Ted Souder is a respected authority on the transformative power of having a digital mindset in the business world. As one of Google's earliest employees, Ted spent over 20 years helping to write one of the greatest business success stories of all time. Today, he shares the best practices of the Google Playbook with businesses, governments, and non-profit organizations across the globe.

In addition to his role at Google, Ted is also a board director at 1871, one of the world's top technology incubators, and a former board director at the Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce, one of the oldest and largest chambers in the United States. He is also a part-owner of the Monthly Barometer, a boutique geopolitical advisory firm based in Chamonix, France.

Throughout his entire career, Ted has been spreading the good news about how technology can be a game-changer in the workplace, boardroom, non-profit, and in your personal life. With his vast knowledge and expertise, he is truly a visionary leader who inspires and empowers others to embrace the digital age with confidence and enthusiasm.
