorite star to emerge.

Some nights an actor or actress is in a hurry and, desiring to avoid the crowd, leaves by a different exit. The stars use various ruses to get away in a hurry, sometimes telling the doorman to notify the crowd that so-and-so will not leave the theater for a few hours.

Publicity's Value Well Known to the Ancients

More than 3,000 years ago, according to the London Morning Post, the Egyptians devised innumerable methods of bringing their names before the public; and by inscriptions, by historic monuments, and by the literature of the period, they left to posterity the records of a complete and systematic scheme of advertising.

In certain respects they made even more extensive use of publicity than does the present age. In the reign of Tutankhamen, doctors, unlike the modern practitioner, were allowed to advertise their remedies; and one of the more subtle methods used to attract this end was to compel patients on swallowing specific medicines to cry out, "A really excellent remedy proved a million times!"

customary to stamp wine jars with the word "Good" thrice repeated. Similarly they were well aware of the value of disguised advertisements; and experts now declare that the temples of ancient Egypt were in nearly every case built to advertise the power of Egypt's rulers. They were covered with accounts of victories achieved, and records of cities conquered.

Rubber Growth Experiments

Rubber plants that are native to dry regions are being tested in California, in the coast districts as well as in the interior valleys. Several dry-country rubber plants are known in Mexico, while others are reported in South America, Africa and Madagascar.

Famous Tapestry

The Gobelin tapestries originated in the work of a former dyer, named Gobelin, who in the Fifteenth century came from Reims to Paris, the family having discovered a marvelous scarlet dye which attracted great attention. In the Sixteenth century to the manufacture of dyes was added the manufacture of tapestry, which founded the fortune of the family.

Long-Lived Moon Superstition

Old foresters have the strongest opinions as to the influence of the moon on timber. In the royal ordinances of France for the conservation of forests, it was laid down that timber, especially oaks, should be felled only during the wane of the moon, and the belief—superstition, if you like to call it so—still persists both in France and England. The idea is that timber felled at these times is less liable to rot than when felled during the wax. The belief dates right back to Roman times.

Benedict Arnold

Authors differ on the birth date of Benedict Arnold. Appleton's Cyclopaedia and Lippincott's Biographical Dictionary both state he was born January 3, 1740. Lossing's Cyclopaedia of History gives the time as January 3, 1741. A carefully prepared and impartial history of the American traitor of Revolutionary times was written by Hon. Isaac N. Arnold, who fixes his birth date on January 14, 1741, and his death on June 14, 1801, in London.

Stage Versions Differ

Both versions of the play "Macbeth," by Shakespeare, are given—with the ghost of Banquo appearing in the banquet scene, and without it. The Ben Greet Players, producers of what is known as pure Elizabethan drama, do not show the ghost at the banquet table, as this is a deviation from the true Shakespeare. Other companies, having in mind the dramatic effect of its appearance, show the ghost of Banquo, with weird lightning effects.

Large Newspaper Collection

What is said to be the largest collection of newspapers in the world has been opened to the public in a newspaper museum at Aix-la-Chapelle, Germany. Among its collection of 150,000 newspapers are curiosities from all over the world, including an Eskimo paper from the middle of last century.

Revolutionary Writings

The "Newburgh Addresses" were two anonymous letters, written in behalf of the American soldiers whose pay had been withheld, which appeared in 1783 after the close of the Revolutionary war. It was afterward made known that Gen. John Armstrong wrote them.

Compare the values, prices and service we give you with those of any other tire dealer or distributor of special brands.

The low prices of rubber and cotton give Firestone unusual advantages due to their world-wide facilities in securing these raw materials and their efficient manufacturing. With Firestone's most economical distributing system, with over 600 branches, warehouses and service stores, we can secure a complete line of fresh Firestone tires, tubes, batteries, brake lining, rims and accessories within a few minutes' to a few hours' time and give our customers values and service that are not duplicated.

COMPARE VALUES. Firestone has this year added more rubber to the tread which gives 20% to 25% more safe mileage before the tread wears smooth. The Firestone Double Cord Breaker gives you SIX and EIGHT plies under the tread—spreads road shocks—lessens punctures—gives over 50% stronger union between tread and tire body which ensures longer tire life and greater safety. Live rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber by the patented Gum-Dipping process—thus not only every cord, but every fiber within the cord, is insulated; this gives you 25% to 40% added tire life.

Not the least of the reasons why Ralph Irvine Sasse turned in a great season for his first term of responsibility as head coach at West Point were his modesty and his concentration on the task in hand.

Major Sasse wrote his high-powered articles for the newspapers of the magazines. He broadcast his speeches in the interests of any commercial project or chamber of commerce. He picked no all-American teams.

In short he considered he had enough to do as Army's head coach, plus other duties at West Point, without roaming into the press boxes and broadcasting stations. Sasse believes the coach's place is on the side lines.

My Greatest Thrill in Sport

An Interview With CHICK EVANS Former American Open and Amateur Golf Champion

Chick Evans.

In all the world only one golf player, Bobby Jones, had achieved the signal honor which befell Chick Evans back in 1916 when he won the double crown of American open and American amateur champion.

Chick is a great figure in golfdom. He has won hundreds of minor titles and has one of the greatest collections of trophies of any man in the world.

He came along that year in great form and swept all competition aside as he marched toward the amateur title, having already annexed the open.

Now he is still to be figured in tournament play as "one of those who must be beaten." But the events of 1916 stand as the acme of his accomplishments.

He came along that year in great form and swept all competition aside as he marched toward the amateur title, having already annexed the open.

Who but an enthusiast would steal golf clubs when the thermometer is halfway between freezing and zero?

For that matter, Professor Einstein, there are only six or eight in the world who understand Bob Zuppke's football diagrams.

It wouldn't be surprising if old Jack Quinn had one of his best years this season. In the minors, just on the strength of beginner's luck.

The Field Hockey Association of America now has six member clubs playing that game and plans to enter a team in the next Olympics.

Capt. Glenn Wright, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has signed a contract to lead again Brooklyn's entry in the National League pennant chase from his shortstop post.

Jim Bottomley, Card first sacker, was one of the first products of the chain store system. He developed at Syracuse, now Rochester, succeeding Syracuse, has sent up Jimmy Collins and St. Louis isn't sure which one will play first in 1931.

Arthur Duncan, coach of the Toronto Hockey club, was a captain in the Royal Flying corps during the World war and accounted for more than 15 enemy planes, for which he received the military cross and bar.

COACH A. A. STAGG NEAR FINISH LINE

He Has Had Many Winning Teams and Some Losers.

After forty years of coaching work at the University of Chicago, Alonzo A. Stagg is close to the finish line. Another season and he plans retirement.

In his forty years of coaching Stagg has had many championship teams. Also he has had many losing elevenes. At times the alumni have cried for Stagg's scalp, but all the while Mr. Stagg has gone on coaching, secure in his job, teaching his young men football and its kindred lessons.

That is the way football coaching ought to be. Let the school find the man, the man of the proper knowledge of football and the proper knowledge of ethics and sportsmanship.

Stitches on the league baseball are to be heavier in the 1931 season. It should make them easier to count, we imagine, in case of batting against Bob Grove.

Vincent Richards, professional tennis champion, is the only player to win the national indoor junior tournament three times. He was victorious in 1913, 1919 and 1920.

Baseball at Harvard is far from a dead sport, although its maintenance is written in red ink. The game cost Harvard $29,083.35 last year and the "gate" totaled $29,101.11.

For the first time in the history of athletics, Temple university will act as host to the Intercollegiate Gynastic association when the individual championships are held March 21.

Joeky Sande, who rode Gallant Fox, has educated himself in music. He may sing some good melodies, but never any words that will compare in effect with his own famous "old dip".

Coach Jim Wray, of the victorious Cornell crew, presented each member of the varsity shell with a gold ear at a dinner given by the crew club. The ear was a personal gift from coach to athlete.

In recent rounds on the coast Walter Hagen has turned in 18-hole rounds at 67 and 68, so the old master is likely to be dipping into the money places in some of the winter tournaments that are still on the program.

Advertising brings quick results. Most persons would suppose, I imagine, that my greatest thrill came when I won the pentathlon championship or when I was selected from among 2,000 entries in the National Gynastic union as the most perfectly formed girl in America.

They were big moments, but the biggest, I think, came when I defeated Olga Dorf. It determined not to think about Olga at all; simply to swim as fast as I could from start to finish.

At that time Olga was the greatest woman swimmer in the world. She had set innumerable records, and it seemed quite impossible to beat her. All the other girls felt the same way. Seven times I had been pitted against her, and seven times I had won a silver medal, emblematic of second place.

On these seven occasions Miss Dorf had taken home the gold medal for winning the race.

The eighth time was the successful one, and I never expect to experience quite the same thrill of happiness as I did when I climbed out of the water, knowing that I was the victor at last.

It was a 100-yard free-style sprint, the same distance and the same style of swimming in which Olga had beaten me before so frequently.

At any rate, I went into the race with the grim determination to give everything I had. If I didn't win then I felt that further effort would be nearly hopeless. It was, perhaps, one of those do-or-die efforts that simply can't fail.

I determined not to think about Olga at all; simply to swim as fast as I could from start to finish. At the gun I was off in the lead, thrashing as hard as I could. Olga may have been at my heels from start to finish, or she may have trailed behind at the start and began catching up later.

I don't remember anything but the intensity of effort, and then when I went over the line the knowledge that I hadn't seen her ahead of me or at my side! The thrill went through me from head to heels! Even then I was not quite sure that I had won.

But when I climbed out of the pool I found that my highest hopes had been realized, and that I would take a gold medal home this time after racing the wonderful Olga Dorf!

Night football is going to get a more thorough trial at Temple university in Philadelphia next season. The Owls have listed four night games, one the last Friday in September with Mount St. Mary's and three in October, the opponents being Albright, Bucknell and Haskell Indians.

Al Simmons, Athletics' star outfielder and 1930 American league champion batter, proved recently that he can hit something besides home runs. Hunting in the north woods, 350 miles north of his home city, Milwaukee, the slugger shot a good-sized buck, the first of his career, after trying for years, but "this was my first kill," wrote Simmons. "It was just about as big a thrill as hitting one over the wall against the Yanks."

Chicago's memorial stadium is the largest in the United States, but in addition football fans have Stagg field of the University of Chicago, Dycbe stadium of Northwestern, and now Loyola university is building one to seat 40,000. In all, Chicago's four big stadia can seat nearly 300,000 fans.

Notre Dame's 1931 football schedule will be limited to nine games—one fewer than was played during 1930. The Irish will play Indiana, Northwestern, Drake, Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania, Navy, Southern California and Army.

Only two sports make a profit at the University of Illinois, football and basketball.

Sport Notes

Spengue Cleghorn sustained a total of 84 injuries during his lengthy professional hockey playing career.

Who but an enthusiast would steal golf clubs when the thermometer is halfway between freezing and zero?

For that matter, Professor Einstein, there are only six or eight in the world who understand Bob Zuppke's football diagrams.

It wouldn't be surprising if old Jack Quinn had one of his best years this season. In the minors, just on the strength of beginner's luck.

The Field Hockey Association of America now has six member clubs playing that game and plans to enter a team in the next Olympics.

Capt. Glenn Wright, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has signed a contract to lead again Brooklyn's entry in the National League pennant chase from his shortstop post.

Jim Bottomley, Card first sacker, was one of the first products of the chain store system. He developed at Syracuse, now Rochester, succeeding Syracuse, has sent up Jimmy Collins and St. Louis isn't sure which one will play first in 1931.

Arthur Duncan, coach of the Toronto Hockey club, was a captain in the Royal Flying corps during the World war and accounted for more than 15 enemy planes, for which he received the military cross and bar.

Night football is going to get a more thorough trial at Temple university in Philadelphia next season. The Owls have listed four night games, one the last Friday in September with Mount St. Mary's and three in October, the opponents being Albright, Bucknell and Haskell Indians.

Al Simmons, Athletics' star outfielder and 1930 American league champion batter, proved recently that he can hit something besides home runs. Hunting in the north woods, 350 miles north of his home city, Milwaukee, the slugger shot a good-sized buck, the first of his career, after trying for years, but "this was my first kill," wrote Simmons. "It was just about as big a thrill as hitting one over the wall against the Yanks."

Chicago's memorial stadium is the largest in the United States, but in addition football fans have Stagg field of the University of Chicago, Dycbe stadium of Northwestern, and now Loyola university is building one to seat 40,000. In all, Chicago's four big stadia can seat nearly 300,000 fans.

Notre Dame's 1931 football schedule will be limited to nine games—one fewer than was played during 1930. The Irish will play Indiana, Northwestern, Drake, Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania, Navy, Southern California and Army.

Only two sports make a profit at the University of Illinois, football and basketball.

Stitches on the league baseball are to be heavier in the 1931 season. It should make them easier to count, we imagine, in case of batting against Bob Grove.

Career Mapped Out for Peter

By T. M. JACKSON

(Copyright.)

FROM the day Peter Gray was born, his mother anticipated his future. At first, that future dealt largely with certified milk, specialized diets and private kindergartens, but as Peter grew into a sturdy boyhood there arose the vital question of what he was going to make of himself.

When he was due to graduate from an expensive and exclusive prep school his mother went on to it for commencement. Also, to consult about her son with the men who had been his guides, philosophers and presumably friends. Surely, they would have detected in her Peter some bent, some flair which indicated the line along which he should be trained.

When she put the problem to Peter's mathematics instructor, that gentleman considered a moment before replying. Then, "Forgive me, Mrs. Gray," he said gently. "But really your boy hasn't brains enough to run a stop watch. Don't think I don't like Peter. I do. He simply hasn't any brains."

Taken rather aback—as who wouldn't have been—Peter's mother still hoped that the boy's English teacher could offer something more encouraging.

"Has my son any inclination for writing or, possibly, poetry?" she began.

This time the answer was prompt enough. "Writing, Madam? Poetry? That most delicate of the arts? Lord, no! I like Peter immensely. But there is nothing of the artist about him."

Mrs. Gray made one more try. "Tell me," she pleaded of Jake Crowley, the athletic coach. "Is my boy good at sports?"

Jake threw back his massive head. "Lord love you, Mrs. Gray! Your Peter can't remember the difference between a hold and a tackle, a home run or a touchdown! But he makes a fine figure in running pants or plus fours and, gosh, how the girls adore him!"

When Peter's mother reached home, she told an intimate friend that her trip had proved invaluable inasmuch as it showed her unmistakably that for which her boy was most fitted. What that was she neglected to say, but the friend gathered that Peter's future would be shaped accordingly.

And so it was. Peter was sent to a fashionable college with plenty of money and a smart wardrobe.

During his vacation his mother entertained for him lavishly, including among other young buds of the season, Miss Patty Gale, whose father had recently made a few millions in furs.

Peter had always known Patty, but there had been a time when Mrs. Gray thought the Gales a cut beneath her.

Certainly, when home, Peter fairly lived at the Gales', and when his junior prom loomed in the offing, he promptly invited the whole Gale family to it.

Mrs. Gray, who had gamely stood the cost of box, taxis, flowers, and what not, was frankly disappointed when nothing evidently came of it. She tried Peter out after the dance itself when a full moon, lantern lighted coupes, and the seductive waiters of a metropolitan orchestra might reasonably be supposed to have got in their romantic work.

"Patty is a fine girl, Peter."

"Sure is," said Peter carelessly. "Deserves a good husband."

"Righto, ma mere. Got any cigarettes? Oh, I forgot you don't smoke!"

"Peter—don't be horrid!" Mrs. Gray had learned nothing for her pains.

She did not go on for her son's commencement. It was a great blow when she knew that Peter would not receive a diploma. He had made a fraternity—one of the best—and had invited his mother to pour at the commencement week tea. But, although the Gales were going en masse, Peter's mother stayed home.

She was totally unprepared for his bursting in upon her a day ahead of his expected arrival.

"Had to dash right home to tell you, mother!" he cried, grabbing her in his arms and dancing her around in spite of herself. "I'm engaged! I'm engaged!"

"Oh, Peter!" said Mrs. Gray feebly. Then, spurred by one last hope, "Is it Patty?"

"Patty? My eye, no! She's been married three months to my roommate, but they kept it secret so he could graduate. No, s'ree. To the finest little girl in the world. None other than Patty's little sister 'Athleen!"

To this day, Mrs. Gray doesn't know whether the credit of Peter's marriage should be laid at her door or not. Surely, if Peter had not been thrown so much with Patty he would not have come in contact with Patty's pretty, clever little sister. And surely Mrs. Gray would never have thrown him with Patty had she not made up her mind at Peter's prep school commencement that the only career her son was fitted for was that of husband to a rich wife.

Why Men Leave Home

He sauntered into the strange office with such self-assurance and an air of familiarity, threw down his business card and inquired:

"Who's the main squeeze around here?"

"Well," replied the good looking stenog, "they'd all take me for it if I'd let 'em."

Why You Can Drive the New Ford So Many Thousands of Miles

Unusual care in manufacturing is reflected in the smooth, reliable performance of the new Ford and its economy and long life.

THE NEW FORD has made an unusual record for reliability and long life. In police service it has been driven 100,000 and 120,000 miles under the severest driving conditions. Leading industrial companies operating large fleets of Fords report "satisfactory economical service" after many months and years of constant use. The value of good materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing is especially apparent after the first 25,000 miles.

Throughout the chassis, you find many reasons for the good performance of the Ford. None is more important than the crankshaft.

The crankshaft is frequently called the heart of the automobile because of the part it plays in transmitting the power developed by the pistons to the flywheel and driveshaft. It must be properly balanced to insure smooth operation. It must be accurate in size to insure proper clearance in the bearings. It must be true in alignment and weight to reduce friction and give long continuous service without adjustment.

The crankshaft of the new Ford has great strength because it is made of carbon manganese steel, specially developed by Ford metallurgists. It will resist a twisting stress of 2½ tons at a leverage of twelve inches from its axis.

THE NEW FORD TUDOR SEDAN

This popular family sedan is an outstanding example of value far above the price. Its beauty of line, color and upholstery is in keeping with its capable mechanical performance. Among its many features are . . . silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of steel forgings, Rustless Steel, quick acceleration, 55 to 65 miles an hour, ease of control, reliability, economy and long life. The first cost of the Ford is low and you save many dollars because of the low cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

In the many steps in its manufacture, the Ford crankshaft is machined and polished to measurements as fine as one-half of a thousandth part of an inch. In all, Ford crankshafts receive more than 150-checks for accuracy.

The greatest care is taken to make sure that the Ford crankshaft will be in perfect balance in all positions and at all speeds. The machines for the dynamic balance tests are set upon foundations of gum rubber and are so delicately adjusted that the very air that surrounds them is first cleansed and then held at 68 degrees by thermostatic control.

Though weighing many pounds, the Ford crankshaft is so carefully balanced that it will remain motionless when placed upon two perfectly leveled parallel bars, yet will turn if so small a weight as a ten-cent piece is placed on any connecting-rod bearing.

This same care is followed as standard practice in the manufacture of the Ford flywheel, pistons, connecting-rods, valves, camshaft and other mechanical parts.

You can see, therefore, why the Ford delivers reliable, economical service for so many thousands of miles. It gives good performance on the road because good performance has been built into it at the factory.

This illustration shows the Ford cylinder bloc (A), piston (B), connecting-rod (C), flywheel (D), and crankshaft (E). The care with which these parts are made is an important factor in the smoothness, reliability, economy and long life of the new Ford.

The Ford crankshaft is made of special carbon manganese steel and balanced statically and dynamically. Ford crankshafts receive more than 150 checks for accuracy.

HIS TOOTHACHE WINS BRIDE IN QUEER ROMANCE

Travels Far to Get Molar Yanked; Takes Girl He Had Never Seen.

Montreal.—It isn't every day that a man travels 2,500 miles to have a tooth pulled, and when at the end of his journey he wins a bride "sight unseen" in a romance linking three continents together, it's probably news.

Hugo Reitmeyer, former bank clerk of Langeburg, Germany, did all that however, and is now on his wedding trip, back to his tiny domain of Pau, in the Polynesian island of the Pacific, where he rules as an almost absolute monarch.

Reitmeyer has lived a life of travel and adventure seldom encountered outside the pages of fiction, for more than half of his forty years of life. After his experiences in the World War, he found himself unable to settle back into the dull routine of a bank clerk's existence and, accordingly, shipped before the mast.

Many Parts of World. The ensuing years saw him in many parts of the world, as coalheaver, deckhand or engine room worker, in ships of five different nations; and once brought him a prison term in Australia for stowing away on a steamer from Buenos Aires.

Chance finally brought to his attention the fact that a tiny island in the Polynesian group was for sale, and, with his savings, he purchased it, and set himself up there as a trader—the only white man within hundreds of miles.

He named his island Pau, the native term for "journey's end," and was contented there until he developed a toothache. There was not a dentist to be found anywhere on the Polynesian isles and finally, after enduring the pain for nearly a year, Reitmeyer struck out for the steamer lanes and worked his way to Vancouver, where he had his teeth thoroughly overhauled.

Birth of Romance. Before returning to his island home, Reitmeyer visited some German friends in Waldeck, Manitoba, and there was induced by his hostess to enter into correspondence with her sister, Franziska, in Regensburg, on the Rhine. Franziska was alone in Germany since the death of her mother, and Reitmeyer's stories of adventure in all corners of the globe and of his island home "neath the tropic skies, fired her imagination and won her admiration. Their correspondence ripened into love, and finally Franziska agreed to become the uncrowned queen of the island of Pau.

She migrated from Germany and was married to Reitmeyer on the immigration docks here, and the couple are now enroute to Polynesia where they hope to establish a white colony.

Polish Couple Murder. Yankee; Find He's Son. Warsaw.—A tragedy in which a man and his wife murdered a man, not knowing he was their own son, an American, named Andrew Cygan, was reported recently from the village of Zagatniki.

Twenty years ago Mr. Cygan, then fifteen years old, emigrated to Detroit. When he had saved $7,000 he returned to Poland. Arriving at Zagatniki late at night he inquired of the village policeman the location of his parents' home. He was admitted to the house without being recognized and detoured a bed for the night. It was noted the visitor had money and he was murdered in his sleep.

The police, on hearing of no further news of the stranger, became suspicious and, upon investigation, discovered his body in the cellar of the house. When the parents learned of the identity of the victim they both became insane.

Note on Police Phone. Box Brings Physician. Syracuse, N. Y.—A physician urgently was needed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen so Mrs. Allen attached a note to a police telephone box to that effect. Patrolman James Bryon investigated. Frances, five-year-old daughter of the couple, was ill, he discovered, so he summoned a physician.

KEEP RADIATORS FROM FREEZING

Alcohol Still Leads as Best Winter Solution for Automobiles.

Alcohol still holds the lead as the best material to keep automobile radiators from freezing, in the opinion of the bureau of standards at Washington. Warning is given, however, that if wood alcohol is used care must be taken that it does not contain acid, which is likely to corrode the radiator or other parts of the circulatory system.

The great drawback to alcohol is that it evaporates from the solution and has to be replaced, says the bureau. Glycerine does not have this drawback, but is more expensive.

Kerosene Not Favored. "Tests on a number of different kinds of anti-freeze preparations have been made by the bureau of standards," says a bulletin telling of the work. "The use of kerosene is not recommended. Its vapors are inflammable, and its high and uncertain boiling point is likely to lead to serious overheating of the engine or even to the melting of solder in the radiator. It also has a slight solvent action for rubber.

Calcium chloride is frequently used to prevent freezing, and is found to be very effective. It has, however, a decided corrosive action, especially on solder and aluminum. This salt forms the basis of many of the patent anti-freeze solutions on the market and to some of these a soluble chromate is added for the purpose of preventing corrosion. The bureau found very little corrosion of most of the engine and radiator materials when the chromate was included, the aluminum parts alone being attacked.

Another troublesome effect of calcium chloride is found to be its tendency to cause short circuits when it gets on the spark plugs or ignition wires. When cold, it absorbs moisture and forms a very good conducting layer where such a layer is not desired. It is very difficult to remove, and short circuits caused by it are hard to find because they disappear when the engine gets hot.

