Dear John,

As the construction project for the MPS Washburn High School Science Wing 2nd Floor Addition nears closeout, I'm compelled to write this letter of commendation for the successful role that John Foley Masonry played. Upon the initial meeting to review the scope of work and condensed schedule, coordination, collaboration and cooperation were evident. John Foley Masonry listened to our expectations and paid close attention to our scheduling requirements. Behind the scenes, Jevon Foley and Sarah Larson were critical allies to ensuring the project's overall success, due to the open communication and team approach that they upheld. The excellent management of submittals and attention to detail for the building specifications ensured that potential issues were addressed and corrected prior to the start of work, thus saving time and money.

The greatest of appreciation and recommendations goes out to your field team. Under the leadership of Drew Stewart and Jarmon Foley, they were very instrumental in pushing our schedule and working in a manner that met critical, challenging milestones. Where such a schedule would have been seen as an impossibility, the highly skilled crew was able to deliver a high-quality project per the schedule, when others said that it couldn't be done. Aside from their quality of work being commendable, the team was highly conscientious of safety. John Foley Masonry accomplished the masonry work without incident, which was no small feat, considering the tight parameters and working from heights at multiple areas. They were also mindful of keeping the areas organized and clean, and they regularly communicated and collaborated with Graham and other trades.

With John Foley Masonry meeting the critical path milestones, other trades were subsequently pushed to perform and meet dates, as well. Thanks for playing a huge, influential, contributory part of forging the way! If it were not for the efforts of your entire team, there is no doubt that this project would not have been the success it was,. Given the complexity of the project and the nature of summer school construction, your expertise and commitment contributed greatly to the success. Please share this letter with all who played a part in this project. It has been a pleasure, and I look forward to and welcome the opportunity of working with John Foley Masonry again!

Sincerely,

Debbie Croker
Project Manager
