Hello from the Library! We hope you have been enjoying our weekly stories from Storyline On-Line. This week, we wanted to offer a little Spring Break treat. There are many opportunities to listen and watch stories on-line. Here are a few things to try!

1. Log on to: savethechildren.org/savewithstories

This is a site that raises money for children who need help with obtaining their daily meals that are usually provided by the schools. A number of actors have volunteered to read stories. Give it a try!

2. audible.stories.com offers many free stories

3. Bestselling author, Mo Willems, (Don't Let the Pigeon Drive the Bus etc.) is teaching kids drawing on YouTube. It is called Lunch Doodles. The sessions take place every weekday at 1:00 p.m. EST. The video sessions are shared on the Kennedy Center's YouTube account as well as on their website.
