SAILBOAT

Capt. Starn's Seafood Restaurant

1963 Atlantic City, NJ

CAPTAIN STARN'S Restaurant, on the inlet, was one of Atlantic City's finest seafood restaurants for almost 40 years. Captain Starn's Restaurant was opened by Captain Clarent Starn in 1940, with seating for 750. It was located off the Atlantic City Boardwalk in the Inlet section of town, and was one of the most famous restaurants on the entire East Coast. As noted in a 2005 article in Atlantic City Weekly by Jim Waltzer, "When Capt. Starn's Restaurant and Boating Center was in its prime, the attraction was indeed more than just cuisine. A fleet of sailboats and motorboats provided sightseeing excursions round the island. A seaplane took the courageous on thrill rides, ending its run with a nerve-wracking dive into the ocean. Starn's may have offered a four-star stuffed flounder and broiled Alaskan crab, but it was the atmosphere that kept the place packed." Captain Starn's featured an in-house fish market, and had a fleet of 13 vessels, which included double decker excursion boats and the sailboat show to the right - and depicted in this week's reissued mold from MOLDVILLE.com!

Souvenir of a pleasant visit to
CAPTAIN STARN'S
 ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

It was quite common to take home a photo of your dining experience at Capt. Starn's Restaurant.

Paul Revere and the Raiders (whose hit song "Indian Nation" is used in this week's video clip) dining at Captain Starn's Restaurant in the 1960s. Maybe they dropped a quarter in the Mold-A-Rama machine and took home a Capt. Starn's SAILBOAT mold?! (By the way, they are still on tour today!)

Does the sailboat passing in the background behind the DIVING HORSE on the Steel Pier in Atlantic City, NJ, (Reissued by MOLDVILLE in Week 14) look familiar?!

The Capt. STARN'S SAILBOAT moldset was designed and made in 1963.
