Patricia J. Numann, MD, FACS

Lloyd S. Rogers Professor of Surgery Emerita
Founder of the Association of Women Surgeons,
Former president of the American College of Surgeons, and Professor Emeritus at the State University of New York Upstate Medical University

Dr. Patricia J. Numann is a native New Yorker who was educated at the University of Rochester and obtained her medical degree and completed her general surgery residency at the State University of New York, Health Science Center at Syracuse. She holds Board Certification from the National Board of Medical Examiners and the American Board of Surgery. She is past President of the American College of Surgeons and past Chair of the American Board of Surgery, the first woman in either position. She was one of the founding members of the Association for Surgical Education and founded the Association for Women Surgeons. She was the first woman elected to the American Medical Association

Council on Scientific Affairs. Dr. Numann has received numerous honors and awards at the local, state and national level. She has received the Post Standard Woman of Achievement Award, the Onondaga County Physician Service to the Community Award, the New York State Woman of Accomplishment Award, and the Nina Starr Braunwald Award of the Association of Women Surgeons. She is listed in Best Doctors in America. She has been named, by the SUNY Board of Trustees, as a SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor and a SUNY Distinguished Service Professor. She received the Upstate Medical University Distinguished Alumna Award and SUNY Alumna of Distinction Award. She served as Medical Director of University Hospital for 10 years. She was designated the Lloyd S. Rogers Professor of Surgery in 2000. She was inducted into the International Women Physicians' Hall of Fame and named "Local Legend" to The National Library of Medicine's "Changing Faces of Medicine" exhibit. In 2006, Dr. Numann received AMWA's highest award the Elizabeth Blackwell Medal for her contribution in the professional advancement and recognition of women. Dr. Numann was given The American College of Surgeon's Distinguished Award at the Clinical Congress in October of 2006. She was first woman to receive this prestigious award.

Dr. Numann is particularly interested in education and has been distinguished as a teacher, receiving the Clinical Teacher of the Year Award twice. She has been regularly asked by the graduating medical students to serve as the Faculty Marshall or to deliver the Oath of Hippocrates. Dr. Numann's scientific and clinical interests are in the area of thyroid and parathyroid disease and breast disease, founding The Breast and Endocrine Center which now bears her name. She was highly regarded as a clinical surgeon. She has published numerous articles, abstracts and book chapters. She is committed to equity for women.

In January of 2007, she retired from active clinical practice and as Lloyd S. Rodgers Professor of Surgery, but remains active in many teaching and organizational activities.

Edward Eugene Cornwell III, M.D., FACS, FCCM, FWACS

Surgeon-in-Chief

Professor and Chairman of Surgery

Howard University College of Medicine | Howard University Hospital

Dr. Cornwell is the LaSalle D. Leffall Jr. Professor and Chair, Department of Surgery, Howard University College of Medicine. He received his surgical training (internship and residency) at the Los Angeles County University of Southern California Medical Center (1982-1987) and his trauma/critical care fellowship at the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems in Baltimore, Maryland (1987-1989). He has been certified and re-certified in both General Surgery and Surgical Critical Care by the American Board of Surgery. He has risen through the academic ranks through teaching and clinical appointments at Howard University (1989-1993), the University of Southern California (1993-1997), and Johns Hopkins School of Medicine (1998- to 2008).

Dr. Cornwell's career interest is in the prevention, treatment, and outcome disparities of traumatic injuries, and their critical care sequelae.

He has authored or co-authored over 275 articles and chapters and has given over 340 invited presentations in the field. He has delivered the named lecture or keynote address at over 20 institutions and conferences. He is a reviewer for several surgical journals and is former deputy editor of JAMA-Surgery (formerly Archives of Surgery). He has served as President, Society of Black Academic Surgeons; President, Surgical Section of the National Medical Association, and Chairman of Trauma Net of Maryland.

He is presently Secretary of the American College of Surgeons and is on the Board of Managers of the American Association for Surgery of Trauma.

Dr. Cornwell has received numerous awards and citations for his efforts in education, outreach, and violence prevention. He has received major teaching awards in every faculty position he has held, and was selected as the commencement speaker at the USC School of Medicine in 1996, and at the HUCM in 2002. He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from HUCM in 2014.
