British Parts Northwest

Another long time sponsor of our Touch of England show is British Parts Northwest.

The majority of us are familiar with British Parts Northwest and many of us have done business with them. But did you know that owner Greg Sherick started racing an "F" Production 1970 Spitfire in the late seventies in Portland, Oregon?

Parts, parts cars, and parting out old Spitfires all came with the territory. As recounted on the BPNW website, Mr. Sherick left the racing scene in 1983 to devote more time to the Triumph parts business and in 1985 he sold his existing service station business to devote all his time to British car parts.

Mr. Sherick began importing parts from the UK, as well as continuing to supply used parts, and he soon began to advertise throughout the United States - and British Parts Northwest came into being. Having moved up through the ranks so to speak, Mr. Sherick knew what it was like to be out looking for parts and he focused on keeping prices low and providing efficient, fast, and courteous service to his customers. That practice is still employed by British Parts Northwest at their current facility located on 40 acres in rural Dayton, Oregon. They've been there since 1986. It is a family operated corporation today that provides new parts for British cars: Triumph, MG, Jaguar, Classic Mini, Land Rover, and Austin Healey.

To the right: the British Parts Northwest team, as pictured on the website.

Those guys move a lot of Triumph parts and Triumph kits.

Hundreds of parts from over 40 manufacturers are available for the TR2, TR3, TR4, TR4A, TR250-TR6, TR7-TR8, Spitfire, and GT6.

Put the team to work for you!

In addition, there are new products and close out specials posted on the website. As well as a Product Finder to make finding the right part easier. And you can also sign up for the British Parts Northwest newsletter. Gift certificates are available too.

Details regarding shipping and delivery are provided on the website. British Parts Northwest ships worldwide.

There's also an informative Blog on the website. Did you know that both the Spitfire and GT6 had models that were specifically built for racing? I didn't, but British Parts Northwest does, and they carry parts for both.
