Sgt. Bryan Holohan served with the Holts Summit Police Department from January 2002 until declining health forced him to step down in July 2007. He continued to serve as police clerk until late 2009 and passed away the following year at age 36.

Holohan's mother, Ann Claypool, said her son loved working in Holts Summit, especially since it was so close to his hometown of Jefferson City. She said helping people is what he enjoyed most about his job.

"He saw a lot of wrong and a lot of evil in the world, and he really felt like he was making a difference," she said.

Holts Summit Police Chief Kyle McIntyre said Holohan was very thorough as a sergeant, normally reading reports three times before he submitted them. He said Holohan was dedicated to helping out the community, even kissing a pig on the roof of the Bee Line snack shop after Holts Summit police raised $1,000 for Special Olympics.

"He cared about what he was doing. He was in law enforcement for all the right reasons," McIntyre said.
