

IDEAS TO SPEED UP PLAY

Slow play is usually a habit that we as golfers acquire over time. Or it's the result of we as golfers never having been taught proper golf etiquette.

But as we often take a look at other golfers on the course and notice the things they do to slow down play, so should we take a look at ourselves. When we do take an honest look at ourselves, we often discover we're doing some of the same things to slow down play that we're complaining about others doing.

Before we run down a list of suggestions for speeding up play, it's important to note that many of these tips have nothing to do with rushing your play, but rather with simply being ready to play, and with using common sense and good etiquette on the course.

The bottom line is, as soon as it's your turn to play, you should be ready to step right up and make the stroke.

Here are some tips for speeding up slow play on the golf course:

- When two players are riding in a cart, drive the cart to the first ball and drop off the first player with his choice of clubs. The second player should proceed in the cart to his ball. After the first player hits his stroke, he should begin walking toward the cart as the second golfer is playing.
- Use the time you spend getting to your ball to think about the next shot - the yardage, the club selection. When you reach your ball you'll need less time to figure out the shot.
- Begin reading the green and lining up putts as soon as you reach the green. Don't wait until it's your turn to putt to start the process of reading the green. Do it as soon as you reach the green so that when it's your turn you can step right up and putt.
- Never delay making a stroke because you're having a conversation with a playing partner. Put the conversation on hold, make your stroke, then pick up the conversation again.
- If using a cart on a cart-path-only day, take more than one club with you when you walk from the cart to your ball. Getting to the ball only to find out you don't have the right club is a huge time-waster on the golf course.
- After putting out, don't stand around the green chatting or take any practice putting strokes. Leave the green quickly so the group behind can play. If there is no group behind, then a few practice putts are fine.
- When leaving the green and returning to your cart, don't stand there fussing with your putter or other clubs. Get in the cart, drive to the next tee, and then put away your putter
- Likewise, mark your scorecard after reaching the next tee, not while lingering on or near the just-completed green.
- When using a cart, never park the cart in front of the green. Park it only to the side or behind the green. And don't mark your scorecard while sitting in the cart next to the green (do it at the next tee). These practices open up the green for the group behind.
- If you're the type who likes to offer tips to playing partners, save it for the driving range- or only do so on the course when you're sure that you're not slowing down play (and sure that you're not annoying your partners!).

- Don't ask your playing partners to help you search for a lost ball - unless you are absolutely certain there is time for them to do so (e.g., there is no group behind waiting). If the course is crowded, your partners should continue moving forward, not slow things down further by stopping to help your search.
- On the tee, pay attention to your partners' drives. If they lose sight of their ball, you can help direct them to it and avoid any searching.
- When waiting on the tee for the group in front to clear the airway, don't be so strict about order of play. Let the short hitter - who can't reach the group ahead anyway - go ahead and hit.
- Work on building a concise pre-shot routine. If your pre-shot routine is a lengthy one, it's probably in your best interests to shorten it anyway. Limit practice strokes to one or two at the most.
- Don't bother marking lag putts- go ahead and putt out if it's short enough and you won't be trampling on another player's line.
- Leave your cell phone in the car.
- Carry extra tees, ball markers and an extra golf ball in your pockets so you never have to return to your golf bag to find one when needed.
- When chipping around the green, carry both the club you'll be chipping with plus your putter so you don't have to return to the bag.
- Try playing ready golf, where order of play is based on who's ready, not on who's away.

I know many, if not all of us, have been playing golf for a long time and it will be a challenge to change our routine and how we have learned the game. But, make no mistake, this is a serious problem. Having Fox Hollow allowing us to play on their course as a club is a privilege. One that cannot be taken for granted. All of us want to enjoy our time on the course, and what better way than never having to wait on the group in front of us.
