Special Family Craft Afternoon February 2nd

On Sunday February 2nd, 2-4 PM, the Crafter's Afternoon will feature a Make-and-Take table with a Valentine's Day theme.

Art materials will be provided for children and their accompanying adults to make cards for the special people they love. This has been a very popular activity at the Christmas breakfast and we hope that families can stop by to give it a try for the February holiday. (In case of bad weather we will reschedule for February 9, still in time for February 14 card delivery.)

George Gamble Library

February 2020

THE STORY OF ARTHUR TRULUV by Elizabeth Berg is about an elderly gentleman who takes his lunch to the cemetery every day to visit his beloved late wife, Nola. One afternoon he meets Maddy, a lonely teenager who spends her school lunch hour there. They become friends. When Maddy does not come to the cemetery for more than a week, Arthur becomes worried about her.

“..... he went to the library and got some help on the computer to try that Facebook, to see if he could find her there. Nope. “Have you tried Twitter?” the librarian asked. “Instagram? Snapchat?” Arthur stared at her, then thanked her and went home to lie down. Libraries used to be sanctuaries. Quiet places, with shafts of sunlight falling on rows and rows of books. Stories seeming to beckon. Now there is too much to do there, too much to see. He doesn’t do well with such stimulation. He’s more of a one-thing-at-a-time man.

” If you, like Arthur, don’t need a library for the “stimulation” that technology and special activities offer, but only for that provided by the stories found in the books on the shelves of a library, the George Gamble Library can certainly be your sanctuary. Several of Elizabeth Berg’s books can be found in our fiction collection. Her writing is reminiscent of that by Maeve Binchy, Rosamunde Pilcher and Nicholas Sparks, whose words capture the events of ordinary people living ordinary lives, but which “find the extraordinary in the ordinary, the remarkable in the everyday”.

In this new year, how about experiencing the writings of an author you have not yet met. Elizabeth Berg and so many others can be found at the library.
