

Molico Signs Veterans' Employment Commitment

Molico has officially been recognised as a Supporter of Veterans' Employment, by signing the Veterans' Employment Commitment and joining over 1,800 other organisations from a range of industries across Australia that are recognising the skills and experience of veterans, and improving their employment outcomes.

Molico has now been listed on the VEC website as a Supporter of Veterans' Employment, providing veteran job-seekers with the ability to use filters to identify our organisation as a veteran-friendly employer.

By signing the commitment, Molico declares it will:

- recognise the skills and values veterans can bring to our organisation
- support the employment of veterans, ensuring veterans have equal opportunity in gaining employment
- aim to provide career opportunities to veterans
- actively seek to understand how veterans' skills and experience can translate into civilian skills
- provide suitable training, mentoring and coaching to veterans to assist their integration into our organisation

Group CEO, Molico, Mike Johnson was enthusiastic about the commitment:

"Coming from a family with ADF and military veterans, I can think of nothing better than supporting former serving personnel transition to civilian life, whilst helping them assess and understand just how compatible and transferable their skills are. Having watched more than one person struggle to transition to civvy street, I feel it is vitally important to recognise the effort and sacrifice such people have made – in times of peace and war – for more than just one day per year.
