This month Division 7 has two items up for voting by our members: Election of Officers for 2016-2017, and Regulations for our newly created non-profit organization, Cincinnati Division 7 NMRA Inc.

Nominations for the Officer positions were closed as of our last Division 7 Meeting on November 8, and as a result, our 4 current Officers are running unopposed for their respective offices.

A Ballot is being mailed to all current members of Division 7, along with a copy of Officer Bios, plus the proposed Regulations. This Ballot must be returned to the Teller, Dianne Rowland, for counting. Ballots must be returned no later than December 31, 2015.

Ballots may either be:

- (1) mailed to the Teller, or
- (2) brought to the Division 7 meeting on December 13.

MEMBERS MUST WRITE THEIR NMRA MEMBER NUMBER ON THE RETURN ADDRESS SPACE IN ORDER FOR THEIR VOTES TO BE COUNTED.

A majority of votes cast decides the outcomes of both the election of Officers, and adoption of the Regulations.

Your participation is needed. So, please vote!

If you have a photo, or a useful tip, or maybe just a useful website that you would like to share, the Oilcan is an opportunity to share it with your fellow model railroaders. Email it to editor@cinev-div7.org.

I can see clearly now. Or at least I can see things if they are more than about 5 feet from me. Anything closer than that starts to get fuzzy. Like several other members of our division, I recently had cataract surgery on both eyes. My left eye has been getting progressively worse for the last 4 years or so. Now that the right eye was also starting to develop a cataract, my ophthalmologist finally said "We have reached the day when we can do something." Having worn glasses since third grade, it's been quite a change having 20 / 20 (distance) vision. My family is getting used to seeing me without glasses, and I've finally gotten out of the habit of reaching for my glasses when I get out of bed. Of course, now I need to invest in reader glasses in various strengths so I can do activities which require more close up work. When I was up at the Dayton train show, I was especially interested in the various work lights with integrated magnifying lenses.

Speaking of the Dayton train show, I spent several hours up at Hara arena on Saturday afternoon checking out the vendors and layout displays. This year's show honored W. Allen McClelland MMR and his various renditions of the Virginian & Ohio Railroad. The Miami Valley Modular group had a sizable layout setup. One of the trains they were running consisted of V & O railroad project cars that Divisions 3 and 7 had done over the years. It made for quite a long train.

Following our train show in October, Randy Kerka performed a "data-mining" of all of the door prize entry forms to glean information such as how the person heard about the show and if they wanted more information about the NMRA. Name and address information from the forms is added to the postcard database to be used for the reminder postcards for next year's show. This year, Randy found 221 entry forms requesting more info about the NMRA. In late October, I sent out 221 letters with info about Division 7 and inviting the recipient to come to a meeting and check us out. Several people who received this letter came to the November meeting. It's now up to us to welcome these people and show them what they can gain from an NMRA membership.

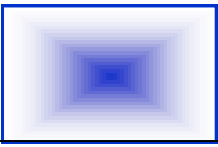

Dianne Rowland has been heading up our Spring Flea Market and Trade Show for the last four years. Her husband Don had assisted her in this endeavor until his sudden passing this past February. After some consideration, Dianne has decided to step aside as the head of this show following the 2016 edition on March 12th. In order to effect a smooth transition of her responsibilities, I would like to find a successor for Dianne as soon as possible. This will allow the new person to work closely with Dianne as the final preparations are made for the 2016 show, and make it easier to take over the job for the succeeding years. While not as big an event as the fall show, the spring show is still important to the division as a source of income and provides a fun event for the modelers in the Greater Cincinnati area. If you think this is something you would like to take on and help keep Division 7 one of the top divisions in the country, contact me by phone or Email and we'll talk. My contact info is found elsewhere in the Oil Can.

The next BOD meeting will be on Friday, December 4th. The meeting location will be Harmony Lodge in Spring Grove Village and will start at 7 pm. Any Division 7 member is welcome to attend.

The next division meeting will be on December 13th. This will be our annual snack fest and picture show. Come to the meeting and enjoy the food John and I will spread before you.

A separate mailing is being sent to you since it includes a ballot enabling you to vote in the division officer elections, and to approve a new set of regulations. The new regulations will govern a new Ohio corporation operating under the IRS group 501c3 exemption covering NMRA National and the participating regions and Divisions. Please take the time to return the ballot. It only costs you 49 cents.

SECOND SECTION

John Shields
Asst. Super

Our November meeting was at Partners in Prime in downtown Hamilton on Sunday November the 8th. National clinician Lou Sassi was in town and gave his newest clinic entitled: “Woods to Walls, Fields to Fences”. We are always privileged to have Lou come through the area and be able to get him to come to one of our meetings. I understand that this time in town, Lou was photographing John Listermann’s layout; so congratulations to John on that. After the meeting, we visited the layouts of the five clubs that share the Ross School facility. These are the O scale High Railers, the HO Ross Rails, the HO Black Diamond Lines, the HO Cincinnati Northern, and the N scale Queen City N-Gineers.

In December, we will end the year as we always do in Westwood with the annual pot luck slide show and foodfest at Westwood United Methodist Church on December 13th (construction at the church is complete!). The contest topics for December are Dioramas – for the models, and Depots – for the photographs. Afterward, we will visit Jerry Strangarity’s HO Reading RR layout.

And that will bring us to 2016. In January, we will be in Kenwood at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church on January 10th (Note: change of venue from previous publications). Our clinician will be the previously mentioned John Listermann who will be giving a clinic entitled: “Painting Backdrops for Model Railroads”. This is actually the second of John’s clinics, following on from the one he gave back at our June meeting. Afterwards, we will be visiting Gerry Albers’ layout.

