A Note From Your Padre

“Grieving our losses”

Comrades, friends, and those who I have not yet had the pleasure and privilege of meeting, who take the time to read this monthly submission, I want you to know again it is an honour to serve our Veterans, the men and women who continue to serve in our Armed Forces, our First Responders, and those who are part of our Legion. Thank you all for your past and present service.

I readily admit these days that I/we are all feeling a sense of deep loss, not only to our Branch of the RCL, but a personal loss. And, while this article will not be all about Vicki Torrie, I will say that her death, prompted me to write this article for our newsletter. I recognize some of the things I will be saying here, I will say again at the Memorial Service for Vicki.

I was introduced to Vicki on or about Nov. 11, 2016, following my first official event as the newly minted Padre for our Branch, having been asked to serve by our then and current president, Mac Torrie. It was not long after that I began to become aware that Vicki was not only well known to many if not all at our Branch, but she was also very well liked and appreciated. Vicki, I found had a warm heart, and gave of herself to both people and tasks she took on unselfishly for the betterment of Kingsway Legion. I learned early on that she was incredibly committed to seeing our branch not only succeed but to flourish. But Vicki was not only devoted to the Legion, where she served in a variety of areas, she was my friend and your friend. I could continue on in my tribute to her, but suffice it to say that all of us who knew her even briefly are forced to walk our own personal journeys of grief. And, no one more so that our friend, and Vicki’s soul mate Mac, our current president, who is on a journey all too familiar for many of you, and one we would never choose.

As you are likely aware I officiate often at Funeral and Memorial Services, and I will again have that honour at Vicki’s Memorial Service. Please allow me to share with you some words on the topic of grief. Someone has said, life can go on pretty much normal, when you lose a trinket, but it can never and will never be the same when you lose a TREASURE.” When a loved one, be it a spouse, child, sibling, a parent, a dear friend passes away, we lose a treasure, and that loss has an effect on us that we can’t even imagine The journey of grief is long, it is difficult and it is incredibly painful, and yet through no fault of the ones left behind, we are forced to walk that journey.

And maybe, just maybe during these difficult days, we all need the permission to grieve in our own unique ways. “one size does not fit all,” as an old ad once had us believe. As a former Police Officer, I learned a valuable lesson during a brutal murder investigation. Rightly so, the spouse, husband in this case needed to be a suspect, but that is where the lesson began. Mr. H. returned home to find his wife and one daughter dead from a gunshot. He had been away at an auction sale. The prime investigator (which was not me) made some error in his judgements.

When Mr. H. displayed almost no emotion, the conclusion was arrived at that he must have done it, and decisions were made based on that non display of emotion. The officer was dead wrong, and the real offender was soon identified and captured.

A Note From Your Padre

Me; I learned a valuable lesson from this error in judgement, never, ever, mistake the lack of emotion, or for that matter the over-display of emotion, to cause me to make the determination of how deep the grief someone experiences following the death of a loved one. I learned and it has served me well for many years now, that grief is that feeling that someone reached into your chest and pulled out a piece of your heart. It hurts and it hurts badly, and to some degree we almost feel, this is never going to end. And, to some degree that is true. Someone wrote these words:

Poem – Grief, author unknown.

Grief never ends but it changes. It is a passage not a place to stay. The sense of loss must give way, if we are to value, the life that was lived. Grief is not a sign of weakness. Nor are tears a sign of weakness, or are they a lack of faith. They are the price we pay for loving someone.

So, Comrades, as we walk our personal journey of grief, for when losses come our way, and they will, lets be patient with ourselves, giving ourselves permission to feel, and let's be patient with those who are walking their personal journeys. The writer Leanne Friesen, in her book, "GRIEVING ROOM," reminds us to: "Give your grief all the room it needs." I certainly agree with that statement.

Someone once asked Dr. Bill Webster, (a writer whose quotes I often use) How long does Grief Last? His response was quick and to the point, "it always lasts longer than the people who haven't gone through it, think it should."

Can I share a couple of myths about the grief journey that we regularly believe are true?

1. Remain Strong – Hold it together, be strong. No, don't try to be brave, allow others to carry you when the need is there.
2. My Loved one would not want me to cry – think about for a moment, maybe they would want you to cry. And, besides there is no shame in tears, they are the cleansing river of the soul.

In our grief, we need something or someone bigger than ourselves to help in that journey we must travel. The words of Jesus ring out loud and clear, 2000 plus years after He spoke them; Matthew 10:28-30

Then Jesus said, "Come to me, all of you who are weary and carry heavy burdens, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you. Let me teach you, because I am humble and gentle at heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For my yoke is easy to bear, and the burden I give you is light."
