

Senator Sanders – Still Going Strong

Sen. Sanders is probably the most reliable candidate for the Democratic Party as he is the most authentic candidate. He is a socialist and has been touting this political agenda for many years. He has not wavered in his goal as opposed to other candidates that have jumped on the band wagon of “free” healthcare and education. Bernie is someone that the electorate can count on not to flip or obfuscate his position.

Bernie is deceptively intriguing with his agenda. His single payer healthcare approach resonates as he states the individual will not pay a premium or deductible, but fails to identify what tax rate the individual will pay to replace the health insurance premium. The taxpayer only reflects on their personal payment and does not consider that their employer is paying at least the other half of the premium. The $28k annual cost he uses for a family of four is really $50k or more. Consider the fiasco that is ongoing in the VA healthcare management and explode that tenfold in managing healthcare. Read the MC article on Medicaid fraud. Nationalizing a $1T private insurance industry will hammer the economy.

Free higher education is another $500B tax that the people would have to bear. He does support stronger border control as he knows this will increase the cost of “free” stuff. So he does think link a capitalist.

Paying a monthly $870 ACA premium with a $6k deductible for my wife had me listening on Monday night.

Sen. Bernie Sanders appeared in Bethlehem on Monday in a town hall forum broadcast by Fox News. Is the senator from Vermont a viable presidential candidate and do you agree with his policy ideas?