Honey and Glucose. "Honey and glucose are found unsatisfactory in that a high percentage solution is required to prevent freezing, and such solutions flow very slowly. There is danger also of depositing sugar from them in the circulating system. Low percentage solutions do not lower the freezing point to any great extent, but they do prevent bursting of the radiators. When such a solution freezes it turns first to a slush which must be cooled to a considerably lower temperature before it turns solid. The liquid, meanwhile, becomes more and more concentrated as the crystals of ice freeze out of it, and requires a lower temperature to produce further freezing.

LOW GRADE FUEL CAUSES PRIMING

Use of Lighter Oil Will Assist Driver of Any Cold Machine.

Probably no other problem of operation for the motorist is so universal in its application, affecting alike the lordly twelve and the humble flivver, as that of securing ease of starting. There is a basic reason for this condition and it is found in the grade of gasoline that is now produced.

The fact that our oil refiners now include in "gasoline" heavier components than in the old days renders the motor fuel hard to vaporize and needing heat for efficient action. This is why cold weather makes it hard to start the cold motor. There is not a section of the country, even the sunny Southland, where the colder months do not bring difficulties in starting.

Secure Easy Starting. Unquestionably the best way of securing easy starting is by priming with some fuel lighter, more volatile and more easily fired than the ordinary gasoline that serves very well after the engine has been warmed up. An equipment for this purpose is easily installed on any car. It consists usually of a small air-tight tank holding about a quart of the priming fluid and this is generally located under the hood. A pipe leads from this tank to the inlet manifold and another pipe to a pump or other control on the dash. By operating the control a small quantity of the lighter fuel from the auxiliary tank is injected into the inlet manifold, is sucked out of the combustion chambers and fires at the first spark.

A number of different fluids are used for priming. What is known as 70 degrees gasoline is entirely satisfactory. This is simply a gasoline of the sort that we used to get years ago, before demand caught up with supply and passed it, forcing the oil refiners to lower the grade of the fuel. This high-test gasoline may be procured from any of the big oil companies or from drug shops of the better sort.

Petroleum Ether. Within the last year or two some of the oil companies have been producing what is known as petroleum ether. This is simply a lighter product from the crude base, differing little from high-test gasoline. It makes an admirable priming compound and with a tank of this on hand an easy start may be secured even in the coldest weather, 20 or 30 degrees below zero.

'Stolen Heaven' Story Of Fling On Stolen Money

A boy and a girl meet under strange circumstances. The boy has a bad cut on his scalp. The girl takes him to her room, a cheap, drab, forlorn looking place. He tells her that he has just stolen twenty thousand dollars. Explains that he was desperate, tired of being poor and down-trodden. The girl is out of a job; has been unable to make a go of things. She sympathizes with him. Hides him in her room while the police scour the neighborhood.

But the boy is anxious to make his get-away. He proposes that they both steal away, go to a far off country, enjoy the luxuries that they have never had. While the money holds out, he explains, they can have a grand fling. And when the money is gone . . . what difference will it make?

Life won't be worth living anyhow. The girl agrees to his plan. They buy expensive clothes, secure passage on a boat sailing from New York, set out on the first grand adventure of their lives.

The above is the fascinating and compelling plot structure of the new Nancy Carroll picture, "Stolen Heaven," coming to the Strand Theatre for one week starting tomorrow. It is an expertly told story boasting powerful, gripping situations that arouse and maintain interest. It reveals the boy and girl in their unusual struggle for happiness, their desperate attempts to gain contentment with money. And finally with their money nearly gone, it shows the girl, now madly in love, fighting against overwhelming odds for the life and love of the man she adores. In many ways "Stolen Heaven" is one of the most amazing stories to come to the audible screen. It is suspense-filled drama that commands attention. It is logical and convincing. The dialogue is brisk and pointed. And last but by no means least, the acting, particularly that of Miss Carroll and her leading man, Phillip Holmes, is of high order. As in "The Devil's Holiday" and "Laughter" Miss Carroll creates a dramatic role that again demonstrates that she is one of the most talented actresses now appearing on the talking screen. And Phillip Holmes, who came into prominence as Miss Carroll's leading man in "The Devil's Holiday," is sincere and convincing in a difficult, exacting role.

George Abbott, who directed Claudette Colbert and Fredric March in "Manslaughter," directed "Stolen Heaven" for Paramount.

Scenes from "DRACULA" a thriller coming to the Majestic Sunday.

Weird Tale Of Vampires In 'Dracula'

If you have read "Dracula", Bram Stoker's fantastic and weirdly thrilling novel of vampires, you will be interested to know that this strange tale has been dramatized on the talking screen by Universal. As you know, "Dracula" tells the story of a deathless vampire, a man dead more than five hundred years, who between the hours of sunset and sunrise, comes to life, wreaking vengeance on all who cross his path. So, if you have been looking for thrills, your chance has come. Manager Goldsmith has informed this department that "Dracula" will be presented at the Majestic Theatre 4 days starting Sunday, February 22nd.

A few years ago "Dracula" was seen on the New York stage. There it played for nearly two consecutive years before undertaking one of the most successful tours any legitimate production has enjoyed during the past five or six years.

It is on the audible screen, however, that "Dracula" really comes into its own. The picture is conceded to be a better production than the stage show. And this is not hard to understand. For screen technique, such as it is today, giving wider, more effective scope to the action, has made possible elaborate dramatic detail which the stage play was forced to ignore. So that on the screen "Dracula" is the perfect adaptation of the novel, a faithful, mysterious, unusual dramatization of a strange and uncanny theme. It is a compelling, suspense-filled story, this "Dracula", one that will exert strange fascination over all audiences. It has been directed with imaginative skill by Tod Browning who, it will be remembered, directed a good number of Lon Chaney's successes.

The role of the deathless vampire, Count Dracula, is portrayed by Bela Lugosi, creator of this role on the New York stage.

Lugosi is perfectly cast as the most sinister, awe-inspiring character the screen has known. Helen Chandler is charming as the young girl who comes under Dracula's influence; and Dwight Frye is excellent as the lawyer who is forced to do the bidding of the diabolical vampire. Others in the cast include Edward Van Sloan, David Manners, Frances Dade and Joan Standing.

"Dracula" is different from most any other so-called "mystery" picture you have ever seen. If you want an honest-to-goodness thrill, make it a point to see "Dracula."

"NEW MOON" ON SCREEN AT LAST

Broadway Hit Now Brilliant Co-Starring Vehicle for Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's long awaited adaptation of the New York stage success, "New Moon" with Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore in the leading roles, will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre starting Thursday for 3 days.

The original play, one of the biggest Broadway hits in years, was written by Oscar Hammerstein II, Frank Mandel and Laurence Schwab, with music by Sigmund Romberg, and made dramatic history with Evelyn Herbert, Robert Halliday and Gus Shy in the featured parts. Shy plays his same role in the film version and the supporting cast also includes Adolphe Menjou, who returns to the screen after a prolonged absence; Roland Young, last seen in "Madam Satan"; Emily Fitzroy, remembered for her work in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," and nearly a thousand extras.

Jack Conway, whose last screen work was the late Lon Chaney's "The Unholy Three," directed.

The story tells of a young lieutenant who meets a princess while conveying his troops on a steamer across the Caspian Sea to Turkestan. They fall in love. She is engaged to the governor, Tibbett's superior officer, who transfers the lieutenant to a dangerous post hoping he will be killed. The princess follows on the eve of a Turkoman attack. The governor delays reinforcements but the officer and his men save the day and a wedding, of course, is the result.

MacKenna Talks Of Film Technic

Stage actors to be successful in talking pictures must "unlearn" many things which were the very essence of their success in the theatre, according to Kenneth MacKenna.

MacKenna has a featured role in Roald Walsh's Fox Movietone production, "The Man Who Came Back" co-starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, which opens at the Crescent Theatre Thursday.

"On the stage," says MacKenna, "success depends upon your own efforts. You study your part and then give the sort of performance that you believe to be the most effective."

"You have to remember that you are playing not only to the front orchestra row, but also to the gallery. In pictures, the responsibility for your performance rests with your director who controls your every move and voice inflection. You are no farther away from every member of your audience than you are from the camera when the scene is photographed. So that eliminates all exaggeration. You merely have to remember to play naturally."

Others prominent in the cast of this romantic drama include William Holden, Mary Forbes, Ulrich Haupt, William Worthington, Leslie Fenton and Peter Gawthorne.

Pin Deeply Lodged in Bronchial Tube

Detroit.—A case of asthma that has baffled physicians of United States and Canada is believed to be near solution here, with a pin as the common cause. Mrs. Florence Middleton Jones of Amherstburg, Ont., swallowed a pin in 1914. The incident was forgotten and a few years later she suffered a recurrence of the ailment. Dr. C. E. Lemmon discovered a pin deeply imbedded in her bronchial tube. An operation was unsuccessful, although the pin could be felt with instruments. She will undergo another operation soon.

KILLS BROTHER TO SAVE HIS FATHER

Youth Charged With Murder in Family Row.

Cartersville, Ga.—"I shot my brother to save the life of my old father." This was the statement of Ben Dover, nineteen, to Bartow county officials following his arrest. Both father and son are in jail, charged with the slaying.

Lee Dover, fifty, told the authorities that his son, who lived about 230 yards from him in another tenant house, came to see him and that an argument started.

Ben heard the argument, and tried to act as peacemaker. "Then dad asked him to leave the house," Ben said. "He left and said he was coming back in a few minutes with a gun."

The story of the two accused men checks in every detail.

Ben told the authorities that he saw his brother returning.

"It wasn't long before we saw him coming back with a shotgun. We fastened the front door, but John broke the lock and pushed the door in."

Ben's statement said his brother abused his father and that he started to shoot. "Then father ran and John chased him. I knew he was going to kill father, so I got my gun and fired."

Other than that the boy fired to save his father, the officers have been unable to unearth the reason for the slaying. The cause of the family argument has not been revealed.

Dog Guards Lost Child as Posse Scours Woods

Freeport, Maine.—How major, a family dog, protected and kept warm a three-year-old Maine boy who had become lost in the woods, is being related by members of a posse of 1,000 that scoured all night for the missing tot.

When found finally by Ralph Litchfield, one of the searchers, the child, Raymond H. Prout, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Prout, Jr., of Freeport, Me., was nonchalantly sitting on a boulder with the faithful dog at his feet. He showed Litchfield where he had slept on the ground, snuggled up against Major, and said that he was not in the least bit afraid.

While the child was thus oblivious to the alarm caused by his absence, close to 1,000 men and boys, mustered to seek him, were combing the forest. Searchers included soldiers, firemen, Boy Scouts, deputy sheriffs, and students from Bowdoin college, at Brunswick.

Ralph willingly accompanied Litchfield when the latter offered him some candy, and soon he was back home, little suspecting all the excitement he had created. The dog Major, having done his duty as a protector, remained in the woods for about an hour or more and then trotted home. It is believed that the child followed Major and another dog owned by the family into the forest. One animal returned home later, but Major remained with the boy until he was found.

"Those Crazy Americans"

One day in July, 1917, a working party of the Eleventh engineers, one of the first units of the A. E. F., to arrive overseas was busy building a road for an advance of British troops. Busy with pick and shovel they had left their rifles some distance behind them.

Suddenly a strong force of Germans, all heavily armed, burst upon the scene and, seeing this small force of unarmed laboring men, swept forward to what they believed would be an easy victory. But they didn't know that these were men of a corps of the United States army whose motto is "Essays," French for "Let's Try."

To the surprise of the Germans, these unarmed men instead of taking to their heels, rushed forward yelling and brandishing picks and shovels. American fists crashed into Teuton faces and sent their owners sprawling. Rifles were jerked out of the astonished Germans' hands and turned against them. All in all, it was a fine rough-and-tumble affair. Within a few minutes the engineers had routed the enemy with heavy loss, suffering only a few casualties themselves.

Thus early began the experience of the Germans with "those crazy Americans," who didn't know when they were licked. As time went on their first impression of the Yanks, gathered from this contact with the engineers, included also the infantry and the artillery. In September, 1918, it was reported from the French front that "many of the Boche prisoners, when asked what they think of the American troops, speak somewhat as follows: 'They aren't soldiers; the infantry is drunk and the artillery is crazy.' They don't care for the way the American infantry goes out and collects hostile machine guns and they think batteries which fire for 24 hours a day have lost their reason entirely.

"An important German officer who was captured was asked if he wanted particularly to see anything. 'Yes,' said he, 'I want to see your automatic artillery.' The captors were puzzled until it developed that the American 75 had been firing so fast that the Germans thought they were new inventions that worked like machine guns."

Arabian Thoroughbred Stars Bring Unexpected Realism to "Beau Ideal"

DIRECTOR Herbert Brenon and some other sensitive members of the troupe who invaded the Sonora desert, near Yuma, Arizona, for location shots for "Beau Ideal," R-K-O's forthcoming talking sequel to "Beau Geste," claim that Rudolph Valentino's spirit rides with the production.

Brenon's demands for realism included even the mounts used by the principals and arrangements were made with the celebrated W. K. Kellogg Arabian Horse Ranch at Pomona, Calif., for the use of two of these rare pure-breeds, "Jadaan" and "Raseyn," whose family trees trace back in every line to the finest horses bred by the Bedouin tribes of the Arabian desert, were selected.

"Jadaan" already had established a name for himself in motion picture history. He was the magnificent steed Valentino rode in his dashing manner when the late star made "The Son of the Sheik." He also was the last horse ever ridden by Valentino. The attachment between the star and the horse was unusual. It is recalled that Valentino personally had "Jadaan" insured for twenty thousand dollars during the periods they were together.

All those who rode "Jadaan" in "Beau Ideal" were unanimous in declaring that they experienced an uncanny feeling that Valentino somehow was among the company.

JADAAN PLAYS A STRONG LEAD IN HIS NEWEST FILM ROLE

Famed for Intelligence

During the filming of this newest release from R-K-O there was an incident which involved "Jadaan" and which gave evidence of the stallion's remarkable intelligence and the instinctive qualities that for unknown centuries have made the Arabian the most prized possession of the desert tribes and the most sought horseflesh in the world.

One of the best shots of the production is a vicious fight between legionnaires and tribesmen. The realistic qualities injected into this battle by director Brenon are indicated by the fact that nineteen of the players were injured.

The script called for the wounding of "Jadaan's" rider at the height of the hostilities and there was some concern over what might happen to the riderless stallion since no one could be on hand to catch him. The dappled gray took care of the situation, however. Just as illustrious ancestors of his have performed on real battlefields, when his master fell Jadaan made a small circle, returned and stood by the prostrate figure of his rider. Despite the terrific din of rifle and machine gun fire and the frenzied action of the field he refused to be driven away.

At this, as soon as the scene was taken, some Arabs who played the role of the hostile tribesmen rushed to Jadaan exclaiming: "He's a real Arabian! Wouldn't leave his rider!"

Jadaan's stablemate and fellow-actor, Raseyn, one of the latest champions belonging to the Kellogg Ranch, also has a colorful story. There is no finer blood line in the world than his. Raseyn was sired by the English champion, Skowronek, whose owner, Lady Wentworth of Crabbet Park, Sussex, England, refused $250,000 for him.

Skowronek and his sire were owned by a great Polish family at the time of the World War. When the Communist revolutionists swept into power they hanged the sire of Skowronek on a scaffold, as they would a man, because they associated the royal line of horse heritage with that of kings. But Skowronek, plastered with mud and dirt, was smuggled out of the country and so saved from hanging.

The original source from which all modern light horses throughout the world derive most of their beauty and virtues, the pure Arabian, celebrated since Biblical times in a thousand songs and stories, is threatened with extinction in his native home.

At Woodbridge Theatre

227,116 MILES FLOWN FOR "HELL'S ANGELS"

A total of 227,116 miles was traversed by "Hell's Angels" airplanes in filming the sky action of Howard Hughes' $4,000,000 aviation picture, the current attraction at the State Theatre, Woodbridge.

Exactly 87 ships, plus a bombing plane and a Zeppelin, were employed for the aerial sequences, and these were manned during the 18 months of production by a total of 137 aviators.

This was the largest air-fleet and personnel ever assembled except by governments, and establishes a record for all time in movie-making.

NO MAKEUP WORN MEMBERS OF "WAY FOR A SAILOR" CAST

If all motion pictures were made in the manner in which John Gilbert's new talking drama, "Way for a Sailor," was filmed, makeup men could take permanent vacations.

The Gilbert vehicle was screened with no makeup whatever upon the principals and only a few tufts of whiskers added here and there in the extra ranks.

Directed by Sam Wood from the original sea narrative by Albert Richard Wetjen, the talkie which is coming to the State Theatre Sunday presents a virile glimpse of life in the raw from a sailor's viewpoint.

Gilbert had to shave his moustache off and don dirty dungarees for the role and his shipmates, Jim Tully and Wallace Berry, are similarly attired.

George Westmore, the studio makeup expert, was assigned as assistant to the Gilbert company, but his biggest job turned out to be that of putting a set of handlebar moustaches on himself to play a sailor bit on board ship.

Leila Hyams has the leading feminine part in "Way for a Sailor" and the cast includes Polly Moran and Doris Lloyd.

An extra feature Sunday will be "Matrimonial Bed" with an all star cast.

When looking at the picture of George Washington which adorns the dollar bill, few people know the interesting story connected with the famous portrait from which this picture is copied, or of the fascinating biography of the artist.

According to the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, Gilbert Stuart was one of the leading portrait painters of the 18th Century. This colorful artist was born in Narragansett, Rhode Island, on December 3, 1755, and seemed destined, from the very first, to become a great artist.

At the age of 20, Stuart found himself in London. His rise was rapid. Soon he was painting portraits of King George III of England, Louis XVI of France, the famous English actress, Mrs. Siddons, and many other notables of the day.

His fame preceding him, Gilbert Stuart returned to his native land in 1790. As George Washington was

Hints For Homemakers

THESE days when a rigidly economical home menu is frequently a necessity, how to assure maximum health and food value at the least cost is an important problem. A greater use of cereal foods as lunch and supper dishes, as well as for breakfast, is one way to solve it. A dish of cornflakes and cream provides about one and a half times the food value of a serving of sirloin steak, at a fraction of the cost.

Rubbing the edge of the saucepan with butter is a good way to prevent milk from boiling over.

Foot Comfort Expert Will Render Free Service

SHOES CAUSE THE PAIN

A much needed service will be available to the people of the Raritan Bay District through the ever untiring efforts of the J. SLOBODIEN & BROS. shoe store at 143 Smith street, Perth Amboy, N. J., who will on February 26, 27 and 28 augment the services of their permanent FOOT COMFORT EXPERTS, by a member of the personal staff of DR. WM. M. SCHOLL, THE NOTED FOOT AUTHORITY.

This man is qualified, through his years of association as Educational Director and lecturer with various large organizations interested in the promotion of foot anatomy and hygiene.

He will make a complete analysis of your stocking foot with the aid of the DR. SCHOLL PEDOGRAPH MACHINE and will recommend without charge, the necessary foot comfort appliance or remedy to give you lasting foot comfort and relief.

DR. SCHOLL'S FOOT COMFORT EXPERT through years of experience attributes most of the foot suffering to improperly fitted shoes, and will demonstrate that painful corns, callouses and bunions as well as other foot conditions can be permanently relieved without sacrificing style, in the use of modern footwear.

Feature No. 1, Richard Arlen in "The Santa Fe Trail" with Rosita Moreno and Mitzi Green and Junior Durkin child stars of "Tom Sawyer." The story has to do with the days when each man carried the law in his own revolver. Feature No. 2, "College Lovers," a comedy showing the funny side of College life. It has romance, and a surprise ending.

Monday and Tuesday, February 23rd and 24th brings to the screen of the R. K. O. Rahway Theatre the return of the perfect lovers, Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, in "The Man Who Came Back." The story of a young man whom riches ruined, and love redeemed. Positively the best Gaynor and Farrell picture to date. The engagement in Rahway will be for two days only.

Wednesday and Thursday, February 25th and 26th, Charles Ruggles in "Charley's Aunt." The whole blamed nation has got its hands to its sides, its head back, and is letting loose howls of merriment. He lost it when out hunting in 1869.

A. & P. Sales
Sales of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company for the five weeks ending January 31st were $97,558,824, which compares with $104,270,933 for the same five weeks' period in January, 1930, and is a decrease of $6,712,109, or 6.44%.

Although dollar sales were smaller this January than they were a year ago, due to the continued decline in retail food prices, the actual quantity of goods sold in the January period, 1931, showed a gain of 3.65% over the corresponding period in 1930. In fact, more goods were sold in January this year than in any other January in the history of the company. Estimated tonnage during the five week period in January 1931 was 510,421, compared with 492,425 last year, a gain of 17,996.

Average weekly sales for January, 1931, were $19,511,765, compared with $20,854,187 for January, 1930; a decline of $1,342,422.

Estimated weekly tonnage in January, 1931, was 102,084, compared with 98,485 in January, 1930; an increase of 3,599.

AVERAGE COST OF RENO DIVORCE, $350

Sharp Bargaining May Get It for Less.

Reno, Nev.—The average cost of a Reno divorce is about $350, although it is possible, with some sharp bargaining, to obtain a decree for less.

The minimum fee for an attorney in an uncontested action is fixed by the Nevada Bar association at $250, but the actual fee ranges from $50 up. The fees probably average $250 for the plaintiff, to which is added about $25 for an attorney for the defendant. If there is trouble with the defendant and he refuses to sign a power of attorney or decides to contest the suit, the costs mount.

Probably the average New Yorker of moderate means spends about $1,000 for a Reno divorce, including railroad fare, living expenses for three months and attorney's fees. However, it is possible for a person to travel from New York to Reno and return with a decree in hand at a cost of as low as $300.

No attorney will advise a person from New York to come to Reno without a "power of attorney" from the prospective defendant in the case if it is at all possible to procure one as such divorces, granted by default when the defendant is not represented in court here, are unrecognized in New York state.

The cost of having an attorney in court to represent the defendant, making the divorce decree legal anywhere, ranges from $10 to $200.

It is necessary to remain in Reno for three months before the divorce action can be filed, but the divorce will be granted immediately if the applicant has that most valuable power of attorney.

Otherwise the defendant must be served personally with a copy of the complaint, or by application, and then 30 days must elapse before the divorce is granted. One does not, however, have to remain in Reno or Nevada during that 40-day wait, but must be here for the hearing.

Finds Auto Horns Are Many Times Too Loud

Montreal—Life is too loud these days, and this unnecessary clamor is not conducive to good health or good hearing. Prof. H. E. Kelliey of the physics department of McGill university told the Kiwanis club recently.

Enemies of noise have collected some interesting data in a recent survey and have come to the following conclusions, he said:

1. That a policeman blows his whistle 10,000,000 times louder than necessary.
2. That the blast of a steamboat siren is 100,000,000 times louder than necessary.
3. That an automobile horn is sounded 50,000,000 times louder than is necessary, and on a clear day can be heard ten miles away.
4. That dogs bark too loudly.
5. That boys shout too loudly.
6. That the milkman, the groceryman, the baker, and the butcher's boy all ring the doorbell too long.

Unbelievable

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY COUNCIL AFFORDS CONSIDERABLE SAVING

Vote To Abolish Two Positions and Also Cutting Of Salaries of Two Officials Saving To Taxpayers of About $4,000

Mayor Hermann and members of the Council took further steps in their campaign to cut down the running expense in the administration of the business of the borough when they abolished several jobs and cut the salaries of other office holders at a meeting of the Council Monday night.

The position of clerk in the Collector's office was abolished as was the stenographers position in the Borough Clerk's office. These salaries total $2,700. Another $1,200 was saved when the Council adopted resolutions cutting the salaries of the Building Inspector from $1,200 to $1,000 and the Borough Recorder from $2,500 to $1,500.

The resolutions adopted at the meeting were as follows:

Whereas there is pending before the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, legislation that, if enacted, will have the result of parceling the County of Middlesex into different Congressional Districts; and

Whereas it is the opinion and belief of the Mayor and Members of the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret that the County of Middlesex as well as all other counties, wherever practicable, should be kept in one Congressional District;

Now Therefore, Be it Resolved that the Mayor and Members of the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret desire to register their opposition to any legislative act that will tend to apportion and divide the County of Middlesex into more than one Congressional District; do hereby declare themselves in opposition to such pending legislation on the ground that it will be against the best interests of this County and the Citizens thereof; and

Be it Further Resolved that the Borough Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to forward certified copies of this resolution to the State Senator of this County and to the Members of the House of Assembly from Middlesex County as well as to the Governor of this State and the President of the Senate and Speaker of the Assembly of this State.

