

Parents took to the streets to peacefully challenge SOGI123 Gender Ideology in the K-12 school system all across the country on September 20th. United in solidarity for parental rights!

Regardless of what you may have heard from select legacy media outlets, a new survey suggests that these Canadian parents are not part of any radical fringe group that is dislocated from current thinking or political norms. They are the majority.

Predictably, it was labelled “hate” and “anti-2SLGBTQIA+” by activists, institutions, labour unions, corporations and media outlets that have adopted neo-Marxist Critical Queer Theory beliefs. At this same time, it was praised by ordinary parents, religious-faith groups, and even many LGB & Trans-identified people. It reached Federal politics, with Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and Opposition Leader, Pierre Poilievre weighing in on X, formerly Twitter.

The HDSB released its own September 20th Protest Statement, which subtly suggests parental voices will “harm” individuals, instead of teaching that democracy requires open inquiry, listening to different views and engaging in good faith dialogue about complex issues.

Many individuals and organizations have issued statements to counter the mainstream narrative, like this one from the Muslim Association of Canada.

Students First Ontario parents believe that School Boards are failing the public when they refuse to engage the legitimate concerns of parents, who are ultimately responsible (as per the Family Law Act) for their children’s upbringing. Most parents made it abundantly clear that while they may oppose SOGI123 Gender Ideology in schools, they respect the rights of all Canadians regardless of their sexual orientation or beliefs.

CALL TO ACTION!

- Contact your HDSB Trustee & School Administrators and elected officials and share your concerns about this ideology and how parents concerns are being framed
- Discuss your legitimate concerns with your child’s Teacher and School Principal

Engage with Media that Challenges the Mainstream Narrative

- “Wednesday’s protest is a symptom of deep dissatisfaction with schools”
School ‘inclusion’ excludes parents. No wonder they marched.
- “...thousands of Canadians took to the streets to show the world they are not going to accept the indoctrination of their children into gender-identity ideology”
Canadian Parents Will Not Be Silenced
- “...the queer activists...do not speak for me”
I’m a lesbian and the queer activists don’t speak for me
- “As the day of protest came and went, commentators were quick to confirm that hate was on full display. Had I not been present amongst the protesters, I might believe them as well. The reality was much different, much closer to the opposite of the progressive narrative.”
I’m transgender and I felt welcomed at parents’ rights protests
- “...I don’t want to live in a society that gaslights its own citizens.”
Canadian Parents \(Finally\) Push Back Against Gender Cultism

Think for yourself. Engage with different points of view. Stay grounded in reality.
And keep speaking up for kids...

We are stronger together!