

Author Coaching

As a writer, do you sometimes feel overwhelmed by your work? Have you lost your way and don't know how to get back on track? Have you written your book and now need help to market it? Are you bewildered by the dizzying publishing options available today? Are you unsure of how to brand yourself properly as an author?

Often, those at the start of their writing journey lose confidence when faced by these challenges, and more. Sometimes, even the most seasoned veteran needs a helping hand. A chat with an experienced writing and publishing professional can often help. This is what author coaching is all about. A one-off session is useful to discuss specific topics and to gain clarity and perspective. A series of sessions can be used to design and implement ways forward and to chart progress. Sabrestorm Stories' Author Coach is Penny Legg. She has years of experience in coaching authors to success. Sessions are one-to-one and are recorded, so you receive audio/video of the meeting for later replay.

Testimonial – Beth Kennedy

Penny Legg provided incredible author coaching services for my first book, Career ReCharge: Five Strategies to Boost Resilience and Beat Burnout. I would highly recommend Penny's services, as she is not only an incredible editor but very authentic. I was so excited by my final back cover copy and I have also received positive feedback on the editorial quality. Thank you, Penny!