Whereas the Mayor and Members of the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret have been apprized of a certain Bill known as Assembly Bill No. 211, having for its purpose the creation of a new Port Raritan District; and

Whereas the Borough of Carteret, together with the Cities of Linden and Rahway have been endeavoring to secure federal legislation through the Rahway River Harbor Commission; and

Whereas it is to the best interest of the people of the Borough of Carteret to oppose the said Assembly Bill No. 211 by reason of the fact that it may seriously affect the work heretofore accomplished by the Rahway River Harbor Commission;

Now Therefore, Be it and it is hereby resolved by the Mayor and Members of the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret that they do desire to register their opposition to any legislative act having for its intentions the purposes set forth in Assembly Bill No. 211; and

It is Further Resolved that the Borough Clerk be and he is hereby authorized to forward copies of this resolution to the State Senator of this County, to the Members of the County of Assembly in the County of Middlesex as well as to the Governor of this State, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Assembly.

Whereas, at the present time there exists an economic condition in the United States, resulting in a lack of employment and a general depression of business.

And Whereas, the burden of taxes has in the past few years fallen heavily upon the tax payers in the Borough of Carteret.

And Whereas, the Mayor and the Members of the Borough Council are

DRUIDS CELEBRATE 34TH ANNIVERSARY

Guests Entertained by Local Order of Druids, Wednesday Night. M. Rock, presides.

More than 100 guests were entertained by the members of the local lodge of the Ancient Order of Druids in the celebration of their 34th anniversary held in Fire Hall No. 1, Wednesday evening. Music during the evening was furnished by Al Ritter's orchestra. P. Schroer opened the festivities and later turned the gavel over to Mr. Martin Rock, who acted as Toastmaster during the banquet. Mr. Rock was assisted by Mr. Joseph Fitzgerald.

The singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" opened the entertainment part of the program, followed by piano and violin selections by Miss Anna Richards and Joseph Gaydos. Vocal solos were rendered by Harry Heim and William Dowdell.

Talks were given by Mayor Joseph A. Hermann, Charles Ohlert, Past Grand Nobel Arch, and Martin Rock called the roll of the members. Mr. Otto Elfert, who headed the committee to arrange the affair was highly praised for the success of the evening.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Melchior Maier, Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Schuck, Mayor Joseph A. Hermann, Miss Margaret Hermann, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rock, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Hirt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schroer, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Elfert, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Gleckner, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. E. ## TRY CARTERET FIRST

No one wants to tell people what or where they must buy. However, you and your neighbors, you and your family, find it very convenient and desirable to have local shops. You could not very well carry on without them.

If you want the local shops because they are convenient and serve a need—your need—you should be willing to support them. You should be willing to encourage them to maintain something largely for your convenience.

Community shops are a real service—communities could not well exist without them. We all have our responsibilities in a community. We do not always exercise them. Very often we let George do it.

However, if we are interested in community growth, a benefit to each and everyone of us, we should patronize the shops in Carteret that sell quality goods at a fair price. If the merchants in Carteret sell quality goods at a fair price, why should any one purchase out of town? It is really a duty of all of us to buy in town if and when we get quality and equal price.

Other things being equal, that is fair quality and price, it is the duty and obligation of all of us to patronize local shops—local shops in Carteret. More patronage for local shops in Carteret means more variety and better service for you and your family. A community that has good shops is always attractive to newcomers.

The local merchant cannot modernize his shop, brighten his store and carry a large variety without the aid and assistance of his neighbors he is serving.

The next time you think of buying—

NO LAND DEAL

A land deal at this time or any time presently will not sit well with the taxpayers of Carteret or their pocketbooks.

A thing that smells bad, smells just as badly if the Democrats do it as the Republicans. The taxpayers do not care who gets the money, they are interested that it shall not come out of their pocketbooks.

Please—no land deals—we have to pay. We have enough play-grounds now, as we have more unoccupied land than occupied land.

BANQUET GIVEN FOR MATHIAS BEIGERT

Members of Polish-American Club Honor Fellow Member on School Board Victory.

Mathias Beigert, member of the Board of Education—elected was the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Polish-American Club in the Club's headquarters, Monday night.

A fine menu was served by the ladies' club. Talks were given by the Rev. Father Joseph D'Ziadosz, pastor of the Holy Family church; Anthony Gadek of Perth Amboy; Councilmen William D'Zurilla, Edward J. Dolan and Charles A. Conrad; Mayor Joseph A. Hermann, John E. Donahue, Assemblyman Elmer E. Brown, Building Inspector Frederick Colton and William Szymborski, of South River.

W. Rogowski, president, presided. Miss Helen Zysk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zysk, presented Mr. Beigert with a huge bouquet of flowers and read a poem expressly prepared by her. The presentation was made in behalf of the club members. W. Nadolski was chairman of the banquet.

Catholic Daughters Hold Successful Party

A delightful card party was held by Court Fidelis, No. 636, Catholic Daughters, at Firehouse No. 2, on Wednesday night. Miss Kathryn Conran was chairman of the affair. The dark horse prize went to Mrs. Madeleine Wilhelm. The other prize winners were:

Mr. and Mrs. S. Fensterman and family have taken up a residence in the borough, and will reside at 251 Pershing avenue. Mr. Fensterman will be associated with the Ideal Leather Coat Company.

Mr. Irving Venock and son, Julius, and a party of friends motored to Philadelphia and spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives, on their return the party stopped at Lakewood over Washington's birthday.

TO LET—Store, on Washington avenue. Inquire, B. Kahn.

HARBOR COMMISSION WILL HOLD HEARING ON RAHWAY RIVER CHANNEL DREDGING

County Women to Conduct Classes

Nutrition Institute Held in Home of Mrs. E. H. Boynton, Auspices of Kiddie Camp.

An all-day nutrition institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest H. Boynton of Woodbridge by Miss Caroline E. Johnson, nutrition expert of the State Experimental Station in New Brunswick, for the benefit of a group of women from New Brunswick and Perth Amboy interested in organizing cooking classes for the mothers of the Kiddie Keep-Well Camp children in their respective communities, a project that is being advanced by Miss Jane J. Packard, executive secretary of the Middlesex County Recreation Council which operates the county camp for undernourished children and Mrs. Maude Tourney of Cranbury, follow-up worker.

Mrs. Boynton offered the group the use of her kitchen for the demonstration lecture given by Miss Johnson, during the course of which the women present made two fresh salads and were taught to prepare the simplest and plainest of the vegetables in unusual and attractive ways.

Present, besides Mrs. Boynton, Miss Packard and Mrs. Tourney, were Mrs. Charles H. McDonald of New Brunswick and Mrs. William London and Mrs. Morris Goldfarb of Perth Amboy.

The members of this group and other representatives of other communities in the county are to meet with Miss Packard in the near future to determine when and where the various classes are to be started. Other leaders in this project are Mrs. Joseph Bond, of Dunellen, Mrs. Howard D. Little of South Amboy, Mrs. Charles Beistle of Metuchen, Mrs. Thomas Dolan of Sayreville, Mrs. R. H. Miles of Carteret, Mrs. Christian Kuhlthau of Milltown and Mrs. Emil and Mrs. A. B. McDonald of Perth Amboy.

MANY GUESTS AT CHURCH JUBILEE

First Presbyterian Church Joins in Golden Jubilee of Combined C. E. Societies.

More than fifty guests attended the golden jubilee banquet held by the combined Christian Endeavor Societies in the Sunday School room of the Presbyterian church Monday night. The tables were decorated with fresh cut flowers.

Interesting talks were given and community singing was enjoyed. Mrs. Henry Holland, Mrs. James Baird, Mrs. Thomas Way and Mrs. Cornelius Doody were in charge of the menu.

"Endure Hardness" was the topic of an inspiring address given by the Rev. T. MacBride, of the Avenel Presbyterian church. Rev. Lorentz spoke of Christian Endeavor work. Mrs. George Dean and Mrs. Theodore Leber reviewed the accomplishments of Christian Endeavor Societies and similar talks were given by Mrs. Charles Morris, Mrs. Everett Mott and Frank Bareford, Jr.

PUPILS ENTERTAIN PARENT TEACHERS

At Meeting Tuesday Night in Columbus School. Program Follows Business Session.

The auditorium of the Columbus school was packed to capacity Tuesday night for the meeting of the Carteret Parent-teacher Association. Mrs. Charles Morris, president of the association, presided. The session opened with a salute to the flag and the singing of "America". Mrs. Mary Armour, chairman of the recent card party, submitted her report. The banner for the month went to the Washington School.

Pupils of the Washington school presented a fine program, under the direction of the principal, Miss Keller. It follows: Selection, fifth grade glee club, playlet, "Abe's First Fish," fifth grade; Russian dance, Anastasia Koza, Anna Hadnyk, Eugene Wadiak, Michael Osyf; two part songs, sixth grade chorus; banjo selections, Nicholas Hamadyk; piano duet, Irene Hudak, and Hele Gavalletz.

Violin solo, Falk Rabinowitz; playlet "In the Days of Washington", seventh grade; minuet two part songs, sixth grade; minuet dance, seventh grade, flag drill, boys of the eighth grade.

Mayor Hermann Expresses Interest In Project—Providing War Dept. Stands Costs

A hearing on the possibilities of dredging the Rahway River will be held before the Army Engineers in the City Hall in Linden on March 11, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The object of this meeting is to prove to the engineers the advisability of the project. Insofar as the benefits each municipality would derive from the deepening of the River is concerned.

Mayor Hermann is showing considerable interest in the project. He stated that both Rahway and Linden have proposed to improve a portion of the waterfront in the event that the government will make the appropriation for the dredging. He, however, feels that any similar proposal he could advocate would not be effected for years to come. The Mayors interest in the project is also provincial, in that the Borough is exempted from any financial aid to the project.

The committee representing Carteret on the Commission is: Mayor Hermann, Members of the Council, Assemblyman Elmer E. Brown, Fred F. Simons, John Donahue and Russell Miles.

Acting Mayor Jules Verner of Linden expresses himself clearly on the matter in the following communication to Mayor Hermann:

February 18, 1931.
Mayor Joseph A. Hermann,
Borough of Carteret,
New Jersey.

My Dear Mayor:
I have received word from the Port of New York Authority that their recommendation will be a channel 150 feet wide and 15 feet deep from the mouth of the Rahway River to the head of navigation, at Monroe street Bridge, Rahway.

They are anxious that the Mayors of each municipality shall be able to definitely report at the hearing that their respective municipalities are willing to construct a municipal dock on Rahway River, if and when dredged. I have taken this matter up with the Linden City Council at the meeting on February 16th, at 10:30 in so far as the City of Linden is concerned, the City Council offers their unanimous support and are on record in favor of constructing such a dock. Will you therefore please endeavor to secure similar authority from your borough Council, so that you are prepared to present the case to the Army Engineers at the hearing.

The Port of New York Authority also report a saving of $27,000 per annum. I feel, however, that this figure is extremely conservative, in fact, low. I would therefore suggest that you canvass the industries in your municipality, who may or would consider water shipments in the future. We may, with such information, be able to reinforce the argument of the Port of New York Authority, by producing savings in addition to those they have already checked.

Since the time is getting short, will you please use all possible effort to get your business and civic organizations lined up for the purpose of having representatives at the hearing, on March 11th, at 2 P. M., in the City Hall, Linden.

Very truly yours,
JULES VERNER.

ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

Miss Marie Woznak entertained a party of friends at her home last night. A very pleasant evening was spent playing cards and dancing. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Mrs. John Cezo, Miss Marie Cezo, Miss Anna Cezo, Miss Elsie Jobs, Miss Lee Kovacs, Miss Tillie Mortsea and Miss Marie Woznak.

MANY NATIONS NOW USE WOMEN SPIES

Strong Heart and Baby Face Are Needed.

Paris.—Half of the spies in Europe today wear skirts. Spying is a profession to which many stenographers aspire, and the only stock in trade needed is a stony heart, impervious to love and flattery, beauty and the face of a baby doll, to throw the police off the track.

Many of the chiefs of Europe's underground espionage services believe that where secrets of national defense are to be wormed from young officers, one black-eyed, raven-haired beauty can do more good than a platoon of men well versed in the art of drawing fortifications in invisible ink.

It is true also that other chiefs feel as strongly the other way. These hold that no woman is able to keep a secret in all circumstances. They employ no women spies in responsible posts. To take care of other nations' women spies they use personable young men. These young men seek and make love to them. The theory is that when the woman lets herself fall in love she tells all she knows.

The Fatal Mistake. Thus these men use the love lure precisely as do the women spies.

Spying seems to be more natural to women than to men, especially to women who like intrigue. Ever since Mata Hari went to work for Germany during the World war and used her art of making men fall in love with her, she has been looked upon as queen of the spies.

Mata Hari, like other women spies, made the fatal mistake of falling in love herself, and before long she was caught and faced the firing squad in the moat of Vincennes castle.

During and just before the war Germany used many women to get information, England, in the few years before the war, was swamped with German governesses and nursemaids, seeking jobs at any price, and generally in the homes of British army and navy officers.

One of the strangest of these was Emma Stuber, woman companion, who changed over and quit her spy job with the central powers and became one of the best spies in the service of the allies. Five spies of the central powers went to the execution post upon evidence turned up by the governess.

Woman Works for Love.

Since the war, no woman spy has been more successful than a French woman, Marthe Morenil, before her arrest. She worked for the love of the game and for her lover. Paid dancer in a Paris dance hall, she agreed to visit French aviation centers and get information concerning new bombardment planes for a group of young Englishmen, William Fisher, John Leather, and Ernest Phillips.

Although she had never been in an airplane before, she went to several aviation fields and asked to be allowed to practice parachute jumping. Friendly soldier pilots took her for rides high over the field and allowed her to leap with her parachute.

Once established, she struck up friendships and was able to pass to her English friends an enormous amount of information, drawings, and documents before the hand was arrested. Then she took her prison sentence of six months with closed lips.

Clew to Mystery Mine Is Found in Wisconsin

De Soto, Wis.—The plowing up of a piece of lead ore by workmen cutting through a hill on Highway 82 just out of De Soto and the arrival of two Iowa prospectors to examine the find has excited this little village on the Wisconsin and re-awakened the story of a secret Indian lead mine never disclosed to a white man. Other pieces of lead have been found on a farm near Red Mound, Wis.

As the Black Hawk bridge between De Soto, Wis., and Lansing, Iowa, nears completion, tourists may be expected to join in the search which has been renewed from time to time ever since the first white trader established a post at De Soto for the sole purpose of locating the Indians' source of lead. He was not permitted to do so, and in 91 years later prospectors have fared no better. The site of the Indian lead mine still is a mystery.

73-Year-Old Prince Is Bade to Stop Begging

Reitz, Orange Free State.—Prince Louis Robert George le Bourbon Orleans, Duc de Bourbon, has been ordered to quit begging, but still may keep his bed in a stable here.

The seventy-three-year-old gray haired figure carries letters to prove he is the scion of French royalty and maintains he was born in Russia, where his parents had been forced to migrate as fugitives during the Napoleonic wars.

Dressed in a shabby black suit, he was seen constantly on the city streets soliciting alms. He is an ardent churchman, well versed in the Bible, and speaks several languages.

Sneeze Is Fatal

Lawrence, Mass.—Frederick E. Conrad, thirty-three, of North Andover, sneezed so hard while at work in the Arlington mills here that he burst a blood vessel, dying several hours later.

Free Shaves for Jobless

Seattle, Wash.—Free haircuts and shaves for the unemployed are being given by unemployed union barbers.

Domestic Mistake

When a woman brooks a treasured hand-painted dish while moving a bowl of roses from the radio to the dining room, she is not so angered at her own awkwardness as she is disturbed by the thoughtfulness in not having asked her husband to do the job.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Faith in Vinegar

During the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries vinegar was believed to be effective in the treatment and prevention of plague.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR RICH YOUNG WOMEN

I sincerely believe that the possibilities of teaching are great. Furthermore, here is a profession so badly paid in the advanced grades that poor young men and women can no longer afford to take it up seriously.

If in some way a religious mysticism could be attached to the idea of teaching, perhaps rich young people—girls fresh from college who want to work—might struggle to be teachers. Instead of flocking to offices to do detail work they might be willing to do a little beginner's drudgery in order to do a greater work later on.

But the rich girls will never do it until there is the same possibility of associating with young men which they now find in offices.

Aside from teaching, there is much other work that rich young women can do—work which is badly paid, which needs alert minds, and which is of social value. There is the field of natural history research. There is the shortage of doctors in country districts. Rose Wilder Lane, the novelist, tells me that there is no doctor within reasonable distance of her home in a sparsely populated region of Missouri.

Hospitals and clinics are nearly all short handed. The work is difficult, but much of it does not require any special training. Here a girl can find discipline, self-satisfaction and plenty of masculine companionship. The biochemists of this country all need help, and you do not need to be a chemist in order to assist them.—Helen Woodward in the Forum and Century.

Lake's Action Warning of Vesuvius' Eruption?

Considerable curiosity has been aroused in Italy by the phenomenal behavior of a lake situated some 20 miles north of Rome at Lepirignano, the lake being swallowed up by the earth for over two hours and then rising to its normal level. The volcanic character of the lake had long been noticed, and it has been discovered that its mysterious motions tallied with certain activity of Vesuvius over 200 miles to the south. Data is being collected by which this lake may be used as a signal of approaching Vesuvius eruptions. Preceded by a brief earthquake shock, also experienced at Vesuvius, the waters of the lake began to fume and boil. The water sunk into the earth through volcanic fissures, and after the bottom had been dry for a little over two hours, the lake refilled with turbulent hot water and sulphuric vapors. The waters of the lake cover some ten acres.

American Corn in Africa

While traveling through South and East Africa last year Dr. A. S. Hitchcock, botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture, was impressed with the vast fields of corn grown in Africa.

This Indian corn, called "mealies" by the Africans, was introduced from the United States and is now grown on a large scale by white planters. Doctor Hitchcock said he felt as if he were traveling through our corn belt while in South Africa. The natives, also, are growing more of it each year, replacing some of the sorghums, which are the chief crop.

Corn is not the only American crop adopted by the Africans, for Doctor Hitchcock found the Irish potato, the sweet potato, and the cassava, a Brazilian plant, the source of tapioca, now grown extensively there. The flesh of the cassava is one of the standard foods of that region.

Odd Family Situation

At Panama, Okla., William H. Hagard, census enumerator, found an unusual situation. Three brothers who married three sisters were found residing in the same house. Each family has two children, and in all three instances one child was born in Arkansas and one in Oklahoma. The three families, the enumerator was told, have never quarreled.

Popularity of Furs

Mother and daughters spent more than $150,000,000 for fur coats in the United States in 1929, a census report of the fur trade discloses. Factories producing the coats, numbered 2,793, of which 228 were in Illinois. Men spent only $3,809,238 for fur coats (for themselves) in the same period.

Collector's Popularity

Friend—That debt-collecting job of yours must be dreadful. I suppose you are as welcome as the plague any place you call!

Collector—By no means. There is scarcely a place I visit but that they ask me to come again.

"Yes, sir, but father is tired of supporting me, he says, and I thought I'd get into another family."—Paris Tele Mele.

Place for Her

"Gee!" exclaimed the girl at the lingerie counter, "that woman was an ugly customer."

"Why didn't you tell her about our beauty department?" demanded the floor walker.

Early Type

"Have you any early American fur attire?"

"Oh, yes. We still use a battery radio set."—Life.

English or Dutch?

"Punch" believes the word "whooper" was introduced into America by the early English settlers. Probably the word was Whoopee. Was. And then the early Dutch settlers brought over some more of it, and traded it to the Indians for valuable real estate at the mouth of Hendryk Hudson's interesting and esteemed river.

The monetary system of the Hebrews was based upon the Babylonian system of weights. The ratio of the value of gold to silver was 1:13 1:3 and prevailed over all western Asia.

THIS IS CALLED MEANEST PRACTICAL JOKE IN WORLD

It is the Stock in Trade of Snake Charmers in Morocco and Never Fails.

New York.—The story of the meanest practical joke in the world has been brought back from Fez, Morocco, by T. Howard Kelly, globe-trotting reporter.

It's an Arab snake joke, Kelly says in the American Druggist, and it always works, although all Morocco knows about it. He observed it in operation in Fez, and it went like this:

A snake charmer, after assembling a street crowd, asked if any man wanted to be made stronger and wiser than his fellows. Several Arabs stepped forward. The charmer spoke with them earnestly, and finally led one of them toward his bag of snakes, while the crowd yelled approval.

The applicant for strength and wisdom was supposed to touch a certain magic snake, but he was afraid. The charmer delivered an impassioned appeal, asked for—and received—forty cents, and then clapped his hands. A tremendous reptile wriggled out of the bag—and the frightened Arab backed away, to the jeers of the crowd.

The charmer picked up his bag of snakes, tied it across the top and flung it in the midst of the spectators, who scattered screaming, but soon they were back again to watch the snake man as he made passes over the snake on the ground, chanting weirdly. He again commanded the Arab to come forward and touch the magic reptile, but the Arab still was afraid, so, to show the snake was harmless, the charmer allowed it to coil affectionately about his arms and shoulders. At his signal, a flute player struck up a wild tune, and the snake man chanted and danced about the Arab, who appeared hypnotized.

Suddenly the charmer's confederate darted out of the crowd and wrapped a giant serpent round the neck of the candidate for strength and wisdom.

"The terrorized devil let out a screech that all but swept the Basque's eardrums right off my head," says Kelly. "It was the most blood-curdling scream I ever heard. The screeching Arab stood there paralyzed by fear until the confederate coiled three more reptiles around him. This set him off like a fire-cracker. Breaking into action at last, he ran frantically in a circle, yelling to Allah and Mohammed to rescue him. The crowd roared with barbaric delight."

The onlookers never fail to reward the showmen for the agonizing spectacle by tossing him a few coins.

England Busy Speeding Up Its Fighting Planes

London.—Greater speed is the order being passed along the lines of the royal air force these days.

An order to increase the speed of day bombers, fighters, and, probably, army co-operation craft, has been approved by the air ministry. During the next 15 months the work of speeding up the R. A. F. will take place.

Early types will probably be replaced by the latest models and a number of new fighters and reconnaissance aircraft will be added.

All contracts have not been concluded, but it is known that more than 200 Hawker planes will be built. The type is a day bomber already in the flying equipment of one squadron.

The plane is powered with the Rolls-Royce "F" type liquid cooled engine of 550 horse power. It is a fully equipped two seater and attains a speed of no less than 180 miles an hour at a height of 10,000 feet.

The "Fury" and the "Norm" are the fighters selected by the air ministry for re-equipment. The "Fury," chosen for the interceptor fighter squadrons, carrying a full load, is able to fly at considerably more than 200 miles an hour and climbs to a normal operational height of 20,000 feet in about ten minutes. The sea version of this craft, some five miles an hour less speedy but modified for deck landing and possible catapult launching, is styled the "Norm."

Airplane Will Replace Broncs on This Ranch

Duff, Neb.—A trim sport model airplane will soon replace the traditional cow-pony for riding drift fences and "spotting" cattle on the W. J. Shanks ranch near here.

Shanks, who operate extensive ranch interests in this section of Nebraska, has purchased a plane and is now learning to fly it. As soon as he has completed the flying time required for a private license, he intends to use the plane for inspecting fences, hunting stray cattle and for general supervision of his ranch.

Scottish Woman Dancer Has Wealth of Medals

London.—Lena Dolg, the champion woman dancer of Scotland, has more medals than she can use. She has so many medals that she can't wear them all. At public appearances she has several page boys displaying more than 1,000 she has received but which she cannot wear because of lack of room. They've all been given her in recognition of her dancing.

Oh, What Girls!

