President's Message

I was delighted to speak with Canadian Armiger Bruce McAlpine (now of Illinois) recently. The Canadian Arms of Lt. General Duncan Alastair McAlpine passed to Bruce from his father. Bruce has given his support to our cause, and we will proudly display his Arms on our banner and website.

I have heard from many that will be at the AGM in Scotland. It should be a great time to see everyone and take in the beauty of the countryside. As there are no Highland Games in the Kilmartin area, we will be taking several tours of the Kilmartin Glen, and over to the ancient burial ground of the MacAlpine Kings at Iona. Historian Bill Potter will be joining us and will give several interesting lectures. We will also have a special treat with Patricia Roberts once again playing her clarsach and singing.

In addition to the tours and kinship during the event, there are several business issues to attend to, including the election of officers, a few changes to our Constitution and other matters.

The Clan MacAlpine Society 2014 Annual Meeting has been timed to allow those who are interested to attend the grand events celebrating the 700th Anniversary of the Battle of Bannockburn. If you are thinking of attending, tickets and information can be found at: www.bannockburnlive.com/tickets

It is noteworthy that in this issue you can see Clan MacAlpine Society activity from Sweden to Nevada to Hawaii, along with preparations for Scotland.

In kinship,

Michael T McAlpin

Celebrating Robert Burns

Burns' Supper, Stockholm 2014.

Submitted by Finn Alpin

As usual, the annual Burns' Supper was held on the Saturday closest to the Birthday of Robert Burns. A rare treat that it actually fell on the 25th January this year. The Caledonian Society of Sweden has held the Annual Burns' Supper at the Officers Mess of the Royal Dragoon Guards for many years and the programme remains the same.

After the welcome speech, we have the "Loyal Toasts" to the Sovereigns of Sweden and the UK, given by HE the British Ambassador. From there, the programme is the same as the world over: "Piping in the Haggis" and "The Address to the Haggis", followed by "The Selkirk Grace", "The Immortal Memory" and "The Address to the Lassies" and "The Reply from the Lassies". Finally, and because this is a Cavalry Mess, the Officer hosting the evening, Lt Col Christian Braunstein, will give the "Toast to the Horse", preceded by a short speech. This is always an interesting sight, as people will stand with one foot on the chair and the other on the table, while giving the toast.

Through all this entertainment we still find the time to enjoy our "Haggis & Neeps" with whisky, "Roast Lamb & Tatties" (with salad and wine) finishing off with the usual dessert, "Brandied Figs" with Ginger Cream and Port. While the main room is being changed from dining to dancing we take coffee in the many lounges that make up the Officers Mess.

There are a number of fine portraits in each room as well as a collection of weapons and trophies to admire. The night ends with the famous dances: "Dashing white Sergeant", "Gay Gordons", "Strip the Willow" and more. Same procedure as last year and same procedure as every year!

I am glad to report that another tradition has become a part of the evening's entertainment: Our winnings at the lottery, which takes place between dinner and dessert. We of the McAlpine Society usually number around 6 – 8 people. The total number of guests is 80 to 90 people. Yet we keep winning the main prizes! List of winners so far: 2007 Finn Alpin, 2009: Ronny Lindergren, 2010: Leizel Alpin, 2011: Sven Gustavsson, 2012: Lotta Lenberg, 2013: Finn Alpin and yet again 2014: Finn Alpin! I attribute the fact that I won only to the circumstance that Ronny Lindergren could not be with us on the night! He never walks away from a Burns' Night with-out a prize! The main prize is usually a large bottle of a fine whisky. Other prizes are gift certificates, perfumes, books and various other things relating to the subject. I am hopeful that we will be gathering for yet another Burns' Night next year and that we can bring home a few more prizes!

Reno's Robert Burns Celebration

Submitted by Janet McAlpine

McAlpine father and daughter were presenters at Reno's Robert Burns Celebration. Doug presented the northern Nevada 2014 Scot of the Year Award while daughter, Ann Marie was the announcer for the raffle drawing.

We had a great time with 7 of our McAlpine family in attendance and 485 people attending the event.

The room at the Grand Sierra in Reno was gorgeous. What a marvelous birthday party for Robert Burns. Plans are already in the works for next year's event.

Notable McAlpines

Lieutenant General Duncan Alastair McAlpine (1922-2010)

Duncan McAlpine grew up in Montreal during the Depression. In 1940, soon after he turned 18, he entered the venerable granite armoury of the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada (Black Watch) to offer his services in the war against Nazi Germany.

Fighting as an infantry officer Duncan McAlpine was leading a 50-man patrol when he and his men came under machine-gun fire. It was September 1944.

After taking cover from the hailstorm of bullets, the young Mr. McAlpine, a junior infantry officer planned his assault on the enemy position.

After the objective was taken he looked down at his uniform. To his horror, he noticed a German bullet had cut its way through his jacket and underwear, grazed his neck and cut off his pistol holster. In the heat of battle, he hadn't felt a thing.

The incident was written up in the Toronto Telegram soon afterward. "It wasn't comfortable, but we've all had experiences like that," Mr. McAlpine told the reporter. "I had to buy new battledress. My old one was no more good, so I sent it home to my mother and told her to look at what the moths did."

That insouciance was typical of Mr. McAlpine in both peace and war. Known as a gentle man, he never raised his voice as he climbed the ranks to the top of the postwar Canadian army.

After the war he joined 1st Canadian Highland Battalion as a company commander in Germany, and subsequently served as a company commander in 1st Battalion, RHC in Camp Aldershot, Nova Scotia.

Following a tour of duty at NATO Headquarters in Fontainebleau, France, he assumed command of 2nd Battalion, RHC in West Germany in 1963 and continued in command when 2nd Battalion returned to Gagetown, New Brunswick in 1965 and when it deployed to Cyprus in 1966.

