

The Connection Circuit is a diagram of how we create connection, the transistors that conduct connection and the resistors that cause the energy of our connection to be lost. The transistors in this circuit are the elements of connection [thoughts, expression, experience] and the the resistors [disrupted feelings, distorted boundaries and limits, displaced expectations and assumptions].