Glasgow.—A Scottish farmer is preparing to challenge the world to match a family like his. He has ten daughters every one of whom is six feet two or taller. They are all efficient scientific farmers, and none is married—yet.

FANTASTIC WAYS OF DRESSING THE HAIR

For centuries, the hair seems to have been covered. The Egyptians wore wigs and headresses made in the shape of birds with beaks projecting over the face, and only a few black curls escaping. Greek women parted their hair in the middle and brought it down each side of the face and over the ears, catching it up in a loose coil at the back of the neck, holding it in place with a skewer of gold; bands of ribbon were bound about the head to hold the hair across the forehead. The Roman matron wore an elaborate arrangement of curls, sometimes close to the head and often piled high on top, with jeweled coronets and pins to keep the coiffure in place. Alas! these long pins were sometimes used in anger to punish the slave who was responsible for blunders.

Having worn the hair exposed for a while, a change was necessary and thin cloths, wimples and the hennin were used to cover the hair entirely. By the beginning of the Fifteenth century, headresses had become so fantastic as to appear ridiculous, the women seeming to vie with each other to make them as grotesque as possible; they also shaved the hair at the back of the neck and pinched their eyebrows. (Ditto, 1830.) The clergy warned, and laws were made, and finally the hair was brought low and again covered with velvet head-dresses and graceful turbans ornamented with network of pearls. With the next turn of the wheel of fashion, the hair was worn longer and curled, held up with real wire hairpins of the bired kind said to have been invented by the English in 1545. Two centuries later, the worst came in the form of coiffures so high that the hairdresser had to finish them from the top of a stepladder and no one knows how many hairpins he must have used.

Hooked Fish Electrocutted

Tuna fish, weighing up to 300 pounds, are not caught in nets off the coast of Mexico, but are electrocuted once they are firmly hooked. Some of the tuna boats are equipped with 110-volt direct current. On one side of the circuit is attached a small steel plate, which is thrown into the water alongside the ship. The other side of the circuit is carried to the steel hook through a small insulated wire. Once the huge tuna is hooked a switch on board is closed, sending sufficient current to the fish to stun it.

The same equipment has been tried successfully on large swordfish, weighing from 300 to 1,000 pounds, which usually require seven to eight hours to land. Using electricity shortens the time to five minutes. As soon as the stunned fish is brought alongside it is killed before it recovers.

Suggestion on Unemployment

First Americans' Origin Lost in Mists of Time

Back through the centuries and the millenniums seems to go the origin of the American aborigine. Yet, as far back as that may be, the linguistic likenesses exist in the languages of Asia and America. An American missionary, now with the Pueblo Indians in New Mexico, who had spent some years in Japan and is a master of eleven languages, was first attracted to the Pueblos by the similarity of the "slur" of their language to that of the Japanese. Through uncounted centuries the languages of the two continents have been evolving and changing and growing, yet in neither has all the fundamental characteristics been lost. We are learning that what we call the aborigines of North America are no recent immigrants from Asia, as we once supposed, but have been rooted in the soil for so long that scientists are becoming very liberal with their claims when they try to compute it. What geological changes, the rise and submergence of mountain ranges, the Glacial age, the physical changes wrought by volcanic action, etc., have done to determine the limits of man's habitation and his racial differentiation, is something of which the data is very meager and incomplete. Scientists are learning that it is unsafe to base their theories upon conditions as they exist today. Time is man's own invention.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Prodigal Son Parable Short-Story Masterpiece

The short story has always existed though it was not until the Nineteenth century that the art of writing it was consciously practiced. As Sophocles said of Aeschylus, these early authors of short stories did the right thing without knowing why. It was only on rare occasions, however, that these happy accidents occurred. Thus Professor Baldwin, after exhaustive examination of the 100 tales in Boccaccio's "Decameron," decided that only two of them are short tales in the modern critical sense, while three others approach the totality of impression which is the result of conscious unity in expression. We must go back to the New Testament for a short story which is a structural masterpiece. The parable of the Prodigal Son, which is only 500 words long in the authorized version, satisfies the modern definition, securing the greatest emphasis possible with a surprising economy of means. In America the short story had its beginning in the "Sketch Book" of Washington Irving.

Two Types of People

People may be divided into two types—those who think a great deal before they act and those who are carried away by their feelings and act impetuously without thinking. Both tendencies have their value at certain times. Grave problems require deliberation before any line of conduct is decided upon, but in emergencies something must be done at once.

once. The first type is, therefore, handicapped when rapid action is called for, and the second type is apt to be rash and to act hastily on occasions when the situation needs reflection. People should endeavor, then, to train their thoughts and feelings so that they can be utilized to the best advantage according to the circumstances of the moment. Many a pitfall can thereby be avoided.

Never Burned Witches

Although Salem was the center of the witch craze, none were ever burned there, in spite of a common belief to the contrary. Many were hanged and one man was pressed to death between heavy stones. The Massachusetts tercentenary brought out many curious facts, and Nathaniel Hawthorne's granddaughter, Hildergarde Hawthorne, gave some little known sidelights on her ancestral town Salem, in a special article for St. Nicholas magazine. Samuel McIntire, the first American architect, and originator of the New England colonial style of wooden house, was born in Salem in 1757 and most of its fine old houses were built by him.

What Does "Savvy" Mean?

"Savvy" or "savvy" is an American corruption of Spanish "saber," a form of the verb "saber," meaning to know. "Do you savvy?" is equivalent to Spanish "¿sabes usted?" Both mean, "Do you know?" "Savvy" was originally acquired from the Mexicans by early ranchmen in the Southwest who spelled and pronounced the Spanish word "savvy" rather than "sabe" because in Spanish "h" and "v" are pronounced almost alike and in many words these letters are used interchangeably. When employed as a noun "savvy" means understanding, mental grasp or knowledge of affairs. Of course, it is slang in both senses.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Japanese Musical Instrument

Playing the koto is an accomplishment mastered by the women of the higher classes in Japan. The koto is a musical instrument having a long box over which are stretched 13 strings, each with a bridge. It is played like a harp but stands a few inches off the floor. It is tuned by moving the bridges.

First Tea in America

The Dutch East India company introduced tea into the Netherlands early in the Seventeenth century. It reached England as early as 1657 and was shipped by the English to the American colonies in 1680. At that time it was selling at $5 a pound and upward, according to the quality.

Unorthodox

The term latitudinarians is applied to people who attach little importance to dogma and to what are called orthodox doctrines. Latitudinarians were a Church of England party in the time of Charles II, opposed both to the High Church party and to the Puritans.

Third Statehouse

The Statehouse at Annapolis is the third one which has stood upon the same site. The foundation of the first one was laid April 30, 1696. It was consumed by fire in 1794. The second was completed in 1798 and used for 66 years, when it was replaced by the present building in 1772.

Niagara's Rival

The African waterfall which is by many said to rival Niagara, is Victoria falls, on the Zambezi river, in Central Africa. The chasm is about one-half the total width of Niagara, but more than twice its depth, varying from 256 feet at the right bank to 343 feet in the center.

FACTS AND FIGURES FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT OF PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION OF NEW JERSEY BUSINESS depression has not halted the construction program of those Public Service utility companies, which provide the greater part of New Jersey with electricity, gas and local transportation. Public Service policy is founded upon confidence in the continuing progress and development of the State. Because to this progress and development, adequate and efficient public utility facilities are essential, Public Service construction program keeps facilities always a step ahead of demand. In the year 1930, net capital expenditures, resulting from improvements and extensions to plant and equipment amounted to $39,468,755.35, bringing the total expended in approximately twenty-seven years of Public Service existence up to nearly $400,000,000.00. Among the outstanding accomplishments of the year were: —The completion of the first leg of the interconnection with the electric system of Philadelphia Electric and Pennsylvania Power and Light Companies, which gives Public Service participation in the world's largest power pool; —The completion of a transmission main from the Harrison Gas Works, to Hackensack, to supply part of the gas requirements of the Bergen division; —The addition of 333 motor buses to bring the total buses in service up to 2,427. In 1931, work will be started on improvements which will add nearly one-half to the capacity of Kearny Generating Station, and will increase capacity at Burlington in practically the same ratio, while both gas and transportation facilities will be materially improved. Public Service builds not only for present requirements, but for future needs.

Signal Arms on Street Cars and Buses Give Warning of Right and Left Turns

AS an additional safety precaution, signalling devices which indicate when, and in what direction, a trolley car or bus is about to turn, will soon be installed on all Public Service cars and buses. The signals will cost more than $50,000.

Every bus will be equipped with signals, mounted on each side of the bus at the front. When the bus is about to turn, the operator presses a button causing a warning signal arm to rise to a horizontal position on the right or left side of the bus, depending upon the direction in which the turn is to be made.

The signal arm is constructed of a red transparent material and contains a bright electric light which makes the signal clearly visible at night. The arm is operated by vacuum pressure from the bus motor.

The signals to be installed on trolley cars follow the same general design except that operation will be by hand.

As a reminder to the drivers of other vehicles to obey the law regarding the passing of standing street cars and so afford greater protection to trolley patrons, the words "Obey the Law" and "Look Out For Stops" will be painted on the rear panels of all Public Service street cars.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Royal Riddle

ABOUT no other riddle have there ever been asked so many and such pointed questions as about Elizabeth, queen of England. Was she a man? Was she really the daughter of Henry VIII? Was she dark or fair? Was she a murderess? Was she really the "Virgin Queen" or was she a mother?

All these and scores of other queries have come up from time to time, and, owing to the paucity of authentic information from contemporary historians and the veil of reticence which appears to cloak even the frank narratives of the Elizabethan era, it is extremely difficult to answer any of them authoritatively. Even the matter of the parentage of the queen is still largely one of conjecture and her parentage appears to be open to more than a shadow of doubt. But when historians begin to comment upon the relations between the queen and certain of her courtiers they find themselves lost in a maze of contradictory statements, a veritable labyrinth of lies.

It has been affirmed with some degree of authenticity that a child was born to the queen by the earl of Essex at Kenilworth castle and a writer in the British "Notes and Queries" during the last century states: "It is a tradition in the family with which I am connected that Queen Elizabeth had a son who was sent to Ireland and placed under the care of the earl of Ormonde, a distant relative of 'Good Queen Bess.' Papers are said to exist in the family which prove this statement."

Another story has it that the child was the son of Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, and that documents in the state paper office of the British government contain evidence of a conclusive nature about this and, on October 9, 1572, Sir Edward Dyer wrote to Sir Christopher Hailes a letter which has been carefully hidden from the public but upon which a leading historian comments in the following words:

"It is not lightly, nor upon slight grounds, that the character of any woman should be suspected, much less when that woman was one of the most powerful monarchs that ever swayed the English scepter. Notwithstanding all the explanations of historians and the unauthenticated stories so commonly promulgated against Elizabeth, the writer's opinion was entirely against the justice of the accusations, but the letter in question has produced a conviction of a different nature. This important conclusion, if just, affords a key to many acts of Elizabeth's life which have hitherto been irreconcilable with the magnanimity which she sometimes displayed."

An entry in the manuscript of a free school of Shrewsbury tells of a certain son of the earl of Leicester and Queen Elizabeth and there is a tradition that this mysterious son was brought up secretly at the free school, but what became of him is not known nor is it easy to account for this curious entry in the parish church book.

"The Tourist's Illustrated Hand Book of Ireland" refers to the same matter by saying: "One of the interesting features pointed out in the burial ground of the parish chapel of Carrick-on-Suir is the grave of Thomas Butler, the natural son of her maiden majesty, Queen Elizabeth, and Burke's Peerage gives an extract from the "Dictionnaire de la Noblesse," published in Paris in 1771, detailing the tradition that Thomas Butler, the tenth earl of Ormonde, and Queen Elizabeth were the parents of Piers Fitzthomas Butler, father of Sir Edward Butler who was created Viscount Galmoye in 1646.

Bearing on this same phase of the affair, a writer of the time calls attention to the fact that the earl of Ormonde was high in the favor of his royal mistress and that "he was a very comely and graceful personage and of a dark complexion which made the Irish give him the sobriquet of 'Duff' and gave occasion to her majesty's calling him her 'black husband.'"

On the other hand, there are quite as many and apparently as authentic statements to the effect that Elizabeth was entitled to be called the "Virgin Queen"—so that, in all justice, it must be admitted that the question of her maternity must at least be ranked among the mysteries which surround so many of the rulers of her time.

PRINCE OF NORWAY MAY COME TO U. S.

Olav Would Lead Norwegian Olympic Team.

Lake Placid, N. Y.—Crown Prince Olav of Norway, himself an enthusiastic winter sportsman, may visit the III Olympic winter games to be held at Lake Placid in February, 1932, coming as a good will ambassador of Norway, according to a cable received by the III Olympic winter games committee here.

The cable advice came from Bjorn Blix, international secretary of the games, following an audience granted him by Crown Prince Olav in Oslo. Mr. Blix is now visiting the major capitals of Europe, aiding European groups in making arrangements for the winter Olympics.

Norwegian participation in the games is practically assured, Blix called after meetings at Oslo with leading sports groups. Twenty-five contestants and five group leaders probably will comprise the Norwegian delegation, together with a substantial group of Norwegian newspaper and magazine correspondents.

The present winter will see an active sports season at Lake Placid in preparation for the 1932 games. The bobbed races which will open the great Mount Van Hoevenberg bobrun on February 6 and 7, have been approved as the North American championship events by President Rene de la Fregoliere of the Bobsleigh federation. These races, in which teams from both Canada and the United States have been invited to compete, have already been sanctioned as the National A. U. championships.

W. G. Howard of the New York state conservation department, also a member of the New York State Olympic commission, has further advised that the conservation department is at once starting work on the construction of an Adirondack iceanto on the summit of Mount Van Hoevenberg, which may be used by skiing parties visiting the bobrun. Numerous shelters and sheds are being built by the commission at the base of the course.

Domesticity at Large

In one of the night clubs last week a gentleman and a lady were quietly supping when another lady entered, strode up to the man, fixed her eye on him coldly, and said: "I may be your wife, but—" and, picking up the tomato bisque before him, poured it over his shirt-front. We report this rowdy incident only to call the attention of the Humanists to the masterful way in which the head waiter met the emergency. With suave reproach he admonished the wife: "Madame, the place for that is in the home."—The New Yorker.

Making It Perpetual

Mother had been coaching her young daughter to say "Pardon me, please!" when passing before her elders. The youngster had been racing back and forth in front of some guests, in fact did it so frequently that she grew tired of parading her politeness. Finally she forgot to say "Pardon me, please!" and her mother reproached her.

Little Miss Polite suddenly halted, turned to the guests and said: "Excuse me indefinitely. Mother is getting displeased!"

What?

Two persons of rather ample proportions were overheard talking on the street car. They were apparently brother and sister and when they entered the car the man immediately took the only seat, leaving the woman to stand.

"Gentlemen always let ladies sit down!" said the woman.

"Well," retorted her companion, "What's that got to do with us?"

Work of Machinery

According to a survey by Joseph W. Roe, professor of industrial engineering at New York university, it would require 12,000,000,000 servants to do the work that machinery performs each day in the United States. It is estimated that for every man, woman and child in this country there is generated power equal to that of 100 slaves.

Comprehensive

"By and large" has about the same meaning as comprehensively, on the whole, or everything considered. For instance, Mark Twain says in "Old Times": "Taking you by and large, you do seem to be more different kinds of an ass than any creature I ever saw before."

DEVOUR MORPHINE IN POISON TEST

Experimenters Pave Way for Useful Drug.

New York.—Four men sat in the rear room of a drug store at Einbeck in Prussia, solemnly swallowing small crystals in an effort to determine how much they could down before they were poisoned. The result of their bravery was morphine, which, since the night of that experiment more than one hundred years ago, has eased the pain of countless sufferers.

The leader in the dangerous test was Frederick Wilhelm Adam Serturmer, who spent eleven years extracting the drug from crude opium and identifying it. Serturmer, says Dr. Logan Clendening in an article in the American Druggist, deserves the title of "discoverer of the most useful drug in the world."

"One evening," Doctor Clendening writes, "he invited three friends to assist him in an experiment in the back room of his drug store—an experiment in natural philosophy.

"They arrived. What was expected? "These crystals," Serturmer explains, "are extracted from opium. I think they are the real active principle. They put does to sleep. But— I don't know what is the right amount to be given a man. Will you help me out by swallowing some?"

"So they sit in the little back room of the pharmacy solemnly eating morphine—these four noble adventurers for humanity. The lamp throws their figures grotesquely over the wall. They watch each other apprehensively.

"Serturmer has described his own sensation. After the first half-grain dose he felt elated, there was a flush to his face. Half an hour later he took another dose of a half grain; he began to get a little nauseated; then he felt more lethargic and numb. Half an hour later he took another half grain, and a dreamy narcotic state came over him, the depression became marked. Here, he concluded, was the point of poisoning. He was right.

"He stated that since no other part of opium gave these peculiar sensations, morphine was its active ingredient. And he named it morphine after Morpheus, the god of sleep."

The birthplace of the brave pharmacist, Doctor Clendening says in his American Druggist article, is to be purchased as a national monument.

Walking-Sticks Put to Many and Varied Uses

The first walking-sticks were elaborate affairs, and were fashioned with an indented head on which to rest the hand, writes a columnist in the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. Later they were made with a round and hollow top to hold nutmeg or ginger to warm the stomach of the valetudinarian, and sometimes sugar-candy for the asthmatic. When snuff came into general use the cavity was used as a snuff box, and the meeting of two cronies was followed, after the first greetings, by the unscrewing of the tops of their walking-sticks for a pinch, as a later generation tapped the lid of its snuff boxes. Another variety of walking-stick is represented by the cane crowned with a hollow knob of gold, silver, or ivory, containing aromatic balsams to keep off contagion, which every Eighteenth-century physician carried with him when making his calls. In the heyday of its fashion the walking-stick was a thoroughly democratic article of wear, but it has never been recognized in England as a weapon of offense, except occasionally in the hands of some unusually elderly and peppery person.

Worth-While Inventions

Fruit of Woman's Brain

There are a great many more patents granted to men than to women. For instance, during the first 98 years of the patent system, from 1790 to 1888, only 2,455 patents were granted to women; altogether 15,000 patents have been granted to women. The fifteen-thousandth one was granted to Rose Shulman of Brooklyn for an ice bag. The first successful application under the patent law by a woman was recorded in 1800, when Mary Kies took out a patent for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread. In 1780 Miss Betsy Mendenhall upon an invention for plaiting and braiding meadow grass into bonnets, Miss Lucy Johnson in 1824 wore seamless pillowcases. Hannah Montague invented the detachable shirt collar. The modern paper bag is the invention of Miss M. E. Knight. Mrs. Martha J. Coston invented the flare light used for signaling by our Coast guard and mariners all over the world. The first ice cream freezer was invented by Nancy M. Johnson.

Scheme Never Worked Out

When you are talking that ocean trip and your stomach is defying the law of gravitation, ponder over Sir Henry Bessemer's plan to put an end to seasickness. Seventy years ago he proposed a vessel equipped with a saloon suspended from an axle fixed in the ship's center. He planned to affix counterweights to the bottom of the saloon, so that the floor of the saloon would always remain quiet and horizontal, despite the tumbling about of the vessel itself, says the Iron Age.

Why he never gave the idea a fair trial is not reported. Perhaps he bought stock in shipping lines and figured that the expense caused by the increase in food consumption per passenger, owing to elimination of seasickness, would cut heavily into profits.

Royal St. Cloud

To the little town of St. Cloud, as it is called today, there once came all the grandeur of royalty. With the destruction of its celebrated chateau, built by Louis XIV in 1600, it lost a favorite royal residence. Here the Regent d'Orleans received Peter the Great in 1717. In 1785 it was sold for 6,000,000 francs to Queen Marie Antoinette, and here she resided during the early days of the revolution. Here the coup d'etat occurred which made Napoleon first consul and here Napoleon III was baptized in 1805 in the presence of Napoleon and Josephine. Here Bonaparte married Marie Louise, and here on October 13, 1870, it went up in flames in connection with the siege of Paris.

Petticoat Days Gone

A New Jersey farmer flagged a passenger train with a burlap bag and saved the train from being derailed by a break in the rails. Thus the burlap bag superseded the petticoat of other days.—Atlanta Constitution.

Wanton Killing Had No Part in Military Code

Told by Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commander of the Second division United States marine corps, during the World war—in "The Reminiscences of a Marine."

"It was interesting to watch the great care with which the French polius instructed the relieving American soldiers. They explained every detail of duty with the utmost precision, including their own unwritten code. The opposing German troops were old reservists, as were many of the French and that quiet soldier. They had faced each other for months and had learned to recognize each other across the narrow 'No Man's Land' which separated them.

"I was told that the morning after the Americans had gone into line a German soldier climbed up out of his trench and sat on the parapet in full view while he cleaned the equipment of the officer for whom he was probably the orderly. An American soldier promptly brought his piece to aim and was about to fire when his French comrade knocked it away, saying excitedly:

"Do not shoot! He sits there every morning to get the air and to feel the sunshine. To kill him would be murder, not war."—Kansas City Star.

Earthly Discords Laid to Malevolent Goddess

Discordia in Greek legend was a malevolent deity, daughter of Nox, and sister to Nemesis, the Parcae and Death. She was driven from heaven by Jupiter, because she was the cause of continual quarrels. When the nuptials of Peleus and Thetis were celebrated, this goddess was not invited; and the neglect so irritated her that she threw an apple into the midst of the gods, with the inscription of "Deum pulchrior!"—Let it be given to the most beautiful." This apple—the apple of discord—was the cause of the ruin of Troy and of great misfortunes to the Greeks. Discordia is represented with a ghastly look, and torn garment. Her head is usually entwined with serpents, and she is attended by Belona. She was supposed to be the cause of all the dissensions which arise upon earth, public as well as private.

Strategy

Yes, the pupils in this schoolroom were responding very well to questions of the teacher, thought the visitor, particularly one small boy who snapped his fingers vigorously and loudly as each question was asked. The teacher admonished him several times: "Charles, if you don't stop snapping your fingers, I won't call on you."

At the close of the period, the visitor approached the enthusiastic young pupil and asked him why he had snapped his fingers so often.

"Aw," replied the boy, "I'm on to her," referring to the teacher. "When I don't know my lesson, I snap my fingers. She thinks I do, but she won't call on me because I snap my fingers. And I get a good grade for knowing the lesson."

As an Example

Barber (having sold bottle of hair oil to customer)—Excuse me, sir, do you happen to play billiards?

Customer—Yes, why?

Barber—Then I must warn you, sir, after using this lotion to be sure and wash your hands before so much as touching a billiard ball.—London Opinion.

Foreboud Candy

Foreboud candy is flavored with an extract from the leaves of the plant known as foreboud. This plant belongs to the mint family and was called foreboud or horhound because of the white, downy appearance of the stem and leaves, suggesting hoar frost.—The Parfittier.

Synonym of Strength

Four-square means having four equal sides or angles; hence, figuratively, strong like a stone tower; immovable.

Marrying Money

The young man who marries a girl with money will earn it eventually.—Collier's Weekly.

Grave in St. Louis May Hold Last of Bourbons

St. Louis, Mo.—Neighbors of genial and plodding George Williams believe the newly sodded grave in which his body is buried, marks the resting place of the "last of the Bourbons."

They point, for instance, to a picture of Williams, street department employee, which still hangs over a fireplace in his home.

With the picture is the inscription, "George Williams—Last of the Bourbons."

Williams believed he was the grandchild of the lost dauphin, son of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette. Legend had it that Williams' grandfather, an Indian missionary, was in reality the "lost dauphin," coming to this country in flight after the French revolution.

The story that Williams believed was that the dauphin was brought to Albany, N. Y., by two women in November, 1795. Later the child turned up at Ticonderoga, N. Y., in charge of two Frenchmen. It was left with Indians and named Eleazer Williams. Williams died in 1853, believing he was the descendant of kings.

Convicts Raise Money for "Talkie" Machine

Columbus, Ohio.—Ohio penitentiary keeps abreast of the times.

A "talkie" machine will be installed and prisoners will be entertained with comedies, travelogues and educational features. Romances will be barred.

The machine cost $5,000, the money coming from "home talent" shows given by the convicts during the last ten years. It was originally planned to purchase an organ, but by the time the fund was large enough, a "talkie" machine was decided on.