Between tours at National Defense Headquarters Canada, he commanded the Combat Training Centre in CFB Gagetown in 1970, and Canada's military contingent to the International Commission for Control and Supervision in Viet Nam in 1973. He was appointed Commander Canadian Forces in Europe in 1975.

By the time he retired from the regular army, he wore a chest full of medals as one of Canada's few lieutenant-generals on the active list.

After his military career, he worked for a period for Brascan Corporation and the Ontario Hospitals' Association before moving to Kingston, Ontario.

In Kingston, he was active in the university and his church, as well as finding time for his lifelong love of history. He also was a trustee for the Salvation Army, and Chairman of the Board of the Ontario Hospital Association. He was awarded the Silver Acorn from Scouts Canada.

By the end of the 1990s, Mr. McAlpine was back in the uniform of his beloved Black Watch when he was appointed the regiment's honorary lieutenant colonel. He later became honorary colonel, reporting on the unit to the colonel-in-chief, Prince Charles. Despite his age, Mr. McAlpine attended as many events as possible.

On Nov. 10, 2009, Mr. McAlpine wore his Black Watch ceremonial uniform, complete with kilt, medals, white spats and sporran, when he greeted Prince Charles and the Duchess of Cornwall at the regiment's historic armoury on Bleury Street in Montreal.

Carrying his claymore in his left hand, the insignia of commander of the Order of Military Merit hanging at his neck, Mr. McAlpine saluted his colonel-in-chief before the prince presented new colours to the regiment.

It was a glittering occasion. Mr. McAlpine, beaming proudly, was front and centre, where he belonged, 70 years after he first walked in the door to join up.

Hawaiian Scottish Festival

Submitted by Dave Stevens

The 33rd Annual Hawaiian Scottish Festival was held April 5th and 6th, 2014 at McCoy Pavilion at Ala Moana Beach Park in Honolulu.

This is a completely enclosed venue with multiple outdoor stages, air conditioned rooms, open-air rooms, fountains, pools, well kept restrooms, and beautiful landscaping! The pavilion is right on the beach.

The dance contests were held in the main air conditioned theatre and the athletic events were held just outside the pavilion at Ala Moana Beach Park.

It was a perfect day. It never got over 82 degrees and we always had a light breeze from the ocean. Wonderful food was available and, since this was an enclosed venue, beer, wine, and scotch were also for sale.

The Clan MacAlpine was well represented, and helped visitors find their family names on the clan map and look up some of their history on the internet.

It is with sadness that we hear of the passing of Ann Gilpin, beloved wife of our UK Commissioner John Gilpin. Passed on March 29th, in hospital at age 62. Ann was from Acomb, York. "She was my love, my life, my Ann". "Thank you all for being there for me and more importantly being there for my Ann"

Steven McAlpin of Oxnard CA

We are also saddened by the loss of Steven "Steve" Dale McAlpin, age 54, of Oxnard, CA who passed away Saturday, April 12, 2014. He was born February 12, 1960 in Friend, Nebraska, the son of Dean and Mary McAlpin. He grew up in Friend, Nebraska and Mineral Wells, Texas. The Procurator Fiscal of the Lyon Court

*Alexander M S Green,
M.Theol (Hons), LL.B, LL.M,*

The Lyon Court is a standing court of law which regulates heraldry in Scotland. It is fully integrated into the Scottish legal system and has both civil and criminal jurisdiction. The procurator fiscal appears in any proceedings before the Lyon Court on behalf of the Lord Advocate.

Persons or corporations who display heraldic devices to which they do not have a lawful right commit an offence under Scots Law. The use of symbols and devices which may be classed as a part of the system of heraldry (popularly called coats of arms etc...) is strictly controlled in Scotland.

There is a Public Register of Arms and all such symbols must be recorded if they are to be legally used in Scotland.

There are penalties for infringing such rights and it is the duty of this office to deal with those issues relating specifically with heraldry because of its unique and important role in Scots culture particularly in relation to the clan system.

This Office regularly deals with complaints concerning alleged infringements of the Law of Arms from a variety of sources. Many of these concern unregistered 'DIY' heraldry but also usurpation of registered arms. Each complaint is investigated on its merits and it is always a matter of the procurator fiscal's absolute discretion to decide whether to prosecute infringements. If the procurator fiscal decides to act he will do so by letter, warning or, if necessary, by way of prosecution before the Lyon Court.

An Update From The Council of Scottish Clans and Associations:

“We are assured from the very top boss of VisitScotland that Bannockburn Live is now set. During a productive and informative meeting last week COSCA was given assurance that we will see no further changes to the overall Bannockburn Live program – except to make it even better. Visit Scotland Chairman Dr. Mike Cantlay has followed that discussion with an open letter confirming that the Saturday/Sunday Bannockburn Live festival is ON – politics or no politics.

Once we really got VisitScotland to give us some up close and personal glimpses into what is being planned we are itching to get to Scotland in June. Plus, we have been working closely with the Clanranald Trust and we will be posting fascinating insights into the several years of the planning, research and incredible creativity and dedication of this amazing group and the National Trust For Scotland in bringing this once in a lifetime event to all of us.

We are working with Clanranald Trust, NTS and VisitScotland to put together a package for Monday that is truly dedicated to the clans and clansfolk who will travel to Scotland to be a part of it all. And make no mistake about it – the clans are part of show as the Clan Village will be an important part of the festival.

So let's allow the politics to go on as it will – we have our Heritage event at Bannockburn. After all, Bannockburn is in Scotland and the people of Scotland have a wee decision just ahead of them. We will watch and listen from the Clan Village under the shadow of King Robert and the Black Douglas and all of the men and women who made September's decision possible some 700 years ago.