In February, we plan to return to West Chester Library on February 14th for a clinic by Charlie Atkinson on the Hocking Valley Railroad. There is no Division meeting in March due to the Spring Flea Market on March 12th. For the April meeting on April 10th, we will be at Harmony Lodge in Winton Place. Our clinician at that meeting will be Frank Koch.

On November 12th, I had the opportunity to give a talk at the Erlanger Library about the hobby of model railroading. That prompted some thoughts to share, but first let me give a shout out to Paul Musselman and John Burchnall for giving me the help I needed to pull this off. I had asked Paul to let me borrow the display of the various scales that we use in connection with the Company Store at the various shows; and Paul not only set me up with that, but came to the talk with his T Trak display layout so we could show a real live running model train layout (complete with Thomas the Tank, of course!). For the actual presentation, I shamelessly stole content from the NMRA website section on model railroad basics and getting started in the hobby. But that would still just have been a fairly “dry” Powerpoint slide show. From my work experience, I know that fewer words and more pictures/graphs/charts etc make for a better talk. That is where John Burchnall’s help came in. John has been improving the Division web site since he took over that job a year and a half ago. One of the key improvements has been the creation of photo collages of a number of the local layouts. These photos were the perfect way to make a number of my points in the talk, through pictures of local layouts. Thanks to the work John has been doing, all I had to do was pull these great pictures down from the website and drop them into my slides.

Now for the thoughts. In making this kind of talk, the audience includes not only people who might be prospective modelers, but also family members who will either enable the future hobbyist or at least be impacted by that choice. This really forces one to think about how to sell our hobby to these folks as well; and to realize how important that may be to building our hobby. Especially when looking at getting children interested, to be the next generation of modelers, I think we often think too much about competing with what else may be attracting them (video games, for instance) and fail to think about how we might better enlist their parents into wanting to help us “sell” the hobby. So a few key points to remember and try to use: model railroading is a hobby that families can do together, across multiple generations. (I know I am a second generation model railroader, and my son is/was a third generation modeler). Model railroading can teach a lot of related content in a friendly way [just don’t tell the kids this!]. Model railroading builds a whole range of skills, but perhaps more importantly it builds self-esteem from learning new skills. Model railroading teaches instant results should not always be the goal. Results gained over a longer time can be more rewarding; and actually the process of learning and improving can be more rewarding than an actual outcome. (How many of us have ever finished a layout, and do we feel bad if we have not?). Do these sound like reasons to encourage a son or daughter to try model trains? Compared to other things they might be trying? The focus should not be on the time required or what it might cost, but what can be gained.

Of course, the key point is always that model railroading is fun. All kinds of different people can find ways to have fun within the hobby. Some like building things. Some like planning and researching. Some like being part of groups and some like finding a hobby they can do all alone. Some like to compete, and many like a past time that is not competitive like most sports activities. Some like an excuse to travel, and some do most of their hobby activity in an armchair. They are all valid parts of model railroading and we can all relate to these things.

See you in Westwood on the 13th. Come hungry!

John

KNAPP'S NOTES

by Bruce Knapp

Veteran's Day

This month's meeting day (November 8) started like every day --- I slept soundly and peacefully, I had a good breakfast, since it was Sunday, I attended the church of my choice, I met Keith Corman and Merlyn Jarman at McDonald's in Hamilton, had my choice of their always healthy (?) cuisine, shared conversation with two close friends, got to freely express my opinions, went to a model railroad meeting. In fact, I spent the day like many other Americans, enjoying the many freedoms, we are blessed with. Veteran's Day I had a chance to give back as our quintet played for one of many ceremonies for our veterans.

I have strong opinions about military service and those who have served. My natural father gave his life in the South Pacific during WWII. My paternal grandfather, my adoptive father, both my uncles and many other relatives have taken their turn serving our great land. My great-great grandfather Brooks served at Chancellorsville with the Indiana 13th Infantry. My life is courtesy of so many brave individuals, both living and dead, who answered their country's call to arms. On Veteran's Day I sent an e-mail to Pat Homan, Jim Hodde, and many of my fellow veterans thanking them for their service, but in a larger sense there are quite a few veterans in Division 7, I would like to thank them, also.

Some of you are from the WWII and Korean War era, many more are Vietnam veterans, and there are those of us who stayed home and served stateside. You are all America's finest and I salute each and every one of you. A belated Happy Veteran's Day and God Bless America. Jim, I am still rooting for the Black Knights of the Hudson to sink your Middies.

The Very Honest(?) Raffle

I would like to thank my buddies from the S.O.B.'s, Keith and Merlyn for stepping in and assisting with November's "Honest "No-springs" Raffle, although I was a bit flustered by the suggestion there was some "hanky-panky" going on. While there was some "hanky", there was absolutely no "panky", would I try to cheat you? I come from the W. C. Fields school of honesty. I suspect that Frank Koch was keeping a close eye on the proceedings, as he was very quick to point out that I hadn't drawn a ticket yet. As W. C. used to say, "You can't cheat an honest man." Oh well, there is always next month.

The Raton Pass won't be open

I was fully prepared to open the layout after December's meeting; I was actually going to do work (there is that dirty four-letter word again). My wife's deteriorating health has made the "open-house" impossible. Hopefully, I will be able to be open in the near future.

Keep 'em rolling

Bruce