The talking pictures will be the prisoners' sole entertainment, all other forms of amusement having been discontinued since the disastrous Easter Monday fire in which 322 convicts lost their lives.

Movies Have Put Tattoo Artist Out of Business

Buffalo, N. Y.—The tattoo business has gone on the rocks since the movies swept the country, says John Selinski, whose business is "sideshow freak" and who sought food and lodging in a local police station.

Selinski recomposed the police who put him up by displaying a well-tattooed body. Even a bald spot on the top of his head was hidden beneath blue and red pictures.

Gunn Fined for Gun

Mobile, Ala.—Convicted of a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, Bert Gunn was sentenced to ninety days in jail and fined $250.

Nebraska Has Largest Alfalfa Stack in World

North Loup, Neb.—Nebraska's newest bid for the "world's largest" title comes from a farmer north of here.

A stack of alfalfa hay a quarter of a mile long and containing 800 tons of hay has been put up on a farm in Valley county. Twelve hundred head of cattle will be fed from it this winter.

Crop statisticians estimated that if all the alfalfa produced in the state last year could be put in one stack, it would be 80 miles long.

Veterans of Mounted to Have Home for Old Age

Seattle.—Veterans of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police will have a home in which they may spend their declining years, and there are quite a number of those veterans living in Seattle who received news of near completion of the home, in Calgary.

A fund for the home was started by George A. Allen, a former "Mountie" and now a business man in London.

News from Calgary said that the structure would be completed by next summer.

Shorten Washday and Ironing Day with THOR Laundry Equipment

WE recommend the Thor Electric Washer to our customers because we want them to have good value for their money, and we know from repeated tests that the Thor does good work.

Its method of washing removes all the dirt so gently that nothing is pulled or torn. All the washing is done by the force of the hot soapy water.

$99.75 cash and $105.75 on terms of $5 down and eighteen months to pay

THOR Ironing Attachment

If space is at a premium you'll like this electric ironer which fits on the wringer shaft. It has a large ironing surface, heats quickly and requires only a little practice to operate.

$49.50 cash and $52.50 on terms of $5 down and eighteen months to pay

THOR Speed Ironer

If you prefer a larger ironer and one that can be operated at a table there's the Thor Speed Ironer. It works on the same principle as the ironing attachment and you soon learn to press even the difficult pieces with it.

$79.50 cash and $84.25 on terms of $5 down and eighteen months to pay

PROPER INQUIRY

Councilmen Ellis made a very proper and pertinent inquiry at the budget meeting of the Council. He raised the question as to whether the amount of gas tax refund set up in the budget was correct and suggested the final figure, when received, would probably be higher, about $9,000.00. He possibly is right.

The Mayor's reply was to the effect that at the time the auditor set up the figures $1000.00 seemed to be a safe figure. Here the Mayor pointed out he preferred to underestimate the income and be surprised with a surplus, rather than overestimate the income, spend according to the estimate and have a deficit next year for the taxpayers to pay.

Both Mayor Hermann and Councilman Ellis were making the right moves on these occasions.

That is what makes for better and cleaner government—free and frank discussion. It is the job of the Councilmen to ask questions. Only hicks and petty politicians cry "politics", when questions are asked. Foolish questions fall of their own weight. Any one qualified to be on the job, welcomes questions and answers them.

If you know the answer and are not afraid to give it, there's no reason for ducking questions.

The people who have to worry about taxes, are no longer fooled by the smoke screens sent up every time questions are asked. Let us have the answers.

NOT EVEN A LUNCH ROOM

Simple and neat is the question asked by Representative O'Connor of Oklahoma when, after referring to a restaurant in the Senate wing of the Capitol, he said: "They lost $76,000 last year. If the Government cannot run a restaurant or a barber shop, how are they going to run Muscle Shoals?"

The answer, as everybody knows, is that the Government probably would run Muscle Shoals less efficiently than the Senate restaurant is run. The Post office ran last year at a loss of about $91,000,000. This year the deficit may be as great as $150,000,000. Yet the Post Office is the one job the Government has done best. These are considerations advocates of public ownership lightly brush aside. Taxpayers do not regard them so lightly—From New York Sun.

Some of our local politicians never ran a peanut stand; yet they feel "perfectly" qualified to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars of YOUR money.

But it is nobody's business according to them. They want to spend your money with no questions asked.

LIKE CHILDREN

When little children are in the stage of carrying dolls and playing house, it is not unusual to find them trying to act like grown-ups. They do many queer things that are excused because they are little children and do not know better. They are excused because they are inexperienced and trying to act like they think grown-ups would act.

Among children when they get to this stage of trying to be grownups, it is not unusual for parents to find that they have gone to the stores and ordered many things that were not needed and not desired. If the children had their way they would order everything in all the stores and have a crowd of servants in every room. It then becomes the part of the parents to attempt to enlighten the children. They try to explain to them that mother does not buy what she does not need and cannot use, and, further, that before anything is spent, mother and father has to worry where the money comes from. The child is not interested in that. He is just playing grownup and having a lot of fun doing it. Who has to pay, where the money comes from or whether it can be gotten, never enters the child's head.

Our so-called politicians around here have been acting in just that way. They have not been concerned at any time as to whether things were absolutely needed or not; they never have been concerned with what things cost, and least of all were they ever interested in where you were to get the money to pay the bills that they have been contracting in your name. Like the children, they were having fun. Like the children, they had no sense of responsibility. Of course, if the children were permitted to go on spending and hiring mother and father would be bankrupt. Mother and father would find that no matter how hard they worked and slaved they would not be able to meet the bills. Keeping the house of a municipality is no different from keeping a private one. A municipality is simply a group of families. It has been clearly demonstrated in the way money has been expended in Carteret for years past in many directions, that the same kind of inexperience evidenced by the children and the same lack of responsibility has been present in most transactions. Those who have been doing the spending, like the children, have just been trying to show how smart they are, how much they could order, and how many jobs they could make and fill. The more they ordered and the more jobs they made and filled, the bigger and more important they felt they were. This is exactly the way the children act. The more they order in the store for mamma and papa to pay for, the bigger and more important they feel they are. They never worried about the bills. The people who have been in office here have not worried about you paying the bills either.

Seriously though, there is nothing smart about contracting bills for other people to pay. Instead of showing any sense of responsibility or any leadership, the politicians for some time past held celebrations every time they created a few more jobs for you to pay out of your earnings. They actually seemed to think this is leadership. Of course, it is childish. Instead of being leadership, it is just the opposite. It is stupid. It is unthinking. It shows lack of responsibility for spending other people's money. They would not spend their own that way. They do not care what they do with yours. Your money, paid in through taxes ought to be a sacred trust. Instead it has been regarded as a general grab bag with nobody concerned as to when it became empty. They feel you always will come across with more.

It is time for the people in Carteret to wake up. It is time to cut out politics. It is time to treat the affairs of the community as problems to be handled by men of character, the most experienced and intelligent the community can find. The community now is in desperate circumstances. Mr. Citizen has to get on the job himself instead of turning over a blank check to so-called politicians to fill in for Mr. Citizen to pay.

COED COLLEGES ASSAILED

By DR. LITTLE, Ex-President University of Michigan.

The falling off in attendance at American colleges is a good sign, not a bad one. It is a shame that state funds should be used for the education of girls who come to college only in order to meet marriageable men. They should be educated separately and along the special lines suitable to each sex. If intellectual interests later bring them together naturally, well enough, I say, but when the lure of sex attraction herds them together indiscriminately, the cause of education suffers.

I think girls and boys should be kept apart all through the lower schools, high schools and universities, in short, I think they should be kept apart through the whole of their educational period.

PEN POINTS

People of wealth who don't know what to do with their money, lack imagination.

There's one thing a man who knows it all doesn't know, and that's how unpopular he is.

Some people attempt to light their way through life by burning the candle at both ends.

You are more likely to be arrested for shooting game without a license than for shooting men.

The "Reds" America is battling today are not like the Reds our forefathers were up against.

Bakers and butchers are sometimes a little behind schedule in discovering that prices have gone down.

It may be hard for a girl to love her enemies, but she invites them all to her wedding nevertheless.

The reason why a lot of people do not reach the top of the ladder is because they are used to using escalators.

During the football season you can read a newspaper through without coming across the name of Bobby Jones.

Knute Rockne was once a mail sorter. In developing a football team a good deal of mail sorting is necessary.

Some men are gray-headed before they are old; some, because they work too hard; others, because they are married.

HAPPY THOUGHTS

Women do odd things to get even.

It's a wise child who knows its rich uncle.

To make your troubles light, keep them dark.

If you want your dreams to come true, don't oversleep.

Some so-called open minds should be closed for repairs.

Beauties on the beach often leave their escorts on the rocks.

Some men are known by their deeds—others by their mortgages.

If Fortune frowns, don't encourage the fellow by frowning with him.

There's plenty of room at the top of the ladder if you don't sit down half way up.

People who take a long time to make up their minds are usually short of material.

A model marriage is one in which the wife is a treasure and the husband a treasury.

The only thing that would cause some women to give up their careers for marriage would be the opportunity.

REVISED PROVERBS

As ye sew, so shall ye rip.

None but the brave go to a fair.

Many are called but few get up.

It's a long lane that has no garage.

Where there's a will there's a law suit.

Uneasy rests the tooth that wears a crown.

A stitch at nine may prevent a rip at ten.

A hair in the head is worth two in the brush.

People who live in glass houses should pull down the curtains.

SNICKER SNACKS

No well-bred millionaire boasts of his dough.

A half-baked mind can cook up some messy ideas.

There are numberless people who think they are No. 1.

It's about all a man can do today to keep from being done.

If some folks were compelled to pay as they go they would stay.

Water in Fog

By studying fog off the Grand banks it was determined that a block of very dense fog 100 feet long by 6 feet high by 3 feet wide contains about one-seventh of a glass of water. This is divided into about 60,000,000,000 droplets.

In its earliest days New Haven was called Quinipiac by the Indians and it was also called Roodenberg by some of the early colonists.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

The Lost Tribes of Israel

THE mystery of the "Ten Lost Tribes" has been a subject of absorbing interest for many centuries. but, despite the investigations of countless historians and the excavations of archeologists in all parts of the globe, the question of what became of this great mass of people is still unsolved.

Hundreds of volumes have been written on the subject and many explanations have been advanced as to the probable fate of the people who severed their alliance with the tribes of Benjamin and Judah, the latter remaining in southern Palestine and establishing Jerusalem as their capital. The Israelites who seceded went northward. Some into Samaria and others into the country which lay outside the narrow stretch of land which then made up the known world. As to the fate of those who populated Samaria some little is known, for about eight centuries before Christ Sargon, king of Assyria, swept down upon Samaria and carried many thousands of its population into captivity, replacing them with Babylonian and Syrian colonists and scattering the former residents throughout the kingdom so that their identity as a nation was completely lost.

With their captivity, the remaining members of the ten tribes disappeared as completely as if they had been swallowed up by the earth and no definite trace of them has ever been discovered. The descendants of the two remaining tribes were also conquered at a later period and while they, too, were finally driven away, they possessed so strong a personality and a racial cohesion that they have endured, despite the bitter oppression to which they have been subjected, throughout the centuries—keeping intact their religion, their history and their customs.

This being the case, it is doubly remarkable that the other ten tribes, numerically greater than the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, should have vanished so completely. They could not all have been slain or perished in captivity, leaving no descendants and it is to be presumed that they migrated somewhere—but where? This is the question which has puzzled archeologists and historians for centuries. Some writers are of the opinion that the "lost tribes" long afterwards appeared as the lawless and gallant Anglo-Saxons, a race whose origin is still more or less obscure. Other European nations have also been "traced" to the missing Israelites, while a few commentators believe that they became merged into the nationalities of other conquerors and those of the peoples among whom they settled.

Of special interest to Americans is the opinion of a number of writers that the lost tribes in some way—probably by means of the vast overland "bridge" which later sank below the surface of the Pacific—found their way to this country and became what were later known as "Indians" and "Aztecs." Among those who most firmly believed this were the early Spanish priests who settled in America, as also did Roger Williams, Cotton Mather and many later theologians and scientists who found Indian dialects which had words and phrases singularly suggestive of Hebrew origin.

In 1788 Charles Beatty, a missionary, wrote that he was certain that he had found traces of the "lost tribes" among the Delaware Indians, declaring that he had seen an ancient scroll that contained portions of the original Hebrew law.

But, despite all the theorizing and guessing as to the "ten lost tribes," no really authentic discoveries have been made with respect to their fate. There are many sections of the globe where they could have settled and flourished as an independent nation, yet the archives of no known people describe such a settlement and—bearing the as yet unexplained origin of such races as the Indians, the Hawaiians and the Aztecs—no trace is to be found anywhere of the missing Israelites.

Toil in 1495

By a statute of 1495, laborers in England were required, from the middle of March to the middle of September to be at their work before five o'clock in the morning, and they were not to depart until between seven and eight o'clock in the evening. During this period they were to have half an hour for breakfast, an hour for dinner and half an hour for "monomers." From the middle of May to the middle of August they were to have half an hour or sleep in the day. From September to March they were to be at their work "in the springing of the day and depart not till night of the same day."

Gas From Cornstalks

Cornstalks may be combined with ordinary sewage and converted into a gas by a process so simple that anyone can apply it. After husking, the stalks are dried, shredded, trolled, soaked in water or lime. Then, together with the sewage, they are put into a small tank provided with a cover to permit collecting the gases. The mixture is allowed to ferment—the bacteria in the sewage doing the work. The process was discovered by C. S. Boruff and it is being perfected by the inventor with the help of Dr. A. M. Buswell, of the University of Illinois.

America's Air Traffic

A generally accepted belief is that the United States lags behind Europe in air passenger travel, observes the Boston Transcript. But notice these comparisons: In February, while 1,358 were arriving and departing from London's huge airport at Croydon, 7,373 flew in and out of the airport at Tulsa, Okla. While 1,850 arrived at or departed from Le Bourget, the Paris airport, 3,136 came in or out of the Chicago airport. While Tempelhof, Berlin, was host to 858, Boston was host to 770. European air lines have been carrying passengers for ten years; American lines are very recent. Paris and Berlin are great centers where many lines converge and a passenger on a through trip would be counted twice. Boston, by comparison, has one line to New York. Also, it would be noted that Berlin has a population of over 4,000,000, while metropolitan Boston has less than 2,000,000.

Total annual book sales average one volume per capita. Total annual candy sales average ten pounds per capita. So says a long dissertation on American frivolity. The average American buys but one book a year and eats ten pounds of candy. It is doubtful if the average American does either. You can't average up books and candy and get average Americans out of them, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. People who buy books at all usually buy a great many more than one a year, and a great many other people who carry home an armful of books every week from the library—and read them—haven't bought a book in years.

The human imagination has never invented a demon comparable in pure diabolism to man, observes Benjamin DeCasseres in the Thinker. All organized government is an attempt to restrain this demon. In the animal kingdom there are found all human virtues. It remained for man to invent forms of viciousness and malevolence that can nowhere be discovered in the subhuman world. Man's history is a shambles. There is no crime, no vice, no villainy that he will not justify. Paradoxically, it is the knout, the lash, the gallows, and war that make life possible.

The beautiful Gothic architecture of Yale university's recently erected buildings is denounced as lifeless and decadent in a new literary magazine sponsored by a couple of undergraduates, who would have preferred the inspiration for the new structures to be found in factories, power houses, bridges and other examples of "the architecture of today." Most of those fortunate enough to have seen the Harkness Quadrangle and similar structures will give them cheerful permission to go out and look at the Yale Bowl all day.

Deer hunters are at it again—only the other day a father shot his own son because the latter was out of position and the careless parent saw a movement and instantly shot at it. But when quail hunters begin it, this would seem to be the extreme limit, unless, some day, some angler shall fire at his companion under the delusion that he is a played-out muskellunge.

Wisconsin, leader in dairying, is considered the wealthiest agricultural state in the Union, perhaps because it converts the milk into the highest forms of commercial articles, condensed and evaporated milk and cheese as well as butter. Its experts have so perfected the process they no longer have to import the holes for domestic swiss cheese.

A Scotsman celebrated his tenth wedding anniversary by reducing the rents of all his tenant farmers 10 per cent. Fine; but that sort of farm relief must of necessity be far too frequent over here. And, besides, the automobile, talking machine and radio people are inexorable in their demands for payment.

Professor Einstein hopes to spend his time in America in obscurity; but what can he expect with 122,000,000 people waiting to have him explain personally some little point in the Einstein theory which isn't quite clear to them?

Results appear to justify the action of the Montreal woman who called a taxi instead of a policeman when her husband hanged himself. The taxi got there in time for the driver to cut the husband down and save his life.

Scientists are studying how to promote sound sleep. We thought some sort of whitewash for the conscience was the best means.

Friendly Arrangement
Modus vivendi is a mutual arrangement whereby persons not at the time on friendly terms can be induced to live together in harmony. The term may be applied to individuals, to societies or to peoples.

Wisdom in Tolerance
Let the world have whatever sports and recreation please them, provided they be followed with discretion.—Burton.

French Riviera Opens

Fight on "Dead Beat"

Nice, France.—The slump in world trade, and the resultant reduction of money available for pleasure purposes, has forced Riviera hotel and cafe owners to organize an all-tight protective league against the many "dead beats" swarming southward this winter.

The casino, hotel and cafe managers of Nice, Cannes, and San Remo met recently and decided to unite against the scores of elite "something for nothingers" who are flooding the Riviera this season.

The managers are convinced this swarm of newcomers counted on a hard season to force hotels, casinos and cafes to give them cut rates and special advantages. They generally demand board and room in the best hotels at below cost price, see seats to Frank Jay Gould's new $1 opera, free entrance to the casinos, and free meals while playing.

COUNCIL MINUTES

Regular meeting of the Council of the Borough of Carteret was held in the Council Chambers, Monday, February 16th, 1931.

Present: Mayor Joseph A. Hermann, Councilmen, Conrad, Dolan, E. Zurilla, Ellis, Young. Absent: Lyman.

Motion by D'Zurilla and Conrad that we dispense with the reading of the Minutes, was carried.

Motion by D'Zurilla and Ellis that the rules be suspended to take up the reading of bills was carried. All bills found correct were ordered paid, all voting "yea" on roll call.

COMMITTEES
Finance—Progress.
Streets and Roads—Progress.
Police—Progress.
Fire and Water—Progress.
Lights—Progress.
Buildings and Grounds—Progress.
Poor—Progress.
Law—Progress.

Resolution in reference to passing the budget ordinance, was read and adopted, on motion by D'Zurilla and Dolan, all voting "yea" on roll call.

Motion by D'Zurilla and Conrad that the budget ordinance be taken up on third and final reading, Ellis questioned the anticipated revenues for gas tax, stating that same should be over $9,000, instead of $1,000, as in the budget. There was some discussion on this.

Mr. Phillips then asked for information on money appropriated for the library, asking if repairs to the building were to be taken out of the library account. He was informed that that was the case. He then stated it would be hard to keep track of the amounts spent by the building committee. The Mayor informed him he could keep track of that by meeting with the building & grounds committee.

Mr. Goderstadt then asked some questions about money appropriated for Streets and Bonds, asking how many new roads would be built.

The Budget Ordinance was then taken up and adopted, on motion by D'Zurilla and Conrad, all voting "yea" on roll call, except Ellis, who passed on revenue gas tax.

Motion by D'Zurilla and Dolan that when we adjourn we do so to meet again on Monday, February 23rd, at 8 P. M. was carried.

HARVEY VO. PLATT,

DESIGNERS DECLARE SHEER VELVET A FABRIC IDEAL FOR PAJAMA MODES

AND again sheer, soft, colorful velvet leads its glamorous beauty to the mode.

After designers have exhausted all the adjectives at command in lauding the beauty, the colorfulness, the exquisite sheerness and the softness of velvet, they climax the argument by telling you that the thing to remember especially is, that above all else, velvet is as practical for pajama costumes, as it is lovely.

To prove the practicality of velvet as a medium for pajama suits, designers who specialize in this field say that being so exceedingly sheer as modern weaves are and so supple, velvet is as practical for pajama costumes, as it is lovely.

For hostess pajama costumes, which, by the way is a theme of outstanding importance in the smart world, there is no doubt about the prestige of velvet as a fabric-ideal. Often the trousers are made of black velvet and they are so wide and flaring at times they seem more like divided skirts. The accompanying jacket or coat is frequently of velvet in a pastel shade, or the blouse is apt to be of dainty chiffon or perhaps of handsome metal weave.

In the picture two very conservative pajama types are illustrated. A pajama costume simply tailored of thin, black velvet is shown to the left. A Roman-striped sash, the stripes repeated in sleeve-decoration and neck-piping gives a brilliant dash of color which is altogether fascinating.

The handsome suit to the right combines transparent velvet in colors which while they contrast at the same time, they are in that artistic harmony which appeals to discriminating taste. The satin blouse has a soft Vionnet neckline which is flattering.

Fashion and Common Sense

It is excellent news that the vendors of freak fashions are being left with their eccentricities on their hands. For if the dressmakers would but believe it, the merely odd is almost never beautiful. It is one of the respects in which the world seems to have grown foolisher instead of wiser as it has grown older.

From Helen Aubray, New York, we have received a letter that begins "Were you ever at a dinner or an evening social gathering and after everybody had told a story your turn came and you had nothing to say, you could think of absolutely nothing?"

Of all the kinds of persons who make up the world, those with raucous, saw-edged voices are among the least easy to bear.

When the automatic lead pencil ceases being automatic, it may still be used to dial phone numbers, in lieu of amputating a finger.

A race of prehistoric giants has been found in Mexico, but the average weight of their football team has not yet been determined.

"In spite of the times, more soap has been used in America this year than last," which is just one more instance of American grit.

"The briefest wit is also the deadliest," says a veteran toastmaster. Look out for the suspicious looking humorist with a sawed-off pun.

If those Central and South American countries wouldn't change governments so often it would save the rest of the world a lot of bookkeeping.

A new mechanical card shuffler and dealer is on the market. Unless it can be tampered with, this would seem to spell the doom of 13-trump hands.

A thing that confuses us more with each reading is this, from an eastern traction company's ad: "Cars leave every hour on the hour, standard time."

Aviation experts are puzzled to know how a flier could "drift" into the Bahamas in the teeth of a strong gale. Are they taking fully into account that the flier was a woman?

Well, everything is relative, as Doctor Einstein or somebody has often said, and a Warsaw dispatch has Pilsudski leaving there for "a rest in Spain."

Fence prizes must be all the more satisfactory to their recipients, because they are not returnable in case war breaks out.

The treason trial of the eight Moscow engineers is thought now to have been as carefully rehearsed as a wrestling match.

WISE WORDS

Hope is a light diet, but very stimulating—Baltic.

A pessimist is a man whose heart is simply dried up.

The man who forgets a favor seldom forgives an injury.

The dentist is an artist who makes drawings from life.

A poor complexion worries a woman more than a poor intellect.

Some men take pains naturally and some give them the same way.

A hopeful idea of everybody is that there is something derelict can do well.

Might not a playwright who is not devoted to uplifting the masses be interesting?

Novels are largely for people who have no life of adventure of their own to live.

Scientists say human intelligence is 500,000 years old. And some of it seems very tired.

One fault of a very large country is that it takes so long to size up the shortcomings of a politician.

Why is it every paragraph blue pencils his column for the indiscreet ones instead of the flat ones?

If you have to stay in the house all day on a rainy day, books are an excellent device for preventing family jars.

One more sign of age: When you require the thermometer to mark 2 degrees more of heat in the room than you did ten years ago.

Hard Coal Made to Order

Nature requires millions of years to make hard coal but engineers in Chicago, using an entirely new process, are making it out of soft coal in a few hours. This achievement will make "synthetic" hard coal available for industrial use, which in turn will result in cleaner cities and factory districts, for the new fuel is said to be smokeless. Valuable by-products are extracted and used, instead of escaping up chimneys as waste matter as they do at present, says Popular Science Monthly.

