

STACEY for WISCONSIN

The Tale of Two Tammys Paid for by Stacey for Wisconsin

As I travel Wisconsin and meet and talk with you, I often refer to the two Tammys. Most people understand what I mean by that, but in case it wasn't clear, I wanted to explain and give a couple of examples. There are two faces that Senator Baldwin puts forward. The first one is the bipartisan façade that her handlers make sure that voters see when it is election time. Millions of dollars are poured into an effort that showcases Tammy reaching across the aisle and working with Republicans every chance she gets. She shakes a hand, gets her photo op, and then flies beneath the radar. Very few notice the radical leftist agenda that she actually promotes as she takes the Senate floor and forgets who she represents and where she comes from. Watch closely and you will meet her second persona, the party ideologue, someone who speaks in Democrat language, and everything is justified as long as her out of touch values pass through the halls of the capitol. I was reading old Tweets and found a glaring example of this "tale of two Tammys" and I felt compelled to share this with you!

In May of last year, Tammy Tweeted "If #SCOTUS is going to legislate from the bench and turn back the clock 50 years on #RoeVWade, then the Senate needs to pass my Women's Health Protection Act, and if we need to eliminate the filibuster to get it done, we should do that too." A short history lesson on Roe would remind the Senator that this decision in 1973 was in fact "legislation from the bench" and the overturning of Roe was in fact the opposite. This allowed the voters of the respective states to make decisions rather than having nine unelected justices put forth a ruling that created some magical and previously unseen right within the text of the United States Constitution.

This Tweet comes mere weeks after her comrade Justice Janet Protasiewicz was elected to the Wisconsin Supreme Court after openly campaigning on cases that were certain to come before Wisconsin's high court. She had already decided on Wisconsin's abortion law that is as old as the State itself. She also (pre) ruled on the mapping that Wisconsin has used for district lines. She literally campaigned on how she would rule, and was ENDORSED by a sitting United States Senator for what she would decry just a few weeks later. The last point about the Senator's Tweet is the name of her bill. Women's Health Protection Act. Think about what that sounds like and then what it actually means. It seems as though there were some horrific illnesses sweeping through the nation where Senator Baldwin was going to ride in on her white horse and put forth legislation that would protect women. (I must admit it is nice to hear someone from her side actually use women in the right context though, so a few points for that!) No, instead, her bill does the exact opposite because at least half of the babies that will lose their life are in fact women. Well little baby girls who would one day grow up to be women, if we only let them. Finally, who is really against protecting women's health? In 2022, according to the Pew Research Center, there were 629,898 abortions in the United States (January 11, 2023). The truth, however, is somewhat shocking. Less than 5% of all abortions are because of rape, incest or to save the mother's life, yet Tammy's leftist friends parade around stories that tug at your heart. These numbers tell us that instead of protecting women's health, Tammy's politics destroy over three hundred thousand baby girls every year, little women just getting started in their young lives.

I'm running for the United States Senate because we need to restore honor to this office. We don't need a Senator who talks out of both sides of her mouth just to get votes. We deserve a Senator who will tell voters the truth. I commit to you that I will vote how I tell you, I will be honest about why I vote for or against a bill, I will be the Senator that we want and deserve. And I will never sell this seat for the thirty pieces of silver that seems to occur far too often. Please check out my website Staceyforwisconsin.com and join a campaign that will truly support women, whether they are only twenty, sixty, or just getting started!

Stacey Klein, US Senate Candidate