

Sharon's Sensational Stories! September Edition

Two Perfect Titles

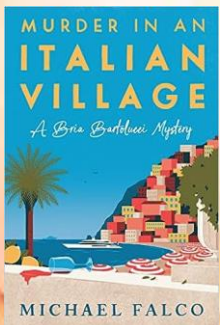

What You Are Looking For Is In The Library by Michiko Aoyama. A charming, internationally bestselling Japanese novel about how the perfect book recommendation can change a readers' life. Tokyo's most enigmatic librarian, Sayuri Komachi, is able to sense exactly what each visitor to her library is searching for and provide the perfect book recommendation to help them find it.

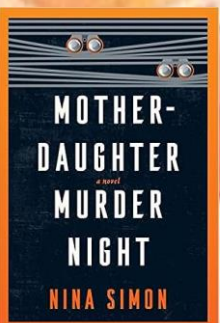

The September House by Carissa Orlando. A woman is determined to stay in her dream home even after it becomes a haunted nightmare in this compulsively readable, twisty, and layered debut novel. Just when you thought you'd seen everything a haunted house novel could do, this book delivers an eerie, darkly funny, and emotionally grounded story about the ghosts that haunt houses and marriages.

Fall is "WhoDunnit" Season

Murder in an Italian Village by Michael Falco. If you like your murder mysteries on the "cozy" side, give this first in a transporting new cozy mystery series a try. Set in beautiful Positano, Italy, a widowed B&B owner discovers a body in one of her bedrooms before opening day.

Mother-Daughter Murder Night by Nina Simon. A lighthearted whodunnit about a family of amateur sleuths. Lana, her daughter and grand-daughter uncover a web of lies, family vendettas, and land disputes lurking beneath the surface of a community populated by folksy conservationists and wealthy ranchers. But as their amateur snooping advances into ever-more dangerous territory, the women must learn to do the one thing they've always resisted: depend on each other.