Soft coal, in the course of this process, is made to part with its moisture and two-thirds of its volatile or smoke-forming matter. About 1,400 pounds of "char," the left-over material, is obtained from a ton of soft coal. This is ground to a powder, mixed with a petroleum binder to make it stick together, and compressed into briquettes. The plant just put into operation in Chicago is the first of a series to be erected throughout the country.

Betrayed

"When the modern woman acts dumb, look out for her," is the advice given gratis by General Duwez. "When she acts dumb she's usually being smart, trying to cover her tracks with a disconcerting coat of injured innocence.

"One of the smartest women I know came home one afternoon and found her husband waiting for her with fire in his eyes.

"Look here," he snapped, "your account at the bank is overdrawn."

"Of course it is," replied his wife with simulated indignation, "but why did you go and tell them about it?"

To Celebrate Virgil's Birth

Among the preparations being made at Mantua, Italy, to celebrate the two thousandth anniversary of Virgil's birth is the development of a 15-acre tract, which is to be planted with more than 200 trees and plants mentioned in his poems. The space will be made to appear as much as possible like a Roman garden of the first century before Christ. As far back as the Napoleonic wars a similar project was planned, but lack of funds prevented its completion. The Vergilian wood will be dedicated in October.

Youthful Whistler

A whistling prodigy at the age of ten months is Ralph Emerson Hipple, of Harrisburg, Pa. The musical ability of the youngster was discovered by his mother when she investigated the source of the whistling she heard and found her son in his crib trilling dulcet tones through puckered lips. Since then he has practiced his music lesson daily without parental urging.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

This summer, backgammon has taken a prominent place in the conversation. Stores all are carrying ornate backgammon sets, and one Fifth Avenue establishment has the champion backgammon player giving lessons to patrons. They say this man won 35 straight games against picked opponents and has written a book proving that backgammon is as scientific as bridge. Yeah? Well, I know a little colored boy I'll back against any champion who will let him use his own dice.

One of the largest New York hotels has fifteen pianos, which have to be moved on an average of 200 times a month to meet the demands of musical guests. The boss of the movers is John Ravatino, formerly a prize boy, who is not yet four feet tall. It doesn't take physical strength to boss—Napoleon and Julius Caesar were comparatively small men, and John knows all about pianos. He says an upright piano is harder to handle, because h's men can't get such a good grip on it, and unless you are on the job the movers will push it along the floor. Take the legs off a grand piano, throw it on its side, and it's a cinch.

I know an upright piano is hard to handle, because Arthur William Brown and I once tried to move one. We got it stuck in a door and this was serious, because we were on the inside of a room, which had neither beds, stove nor icebox and which was a couple of stories from the pavement. We didn't even have a basket we could lower for food. If we had not been rescued it might have been another of those mysterious tragedies of a big city.

One of the skits in the recent Illustrators' show depicted a stage door with Johnnies waiting for the chorus girls to come out. As the first girl appeared, one of the men stepped up to her and said:

"Parlor me. Haven't I seen you some place?" "I guess so," replied the girl. "I've been places."

One of the artists' models, who assisted in the show, was offered these lines, but refused them. She said it wasn't "a nice part." She was a self-respecting figure model, who later appeared in a fairly undraped tableau.

An actor, out of work last season, is lucky enough to have a big part in a real Broadway success. A friend commented on his prosperous appearance.

"Isn't that a new hat?" he asked. "Certainly," said the actor, "the whole outfit is new. Last year, when there were hard times, I couldn't afford to dress so well, but this year, of course, I get what I want."

It is all in the point of view.

Norman Stevenson was riding down Park Avenue behind a florid-faced and talkative taxi driver, who remarked that it was fine, healthy weather.

"Yes," said Mr. Stevenson a bit nervously, for the driver was looking backward and the traffic was heavy, "you look healthy."

"I should say I am," said the taximan, "there is only one man in the city whose blood is as good as mine."

"Indeed?" said Mr. Stevenson, supposing that some one with the blue blood of the Vere de Veres was at the wheel.

"Yes," said the taxi driver, missing a limousine by an inch. "I certainly have good red blood. I make good money selling it for transfusions."

"Doesn't it weaken you?" said Mr. Stevenson, politely.

"Not a bit," said the taxi driver heartily. "Of course, I can't do it too often; but they take a test and, as soon as the haemoglobins are right, I do it again. A lot of persons in this town are carrying my blood around."

This sounded a little gory to Mr. Stevenson, but it seemed the time to say something, so he inquired: "How much do they take from you?"

"Oh, about 100 c.c.s.," said the taxi driver and then, seeing that he had been a bit too technical, "cubic centimeters, you know."

Mr. Stevenson wished to ask whether that was a pint or a barrel, but didn't like to appear too ignorant, so let it pass. Besides, he had been lucky enough to arrive at his destination without accident. But, if he ever needs blood he knows where to go.

Orders Out to Kill

Famous N. Y. Killer

Loggerhead, a hawk, has been killing sparrows and other small birds in and around Como park. He feasts on many but kills more than he can consume merely for the thrill of inflicting torture. Frequently the kill-or has been seen sitting nonchalantly on the same tree on which the remains of his victim hangs, casually picking the feathers from under his nails.

ADVANCE STYLES PLACE EMPHASIS ON THE DRESS WITH A LIGHT TOP

HERE it is, madam and madamaiselle, the very type of dress you have been looking for—the sort which flatters and flatters. We are speaking of the frock with the light top. To be more explicit, it is the dress which is styled with a contrasting yoke and sleeves or a bodice top which may be either of the same material in a different color or it may differ entirely both as to color and texture.

Truth is this styling treatment was given a tryout on the winter program and the very fact that fashion's clientele is calling for more has encouraged designers to elaborate upon the theme with renewed enthusiasm for spring and the summer months.

Any number of the southern resort dresses feature this idea of contrast. Note how wisely the frock in the picture carries out the idea. Flat crepe in the new stargold yellow is used for this dress, the double pointed yoke and sleeves being of the same material but in white.

Please to observe particularly that the kid shoes worn with this costume are also white, which is a very significant point from the standpoint of correct attire for spring. All through the new style program whenever touches of white appear on the dress or ensemble as the case may be, the shoes and the hat are also apt to be white. Just at the moment white footwear is associated more appropriately with the sunny South, but when the balmy days of spring gladden the North, white shoes, white millinery and white gloves will add a refreshing and ultra-chic note to many a costume.

Returning to the discussion of the frock which makes contrast an outstanding feature, this fashion should prove a timely suggestion to the woman who delights in making up several simple frocks during the tedious winter hours in readiness for spring. A plaid or stripe crepe, for instance, with yoke and sleeves in a monotone crepe offers an intriguing thought.

Study the new patterns and you will find types which carry the idea to the point of contrasting the entire bodice top to the lower portion.

My Greatest Thrill in Sport

By WILLIE HOPPE

Greatest Billiard Player of All Time.

There are various thrills in sport. There is the keenly pleasant sort that comes when you snatch victory from the slaving jaws of defeat, and there is the heart-rubbing kind that stabs when your opponent unexpectedly turns the trick on you.

I have been rather fortunate in that most of my thrills have been pleasant. In 27 years of competitive playing I have defeated some brilliant men and set quite a few new records, and all of them brought the warm glow that victory always does.

There was a big one when I won my first championship; there was another fine thrill when I regained it by defeating Jake Schaefer. It's hard to pick it by defeating Jake Schaefer. It's hard to pick the best, but it might not be amiss to mention the kick I gained out of setting a new record at the 18.1 ballline game.

It was in November, 1910, to be exact, that I made the first high mark of 155. I was a youngster then, and it was a wonderful feeling to know that I had done something that no one else in the world had ever equaled.

Probably the gratification was even keener because the 18.2 game is the one I have specialized in during most of my career, and there is a real difference between that and the 18.1 game, as anyone who has played billiards will readily understand.

But even that did not quite match the thrill I had some years later when I ran 303 at 14.1. I had been a champion for a long time, and had gained many successes, but I still had the capacity of enjoyment at an unusual feat that I was able to accomplish.

Probably these things stand out most keenly in my memory as having given me the greatest thrills of my career because they were the rarest things in that career. Championships are nothing new. I have won so many of them. But setting these records were things apart. Other men had beaten those whom I had outscored to win by championship, but no other men had equaled those records I set.

Perhaps that is why they gave me the greatest satisfaction and the keenest thrill of my life.

The Slovaks Bowling team accumulated a lead over the strong Falcon team of Elizabeth in a match here recently. Bill D'Zurilla had a big night pounding down over 700 pins in the three games. This is probably a record in Carteret, and should stand for quite some time. Bill's scores were 278, 228 and 227, for a total of 733 pins.

My Greatest Thrill in Sports

By SAMMY MANDELL

Lightweight Boxer—"The Adonis of the Ring"

To capture the lightweight crown of the world should be a great thrill but to date, my greatest thrill in sport came with victory over the Pacific Coast lightweight champion, Johnny Adams, at Vernon, Calif.

I had rambled westward to engage in the fourth round game. As many adroit fighters dwell in the coast country, I realized that my best efforts would be afforded action. My initial start was against Dick Hoppe at Hollywood, and I emerged triumphant. After this came victories over several other good boys. Then I was matched with Johnny Adams.

The latter had earned his title by virtue of a tournament conducted by the American Legion. All Western lightweight stars had been entered, and Adams had outscored the entire field. Word of his triumph had been broadcast. He was considered a real champion.

I fought faithfully for this bout and entered the ring in great shape. We were introduced amid rounds of applause. Californians are good sportsmen, and they evidently never allow prejudice to dampen an intruder's confidence.

Our gloves were adjusted. The referee gave instructions. The gong clanged. We were off!

Adams came tearing toward me like a tawny tiger. I stepped aside and shot over my left, then followed with a right cross. Adams continued to tear in, whaling away from every direction, but hitting mostly elbows and air. My blows seemed to be landing clearly and with telling effect. Adams rushed again and again, only to waver each time under an avalanche of rights and lefts.

Suddenly the gong clanged forth, ending the first round.

During the second, third and fourth rounds we entertained the fans well with much action. Adams' rushing tactics were made to order for my way of milling.

At the final gong we shook hands, and I jumped from the ring the possessor of the Pacific Coast lightweight crown. That, certainly, was my greatest thrill in sport.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

The Escape of John H. Morgan

ONE of the most daring of the raiders connected with the Confederate army during the Civil war, John Hunt Morgan early established for himself a name for fearlessness and heroic courage in the face of overwhelming odds. The raids which Morgan and his men made into Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana in 1862 and 1863, form one of the most thrilling chapters of the war, for they resulted in the destruction of millions of dollars worth of military stores, while railroad tracks were torn up, bridges burned and culverts destroyed in the rear of the Federal army, making it necessary to garrison every important town in the three states.

Morgan usually took a telegraph operator with him, and while his movements were almost incredibly swift, he kept himself constantly informed of the enemy's operations as well, while his raiders leveled upon the stores and granaries, as well as on the stables and kitchens along their route. Almost daily skirmishes ensued, but Morgan's men were always too strong for any force that could be assembled in a hurry, while their route could not be foreseen and they moved far too swiftly to be caught.

Finally, after more than two solid years of this type of warfare, Morgan and a number of his cavalrymen were surrounded and compelled to surrender on July 26, 1863. The chief of the raiders and several of his officers were taken to Columbus, Ohio, and confined in the penitentiary there, their heads being shaven like those of ordinary convicts. No labor was required of the captured Confederates, but they were closely guarded in their cells, whence, despite all possible precautions, Morgan and six of his men escaped, supposedly by digging themselves out.

Morgan and a Captain Hines proceeded at once to the railroad station, boarded the Cincinnati train which they knew would start at one o'clock in the morning, and were carried close to the brakes to the rear of the train, checked its speed, jumped off and ran to the Ohio, across which they were ferried to Kentucky, going at once to a house where refreshments and shelter awaited them.

From here Morgan made his way through Kentucky and Tennessee to northern Georgia, gradually working his way back northward to Richmond, Va., where he was greeted with enthusiasm and made a speech recounting his adventures and protesting that his escape had been made entirely without the assistance of anyone on the outside—an assertion which naturally only served to strengthen and justify a strong presumption that the fact was otherwise.

From Richmond, Morgan returned to service in east Tennessee, where he was supposedly killed on the night of September 4, 1864, but according to a number of reports, he escaped again and did not die until years afterward. The question of greatest importance at the time and later when an official investigation was ordered was whether Morgan tunneled his way out of his cell, as he claimed to have done, or whether his guards permitted him to escape. This subject, which has been widely discussed ever since the close of the Civil war, was not even settled by the tearing away, some eight years ago, of the block of cells in which the Confederate raiders were incarcerated. Partial exploration of the air-shaft under the Morgan cell by prison officials failed to reveal the evidence of any tunnel to the satisfaction of those who contend that the noted raider was permitted to walk out of the gate of the prison. The explorations which were conducted failed to show that the tunnel under the Morgan cell had any outlet at all or that it extended for any considerable distance.

The cell block was demolished in June, 1913, in order to convert that part of the prison into a "hall of ethics" for the convicts, but the section in which the Confederate leader was imprisoned was retained intact as a historic relic. But, even from this evidence, it is to be presumed that some Confederate sympathizer permitted the prisoner to escape, but there is no way now of securing any authentic evidence on the subject and what really happened on the night of the cavalry leader's escape will probably always remain a mystery.

It is related of a certain engineering officer, formerly of the A. E. F., that, in the course of an inspection tour in France, he noticed that most of the ties were scored, apparently from derailments. After several miles of lines had been inspected, and the scored ties continued to be much in evidence, he remarked to the French officer accompanying him: "How long did you run the railroad, anyhow, before you laid rails on the ties?"—Railway Age.

Longhorns Found Death in Fleeing From Storm

The plains love their mysteries as well as the sea. One night, many years ago, the cowboys on a range in the Rio Grande country of Texas looked over the herd of 5,000 longhorn cattle, saw that they were made fairly comfortable for the night and left them. The next morning the entire herd had disappeared and nothing was ever heard of them. The country was scoured without avail and repeated inquiry and investigation which was strung on for years failed to reveal anything which would lead to the location of the missing cattle. Recently a Texas prospector undertook to locate a silver mine of which he had heard and found the mouth of a cave. He explored, and in it discovered the bones of thousands of longhorn cattle. The explanation is that the herd was stampeded by a blizzard which came up in the night and the animals found their way into the cave, the opening of which was subsequently covered by the drifting snow. The cattle were unable to find their way out and the whole group perished of starvation.

In 83 years the Smithsonian institution has built up the largest natural history collection of North America in existence. Among the many objects of study that have a direct bearing on industry and commerce are the bean beetle, the boll weevil and the Japanese beetle. In the laboratories of the Smithsonian institution work is carried on to ascertain the natural enemies of these pests, their origin and means of immigration. In order to learn these things it is necessary to maintain a complete collection of all forms of the species.

When Ignorance Was Bliss

John Casey came to us in great anxiety, says a Red Cross worker stationed at Borden. He had heard nothing from home in many weeks, and his wife was expecting a baby. So we cabled for him. Even cables were slow in those days. When the answering cable reached us, Casey had been evacuated to a convalescent camp a mile or two away. It was just as well, for the cable read as follows: "Tell John Casey wife and five baby boys doing well." It was 24 hours before we could get hold of Casey. Meanwhile a corrected cable reached us: "Tell John Casey wife and five baby boys doing well."—Boston Globe.

Nation's Population Center

The center of population, according to the bureau of the census, may be said to represent the center of gravity of the population. If the surface of the United States be considered as a rigid plane without weight, capable of sustaining the population distributed thereon, individuals being assumed to be of equal weight, and each, therefore, to exert a pressure on any supporting pivotal point directly proportional to his distance from the point, the pivotal point on which the plane balances would, of course, be its center of gravity, and this is the point referred to by the term "center of population" as used by the bureau of the census in its reports.

Tree Ring Calendar

No doubt you have often wondered how scientists tell the dates of the various famous old ruins they find in western United States. Neil M. Judd, curator of New world archeology at the National museum, says nature provides an exact calendar for science in its search for these dates. Buried trees tell the age of the ruins almost to the year by their petrified rings, he claims. Whenever a bit of old log or timber is found it is carefully dug up and saved. A cross-section of such a find shows the rings which give the approximate dates it grew and was buried.

Horsepower

One horsepower is equivalent to 33,000 foot-pounds per minute. The foot-pound is the unit of work or energy and is defined as the work done in raising one pound avoirdupois the height of one foot, against the force of gravity. It was adopted by James Watt, the famous engineer, after many experiments to find the loads that strong draft horses could pull, though as he was aware, it is in excess of the power of an average horse. It is simply an arbitrary unit, equivalent to 746 watts or electrical units.

New Customer for Company

The new baby is one of the best customers of the electric company. It requires additional lighting at night, the use of supplemental heating during the bathing hour and it causes more washing and ironing. Then there are the electric milk warmers and other equipment which add to baby's joy and comfort. Many high bill complaints have been settled to the entire satisfaction of the customer by pointing out that the increase complained about was due to the new arrival.

Choice of Life Partner Strictly Up to Daughter

Doctor Brouzher, Boston pastor, declared that education is the best cure for all ills, whether they be physical or mental, religious or commercial. "Yes, education applies even to marriage," he added, "and should be a vital factor in the selection of a wife or husband. I believe much as did the American millionaire who had been approached by a young foreigner who boasted a title but no cash. "No," said the millionaire, "I have no personal objection to your marrying my daughter. It's strictly up to her, so go and ask her.

"Frankly you are not my idea of a son-in-law and I have a hunch you won't be, but as I said before, I won't interfere.

"You see, I've given my daughter a good education and taught her to read the newspapers and if she doesn't know enough by this time to say 'No,' why, then, she doesn't deserve any better luck."

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST AT CHURCH

Ben Smith Gets First Prize in Presbyterian Church Competition. Miss Byrne, 2nd.

Ben Smith was the winner of first place in the Oratorical Contest on the subject of Stewardship at the First Presbyterian Church on Wednesday night. His subject was "All Life a Stewardship." Dorothy Byrne won second honors, having her oration on the same subject as Mr. Smith. Jack McGregor won third place with his subject "A Christian Budget." The judges were: Mrs. J. R. Strome of Woodbridge, Mrs. Joseph L. Ewing and Mrs. Mundy of Rahway. Mrs. Strome in giving the decision of the judges said that it was very difficult for the judges to reach a decision as the orations were of such high quality and so well rendered by all three contestants. The prizes for the contest consist of a Teachers' Bible for the First; a New Testament and Psalms for the second; and a Red Letter Testament for the third. Being the winner of first prize, Ben Smith becomes the representative of the Carteret church at the Presbyterian contest competing with representatives of other churches of the Elizabeth Presbytery which will be held in the First Presbyterian church of Elizabeth on Friday evening, tonight, February 27th. The winner of the Presbyterial contest will then represent the Presbytery at a Synodical contest, the winner of which will represent the Synod in a District contest composed of the Synods of Baltimore, New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York and Vermont and Pennsylvania (Welsh). The winner of the district contest will then go to the General Assembly next May to compete with the winner from four other districts into which the country as a whole is divided.

Sunday morning will be observed as Neighbors' Day when the members of the congregation are inviting and bringing their neighbors to the Service as a part of the program of the Loyalty Crusade. The Evening service will be Young Peoples' Night with the service especially designed for the young people and with young people participating in the service. The morning topic of the pastor will be "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" for the Juniors it will be "Bugle Calls" and for the evening "Youth's Equipment." Large audiences were present at both services last Sunday. The morning attendance being an increase of 70 per cent over the average for the fall and winter, in the Sunday School contest the pupils are divided into the reds and blues. Last Sunday the standing of the two groups by points were Reds 84, Blues 89.

Woman's Club Pays Tribute to Heroes

The regular meeting of the Woman's Club held Thursday afternoon in the American Legion rooms, opened with the singing of America, the Beautiful, and the salute to the flag, the president, Mrs. E. Stremiau, presiding. A nominating committee headed by Mrs. H. Miles was named to prepare a slate of candidates for the coming year. After the business session the program was turned over to Mrs. T. G. Kenyon, who had prepared a very delightful afternoon in the way of a patriotic celebration. The program follows: Biography of George Washington by Mrs. George Dalrymple; Poem on George Washington by Mrs. Morris Ulman; Reading—Tribute to Washington by Mrs. R. Miles. Song—Star Spangled Banner by the club members; Biography and anecdotes on Abraham Lincoln by Mrs. T. J. Nevill; piano solo—patriotic march by Mrs. Coughlin; song, Battle Hymn of the Republic, by the club members; reading—Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg by Mrs. E. Lefkowitz; readings—Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby, one of Lincoln's Humorous Addresses, and excerpts from Lincoln's Inaugural Address, by Mrs. L. Brown; reading, the American's Creed, by the club members; song, America, by the club. After the meeting refreshments were served by the Hospitality Committee, Mrs. C. Morris, Chairman.

ADD NEW BOOKS TO PUBLIC LIBRARY

Children's Department Is Especially Growing in Good Literature. Fine Reference.

New books are being purchased each month for the children's department. These books are recommended by the American Library Association.

"Discriminating and intelligent reading is an important factor in education. The child who reads easily and has been taught to seek for himself the information that may be found in books has taken the surest and the shortest road to knowledge. He may learn in a few hours facts that the child who does not read may learn only after years of experience or not at all, and he has open to him a wealth of recreation and entertainment that cannot be duplicated in any other form."

NEW CHILDREN'S BOOKS
"Your Language", Erwin Curtis Cline; "Poems for Children" Frank De LaMare; "Folk Tales of all Nations", Frank Harold Lee; "Little Plays for Little People", A. P. Sanford; Tales from Chaucer, Geoffrey Chaucer; "Plutarch's Lives", W. H. Weston; "The Book of Art for Young People", A. E. Conway; "Aeneid for Boys and Girls" A. J. Church; Adventures of Theodore Roosevelt" Ed Emerson; "Vision of Sir Lancelot", J. R. Lowell; "When Sally Sows She Makes Fifty Things", Mrs. Helen Curtis; "Snow Bound", J. G. Whittier; Up from Slavery, B. T. Washington; "American Hero Stories", E. M. Tappan; "Making of an American", Jacob; "Boys Life of Mark Twain", A. B. Paine; "Life of Robert L. Stevenson", J. M. ### "Only Saps Work" To Open Air-Tight Ice Lid On Lakes Smothers Fish

Sunday, March 1st brings to the talking screen of the R. K. O. Rahway Theatre another double feature program. Feature No. 1, Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams in "Part Time Wife," a story of a man who fell in love with his wife. A homely little mut shares honors with the stars and Tommy Clifford, the screen's latest juvenile find, in feature No. 2, Paramount's comedy hit entitled "Only Saps Work," starring Leon Errol, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian and Stuart Erwin.

On Monday and Tuesday, March 2nd and 3rd, the first lady of the screen in a triple role, Ruth Chatterton in "The Right to Love." The first picture ever filmed with the marvelous New West Electric System of noiseless recording. Supporting Miss Chatterton will be Paul Lukas and David Manners.

Wednesday and Thursday, March 4th and 5th brings another double feature program. No. 1, Louis Wolheim supported by Robert Armstrong and Jean Arthur in R. K. O.'s First Great Railroad Thriller, "Danger Lights." Feature No. 2, "The Dancers," featuring Lois Moran, Phillips Holmes, Walter Bryon, Mae Clarke and Mrs. Patrick Campbell. The story of Modern Maids is a Maze of Modern Morals.

Reports that fish by the thousands are being literally smothered by their own element after breathing the oxygen from lakes tightly covered with ice have resulted in the launching of an investigation in Michigan, according to information reaching the American Game Association.

The Institute for Fisheries at Ann Arbor started a detailed study of the situation, following the discovery by the fish division of the Michigan Department of Conservation that large numbers of fish are dying in Rose Lake, Clinton County, presumably from lack of oxygen.

"Small lakes bottled up by ice all winter suffocate fish every year," the department announced. "But this is the first instance on record of serious loss in larger lakes. In small or shallow ponds the life-sustaining oxygen in the water is naturally depleted by the fish during the winter."

Low water levels, due to the drought of last summer and fall, are blamed by the Michigan department as the chief cause of the abnormal lowering of oxygen content in the lakes.

