

STACEY for WISCONSIN

Happy New Year

Paid for by Stacey for Wisconsin

As I sit here in my living room typing this, I think about the past year, reflecting on the growing chasm between the promise we have for our future, and the reality of where we are today. Tomorrow is January 1, 2024, the start of the new year. This always marks a time of resolution to change things in our lives that we do not like. Our shared hope is often that a new year will wipe the soiled clean, a refreshing cleansing of mistakes we regret or words we wish we hadn't spoken. I also enjoy hearing of the resolve that people have to become healthier, to eat better, to put down the remote and walk or bike. Gym memberships are bought, scales are frowned on, well you know the drill. If you are resolving to change something, I wish you well in your journey. I would like to ask you to add two simple things, and one important commitment. Let me explain...

The first thing I ask you to add is that as we move forward in what is guaranteed to be a chaotic and vitriolic election cycle is to remember to exercise your right to vote. My perfect scenario would be to vote early, and take a couple of friends with you. Remember to call your neighbor or your sister, but make sure that vote is banked. The Democrats do this rather well, and come election day, they always begin the day a quarter of a million votes ahead of us. We can change this scenario and we must win in November! The second thing is that elections cause high emotion. We pick our candidate, and we hope, we donate, we pound in signs, and then, sometimes, they come up short. We are frustrated, we feel that our person was better qualified, maybe just a little smarter, and would work tirelessly to fix all that is wrong. So, what do we do? Please do not sit the election out. Don't throw your hands up and give up. We must unite the moment after the primary election to make sure that a Republican is in the White House. We must send Senator Baldwin packing. We must keep our House majority and hopefully add the Senate. And we need to send every Republican State Senator and Representative back to Madison. Believe me when I tell you this, the Dems are united in their mission, and that is to win and force their leftist agenda upon us and our families. We may not agree with every Republican candidate 100% of the time, but we agree far more than with the leftist agenda that we must stop. Join me, and let's save our republic.

Wisconsin deserves, we need a Senator who reflects our values. These values are instilled in us in the land of the Badgers and Packers, and as I drive across our state, I am reminded of how we share a common bond, beyond our cheese and Great Lakes. We place honesty and integrity among the highest virtues. We cherish our families, and we stand strong in our faith. We support our schools and communities, and we value hard work. We aren't flashy, we don't have millions of dollars to throw around, and we like it when someone looks us in the eye and tells us the truth. The important commitment I ask goes one step more. I am asking you to join me, join this campaign to reclaim our Senate seat and send a strong message to the world. This seat, our seat is not for sale. It isn't a shiny toy for someone with crazy money to purchase. And it takes more than some recited bullet points to earn your vote. I am confident that our campaign is the only one poised to beat Tammy in November, because it is reflective of our shared values, and of the people of Wisconsin. Let our shared resolution be to replace Tammy and her leftist agenda with Staceyforwisconsin and my promise to serve only you.

I am writing to you every week, explaining where I stand on issues, sharing how my journey to represent you in Washington is going, but more importantly, looking you in the eye and constructing this contract with you that spells out exactly what I will do when I am elected. My work ethic was built on farm work and small-town values. My commitment to my family, our nation, and each of our communities is informed by my beliefs and forged in faith. And my word to you, the people of Wisconsin, will never be compromised for any reason. Please continue to follow and share the campaign: staceyforwisconsin.com.
