The Importance of Triangulation Workshop

It is essential that all areas of fostering, from keeping children as safe as possible to supporting carers to learn and grow in their role is considered, has meaning, is relevant to each area of practice. Without this what we do becomes a “tick box” exercise, we do it because we “have to” or “told to do it” - this has no meaning, it has no emphasis on being a “live” process that “connects” one thing to the next - informs

Why you should attend this workshop:

Because everything we do should inform what we do next

Because everything we do should have meaning, importance and relevance

In this workshop we will explore together the importance of triangulation - a 360 approach, this will lead us to being able to demonstrate stronger evidence of why we do what we do, how we make informed decisions and have oversight.

Hope you can come along