When the lakes fall low, with little interchange of fresh water through inlets and outlets, the sealing up process of the ice is complete. The fish live through most of the winter season under an air-tight lid of ice, as if in a tank. They gradually absorb the oxygen out of the water through their gills.

The fact that loss of fish, even in larger lakes, is already noticeable so early in the winter is considered by the department as serious enough to require an immediate remedy if disastrous depletion of fish-life in the inland lakes is to be averted.

Badgering Airmail Latest Sky Hazard

Badgers, whose burrows menaced Uncle Sam's Pony Express in the early days of the west, have been bed up again as a danger to the latest in mail carriers—the airplane.

Holes dug by these animals have presented a serious hazard to planes landing on the field at Wamsutter, Wyo., the Biological Survey has informed the American Game Association.

The badger is considered valuable as a fur-bearer and rodent-destroyer and will continue to receive encouragement—outside of landing fields.

Though the male of the pheasant species may be the stronger, he is not the wiser when it comes to facing blizzards, according to Oscar Johnson, head of the South Dakota Conservation Department.

"The hen pheasant will tuck her head under her wing and run for shelter immediately," Mr. Johnson reported to the American Game Association. "But the cock pheasant will keep his head in the air and battle it out. As a result hundreds of pheasants have died this winter of frozen, ice-clogged mouths."

Quail Speed Timed With Speedometer

Quail, which hunters have always described as "shooting up like bullets," do not fly as fast as their startling whirr of wings would indicate, an investigator has discovered after trying days of racing the game birds in his automobile.

Donald D. McLean, of the California Fish and Game Department, has informed the American Game Association that the greatest burst of speed he was able to time with his speedometer was 58 miles an hour. The average "cruising" time was around 40 miles an hour, he stated.

Again We REPEAT COMPARE

Compare the values, prices and service we give you with those of any other tire dealer or distributor of special brands.

The low prices of rubber and cotton give Firestone unusual advantages due to their world-wide facilities in securing these raw materials and their efficient manufacturing. With Firestone's most economical distributing system, with over 600 branches, warehouses and service stores, we can secure a complete line of fresh Firestone tires, tubes, batteries, brake lining, rims and accessories within a few minutes' to a few hours' time and give our customers values and service that are not duplicated.

COMPARE VALUES

Firestone has this year added more rubber to the tread which gives 20% to 25% more safe mileage before the tread wears smooth.

The Firestone Double Cord Breaker gives you SIX and EIGHT plies under the tread—spreads road shocks—lessens punctures—gives over 50% stronger union between tread and tire body which ensures longer tire life and greater safety.

Live rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber by the patented Gum-Dipping process—thus not only every cord, but every fiber within the cords, is insulated: this gives you 25% to 40% added tire life.

Six Hot Dogs Save Two Men From Hungry Bear

Reading, Pa.—Six valiant little hot dogs received credit for saving the lives of two men from a ferocious bear.

The story of the unfortunate "Florida Reed Birds" was told by Daniel F. Hagen of East Reading on his return from an expedition into the Neversink mountain region for herbs used in making a medicinal tea.

Hagen was accompanied by Joseph Fox and Peter Keppley, brothers-in-law. Fox, injured in an accident recently, remained in the car while his friends climbed over the rocky slopes near Klappertal Glen, where the car was parked.

The tea hunters were intent on their quest when a big, lean, hungry-looking black bear burst from the underbrush a few feet away. His purpose was plain, Hagen said. He regarded the two men as so much meat on the table.

The men departed in frantic leaps, the bear snorting hopefully at their heels.

At this juncture, the little hot dogs came into the picture. Hagen had been carrying them in his pocket for lunch. Ripping off the paper, Hagen cast the hot dogs in the bear's path. The animal halted in his tracks and devoured them.

Burglar Makes Great Haul—Confederate Bills

Culpeper, Va.—When Thomas G. Tate of Culpeper, who is connected with the state prohibition department in Richmond, returned to Richmond after being out of the city for a few days it was to find that his apartment had been burglarized; antique jewelry and other valuables of Mrs. Tate's were strewn over the floor and a roll of bills, upward of $3,000, was removed from a drawer in his desk.

Although Mr. Tate reported the matter to the police, he was not as upset about it as he would have been under other circumstances, and has been spending some moments wondering what were the sensations of the robber when he found his roll to be Confederate money, for that is what they were.

Leaps to Death While Success Waits for Him

Roston.—Success, long sought and worked for, was on the sixteenth floor of the Stalter building here awaiting Samuel Grossman. But he jumped from a window ledge on the fifteenth floor and was killed.

Grossman, formerly a playwright and poet, was ignorant of the fact that a radio feature he had conceived had been accepted by officials of a radio station in the building.

In fact, they were awaiting him to tell him his success was assured if an audition test showed his voice would broadcast well.

KNIFE WINS FOR WOMAN IN DUEL AGAINST RIFLE

Enemy Opens Battle With Shot, Then Forced to Flee From Slashes.

St. Johns, N. B.—"We investigated a report of a fight on the outskirts of New Waterford between Mrs. Gaetz and Mrs. Gardner, and found Mrs. Gaetz was cut in the row."

Thus did the provincial police, stationed in Glace Bay, N. S., sum up one of the fiercest battles between women ever chronicled in the maritime provinces.

Challenged to Duel. Just now the combat started nobody seems to know. At all events Mrs. Gaetz and Mrs. Gardner, both residents and neighbors in what are known as the western front barracks of New Waterford, had a controversy. The words preceded a clashing knife, and this was followed by a dueling challenge.

So much heat was displayed in the challenge and acceptance of the duel that the type of weapon was not specified.

The result was that, at the zero hour, Mrs. Gaetz appeared with a sawed-off rifle and Mrs. Gardner flourished a murderous looking butcher knife. The hour for the beginning of hostilities was 8:30 p. m.

Knife vs. Rifle. A gallery of about 100 persons witnessed the fray, which started by Mrs. Gaetz trying to shoot her foe. However, Mrs. Gardner proved to be very aggressive at close quarters with the awe-inspiring knife. It is quite true that Mrs. Gaetz was cut in the row, as the policemen reported in their investigation, and it is also true that as a result of the wounds the chairs looked far less inviting to her than ever before. When she tried to escape from the menacing knife she was slashed some more.

Mrs. Gaetz had no opportunity to retaliate, as her adversary was too active, and before she was cowed up, completely her friends rushed her to her home and summoned a doctor, who treated the several wounds. Mrs. Gardner has been duly recognized as the winner of the unusual duel, in which a knife triumphed over rifle and bullets.

man version was made, the cast remade the whole performance in English and then in French.

It is the English version of this Jannings picture which will be seen at the State Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

Marlene Dietrich, the leading woman in "The Blue Angel," has already made one picture in Hollywood—"Morocco" with Gary Cooper. Von Sternberg also directed "Morocco."

Several hundred college students, who were guests of the First National Studio during the making of "College Lovers," which is playing next week at the State Theatre, declared it to be the most realistic picture of college life ever filmed.

Featured in "College Lovers" are Jack Whiting, Marian Nixon, Guinn Williams and Frank McHugh.

WYNN FINDS COMEDY EASY WHEN PEOPLE WILL LAUGH

Being funny is the easiest thing in the world, according to Ed Wynn, "The Perfect Fool," who has made "being funny" his life work. All one has to do to achieve success at this business, says Wynn, is to make people laugh.

"I've found that anything that will make people laugh at a dinner table will make them laugh in the theatre," says the famous funnyman, who, after an unparalleled laugh-making career on the stage, has just completed his first talking picture, "Follow the Leader," the State Theatre feature for next Thursday and Friday.

"Age doesn't make any difference. Sometimes an old joke will bring the greatest response if turned off in an unexpected way."

UNA MERKEL AVOIDS USING A "DOUBLE"

Una Merkel, who plays the leading feminine role in "Eyes of the World," the Inspiration-United Artists dramatization of the Harold Bell Wright novel which comes to the State Theatre next Thursday and Friday, is still too green in the ways of motion pictures to avail herself of the services of a "double."

This slim Broadway actress was required, during production, to jump into a shallow pool of water from a steep embankment. Henry King, the director, asked her if she wanted a "double" but Miss Merkel shook her head.

"Why?" she demanded. "I can swim."

King then explained that her services were so valuable to the production that any injury, however slight, might cause the company a serious loss of time and money.

The matter was settled finally by Miss Merkel doing her own "dubbing." Later it developed that visitor to stress used to be a constant visitor to the "old swimming hole" near her Covington, Kentucky home.

Others in the cast of "Eyes of the World" are John Holland, Nance O'Neil, Brandon Hurst, Hugh Huntley, Fern Andra, Frederic Burt and William Jeffrey.

"THE BOUDOIR DIPLOMAT"

"The Boudoir Diplomat," Universal's sophisticated comedy of manners which comes to the State Theatre Saturday, March 7, served to reunite director and two players who worked together on "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter" one of the most successful pictures in the career of Adolphe Menjou. The director was Malcolm St. Clair and the actors were Lawrence Grant and Andre Beranger, both of whom play prominent roles in "The Boudoir Diplomat."

"OUTDOOR" PICTURE HAS MOSTLY INTERIOR SCENES

"The Bad Man" has the unique distinction of being a picture laid on an Arizona ranch, yet having but three out of door scenes in the entire film!

The story centers around a ranch house where a group of people are gathered just as Pancho Lopez, a noted bandit, raids the ranch. He remains to untangle the mixed-up affairs of finance and love of all those present, and all of the action takes place either in the ranch house or in the patio.

Walter Huston plays the role of the bandit. Dorothy Revier, O. P. Heggie, Marion Byron, Arthur Stone, James Rennie and Johnny Arthur are among those in the cast. "The Bad Man" is a First National Vitaphone production, and comes to the State theatre Saturday, March 7.

Mrs. Gardiner Proved to Be Very Aggressive.

aggressive at close quarters with the awe-inspiring knife. It is quite true that Mrs. Gaetz was cut in the row, as the policemen reported in their investigation, and it is also true that as a result of the wounds the chairs looked far less inviting to her than ever before. When she tried to escape from the menacing knife she was slashed some more.

Mrs. Gaetz had no opportunity to retaliate, as her adversary was too active, and before she was cowed up, completely her friends rushed her to her home and summoned a doctor, who treated the several wounds. Mrs. Gardner has been duly recognized as the winner of the unusual duel, in which a knife triumphed over rifle and bullets.

Two Stars In Film Lend Glamour To "New Moon"

Vivid Picture Made Doubly Attractive By Singing of Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

When "New Moon," all talking adaptation of the stage success, opens Thursday at the Majestic Theatre, movie patrons will be given an opportunity to enjoy the first joint appearance on the talking screen of America's most outstanding figures in the operatic world, namely Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

The unusual inclusion of two stellar names in a single production was explained at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by the fact that when the screen rights of the Broadway hit were purchased, it was with the intention of making the production the most distinctive and most talked about picture of the 1930 season.

Consequently, no efforts were spared in the selection of stars, supporting cast, director, settings, musicians, and accessory details which would measure up to the story which in its stage form had succeeded in running for fifteen months at the Imperial Theatre, New York.

With Tibbett and Miss Moore under contract, there was no need to look elsewhere for stars who could do justice to "Lover Come Back to Me," and "One Kiss," "Wanting You" and the other Sigmund Romberg songs. The Metropolitan reputation of the singers is a byword to all music lovers whereas their abilities in the acting field is by now equally well known as a result of their respective successes in "The Rogue Song" and "A Lady's Morals."

The forceful story of a lieutenant who falls in love with the betrothed of his superior officer and is consequently caught in the net of the latter's resolve for revenge, is given added interest by the exotic and unusual backgrounds, spectacular cavalry attacks and the intrigue of the Russian nobility.

Ronald Colman, Star of "The Devil to Pay"

New Colman Seen In "The Devil To Pay"

Dramatist Frederick Lonsdale reveals a hidden side of Ronald Colman's character in the star's latest picture, "The Devil To Pay," which comes to the Majestic Theatre on Sunday. Ronald Colman is thought by casual acquaintances to be cold and forbidding—the very opposite of the playboy role in which he is cast by the author of "The Devil To Pay." But even those who know him only as a shadow on the screen can detect in his emotional make-up the kindness, the cheerful, happy-go-lucky, why-worry temperament that he portrays so well in his latest production.

'Millie' Mighty Best-Selling Story, Comes to Amboy Screen

Helen Twelvetrees Seen In Title Role.

SEASON'S BEST CAST

"Nobody owns me. I own myself. I'm myself, all alone, living my own life!" That is the philosophy of "Millie" born of her contact with men.

"Millie" is the fiery-haired heroine of the Donald Henderson Clarke novel which has been produced for Radio Pictures by Charles R. Rogers, and opens tomorrow at the Strand Theatre.

"Millie's" story is that of a young girl whose heart takes her from a village school room to be the wife of a philandering New Yorker. Her faith in love is rudely shaken by the affairs of her husband, but her faith in men is still intact until she has given her heart to a young reporter who also tires of her caresses and shows a preference toward blondes.

With the close of these two unfortunate flurries in romance she becomes an advocate of independence. She closes her heart to men and her romantic affairs are carried on in a superficial way. She attempts to treat men as they have treated her and succeeds until she finds that man is striking at her from another source. At this point the gaiety of the story gives way to seething drama bringing on a tremendous climax.

Helen Twelvetrees, who has recently been hailed in emotional roles such as "Her Man," is cast as a flame-haired girl. The supporting cast includes Lilyan Tashman, Robert Ames, Joan Blondell, John Halliday, James Hall and Anita Louise. "Millie" was directed by John Francis Dillon.

Colman's Latest Is "The Devil To Pay"

Noted English Dramatist Writes His First Screen Original.

The Majestic Theatre will present on Sunday Ronald Colman's latest talking picture, said to be in a vein new to the star, which bears the title "The Devil To Pay." It is an original screen story and dialogue by the famous English dramatist, Frederick Lonsdale, well known on this side of the Atlantic for his numerous stage successes, "Aren't We All?" "Spring Cleaning," "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," and others. Though several of the Lonsdale pieces have been adapted for the screen, "The Devil To Pay" is his first attempt at writing directly for screen production.

The picture, described as a sophisticated comedy drama in the modern manner, has to do with the life and loves of Willie Leeland, played by Ronald Colman, wayward son of a wealthy and unsympathetic British peer who, in an effort to make something of his adventurous son, gives him a start in South Africa. The story opens with Willie, disgusted with his exile, and longing for the lights of London, auctioning his belongings to obtain money enough for a passage home. Never having experienced real love, he decides that he will marry a wealthy girl and settle down, independent of his father. Arriving in London with twenty pounds in his pocket, he spends it all in buying a dog, and in taking an actress, an acquaintance of former years, to dinner.

Next morning he meets his fate—falling deeply in love—and with an heiress, played by Loretta Young. Marrying for money, and marrying one he loves who has money, are viewed by Willie as irreconcilable. The dialogue is bright, witty and sparkling in the true Lonsdale manner, and the part of Willie was specially written to fit the engaging Colman personality.

THE INDIVIDUAL AND HIS BANK

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

BANKERS recognize that their business carries especially heavy public responsibilities and welcome all sound measures to aid them meet the duties this imposes. Unceasing efforts to bring about continually improving methods to safeguard depositors in banks of all kinds have long been uppermost in the plans of bankers' organizations throughout the nation. They are not the outgrowth merely of the past year of business adversity, but have been carried on actively for many years and have resulted in great progress along lines of better, safer banking methods. Although banking along with all business has suffered reverses, conditions in this field have been far less severe than they would have been had not bankers been widely successful in their endeavors to develop the high standards of banking that now generally prevail.

The American Bankers Association and bankers' organizations in every state actively support the principle of government supervision of banking. The national banks, which receive their charters to do business from the federal government, are under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington. Through his efficient staffs of expert bank examiners in every section he has the duty and powers to keep watch of the way every national bank is being conducted, to suggest desirable changes in its policies or methods and even to step in and take control for the protection of the depositors if such action is warranted. The state banks, also, which are chartered by the various state governments, are subject to similar supervision and control by state bank officials. In addition banks in many places have long maintained voluntary clearing house associations which enforce even closer supervision over their members.

Bankers Favor Public Supervision
Present laws adequately enforced contain ample provisions for government supervision. Bankers universally believe in strong, capable banking departments manned by officials with the discretion and courage to enforce these laws and act under them as the common welfare demands. They believe that these public officials should be paid sufficient salaries to command the services of men of character, ability and a resolute spirit of public service. They believe also that the banking departments should be kept free from all political or other special influence in order to be able to act at all times with single-minded independence solely for the benefit of the public interest.

Although banks in the United States operating under state or national charters are thus subject to supervision of public authority, they are strictly private business enterprises. They are owned by their stockholders and administered by officials chosen through the boards of directors which their stockholders elect. No bank is owned or operated by the United States Government, nor, with one small exception in a western state, by any state government. The function of government in banking is to promote and enforce careful banking administration through the system of examination and supervision which I have described. This, however, does not relieve the individual depositor from the necessity of judging and choosing carefully as to his banking relations, just as in his other business or professional relations. He must inquire for himself into the character and type of institution and men he shall do business with, satisfying himself as to their reputation, reliability and capability. These qualities are essential to complete the element of safety and dependability in any human institution.

An Illusory Law

The bank deposit guaranty law in any form is a snare and a delusion, declares a banker in a state where it has been tried, adding: "It is a license and encouragement to irresponsible banks and banking and penalizes capital solvency and prudent banking. It creates a sense of security in the minds of the unthinking and uninformed that is false and impossible to be realized on ultimately. To compare it to legitimate insurance is without reason and absurd. It jeopardizes the solvency of all banks and the safety of all depositors for the theoretical safety of a few. Guaranty schemes always have been, are and always will be impotent, futile and disastrous. It is not new. Has been tried, failed and discarded at intervals for more than 100 years in this country. No well-informed, honest and intelligent mind can accept it in principle or practice. Competent bank supervision and restriction of banks to territory that will warrant sufficient capital investment and accounts is the only sane and honest course and will afford all the guaranty the depositing public is entitled to as compared with all other human affairs."

Why You Can Drive the New Ford So Many Thousands of Miles

Unusual care in manufacturing is reflected in the smooth, reliable performance of the new Ford and its economy and long life.

THE NEW FORD has made an unusual record for reliability and long life. In police service it has been driven 100,000 and 120,000 miles under the severest driving conditions. Leading industrial companies operating large fleets of Fords report "satisfactory economical service" after many months and years of constant use. The value of good materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing is especially apparent after the first 25,000 miles.

Throughout the chassis, you find many reasons for the good performance of the Ford. None is more important than the crankshaft.

The crankshaft is frequently called the heart of the automobile because of the part it plays in transmitting the power developed by the pistons to the flywheel and driveshaft. It must be properly balanced to insure smooth operation. It must be accurate in size to insure proper clearance in the bearings. It must be true in alignment and weight to reduce friction and give long continuous service without adjustment.

The crankshaft of the new Ford has great strength because it is made of carbon manganese steel, specially developed by Ford metallurgists. It will resist a twisting stress of 2½ tons at a leverage of twelve inches from its axis.

THE NEW FORD TUDOR SEDAN

This popular family sedan is an outstanding example of value far above the price. Its beauty of line, color and upholstery is in keeping with its capable mechanical performance. Among its many features are . . . silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of steel forgings, Rustless Steel, quick acceleration, 55 to 65 miles an hour, ease of control, reliability, economy and long life. The first cost of the Ford is low and you save many dollars because of the low cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

In the many steps in its manufacture, the Ford crankshaft is machined and polished to measurements as fine as one-half of a thousandth part of an inch. In all, Ford crankshafts receive more than 150 checks for accuracy.

The greatest care is taken to make sure that the Ford crankshaft will be in perfect balance in all positions and at all speeds. The machines for the dynamic balance tests are set upon foundations of gum rubber and are so delicately adjusted that the very air that surrounds them is first cleansed and then held at 68 degrees by thermostatic control.

Though weighing many pounds, the Ford crankshaft is so carefully balanced that it will remain motionless when placed upon two perfectly leveled parallel bars, yet will turn if so small a weight as a ten-cent piece is placed on any connecting-rod bearing.

This same care is followed as standard practice in the manufacture of the Ford flywheel, pistons, connecting-rods, valves, camshaft and other mechanical parts.

You can see, therefore, why the Ford delivers reliable, economical service for so many thousands of miles. It gives good performance on the road because good performance has been built into it at the factory.

This illustration shows the Ford cylinder bloc (A), piston (B), connecting-rod (C), flywheel (D), and crankshaft (E). The care with which these parts are made is an important factor in the smoothness, reliability, economy and long life of the new Ford.

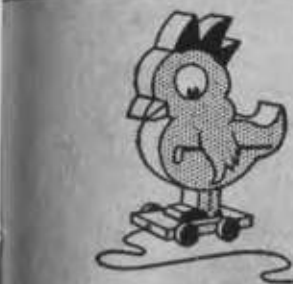

The Ford crankshaft is made of special carbon manganese steel and balanced statically and dynamically. Ford crankshafts receive more than 150 checks for accuracy.

"Beau Brummel" Said to Be Big Coast Operator.

San Francisco.—Seton Heather Heatt, thirty-six, a "Beau Brummel" of the underworld, is free under $10,000 bail bond. It took the whole federal narcotic force to ensnare him, but the feat ended a chase of three years. Heatt, it is charged, is one of the biggest dealers in dope on the Pacific coast, but working as a "lone wolf." It has been impossible to trap him.

He is charged with two sales of narcotics for $235. Agents declare that they found $100 of marked money on him, but that he had gotten rid of the rest. In his pockets, however, was an additional $1,120.

Suspicious that he was being trailed, Heatt drove an informer several times around the city before he made a delivery and was arrested.

William D. Allen, agent in charge of the federal narcotic bureau, directed the capture and Agents Vaughn de Spain and Dan Robertson were aided in their task by every man on the force.

The key to a safety deposit vault was found in Heatt's pocket but a search of the box by Deputy United States Attorney Ray Shubert failed to reveal any narcotics. Heatt refused to reveal his address.

The effort to trap Heatt was launched more than three years ago, agents declared. Suddenly, he disappeared. Three months ago he was located again and he has since been trailed constantly.

Smithville, Ont.—A twelve-year-old boy's death in the branches of a tall pine tree mystifies authorities.

The boy, Charles Royal Lampman, was found hanging by a rope from a tree limb on his foster father's farm. James L. Lampman, the foster father, and local officials discarded a suicide theory because Charles was wearing heavy boots, and they said he could not have climbed the tree with them on.

The nose also was skillfully tied, they said, indicating some person other than himself and experienced with knots had looped it.

The boy was hanging from a limb eight feet from the ground, with his feet twelve inches from the ground. There was nothing nearby on which he could have stood while fastening the rope to the limb.

Gossip Over Dinner Teacups Overheard

By HELEN ST. BERNARD

*****
 (Copyright.)

"AND, of course, you know that Dick and Lella Leth have gone back together again," said Lucy Morrow as she deftly dealt the cards to her Wednesday afternoon bridge club. "I am so happy. It would have been tragic, their separating; with that lovely boy of theirs!"

"Yes, I heard they were reconciled. It took place at the seashore this summer, didn't it, when Lella sent for Dick when the boy was ill?"

"Let's keep the gossip for over the teacups, girls," suggested Helen May. "I'm dying to hear all about it, but I have a corking good hand, the first this afternoon, and I'm bidding no trump!"

Lucy Morrow followed Helen's eloquent glance toward a boy deep in the cushions of an easy chair.

"Why not run out and play David?" suggested his Aunt Lucy. "I will call you when it is time for cakes and Hettie will make you some hot chocolate."

"I'd rather read, Auntie Lu. And besides, mother or father might call and I wouldn't be here."

Lucy Morrow shook her head sadly as she went back to her cards.

"And now for the gossip!" suggested Martha brightly, later on. "While Hettie is making tea. We are all so glad for Lella and Dick. It is not betraying her confidence any."

