

Class of 2015 dedication

Mr. Benjamin Rioux

Mr. Ben Rioux worked for MSAD #33 for three years, teaching history classes . As class advisor, he instantly developed a close bond with the Class of 2015 . Despite the torture we put him through, somehow, he was able to stay sane and even managed to teach our class some history. Most importantly, Mr. Rioux shared with us life lessons that we will never forget. In the few years we were with him, he was an inspiring mentor and incredible advisor! Prior to working at Wisdom, he worked for Senator Susan Collins and is currently employed by Quigley's Outdoors in Fort Kent. In the little spare time he has, Mr. Rioux enjoys fly fishing, hunting ducks, geese, and bucks.

Below: Mr. Rioux and "his team" getting ready to compete on the last day of school!

Below: Mr. Rioux showing his school spirit by cheering for the varsity boys during their soccer playoff game.

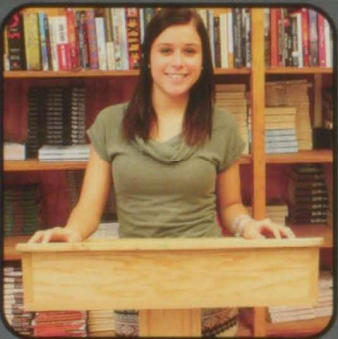

Class of 2015

There are many people we meet in our lives, but only a few will make a lasting impression on our minds and hearts. It is these people that we will think of often and who will always remain important to us as true friends.

From our first day in Pre-K until our Senior Year, we have always been there for each other. Some classmates have come and gone. We have grown together, played together and learned together. In June, we enter a new chapter, in our book of life. Looking back, on our final months together, may we savor the memories and times shared. We have worked hard, and will one day achieve everything we want...just like we promised.

The mediocre teacher tells. The good teacher explains. The superior teacher demonstrates. The great teacher inspires."

-William Arthur Ward

This year, the senior class decided to create an "Inspiration page" for a teacher who is a source of inspiration and support for many, if not all, students in the senior class.

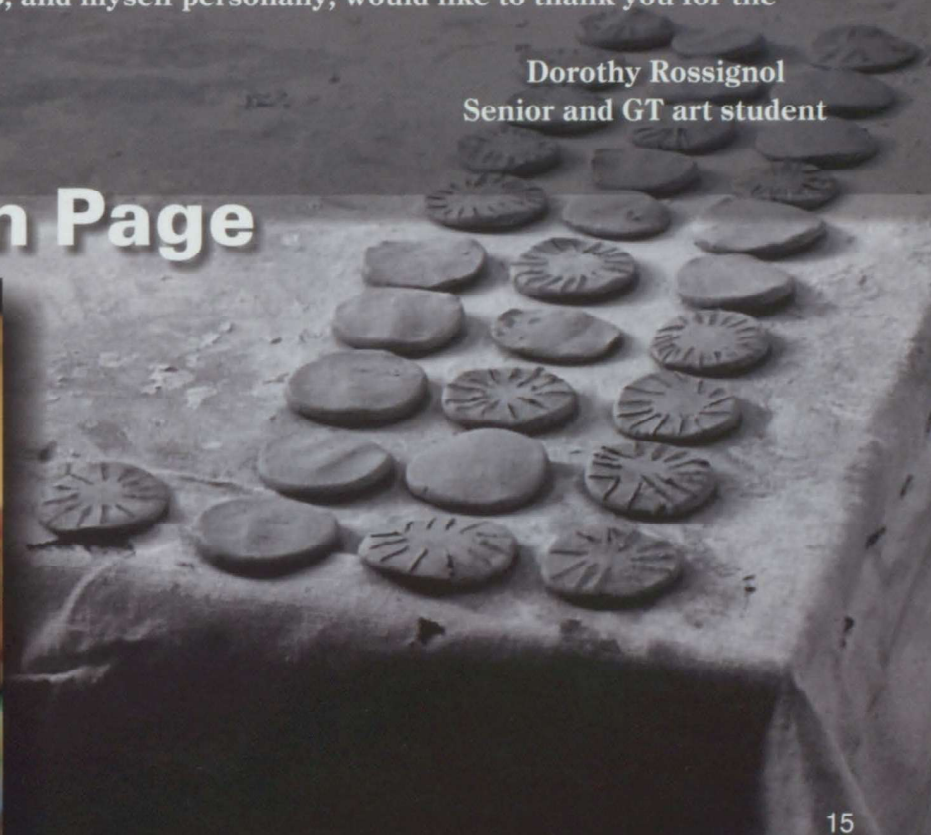

Mrs. Theresa Cerceo was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1976, and was raised alongside five other siblings, all of which are now artists (among other things). She began teaching in 2003 at the age of 27. In 2005, she married her husband, who is also an artist. In August of 2006, when this year's senior class was only in third grade, Mrs. Cerceo began teaching in the MSAD 33 school system. Mrs. Cerceo is an energetic and passionate teacher. She made her love for art contagious. She inspires students to be enthusiastic and passionate, not only as a teacher with a love for art, but also as a mentor, supporting students with her empathy and time. Her honest and constructive criticism pushes students to use their imagination and express themselves through art.

To the senior class, especially those in the "Gifted and Talented" art program, Mrs. Cerceo quickly became an anchor in their lives. She is a teacher that has been there from (nearly) the start, following us along on our journey of self-discovery, often lending an ear when necessary, and offering advice when asked. The stories from her experiences that she shares shatters the illusion that teachers are different from any other. She is a humble example of what to do, (and sometimes what not to do). Teaching us to forgive ourselves, to be a tough critic, but never to be cruel to anyone, including yourself. One of her lessons was much like this; "If a man draws a circle, and it is undoubtedly perfect, the only interest it will generate is, 'Well that's nice. It's a circle. Must have been traced.' But, if the circle is imperfect; perhaps a shaky line or a lump where there shouldn't be, people will admire it for longer, wondering who the artist was that put the time to do his best to draw a nearly perfect circle." Through art, students learn about the beauty of human nature, human form, and the human mind; each a perfectly flawed canvas, which life and experience will paint.

Mrs. Cerceo uses her wisdom of art and expression to teach her students both the importance of color in a work, as well as accepting your faults as part of the canvas that paints the picture of who you are. For this, Mrs. Cerceo, the Class of 2015, and myself personally, would like to thank you for the time, knowledge, and love you invest in us.
