

Sarah Gray Announces Candidacy for Tulsa County Commissioner

TULSA – Today, Sarah Gray (Cherokee, Muscogee, Kiowa), a dedicated community advocate and communications professional, formally announced her candidacy for Tulsa County Commissioner District 2, promising to bring the community with her into the County Commissioner’s office.

Gray holds a B.A. in political science and a M.A. in strategic communications and is the owner of ST Comms Shop, a local communications and public relations firm specializing in civic engagement, public and media relations, and Tribal affairs. She is the proud mom of two public school students.

A longtime resident of Tulsa County, Gray is committed to representing the voices of everyday, working class families. Gray’s campaign is focused on making sure Tulsa County is a place where folks feel respected, are included in decisions, and are confident they are the priority of their elected officials.

Gray’s upbringing was deeply impacted by her access—or lack thereof—to public resources and social services. From experiencing homelessness as a teenager and navigating non-traditional educational paths to ultimately becoming a first-generation graduate degree holder, her journey is a testament to what is possible when a community leans in to support those most in need. This experience has fueled her lifelong commitment to breaking down barriers for others whenever and wherever she can.

“I’m bringing a multifaceted perspective to the table – I’m not just a single mom, a renter (and aspiring homeowner), or a small business owner. I’m someone who has navigated immense challenges and triumphs, and I believe this diversity of experience uniquely positions me to understand and address the needs of our community.

“In the commissioner’s office, I’ll draw upon my expertise in communications and public relations, my deep connections to the communities most underserved throughout Tulsa County, and my unwavering commitment to building a government that reflects our values and priorities. Together, we’ll create a Tulsa County where everyone has a seat at the table and a voice in the decisions that shape our future.”