"Well," began Lucy Morrow, "their bark was certainly on the rocks for a time. At first they were ideally happy but then Dick began making money so fast, and the trouble started. Lella says she was partly to blame, too. She took little Dick to the seashore and they had planned to separate this fall, and then Dick took a sudden turn for the worse down there—always had been a delicate child, you know, and Lella wired for Dick. Dickie called for his father incessantly. And they did not leave the child's bedside for twelve hours. He would turn from one to the other and in his delirium would beg for Daddy to come home to them, and then would beg Lella to write to Daddy and tell him they loved him. That was the first time either Lella or Dick realized the boy knew there was trouble between them. He insisted they both hold him at the same time and she says she knew then she could not live without him."

Hettie came in with the tea things and as she passed the boy in the chair, she whispered:

"Hot chocolate and sandwiches for you, David. Shall I bring them in here on that nice little red tea table, or—"

The boy closed his book and smiled up at his aunt's maid:

"No, Hettie, I think I'll have them on the kitchen table. I always drink two cups of hot chocolate, you know, and it will save a lot of bother."

"I do hope that David was deep in his book when I was talking about the Leths," said Lucy Morrow anxiously as the boy left the room. "You probably know that his parents—my brother Tracy and Madeline—are having the same trouble. He realizes it and is so sensitive. The look in his eyes almost breaks my heart. Their case is startlingly like Dick's and Lella's—too much money; too little to do. I brought David home with me for a few days while their latest fuss blows over but he is getting lonesome and will be wanting to go back before long. It's tragic."

At dinner that evening, David announced to his aunt and uncle that he would like to go home.

"Uncle Martin can drop me at the corner of our street and I will surprise father and mother. I am not feeling so well, and think I had better go."

It was hardly seven the next morning when the telephone rang, and the voice that came to Lucy was eager.

"It's Madeline, Lu. I—just couldn't wait to tell you. David was sick last night but he is much better. Tracy is holding him now and he is having his breakfast. It was so strange. We called the doctor and he couldn't find anything wrong, but he tossed from one side of the bed to the other and called for both of us all the time. Neither of us slept all night but he went to sleep shortly after twelve and slept soundly until six this morning. But Lucy, what do you suppose he said, just before he closed his eyes?"

"He said: 'If you love me and want to keep me, if you don't want me to be sick then you both must stay right here with me—all the time.' Oh, Lucy, just think—" and Madeline's voice broke in a sob.

"And now?" prompted her sister-in-law gently.

"Tracy and I have talked it over. We talked and talked by David's bed last night. And we realize we have been very selfish and wicked. I have known all along that I loved Tracy, and he says the same thing about me—we were so blind; so selfish; and it has taken our little son to make us see the truth. I am going to call the doctor and have him come in this morning to see him again."

"I don't think a doctor is necessary, Madeline dear. Don't spoil your new-found happiness—and David's—by calling in an outsider. David just needs his father and mother—and their love. And I am so happy, Madeline, for you all!"

On her way back upstairs to bed, Lucy Morrow whispered, smiling wickedly:

"Gossip! Blessed be thy name—Sometimes."

LIEUT. FRANK E. HAGAN

Discretion Was the Better Part

Nowadays Alexander Woolcott, well-known New York dramatic critic, Franklin P. Adams, otherwise "F. P. A.," conductor of "The Conning Tower" in the New York World and Harold Ross, editor of the sprightly weekly journal, the New Yorker, say pretty much what they please in print, with none to say them nay. But there was a time when such "freedom of the press" was denied them. That was when they were on the editorial staff of the Stars and Stripes, the newspaper for, of and by the soldiers of the A. E. F.

Of course the newspaper men on the Stars and Stripes enjoyed considerable latitude in what they might print. They could kid the war, kid themselves for fighting in the war and kid the enemy for making it necessary to fight it. As for kidding the "higher-ups," and that included anybody over the rank of colonel, well—the chief of the censorship and press section of the general staff at General Pershing's headquarters at Chantonnay was the "big boss" of the Stars and Stripes, in a "purely supervisory" capacity, of course.

The Stars and Stripes was strong for steamer headlines, especially on the sports page. Here are some samples: "Russia Benched; No More Weak Hitters." "Huns May Request Walvers on Kaiser" and, on April 19, "Big League Season Opens in Two Hemispheres." Came a night when Mr. Woolcott and Mr. Adams (for the first and last time) were entrusted with the make-up of the Stars and Stripes. They decided on a snappy page-one steamer, so—

But let Mr. Woolcott tell about it:

"We spent the entire evening speculating on the wisdom of our running a seven column headline across the front page, which we felt would both heighten the fame of the Stars and Stripes and give fathomless emotional satisfaction to many of its humbler readers. The headline, which, for editorial reasons complicated by personal petrology, we decided after all not to run, was 'Pershing Is a Big Stiff.'"

More than 73,000 miles in a new Ford

THE substantial worth of the new Ford is reflected in its good performance, economy and reliability. Its stamina and endurance are particularly apparent in sections where bad roads and severe weather put a heavy extra burden on the automobile.

In less than a year a new Ford Tudor Sedan has driven more than 73,000 miles over a difficult route. The operating cost per mile was very low and practically the only expense for repairs was for new piston rings and a new bearing for the generator.

The car carried an average load of 1200 pounds of mail and was driven 250 miles daily. "The Ford has never failed to go when I was ready," writes one of the three mail carriers operating the car. "The starter did the trick last winter even at 34 degrees below zero. The gas runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer whenever I have a bulky load."

Many other Ford owners report the same satisfactory performance. Every part has been made to endure—to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

An admirer gave Dr. Frederick W. Hodge of the Museum of the American Indian a bottle of Chinese rose wine. In a scientific spirit of investigation, Doctor Hodge poured a little of it in a glass and drank it. After he had dashed a pail of water down his throat, and the fire was under control, he looked at the label to see if he had happened to take sulphuric acid by mistake. Beside the label was pasted a set of directions in English. The directions read: "To drink, put one spoonful in glass of water," below that was another paragraph beginning: "For external use—"

I recently had the pleasure of talking with Vernon d'Arnalie and learned about singers from him. I never knew before, for example, that Jenny Lind is said to have had a voice that was none too good in the middle register, but which had higher notes that were as sweet and clear as bells; that Mario had a beautiful, but rather small tenor voice; that Adeline Patti still retained at the age of seventy some of the wonderful notes that made her famous and that at fifteen was the greatest singer in the world; and all sorts of things concerning modern singers. It always is interesting to talk with some one who knows his subject and it was all the more interesting to talk to Mr. d'Arnalie, because he was singing in opera in Italy in the days when I was loafing over there.

A young woman, born and bred in New York, visited some friends who have a farm. Her chief delight was finding the nests of hens which wandered from the boxes provided for them and laid eggs in outlying places. She tracked a couple to the barn and was triumphant concerning her sleuthing. One day her host declared that he had heard a hen cackling out in the woods and said he believed it had a nest there. This was enough for the city girl. She demanded the direction and all available information. Industrious searching the woods in question, she came upon a nest in which were piled four dozen eggs. This was by far the biggest find of the season, and she took somewhat more credit than Christopher Columbus, who only made an egg stand on end. It was some time before the visitor learned enough concerning hens to realize that they do not pile up their eggs and that the nest was a plant.

The cows also engaged the city girl's attention. They were gentle animals, but she so alarmed one of them, by trying to tie an old sheet around it, in a humane effort to shield it from the flies, that it almost had to be lassoed at milking time.

As every one knows, Eddie Rickenbacker was, before the war, in the automobile racing game. He went to France as the driver of General Pershing's car. John N. Wheeler asked him how he happened to take the job. "I went in as General Pershing's driver," replied Rickenbacker, "because I wanted to be transferred to the air service and thought this was the quickest means to accomplish it, but when I asked for the transfer, the general didn't seem to favor the idea."

"How did you finally get the transfer?" asked Wheeler. "Well," said Rickenbacker, "I gave General Pershing a couple of rides that convinced him that where I belonged was in an airplane."

This is a dog story, which my informant swears is true. A couple living in Merion, Pa., bought a dog, but couldn't keep it at home. The animal would disappear regularly every morning and just as surely return sometime after noon. The couple got tired of this and finally sent the dog to board at some kennels, where they thought it might be broken of the habit of running away. One day a conductor and a brakeman came to the house.

"Did that dog of yours get killed?" they inquired. The family explained what had happened. "Well," said the trainmen, "that dog used to come to the station every morning and sneak aboard the 9:30 for Philadelphia. Finally, it got so we knew him, let him ride and petted him. When we got to the city, the dog always would disappear for an hour, but never failed to show up in time to catch us when we came back at 11:30. We missed him, wondered what had happened to him, and found he belonged to you. So we just came to ask if the dog had been run over or anything."

New Idea in Baby Culture Omaha.—The latest wrinkle in baby culture, according to Mrs. Ted Savicky, is for the mother to eat a handful of walnuts each day for several weeks before the baby is born. This is to insure the baby good teeth. Ronald Lee, sixteen-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Savicky, bears out her theory. He cut his upper right molar ten days after birth.

Fish Provide Jobs Wareham, Mass.—Wareham, one of the biggest scallop producing points along the New England coast, helped solve the local unemployment problem during recent months by granting a bounty of $1 a bushel on star fish, which prey on scallops.

"Dracula" Is Held Over At Paramount-Public Majestic

Due to popular demand, the picture "Dracula" which thrilled capacity audiences at the Paramount-Public Majestic theatre in Perth Amboy during its four day run this week, has been held over and is playing today and tomorrow. Feature presentations at the Majestic are generally changed on Thursday, but in order not to disappoint hundreds of patrons, the management decided to hold "Dracula" over for an extra three day run.

Great Pitching Won Over Uncle Jim

By RUBY GRUBER

JOAN CRANDELL slowed the car to a stop and glanced quickly at the gray-haired man beside her. The red light changed to green and she slid the car in motion. By the set of his shoulders and the lines around his mouth, Joan decided Uncle Jim Crandell was in ill humor.

Jim Crandell and his niece, Joan, were the last of the Crandell family. They lived in the big old house; Uncle Jim sternly trying to dominate the lively and lovely Joan; and she in turn trying to coax him into agreeing with her on more modern ideas than his own. As a result, they were usually in a heated debate, which they both enjoyed.

"Uncle Jim, let's stop at the ball game—we are just in time," Joan glanced at her wrist, watch. "You don't want to see a ball game; you are running after that good-for-nothing ball player, Bert Franklin," granted Uncle Jim, giving his cigar a tighter clamp.

"Why don't you like Bert? He makes a good salary, and he is jolly and likes me a 'little bit,'" modestly admitted Joan. "Bah! A ball player—kids' play—no better than a stage actor—buy a ticket to get in to see them act!" Again, the innocent cigar caught the punishment.

"Uncle Jim, I just happened to think, Bert won't be playing today. He pitched a game yesterday. Joan's eyes were shining, eagerly, as she turned for an answer. "Then, we will go. I enjoyed ball games till that young fool turned me against them," Jim Crandell grunted. "Be good for my rheumatism to sit in the warm afternoon sun," refusing to agree that he wanted to see the game.

As the usher showed them to their seats, Joan suppressed a knowing little smile—as if the width of the ball diamond could separate Bert from her!

Joan keenly watched the players in practice, hoping to see Bert Franklin. "Oh, look! The home team is coming out on the field," Joan, excitedly, spoke.

"What do you want me to do?—stop them? That's what they get paid for, ain't it?" This quieted Joan's attempt at conversation with her uncle. For eight innings she sat silent and again she watched the home team take their places in the field; the score board read three for the home team and two for the visiting players.

Satisfied, she sat back. The pitcher had been throwing wonderful ball. Three up and three out, then home, she thought. Now that the game was almost through, she was anxious to get home.

The crack of the bat against the ball caused Joan to drop her powder puff and take renewed interest in the game. The runner was rounding second, started to slide, thought better of it, and returned to second. Limply, Joan sat.

The next man up stood defiantly at the home plate. The pitcher threw the ball. Again that crack of the bat and a second man was on the bases. Joan dug her nails in the palm of her hand; Uncle Jim was beating his knuckles on the railing.

"Another hit and we are done for!" Uncle Jim gasped, his eyes never leaving the game. "That's a pinch hitter coming in," Joan spoke, hopefully. "Home-Run Tommy" they call him.

A swift grounder dashed from the bat, filling the bases; a moan went up from the crowd. Joan sat on the edge of the chair. They were taking the pitcher out, and a man with a megaphone was shouting: "Bert Franklin now pitching!"

Joan turned to her uncle. He immediately changed his interested facial expression to one of indifference. Bert walked to the center of the diamond; a few preliminary throws and he stood facing the batter. Three times his arm went up in that swinging motion, and three times the umpire called: "Strike!"

Uncle Jim lost all pretended indifference now; he was shouting: "Atta boy, Bert! Come on, kid! Just two more times like that! You can do it, Bert!" Uncle Jim pleaded unmindful of the happy Joan looking in wonder at her relative.

The next man up to bat swung at the first one, hit it up, the ball bounded in the air. Bert, like a flash, was under it. He was waiting for it; he had it safely in his glove.

Again Bert Franklin put three swift strikes over the center of the plate, and the last man was out. A deafening roar went up from the fans.

Uncle Jim called to Joan, as she dashed from the box. Loudly he called, far more loudly than was necessary. "Oh, Joan, tell Bert Franklin we will wait for him and drive him home!" Uncle Jim proudly got to his feet and faced the awed crowd around him.

"O. K., Uncle Jim. Will meet you in the car!"

Despite High Finance. Two Engineers. The Pendulum Swings.

In spite of objections from highest financial authority, including Secretary Mellon, the House approved overwhelmingly, 363 to 39, the bill to let veterans borrow one-half the value of their war certificates. If they all borrow one-half, Uncle Sam will have to pay out more than fifteen hundred million dollars, and high finance says that will be ruinous.

As a rule, "Big Money," which means ability, should receive respectful attention, as does the captain of a ship. But high finance is sometimes mistaken. Big bankers said the Federal Reserve system would ruin the country, because it kept a few men from controlling all the money. They were wrong. Without the Federal Reserve this country would have had a black panic, long ago. They may be wrong in their idea that handing a billion dollars to those that need it, and earned it, will ruin us now.

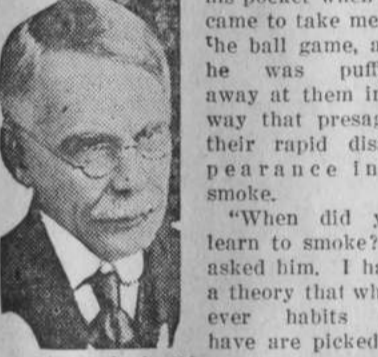

In his introduction to the writings of George Washington, prepared for next year's 200th anniversary, President Hoover says Washington's engineering ability has never been fully appreciated.

Washington's methods were surprisingly modern. He reclaimed the Dismal Swamp in Doing Disagreeable Things

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

The colonel is rather a hard smoker. He had a half dozen dark colored, heavy cigars in his pocket when he came to take me to the ball game, and he was puffing away at them in a way that presaged their rapid disappearance into smoke. "When did you learn to smoke?" I asked him. I have a theory that whatever habits we have are picked up pretty early in life. "I suppose I was fifteen," he said. "It didn't come easily to me. Gracious! how sick it made me. Over and over again I thought I should die, but I persisted; I kept at it; I was determined to smoke like a man, and finally I conquered."

I could see that he had. "Now, if anyone had set for me the task of learning to smoke," he went on, "if father, for instance, had insisted that I go through the physical agony incident to the acquiring of such an objectionable habit, I should have left home, or reported him to the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or done something desperate. It is unbelievable how much pain and hard work and generally disagreeable experience a young person will endure when he himself chooses the disagreeable task, and how he revolts when the job is wished on him by some one else."

We had reached the ball game by Virginia, was adviser and engineer on the Potomac and James River Canal and first to advise a combined highway and waterway from the Atlantic Coast to the Ohio River.

The President describes his predecessor as "the most potent human intellectual force in the firmament of American intellect."

George Washington was the first engineer to occupy the White House. President Hoover is the second. A war with England interfered with Washington's engineering activities. A war with bootleggers interfered with Hoover's.

Civilization expresses horror of religious fundamentalists in Turkey. They want their old Mohammedan religion restored, veils on women's faces, fezzes on men's heads.

Twenty-seven of these religious protesters were hanged recently and it is expected others will be hanged as rapidly as they are caught. Mustapha Kemal does not believe in half-way measures.

Thus the pendulum swings the other way. Old-fashioned religions have killed, burned, boiled, tortured hundreds of thousands under the most revolting conditions, as when Dr. S. Servetus was burned by order of Calvin in Switzerland. Damp wood was used to make the fire burn slowly and prolong the agony. Probably the plan miscarried, since damp wood, producing much smoke, would suffocate the victim before burning really began.

this time. It was a hot afternoon in October and the sun was pouring down on the bleachers and on the field. It was a rough game, and occasionally a man would be laid out or taken out with the breath knocked out of him, or a bunched eye, or a fractured bone, or a contusion of one member or another. They came out of the game with reluctance; they hung their heads in apparent shame; at times, even, they were weeping because they were not permitted to endure more pain. They took pride and delight in their bruises.

"If we forced our children into games of this sort," the Colonel remarked to me, "we should be considered savages by our neighbors, and if we refuse to let them go in they consider us cruel."

In front of the bleachers, toiling, sweating, putting themselves through the most exhausting physical contortions, were the cheer leaders. They were yelling until they were black in the face; they were leaping into the air; they were turning hand springs and engaging in the hardest sort of work for two hours or more.

"One of those wild Indians out there is my son," said the Colonel, pointing to a red faced perspiring youth whose strenuous physical exertions I had been following. "He follows the team wherever it goes just for the privilege of working like that and if I should ask him to wash the car or to walk down town to do an errand for me, he would grow pale with exhaustion. Aren't folks funny!"

Keep Lenses And Windshields Clean

Driver Imperils Own Life By Operating Car With Dirty Or Muddy Glass.

Calling attention to recent serious accidents in which the blame was placed on blinding headlights, the Keystone Automobile Club of New Jersey urges upon motorists the necessity not only of maintaining their lights in proper focus, mud and grit.

"It is not generally appreciated by the average driver," says a statement by the club, "that he contributes greatly to the glare of approaching headlights by permitting his windshield to remain covered with an accumulation of dust, streaked with rain spots.

"The effect of dirt on the windshield is to refract the light rays in a manner tending to dazzle or blind the driver. Motorists who have observed the difference in driving conditions with the windshield spotless invariably keep a chamois skin handy for polishing the glass before driving at night.

"It is equally true that no matter how carefully lights are focused, they will discomfort for approaching motorists if the lenses are coated with dust.

"It is little enough to expect motorists to keep their lenses shined for the benefit of other users of the highway. The driver who imperils his own life by driving with a begrimed windshield has only himself to blame if disaster befalls him through the cause."

EQUIPMENT

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

We came upon a group of Italian soldiers one day last summer as we were riding through the Austrian Tyrol, wheeling along on bicycles as if they were merely out for a picnic or a pleasure excursion of some sort. The curious thing that attracted our attention was that they were fully equipped — rifles, knapsacks, helmets, canteens, everything that they would need if they were going into real battle. They were almost weighted down with their equipment.

"What's the idea?" I asked. "They don't know what they are going to come up against," some one replied. "They are taught to expect the unexpected and to be ready for any emergency which may arise."

It's very much like that in life. None of us knows what exigencies he is going to meet in life, what unexpected circumstances may arise, and just what mental or physical equipment he may need. The best policy then is to accumulate and carry along with us daily a pretty good assortment. Mother used to repeat to us children the wise saying that if you'd keep a thing for seven years, no matter how useless it might seem, you'd be sure to find some opportunity to put it to good use.

Nancy always carries an umbrella when she goes off for the day, or even a few hours.

"What are you carrying that thing for?" I ask. "The sun is shining and there isn't the slightest likelihood of its raining."

"Well, it may," she replies, "and I want to be prepared." And sometimes it does.

I had four years of Latin in order to get into college. I tolled through Caesar's commentaries and Cicero's orations and followed Verill from Troy to Rome, wondering all the time what it was about. I increased my vocabulary, perhaps, I trained my mind a little, but otherwise I could see little practical use in the study.

I was in Spain five years ago traveling from Madrid to Seville in a stuffy compartment of a dirty train shut up with four Spaniards who apparently did not know a word of any language but their own. We made a struggle at communication with no effect. One of the Spaniards was a priest, however, and it finally occurred to me that we had had far more drill in Latin than I had ever had. I raked up my latent knowledge of that ancient language and tried a few sentences on him. We were at once akin. We had found a medium of communication and we got on beautifully for the rest of the journey.

The substance of what I have had in mind is that when we start out on this journey of life it is well to take along a pretty thorough equipment. Whatever knowledge we can accumulate, whatever experience, whatever insight into human nature will eventually be of service to us. I don't know just what those Italian soldiers ran into before they got back to camp, but very likely they found use for their equipment.

Effective Plan to Get Automobile Out of Mud

When my auto seemed hopelessly sunk in a mud hole and the only salvation to get a nearby farmer to pull me out with a team, I remembered that I had an old pair of skid chains under the back seat, which I then proceeded to use to advantage. Two fence posts, found beside the road, were laid under the running board on each side and the chains fastened over the forward end, as indicated in the illustration, leaving the chain hooks extending toward the rear wheel. My regular chains were already on the rear wheels, and the hooks of the first chains were attached to them, where the posts touched the tires. Putting the car in low gear raised the wheel vertically, and then it came forward on the posts. In doing this, of course, the pressure on the back part of the posts threw the forward ends up against the underside of the running boards. This method has saved me quite a sum of money so far, as I have used it time and again.—Bernard McMann, East Moline, Ill., in the Popular Mechanics Monthly.

Ancient Indian Pit
An Indian pit, believed to date from the Algonkian period of 1,500 years ago, was uncovered at Willow Point, near Binghamton, N. Y. It has not been determined whether the pit was used for feasts, or for cremation. The skeleton of an Indian girl also was unearthed.

Wolf Trapper Tread 48 Hours by Feroocious Pack

Bayfield, Wis.—Surrounded by a pack of wolves which he had lured to his trail by means of fish bait, Martin Kane, fisherman and trapper of Presque Isle, one of the largest of the Apostle group in Lake Superior, was forced to spend over 48 hours in a tree. Kane had trapped six wolves near his cabin, but was unsuccessful in luring more wolves to other nearby traps. Hoping to attract the wolves to a different set of traps, he smeared fish on his boots and began tramping through the woods, expecting that several hours would elapse before the animals picked up his trail. He carried no weapon. The fish scent lured the wolves sooner than he expected and before long he realized a whole pack was close behind him. As darkness approached the animals became bolder, and finally Kane was compelled to climb a tree. Apparently realizing they had the trapper at their mercy, the wolves howled about the tree. Finally hunger drove Kane to the ground. He broke a limb off the tree and waiting a chance ran 100 yards and jumped into Lake Superior. He waded along the shore, eventually reaching his cabin.

Mourner Claimed by Death
When a funeral procession at Lisburn, Ireland, arrived at the graveyard it was found that one of the mourners, riding in a carriage alone, had died on the way.

Conscience Stricken

Thieves Put Hams Back

Luray, Va. — Conscience-stricken thieves returned to Calvin Sours of Jewell Hollow, this county, recently, two hams they had stolen a night before. Mr. Sours had just butchered two 300-pound porkers. That night two of the hams were stolen.

The following night Mr. Sours sat up with his gun to guard the remainder of the meat. Mrs. Sours, who was out at the barn, saw two men prowling around. She called to them to return the meat they had stolen.

Next morning Mr. Sours saw a bag propped up against the side of the barn held in place by two fence rails. The bag was found to contain the missing hams.

Bottle Cap Pops Into

His Throat; Almost Dies

Kansas City.—Putting the neck of a wine bottle in his mouth almost proved fatal to Ross Duncan of Richards, Mo., when the cap blew off and lodged in his throat.

He was at a party with his girl friend, he said, when the bottle was presented. It began to fizz. He put it in his mouth to stop the fizzing. The cap blew off.

All efforts of physicians to dislodge it proved futile for several hours. It was finally forced into his stomach.

Wrecked by Mouse

Augusta, Maine.—When a mouse ran up Herman Patterson's trouser leg he lost control of his automobile, which was wrecked. The driver escaped serious injury.

Cuban National Park
