

Jadian,

I'm pleased to have the opportunity to give you some feedback about our experience with John Foley Masonry. We worked with John Foley Masonry on $27 million new school with brick exterior throughout. First, the level of planning and communication John Foley Masonry delivered was unprecedented. We worked out the mockups and details on a mockup wall before footings we're even in. John Foley's collaboration planning the workflow on the exterior building envelope cut 2 months off the original schedule and allowed the project to be enclosed that much sooner. This planning translated into superior quality because when the brick started to go in, the details and products had already been worked out. The brick looks brilliant and neatly constructed. The waterproof membranes were well installed and picture documentation was maintained by John Foley throughout the project. John Foley took complete responsibility for scheduling their own subcontractors and reviewing their quality as well.

Most companies talk about "Safety First." I witnessed first hand John Foley Masonry's dedication to safety. There were many instances where a job could be accomplished off a ladder legally, but John Foley Masonry chose to erect scaffold to ensure a safe working space for their employees. We had weekly safety audits on site, and the safety inspector regularly tried and failed to find something to write up.

John Foley Masonry's Professionalism need to be experienced to be believed. The entire crew treats each other with respect at all times. They say please and thank you with every request. The foreman work with the other trades to ensure everyone's needs are met to allow for maximum efficiency. Meetings are always attended and participation is always thoughtful and respectful. Submittals and close out documentation was provided with out the need for us to ask for it. The punchlist was completed as soon as it was issued.

I look forward to working with John Foley Masonry in the future. I've never had such a positive experience in construction.

Sincerely
